"People may not start out, intentionally, to fake a claim, but when they go to a lawyer, the lawyer tries to build up a claim. He sends them to doctors and chiropractors, telling them he just wants to make sure they're OK. But that builds up the medical bill," Segraves said. As a result, medical expenses for claims in which a lawyuer is involved average about $5,000 higher than those settled without a lawyer.

"For every $1 in actual medical expenses, on average, the claimant will get an additional $2 in pain and suffering, and lawyers want to build up that claim," he said.

And, he noted, an earlier study by the Insurance Research Council showed the number of cases in which lawyers are involved inceased 42 percent between 1977 and 1987.

He suggested a 1977 Supreme Court decision barring restrictions on advertising by lawyers contributed to the proliferation of lawyer involvement in personal injury cases.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (DEC. 13) UPI - Paroled child killer Arthur Shawcross was found guilty Thursday of murdering 10 Rochester area women during a two- year spree that gripped the city in fear.

The jury deliberated 6 1/2 hours before convicting Shawcross on 10 counts of second-degree murder. Defense attorney Thomas Cocuzzi said he would appeal.

The 45-year-old Shawcross faces sentences totaling 250 years for murdering the 10 women between March 1988 and January 1990.

He is expected to stand trial on an 11th murder charge in neighboring Wayne County.

Most of the 11 dead women were prostitutes.

''All these girls, regardless of what they were or who they were, deserve a little satisfaction. I know Maria can rest peacefully now,'' said Jim Miller, boyfriend of victim Maria Welch.

Shawcross stared straight ahead and showed no emotion as the jury foreman read the verdict.

Shawcross had confessed to the crimes in written and videotaped statements, but defense lawyers tried to convince the jury during the 11-week trial that Shawcross was insane and not responsible for his actions.

A key defense witness said he suffered from multiple personalities, child abuse and post-traumatic stress sydrome after a military stint in the Vietname War.

In his confession, Shawcross said he killed mostly out of anger. He said he killed one prostitute because she made fun of his sexual prowess, another because she broke the gearshift on his wife's car and a third because she told him she knew who he was and was going to tell police.

According to his statements, while police were looking for the women's murderer in late 1989 and early 1990, Shawcross calmly discussed the case with police at a local doughnut shop.

Shawcross committed the crimes after being paroled from state prison in 1987 where he had served 14 years on a manslaughter charge for the death of a Watertown child.

After his release, public pressure forced him to move out of both Binghamton and a rural Catskills town. Parole officials then resettled him in the Rochester area where he married and was employed as a salad maker at a local food service firm.

''I was just glad (the conviction) was murder not manslaughter. They should have done that 15 years ago, '' said Welch's mother, Liz Mignary.

MOSCOW (DEC. 13) UPI - A top Soviet official welcomed the U.S. decision to waive restrictions on credit guarantees Thursday and said the move would help the Soviet Union cope with its current economic crisis and improve overall trade relations.

President Bush said Wednesday he would waive the 1974 Jackson-Vanik act, which barred preferential credits to the Soviet Union until emigration restrictions on Jews were eliminated. The move woul allow the United States to provide up to $1 billion in agriculture export credits to help the Soviet Union through ''tough times.''

Deputy Soviet Premier Lev Voronin, who is coordinating the international relief effort that is pouring food and other supplies into the Soviet Union to help alleviate shortages, said Thursday he welcomed the prospect of increased U.S. help.

''We have a very good opinion of this action,'' Voronin told a news conference called to discuss the relief effort. ''It will also promote our trade cooperation, and we hope that additional help ... will be provided to us.''

Voronin said 2,500 tons of relief supplies, mostly food and medicines, already have been delivered to the Soviet Union since President Mikhail Gorbachev appealed to the West for help at the November European summit in Paris.

Private U.S. organizations already have sent 93 tons of supplies, but Voronin said the official government help from Washington would be welcome.

A U.S. official said in Washington that the aid package for the Soviet Union was the largest ever offered any country. Under the program, the United States will guarantee payments of up to $1 billion for Soviet purchases of wheat, feed grains, oilseeds, vegetable oil, livestock, dairy products and other farm produce.

Voronin said before Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze left for talks with U.S. officials this week he was told ''of the products that would be appreciated if they come from the United States to the Soviet Union as humanitarian aid,'' but he declined to give specifics.

He also said ''concrete measures were taken'' to ensure that foreign aid does not get waylaid by the same distribution problems and corruption that led to the Soviet shortages in a year of record harvests in the country, but again he gave few specifics.

EVANSTON, Ill. (DEC. 13) UPI - The job outlook for 1991 college graduates is about the same as a year earlier, but graduates will be expected to know more about computers and less about drugs than last year's job seekers, according to a Northwestern University report released Thursday.

While the overall business outlook is ''not optimistic'' - with 61 percent of 320 companies surveyed expecting stagnation or decline in 1991 - there are some bright spots, said Victor R. Lindquist, author of the 45th-annual Lindquist-Endicott Report.

He cited concerns over recession, the federal budget deficit and the Persian Gulf crisis as contributing factors to ''tentativeness'' in employment plans.

''The economy will be one of mixed fortune, posing awesome problems for management in developing strategies to cope with uncertainties,'' Lindquist said.

A majority of firms expect business to be the same or to decline, but 39 percent believe business will improve.

Forty percent will increase hiring of graduates at both the bachelor's and master's degree levels, but 42 percent say they will hire fewer people with bachelor's degrees and 37 percent will trim hiring of those with advanced degrees, the report found.

Graduates most in demand are engineers with master's degrees, who will find demand for their services up 25 percent, with not enough job seekers to fill all the available jobs in some fields.

Average starting salaries will be up 4 percent over a year earlier, trailing the inflation rate for the second straight year.

Lindquist said there is a ''continuing need for college students to obtain computer skills, reflected in the importance recruiters place on the ability to use the personal computer for analysis and other functions. The demand for this competency continues to grow faster than anyone has projected'' and the skill will be used throughout most careers.

Sixty-seven of firms hiring graduates next year will be doing drug testing, Lindquist found.

''The cost of screening, when weighed against the toll of having a poor employee on the payroll and the expenditures involved with termination, mandate qualifying everyone before the employment offer,'' he said.

The Northwestern report, which has become a fixture in the economic forecasting industry since its inauguration in 1945, surveyed medium-to- large business and industrial firms nationwide as well as smaller companies representing regional areas or specialized industry groups.

Employer groups surveyed included banking, finance and insurance, chemicals, drugs and rubber, electrical and electronics, merchandising and services, public utilities and other industries.

ATLANTA (DEC. 13) UPI - With the beginning of winter just one week away, federal health experts reported an increase Thursday in flu-like illnesses, with 13 states listing cases of the contagious disease.

Nationwide, 775 deaths attributed to influenza and pneumonia were reported for the week ending Dec. 8, which is below the epidemic threshold, the nationalCenters for Disease Control said.

However, CDC officials said there were indications that flu or other flu-like infections might be more widespread than the figures reported by state health departments.

The CDC's survey of selected family doctors from 42 states showed 3.5 percent to 3.7 percent of recent patient visits were for evaluation of flu-like illnesses. That percentage, although significant, is still below epidemic levels, the CDC said.

The 13 states, plus the District of Columbia, reporting sporadic cases of flu-like illnesses were: Alabama, Hawaii, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont and West Virginia.

Flu cases typically begin to increase dramatically in middle or late December and peak in late February or March.

Last year, the United States experienced its worst flu epidemic in five years. At least 10,000 deaths have been documented in each of 19 U. S. epidemics between 1957-1986. In each of three of those epidemics the death toll exceeded 40,000. Up to 90 percent of flu deaths occur among people over age 65.

With the flu season apparently just getting started, the CDC urged all people over age 65 and those with chronic diseases to get flu immunizations, saying the shots ''still remain the best way'' of avoiding the infection.

The CDC said all three strains of influenza are circulating in the United States. The trivalent vaccine currently available at doctors' office and public health centers protects against all three varieties.

CHICAGO (DEC. 13) UPI - Retail sales of farm tractors and self-propelled combines increased during November.

The Equipment Manufacturers Institute said Thursday sales of two- and four-wheel-drive tractors were up 31.8 percent last month from November 1989.Sales of self-propelled combines were up 25.7 percent.

Through the first 11 months of the year, farm tractor sales were only slightly higher than during the comparable 1989 period, while combine sales were up more than 15 percent.

The institute is the national trade association and coordinator for the monthly survey and provides varied services to manufacturers.

LONDON (DEC. 13) UPI - Amid increasing signs of an economic downturn, the Conservative Party's lead over the opposition Labor Party has slipped 9 percent since Prime Minister John Major took office two weeks ago, according to a poll released Thursday.

The Conservatives' lead over Labor, running at 11 percent in the days after Major replaced Margaret Thatcher Nov. 28, dropped to 2 percent, according to a poll conducted at the end of last week by ICM for the London daily The Guardian.

Although the polls showed a drop, the Tories' level of support is still much higher than a month ago before the struggle for party leadership, which led to the ouster of Thatcher. An ICM poll taken during the first week of November had Labor leading the Conservatives 49 percent to 43 percent.

In the poll published Thursday, the Tories received 45 percent to Labor's 43 percent, with the Liberal Democrats getting 9 percent and the Greens environmentist party 2 percent.

The poll came amid signs of a worsening economy. The Department of Employment announced Thursday that unemployment in Britain rose for the eighth month in November to 6.2 percent, up 0.2 percent from the previous month and the largest increase in nine years.

Chancellor Norman Lamont, head of the British Treasury, told Parliament Wednesday that the economy was experiencing ''a marked slowdown'' and indicated that the government would not ease its tight fiscal policies by cutting interest rates.

Despite the gloomy economic indications, The Guardian poll showed the Conservative Party enjoyed increased confidence among voters regarding its competence to handle the economy and the nation's education and health programs. Asked which party is better qualified to run the economy, 47 percent choose the Tories while 25 percent supported Labor, The Guardian reported.

Regarding the leadership abilities of the two major parties, 86 percent of the Conservative Party members polled said they believed Major and Lamont could manage the economy best while 59 percent of Labor voters backed party Chairman Neil Kinnock and John Smith, Labor's economic spokesman.

ICM interviewed 1,376 adults on Friday and Saturday for the poll.

ATLANTA (DEC. 13) UPI - Bobby Ross, who in four years molded a ragtag 2-9 Georgia Tech squad into the nation's only unbeaten major college team, Thursday was named Coach of the Year by United Press International.

''I think that this is symbolic of the effort of a lot of people affiliated with our coaching staff, our players and the people who surround us at Georgia Tech who have given so much effort and support to our program,'' Ross said. ''It's an honor that I will greatly cherish and is something I am greatly honored to receive.''

The No. 2 Yellow Jackets, unbeaten since a loss to Duke Oct. 28, 1989, compiled a 10-0-1 record in 1990. The only blemish was a 13-13 tie at North Carolina.

Georgia Tech won its first Atlantic Coast Conference title this year and its first conference title of any sort since 1952, before the school left the Southeastern Conference. That earned Ross the ACC Coach of the Year award.

The Yellow Jackets are headed for a New Year's Day showdown against Nebraska in the Citrus Bowl, a matchup that could have national title implications if No. 6 Notre Dame knocks off No. 1 Colorado in the Orange Bowl.

Ross began his head coaching career at The Citadel, but it was at Maryland he began to draw notice. Between 1982 and 1986, the Terrapins went 39-19-1, won three ACC championships and went to four bowls. In his first year at Maryland, Ross was named ACC Coach of the Year.

Ross's dedication to academics attracted Georgia Tech Athletic Director Homer Rice.

''I think this a great message when someone like Bobby Ross is selected as Coach of the Year,'' Rice said. ''He represents what college athletics is all about - the total person dedicated to giving their best on the field and in the classroom. We're just elated he would receive this sort of award.

''I like to describe Bobby Ross as a tunnel. He keeps his focus. He's more than a football coach. He's so concerned about every student- athlete going to class and being the best they can. It's heartening to see that rewarded.''

Under Ross, Georgia Tech has been cited by the College Football Association for its high graduation rate - in the top 12 for four straight years. Last winter, the team posted an overall 2.5 grade-point average and placed 11 players on the dean's list.

At first, Ross's teams struggled. Georgia Tech went 2-9 in 1987 and 3-8 the following season. However, the Yellow Jackets improved to 7-4 in 1989, winning seven of their last eight games. Five of Ross's players were named all-ACC, quarterback Shawn Jones was ACC Rookie of the Year and running back Jerry Mays earned honorable mention All-America.

''I think (Coach Ross) definitely deserves it,'' Jones said of the UPI award. ''He put so much hard work into our program during his first couple of years here. Things were tough. He could have easily quit then. But I think it's a credit to him that he didn't. He just worked on through the hard times. I can't think of anyone more deserving to be Coach of the Year.''

This season, free safety Ken Swilling was named All-American and five players received honorable mention, among them offensive lineman Joe Siffri.

''I'm ecstatic,'' Siffri said. ''He's not just a good coach on the field, he's also a good developer of men. And it's not just by what he teaches us, but also by following his example.''

To a man, the Yellow Jackets agreed their success was a testament to Ross, both in his aggressive approach to football and to life off the field.

''I think it's important to make things happen, not to wait for them to happen '' Ross said.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) UPI - A survey of young Americans aged 16 to 24 shows a conservative bent, with most in favor of random drug testing, the death penalty and keeping marijuana illegal, a Gallup poll reported Thursday.

Thirty-one percent of those questioned said they were in favor of reinstating the draft during the Persian Gulf crisis, and 24 percent said they would be willing to serve in the Middle East if needed.

In the telephone survey of 1,003 young people around the country commissioned by Fuji Photo Film U.S.A., Inc., 49 percent described themselves as conservative, while 39 percent said they were liberal.

Questioned about the death penalty, 77 percent said they were in favor of it, with an identical 77 percent saying they were in favor of random drug testing.

Seventy-eight percent said they wanted marijuana to remain illegal.

Asked about biggest problems facing youth today, 58 percent said drugs, with illiteracy, the environment, AIDS, pregnancy and abortion, and family problems each named by 5 percent or less.

Sixty-four percent said they were in favor of warning labels about lyrics on recorded music.

Seventy percent said they believe the world was a better place during their parents' youth, and 56 percent think the world will be a worse place for their children to live in.

However, 73 percent said they believe the quality of education today is better than their parents received.

Who do they most admire in the world? ''Mom'' got the most votes, with 11 percent. ''Dad'' got 8 percent. In politics, Bush won with 23 percent. Donald Trump is champ in business with 24 percent.

They average 24 hours a week listening to music, 14 hours watching television or videotapes, seven hours reading and three hours at volunteer work.

Thirty-nine percent picked pop-rock as their favorite music, with rap and heavy metal tying with 10 percent apiece, and country music getting 8 percent.

(DEC. 13) UPI - The five remaining U.S. diplomats left occupied Kuwait en route to freedom Thursday aboard a U.S.-chartered Iraqi jetliner, leaving the U.S. Embassy in the emirate unmanned for the first time since Iraqi tanks rolled into Kuwait four months ago, Baghdad Radio reported.

Meanwhile, Iraq ordered special civil defense exercises to begin the day its troops must be out of Kuwait, Algeria's leader took his mediation mission to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze flew to Turkey for talks expected to focus on the Persian Gulf crisis.

The flight carrying 94 people, including the five U.S. diplomats, among them Ambassador Nathaniel Howell, arrived in Frankfurt, Germany, Thursday evening after a stop in Baghdad.

The evacuation of the Americans leaves the British Embassy the only mission in Kuwait still staffed. British officials will stay until the weekend to make sure there are no more Britons who wanted to leave the occupied emirate.

The British and U.S. Embassies were among dozens of missions in Kuwait to challenge an Iraqi order to close and move to Baghdad after Saddam annexed the the tiny oil-rich emirate, which it invaded Aug. 2.

Iraq cut electricity and water to foreign embassies still operating and prevented them from stocking up with food, forcing diplomats to eat rice and canned fish and to boil drinking water from swimming pools.

British and U.S. officials in the Middle East have said their missions now will be temporarily closed until the restoration of the legitimate Kuwaiti government and the end of the Iraqi occupation.

In another development, the official Iraq news agency INA, said Saddam's government was angry over U.S. allegations that it was trying to stall high-level U.S.-Iraqi meetings aimed at settling the crisis peacefully.

The United States has rejected Iraq's first offer of a Jan. 12 meeting between Saddam and Baker on Jan. 12, saying it was too close to the U.N.-imposed deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

''Iraq will not accept any date imposed on it by the United States,'' INA quoted an Iraqi Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying. ''Iraq alone will fix a date for the talks.''

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz also is expected to hold a similar meeting with Bush in Washington, but a date for that also has not been set.

State-owned Iraqi television, meanwhile, said special civil defense exercises will begin Jan. 15, the U.N. deadline for Saddam to withdraw his forces from Kuwait or face a possible military confrontation with the U.S.-led multinational force arrayed against him.

The broadcast said the exercises were designed to ''prepare the Iraqi people for war and train them in how to cope with chemical weapons, explosions, air raids, fires and the evacuation of cities.''

It showed Iraqis how to use gas masks in case of poison gas attack, although the equipment has not yet been distributed. The television warned Iraqis to be prepared for any eventuality, including bombing raids and even a nuclear strike.

The broadcast, monitored in Amman, Jordan, was seen as a further display of resolve by Saddam, who a day earlier replaced his aging defense minister, Gen. Abdul Jabar Shanshal, with the younger Gen. Saadi Toamma Abbas, a hero of the eight-year Iran-Iraq war.

Algerian President Chadli Benjedid, one of the few Arab leaders still on speaking terms with both Saddam and the Saudi Arabian leadership, held the second and final round of meetings Thursday with the Iraqi president in a continuing peace effort. He then flew to Tehran, Iran, Cairo radio said.

Benjedid is known for his successful mediation efforts, including the release of U.S. hostages in Iran in 1980 and the release of the hostages aboard a Kuwaiti plane hijacked by Shiite Moslem fundamentalists in 1988.

Iran and Sudan issued a joint call Thursday for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. Both countries have been critical of the invasion, but have more strongly condemned the U.S.-led military force in the Gulf.

Shevardnadze, meanwhile, flew to Ankara, Turkey, for meetings with President Turgut Ozal after three days of talks in the United States. Turkey, a non-Arab Moslem nation, is the only member of NATO to border both Iraq and the Soviet Union. Shevardnadze's talks were expected to focus on the Gulf crisis.

After President Bush met Wednesday with Shevardnadze in Washington, Baker rejected suggestions that $1 billion in U.S. agriculture export credits to ease the Soviet food shortage was a reward for Moscow's support during the Persian Gulf crisis.

"You shouldn't consider any of the steps taken today to be payoff or a payback for the cooperation that we've seen on the gulf crisis,'' the secretary of state said. ''We see that cooperation across a broad range of issues.''

The question irritated Shevardnadze, who pointedly noted that the United States and the Soviet Union were on the road to improved relations months before the gulf crisis.

DALLAS (DEC. 13) UPI - Mesa L.P., led by Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr., plans to raise about $600 million of new debt through a private placement as part of its effort to reduce about $1 billion of bank debt maturing in the next five to six years.

Sidney Tassin, spokesman for the limited partnership, said the company will issue new debt securities with maturities of 15 to 20 years. The instruments will be secured by Mesa's natural gas properties in the Hugoton field in Kansas. Salomon Brothers Inc. will handle the transaction.

Because of the nature of the transaction and the collateral being used to secure it, Tassin said Mesa expects to get high ratings for the securities and a fixed rate of interest. If successful, the placement will be completed by early next year.

Of the remaining bank debt, Mesa will repay another $351.5 million from the sale of some of its properties and leasehold acreage to Seagull Energy Corp. of Houston. A definitive agreement on the proposed sale was announced last week.

"This is not a restructuring of our bank debt," said Tassin. "We are absolutely current on our debt. What we are doing is two transactions." He explained the Seagull transaction is a repayment of a portion of the bank debt while the private debt issue will help refinance another portion of the bank debt.

Longer maturities on the new debt will "significantly strengthen" Mesa'sbalance sheet and "better match the long-life nature of the oil and gas reserves," Tassin said. Part of the existing bank debt resulted from the purchase of properties from Tenneco Inc. for $715 million in 1988.

Mesa continues to be plagued by lower natural gas prices and, as a result, has not been able to meet its $1.50 distribution to have been paid to holders of its preferred units. In the first nine months of 1989, Mesa had lost $72.4 million.

Separately, Mesa has a public debt of $600 million, resulting from two public bond issues of $300 million each. The first one, paying an interest rate of 12 percent, is due in 1996, while the second 13.5 percent issue is due in 1999. Offsetting part of that is $250 million of cash and securities held by the company, Tassin said.

In the transaction with Seagull, the Houston company must present its financing commitments by Friday or either party can terminate it, Tassin said. Seagull hopes to raise the money through a bank loan and a public offering of common stock.

ROCKVILLE, MD. (DEC. 13) UPI - The 4-year-old girl who underwent the first official attempt at human gene therapy three months ago is doing well and the historic procedure has produced encouraging early results, government scientists said Thursday.

The Ohio girl, afflicted by a rare, inherited immune system defect, has suffered no serious side effects from three monthly gene therapy sessions, Dr. W. French Anderson of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute told a government advisory panel.

It may take up to a year to see if the therapy fully reconstitutes the child's immune defenses. However, Anderson said he was ''cautiously optimistic'' the ground-breaking treatment would succeed.

''The patient is doing very well. Preliminary data is encouraging. We haven't done extensive evaluation, but nothing has happened that has made us unhappy '' said Anderson's co-worker, Dr. Michael Blaese. The only infection the girl has developed since September is one cold, he added.

Preliminary tests show the child's genetically corrected cells are producing a vital missing enzyme for up to three weeks after each treatment, and there are also indications that the altered cells are encouraging the growth of other beneficial immune cells, they said.

For the first time in her life, the child has a normal level of white blood cells called T cells, which are crucial for the immune system to fight off infections, Anderson told the Food and Drug Administration panel. The researchers said they plan to start similar gene therapy tests in another child next month.

Every person has about 100,000 genes which contain the blueprint for everything from eye color to disease risk. Gene therapy involves inserting genes with correct information into cells with defective genes, or putting in new genes that carry instructions for production of disease-fighting substances.

Although Anderson's work focuses on a rare disease, researchers around the world are watching the results carefully because they hope the approach could be used to treat everything from heart disease to AIDS.

The proposal underwent more than three years of review to address concerns that such experiments could lead to ethically questionable attempts at genetic engineering.

''Only time will tell if this approach is going to be useful. It is certainly an exciting time for us all,'' Blaese said.

Last month, a team headed by Dr. Steven Rosenberg of the National Cancer Institute received FDA approval to begin the first efforts to use gene therapy to treat cancer.

Rosenberg, who was not at the meeting because he was attending the funeral of philanthropist Armand Hammer, expects to treat the first patient suffering from a deadly form of skin cancer called melanoma in about three weeks, Anderson said.

Under the plan, Rosenberg will insert a gene that carries instructions for the production of tumor necrosis factor - a substance that has dramatically shrunk tumors in mice - into tumor-fighting immune cells removed from cancer patients. The genetically altered cells will be multiplied in the test tube and then returned to the patients' bodies.

The girl treated by Anderson's team Sept. 14 suffers from an immune disorder caused by a defect in a genetic defect that prevents production of an enzyme called adenosine deaminase, or ADA.

ADA deficiency, similar to that the immune problem that afflicted David, the famed Texas ''bubble boy,'' affects no more than 20 children worldwide at any given time. In the past, some affected youngsters lived in plastic bubbles to guard against life-threatening infections. Now, most such children undergo bone marrow transplants or receive injections of the missing enzyme.

The gene therapy will be conducted only on youngsters who lack siblings who can donate bone marrow and who are not responding well to enzyme replacement drugs.

In the procedure, researchers drew blood from the young patient, artificially encouraged her immune cells to multiply, inserted correct copies of the ADA gene using a crippled mouse virus and then infused the genetically altered cells back into the child's body.

The child is expected to undergo similar infusions every month for the next two or three years.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - A coalition of police organizations Thursday joined the anti-gun lobby in asking the Supreme Court to let stand Congress's 1986 decision outlawing private ownership of machine guns.

A group of seven police organizations, in a friend-of-the-court brief written by the Center to Prevent Handgun Violence, asked the justices to reject an appeal of a federal court ruling that upheld the ban.

J.D. Farmer Jr. of Smyrna, Ga., backed by the National Rifle Association, is asking the high court to overturn a decision of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejecting his bid to own a machine gun.

In 1986, Congress banned the private possession of machine guns that were not already lawfully possessed.

The NRA Firearms Civil Rights Legal Defense Fund, counsel for Farmer, claims because of exceptions in the legislation, the 1986 law should not be interpreted to prohibit private possession of machine guns by law- abiding citizens. But if it does, the NRA claims, that violates the Second Amendment, which guarantees the right to bear arms.

It also is asking the Supreme Court to decide if the Constitution permits Congress to ever prohibit the ''mere possession'' of a firearm by law-abiding citizens.

The NRA called the 1986 law the ''first ban on firearms possession by law-abiding citizens in American history.''

Technically, the case is about whether courts can review the federal government's interpretation of its own laws, said Richard Gardiner, director of state and local affairs for the NRA Institute for Legislative Action.

''This case has nothing to do with legalizing all machine guns,'' said Gardiner. ''All this case is about is whether people will be able to continue registering machine guns.''

''Machine guns have no place in a civilized society,'' countered District of Columbia Police Chief Isaac Fulwood. ''The purpose is solely to kill large sums of people as quickly as possible.''

Fulwood, speaking at a news conference on behalf of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, said as of Thursday there had been a record 454 murders in the city for 1990, 80 percent of them involving guns.

Legalization of machine guns would exacerbate an already critical violent crime problem expected to give the United States its highest murder toll ever this year, said Fulwood.

''The National Rifle Association's effort to overturn the 1986 machine gun ban cuts away all of the NRA's fancy, all-American rhetoric developed by some public relations whiz,'' said Don Cahill, legislative director of the National Fraternal Order of Police.

''What it leaves us with is a clear picture of the extremist NRA leadership. It's a picture of a group of people who put money from gun sales first and public safety last.''

The NRA claims that the ban is not needed to protect the public. Legislation already required federal registration, background checks, fingerprinting and endorsement by a police chief for a private citizen to own a fully automatic gun.

There have been no documented cases of a ''civilian-owned fully automatic firearm that was lawfully registered'' being used in a crime, the NRA claimed.

The high court could decide as early as next month whether to hear the case or let the 11th Circuit decision stand.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 13) UPI - The clock began ticking Thursday for California's bad drivers, who could see their automobile insurance rates jump by up to 40 percent early next year.

As announced last week, Roxani Gillespie, the state's insurance commissioner, issued formal regulations Thursday that would allow selected insurance companies to hike rates by five percent to 40 percent for drivers with more than one traffic ticket in the last three years. Drivers with one ticket or less in the last three years would receive small rate decreases under the regulations, Gillespie said.

But the regulations, issued in accordance with the two-year-old insurance reform measure Proposition 103, do not take effect for 30 days, and they may face several challenges in that time.

John Garamendi, the state's newly elected insurance commissioner, takes office in January and has said he will review all rate hikes approved by Gillespie. In addition, consumer advocates say they may contest the new regulations in court. The first insurers approved for the new rates include State Farm, the state's largest auto insurer, as well as Safeco and Fireman's Fund.

A State Farm spokesman said the new regulations would mean double-digit rate increases for so-called bad drivers and small decreases for good drivers. Under Proposition 103, insurers were required to submit rating plans to the insurance commissioner for prior approval.

Gillespie initially ordered the insurance companies to submit plans that did not include "territorial ratings," in which substantially higher rates are charged for drivers in urban areas such as Los Angeles. But that ruling was struck down in May by a Los Angeles Superior Court judge.

Gillespie has appealed the judge's decision, and the regulations issued Thursday would require insurers to refund any excess rates, plus interest, if her initial regulations are upheld by the appelate court.

(DEC. 13) UPI - A U-S-chartered Iraqi airliner is to land in Frankfurt, Germany today with the U-S ambassador to Kuwait and four other U-S diplomats aboard. That leaves NO one in the U-S Embassy in Kuwait City for the first time since Iraqi tanks rolled into the country.

The last freedom flight from Kuwait took off even as Iraq pressed ahead with plans to train its civilian population for the realities of war. The state-owned Iraqi Television reports that special civil defense exercises will begin on January 15th, the deadline set by the U-N for Iraq to get out of Kuwait.

Economists are saying that the first decline in retail sales in six months indicates some weakness in consumer buying patterns but NOT enough to dampen the lucrative holiday buying season. The Commerce Department says retail sales dipped one-tenth of one percent in November, after a revised two-tenths of one percent gain in October.

Administration officials confirm more details in yesterday's surprise resignation of Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos. The first Hispanic American in the Cabinet reportedly had a meeting about his future on Tuesday with chief of staff John Sununu and was told he had NO future. Cavazos then called in his staff and resigned.

CHICAGO (DEC. 13) UPI - The volume was moderate and the attitude bearish in the grain and soybean complex Thursday.

Grain futures were lower and soybeans were sharply lower at the close on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Traders attributed the weakness to the size of the credit package offered to the Soviet Union. The package could amount to as much as $1 billion, but was not as large as the trade had expected and accounted for most of the selling.

Soybeans made session lows about midday and were sharply lower, but closed above the lows on short-covering late in the day. Commercials were on both sides of the bean market.

Grain prices were lower in sympathy with the weakness in soybeans, although scattered buying interest kept a floor under the market.

Interior and Gulf basis levels were mostly lower.

Country movement was very light.

At the close, corn was off 2 to 4, soybeans down 5 to 9 1/4, wheat off 1/2 to 2 and oats down 1 1/2 to 2.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - A federal judge, ruling Thursday on a lawsuit filed by 54 congressional Democrats, refused to block President Bush from committing U.S. forces to a Persian Gulf war.

U.S. District Judge Harold Greene, in denying a preliminary injunction, nevertheless suggested that the lawsuit might have prevailed had it been backed by a majority of the Congress.

''It is only if the majority of the Congress seeks relief from an infringement on its constitutional war-declaration power that it may be entitled to receive it,'' Greene wrote in his 29 page decision.

But the judge also trampled some of the arguments against the suit presented by the Justice Department. Government lawyers had insisted that the chances for a war with Iraq were slim.

Greene pointed out that Bush recently doubled the size of the U.S. force in the gulf to 400,000 troops and sought a U.N. resolution authoritizing the use of force in response to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

''It is disingenuous,'' Greene wrote, ''for the Department (of Justice) to characterize plaintiffs' allegations as to the imminence of the threat of offensive military action ... as 'remote and conjectural. '''

The congressmen, led by Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., filed suit last month challenging Bush's authority to commit troops to the Persian Gulf in preparation for an offensive action without first getting approval from Congress. The lawsuit is based on the war powers clause of the Constitution, which grants Congress authority ''to declare war.''

In his decision, Greene echoed the reluctance of other courts to enter into disputes over war and foreign policy between the executive and legislative branches of government.

''The principle that the courts shall be prudent in the exercise of their authority is never more compelling than when they are called upon to adjudicate on such sensitive issues as those trenching upon military and foreign affairs,'' Greene wrote.

''Judicial restraint must, of course, be even further enhanced when the issue is one - as here - on which the other two branches may be deeply divided.''

But Greene had firm words for Congress, which he said has not taken steps to clearly define its position on the Middle East crisis.

''It would be both premature and presumptuous for the court to render a decision on the issue of whether a declaration of war is required at this time or in the near future when Congress itself has provided no indication whether it deems such a declaration either necessary, on the one hand, or imprudent, on the other,'' Greene wrote.

Lawyers for the congressmen said they planned to appeal Greene's ruling.

In a related lawsuit, U.S. District Judge Royce Lamberth denied Thursday a request for a preliminary injunction sought by an Army national guardsman, who sought to block his deployment to the Middle East on the grounds that Operation Desert Shield violated the War Powers Act.

The 1973 War Powers Act requires the president to notify Congress within 48 hours when U.S. forces are in an area of ''imminent hostilities.'' Congress has 60 days to vote on whether to authorize the military action. Presidents have generally ignored the act.

In his lawsuit, Sgt. Michael Ange, 26, attached to the 1,450th Transportation Unit at Fort Lee, Va., also claimed that an ulcer and leg injuries made him unfit for duty.

In ruling against the lawsuit, Lamberth wrote: ''By asking the court to determine the constitutionality of the president's actions, Ange asks the court to delve into and evaluate those areas where the court lacks expertise, resources and authority to explore.

CHICAGO (DEC. 13) UPI - Allstate Insurance Co. singled out 51 cars as "special values" Thursday based on a review of accident-damage repair costs and the theft and break-in risks for 1990 models.

The company's annual make-and-model ratings provide consumers with information about which cars are the most expensive to insure - and which are the least expensive.

General Motors led all automakers, placing 19 models on the "special value" list of 51 cars rated exceptional insurance values because their insurance premiums are much lower than average for cars with similar price tags. Ford placed 13 cars on the list and Chrysler 11.

More than 200 cars were rated in this year's list - based on a compliation of the company's loss data for 1990 models insured, and results of crash tests that determine what kind of damage cars sustain and how expensive it is to repair.

"The rating information is extremely valuable to consumers who plan to buy a car in the next several months," said Mike LaMonica, Allstate assistant vice president for auto insurance pricing.

"By knowing how cars are rated, consumers are able to factor in the cost of insurance as part of a car's total operating costs," said the executive of the Northbrook, Ill.-based company.

GM cars on the "special value" list included the Cadillac Fleetwood; the Buick Century, Electra, Estate Wagon, LeSabre, Reatta, and Riviera; the Chevrolet Astra van, Caprice, Celebrity, and Suburban; the GMC Safari van; the Oldsmobile Customer Cruiser, Olds 88, Olds 98, Silhouette, Toronado, and Touring Sedan, and the Pontiac Grand Prix.

Ford models making the list were the Aerostar van, the Bronco, the Bronco II, Crown Victoria, LTD Wagon, standard van, Taurus, and Thunderbird EX Super Coupe; the Lincoln Continental and Town Car, and the Mercury Cougar LS, Grand Marquis, and Sable.

Chrysler made the list with the Chrysler Fifth Avenue and New Yorker; Dodge Caravan, Grand Caravan, Dynasty, Spirit, and standard van; the Jeep Wagoneer, and the Plymouth Voyager NT, Grand Voyager NT, and Voyager Turbo.

Also on the "special value" list were the Acura Legend, Jaguar XJ-6 and XJ-S, Mercedes 420, Toyota Camry and Cressida, Volkswagen Camper and Volvo 240 and 760.

Others rated as having much lower than average insurance costs - but not making the special value list - were the Subaru Justy, Suzuki Swift and Toyota Tercel, all in the $10,000-and-under class.

Twenty-two vehicles were rated as having much higher than average. The cars in the $10,000 and lower price class with the highest insurance costs were the Ford Escort GT, Ford Mustang EX convertible, Hyundai Sonata, Nissan 2WD pickup Volkswagen GTI, Volkswagen Jetta, and Yugo Cabrio.

Highest insurance costs for cars in the the $10,000 to $15,000 class were for the Dodge Shelby Daytona, GEO Tracker, Mitsubishi wagon, Nissan 240SX, Pontiac Firebird, and Toyota Corolla GTS Coupe.

In the $15,001 to $20,000, the most costly to insure were the Chevorlet Camaro IROC-Z, the Nissan Pathfinder, the Pontiac Firebird Trans Am, and the Voklswagen Cabriolet.

Among the most expensive cars, the BMW 750 Series, Cadillac Allante, Mercedes 500 and 560 series, and Porsche 911 and 944 were rated most expensive to insure.

In addition to the "Make & Model" insurance discounts, LaMonica said consumers in most states can also save on their auto insurance premiums when they buy cars with safety features. For cars equipped with anti-lock brakes, Allstate offers a ten percent discount for bodily injury, property damage liability and collision coverages.

Discounts on personal injury protection or medical payments coverage apply to cars equipped with air bags or automatic seat belts. The discount for driver-side air bags is 20 percent. Cars with full front-seat air bags receive a 30 percent discount. Cars with automatic seat belts qualify for a ten percent discount.

The availability, as well as the actual amount of the safety discounts, vary by state. Allstate's "Make & Model" and safety discounts must be filed and, if necessary, approved by a state's insurance department before being made available to customers. The discounts are not available in all states.

The images are just a sampling of stunning new images of Earth and its moon captured by the probe on Saturday that have excited scientists by providing unprecedented views, especially of the far side of the moon.

''This new study by Galileo is really the first attempt to understand the back side of the moon,'' said Clark Chapman, a research scientist at the Planetary Science Institute in Tuscon, Ariz. ''We're going to learn a lot about the geology of the back side of the moon.''

One image shows what appears to be full moon but taken from a vantage point unattainable from Earth - with the right-hand side of the image including part of the side of the moon not visible from Earth.

A second image shows a crescent moon, including the 60-mile diameter Copernicus crater and a portion of the moon where the Apollo 12, 14 and 15 missions landed.

''It's been a fantastic lunar mission already,'' said project scientist Torrence Johnson.

The final image belongs to a mosaic of pictures covering Antarctica. The image shows the Ross Ice Shelf and its border with the sea along with mountains poking through the ice.

In addition to offering exciting new perspectives on Earth and the moon, the images demonstrate the power of the probe when it finally reaches Jupiter to study that planet, the scientists said.

Galileo streaked past Earth on Saturday, zooming just 600 miles above the Atlantic in the first of two such historc flybys needed to put the craft on course for distant Jupiter.

NASA did not have a rocket powerful enough to fire Galileo directly to Jupiter. Instead, the probe was launched from the space shuttle Atlantis on Oct. 18, 1989, and fired to Venus for an Oct. 10, 1990, flyby that whipped the craft back to Earth for Saturday's encounter.

With the state-of-the-art instruments gathering data about Earth and the moon, the $1.5 billion Galileo passed about 594 miles above the Atlantic Ocean east of Florida, using Earth's gravity to whip it into a new orbit, boosting the probe's velocity by 11,620 mph - from 67,240 to 78,860 mph.

Elated scientists unveiled two extremely sharp photographs on Saturday of the Earth and moon and are planning a news conference next week to release more, including a short movie of Earth rotating in space.

The Earth flyby put Galileo, which is already more than 2.3 million miles from Earth, into a new two-year orbit around the sun that will carry the craft past the asteroid Gaspra in October 1991 and back to Earth in two years.

The second Earth flyby will boost Galileo's velocity to 87,190 mph and change its orbit again, putting the craft on course for a 1995 encounter with Jupiter some 480 million miles away.

Galileo will drop a probe in Jupiter's stormy atmosphere before going into orbit for a 20-month tour, humanity's first long-term study of the solar system's largest planet.

Galileo's electronic ears and eyes will study Jupiter's atmosphere, its whirling moons and its space environment in detail, beaming back close-up pictures 20 to 1,000 times better than anything before.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (DEC. 13) UPI - There appears to be a link between vasectomies and an increased risk of contracting prostate cancer, researchers said Thursday.

Researchers from Roswell Park Cancer Institute said their study is the first to find an increased cancer risk for men who have undergone a vasectomy, a simple operation for male sterilization. The study also shows that the earlier in life a vasectomy is performed, the greater the risk.

However, it is unclear if vasectomies cause the increased cancer risk or if some other factor is the actual source of the risk.

''We've established an association, but it's uncertain if vasectomy is a risk factor,'' said Dr. Curtin Mettlin, co-author of the study and director of Roswell's Department of Cancer Control and Epidemiology. ''There's no strong biologicial rationale for increased prostate cancer risk after a vasectomy,'' he added.

Mettlin said further studies will be needed to determine if the frequency of sexual intercourse and numbers of sexual partners are factors in increased cancer risk.

''By contrast, other studies of vasectomy have examined large numbers of men and have been consistently reassuring about the safety of vasectomy,'' said Janet Halpern, spokeswoman for the Association for Voluntary Surgical Contraception.

The Buffalo study, published Thursday in the American Journal of Epidemiology, looked at 610 prostate cancer patients, 27 of whom had vasectomies, and at 2,580 patients with other cancers, 115 of whom had vasectomies.

The study found the rate of prostate cancer was twice as high for men who had vasectomies more than a dozen years before their cancer was diagnosed.

An estimated 455,000 vasectomies are performed annually in the United States.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) UPI - Workers' compensation costs have doubled in five years and are still rising sharply, posing a financial threat to companies unless they act decisively to hold down costs, said a study released Thursday.

"Job-related injuries in 1990 will cost American employers over $60 billion in direct workers' compensation expenses, double the bill of just five years ago " said Jerry Miccolis, of the Tillinghast consulting firm, which conducted the survey.

Miccolis, a vice president of the Towers Perrin unit, said that of all parties to the workers' compensation system, "employers have the most incentive and are in the best position to check this alarming cost trend."

Some 70 percent of the mid-sized to large companies surveyed by Tillinghast, a risk management and insurance consulting firm, said workers' compensation costs threatened financial performance "somewhat" or "a great deal." Thirty percent of those surveyed said they expected such costs to be somewhat or totally out of control in the next five years.

Workers' compensation, first enacted by Wisconsin in 1911, was created as an employer-paid, no-fault insurance for injuries on the job. Nearly 40 percent of companies said they consider the cost of state workers' compensation laws before deciding where to locate operations. Some 56 percent of manufacturing firms considered this in location decisions.

Tillinghast said 83 percent of respondents described rising medical costs as a major problem. Such costs account for roughly 40 percent of overall workers compensation costs, and are rising towards 50 percent.

"Employers have to start managing these expenses as aggressively as they manage other costs under regular employee health plans," said Ian Abernathy, a health care expert with Towers Perrin benefits unit TPF&C. He said approaches used to hold down health plan costs may be applicable.

Other issues frequently cited by those surveyed were widening definitions of work-related injuries and growing attorney involvement. Cost-control measures included safety and light-duty programs and pre- employment screening.

Other steps taken to restrain costs include medical bill audits, introduction of case managers and use of lower-cost health-care organizations. The survey found that managers considered the most effective step to be the coordination of workers' compensation with regular health-care programs.

Said Miccolis: "Only when employers impose rigorous controls will benefit costs moderate, insurance markets stabilize and the system refocus on its basic purpose: fostering a safe work environment and getting injured workers timely, high-quality care - and back to productive employment."

OTTAWA (DEC. 13) UPI - Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, seeking ways of preventing Quebec's secession, moved Thursday to speed up constitutional changes and give Canadians a bigger voice in the process.

A special parliamentary committee will report by July 1 on alternatives to the process of amending the constitution. The committee will hold televised public hearings and travel across the country.

Under current laws, certain constitutional changes require the approval of all 10 provinces. The requirement led to the defeat last June of the Meech Lake accord, a constitutional amendment aimed at keeping Quebec in Canada by giving it, among other things, special powers to promote and preserve its French language and culture.

Two provinces refused to ratify the amendment.

Essentially, Mulroney wants the provinces to relinquish their veto over future constitutional changes. A more flexible way of amending the constitution - one that would require the consent of a simple majority of provinces - would allow him to give the French-speaking province what it wants to stay part of Canada.

Mulroney said the group will examine how Canadians can become more involved in constitutional changes, perhaps through national referendums, and whether the three-year period for ratification by the provinces should be shortened.

Any alternatives to the current process, however, would be difficult for any province to endorse if it meant surrendering the political might of a veto. Quebec has already said it will not abandon its veto.

''Our constitutional amending process has not worked to our advantage,'' Mulroney said. However, he said it was important that the relationship between Quebec and Canada be made more productive and flexible.

''Let's build, not bulldoze. Let's renovate, not raze,'' Mulroney said.

Mulroney said Canada should follow the example of Europe, which is headed irreversibly towards a new form of federalism. ''Why would we swim against the tide of history by abandoning our federal system,'' he said.

Last month, Mulroney established a special committee on Canadian unity to examine Quebec's future in Canada, regional hostilities, western alienation and reform of parliamentary institutions, including the appointed Senate.

Preventing Quebec's secession dominates Mulroney's political agenda and is almost an essential if the Conservatives hope to recoup enough public support to win a general election two years from now. The Conservative government currently has only 15 percent support of Canadians.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - In the first comprehensive update of its radiation protection standards in 30 years, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission lowered by five-fold Thursday its limit on allowable doses to the public from nuclear industry activities.

The revision also tightened the occupational exposure limit for nuclear workers, imposing an estimated cost of $170 million on industry. The biggest impact is likely to be felt at uranium processing plants, which may have to take steps to meet tougher standards on airborne uranium.

While stricter than the NRC's old standard, the new occupational exposure limit was controversial in that it remains more than twice as high as the ceiling recently recommended by the International Commission on Radiological Protection, a prestigious panel of radiation health experts.

NRC officials said they would review the commission's recommendations and that some worker limits might be brought down. However, they said the commission saw no urgent need to reduce its occupational exposure standard because doses to most U.S. workers were very low.

Anti-nuclear groups charged the NRC regulations would allow much higher doses to workers under provisions enabling industry to seek NRC approval for ''planned special exposures'' above the newly established occupational limit.

They also criticized the NRC's decision to relax limits on concentrations of certain radioactive materials in waste discharges to air and water from nuclear power plants, hospitals and other affected facilities.

Concentration limits were decreased for some substances and kept the same for others, but ceilings were raised for certain substances.

NRC officials said concentration limits were relaxed where new scientific evidence indicated those substances were less harmful than previously thought. As a result, they said higher concentrations would not have any health impact because radiation doses to humans would remain the same.

They also contended the NRC would not countenance any sudden increases in radioactive waste discharges from industry.

But the critics questioned the NRC's enforcement record and the validity of its revised dose assessments.

Said the Nuclear Information and Resource Serrvice, an antinuclear group: ''If more radioactivity is permitted in air and water, obviously, public exposures will be greater.''

Overall, NRC officials said the revision of the radiation protection standards - the first since 1960 - would substantially reduce the possibility of cancer or other health effects from industry-related radiation exposure.

They noted the new regulations also provided unprecedented protection to the unborn by setting limits on exposure to women who tell their employers they are pregnant.

However, NRC officials acknowledged their rewrite did not reflect recent analyses by two prestigious radiological protection groups that concluded radiation was more dangerous to humans than previously believed.

In January 1990, the National Academy of Sciences' Committee on Biological Effects of Ionizing Radiation issued a report that found the cancer risk from radiation was three to four times higher than earlier estimates.

Then in June, the International Commission on Radiological Protection, citing the academy's assessment and others, recommended all nations reduce their exposure limits for nuclear industry workers to 2,000 millirems per year.

In contrast, the NRC's new occupational exposure limit is 5,000 millirems per year for internal exposure - such as ingestion or inhalation of radioactive substances - and external exposure to the skin, such as when a worker touches a ''hot'' object.

For the general public, the revised NRC standard conforms with the recommendations of the international commission in limiting annual exposure to 100 millirems a year from industry-related discharges to air or water. The previous NRC standard for an average citizen was 500 millirems.

A millirem is a measurement of biological damage to living tissue caused by radiation. Experts estimate the average American receives 360 millirems per year from medical X-rays - about 6 millirems per exposure - and natural sources such as radon gas, cosmic rays or brick building materials.

NRC officials said their revised occupational exposure limit would provide significantly greater protection to workers because the old standard allowed 5,000 millirems of external exposure and, on top of that, additional doses for various types of internal exposure.

They said there was no urgent need to adopt the international commission's occupational standard because actual worker exposures remained very low.

For example, they said 97 percent of workers in nuclear power plants, uranium fuel fabrication plants and other high-risk facilities had exposures below 2,000 millirems in 1987.

DEARBORN, MI (DEC. 13) UPI - Ford Motor Co. said Thursday that ten of its 19 North American vehicle assembly plants will undergo major changes next year to prepare for a blitz of new or extensively redesigned cars and trucks for the 1992-model year.

Robert Rewey, vice president of sales operations for the nation's No. 2 carmaker, said most of those changes will be what he called "integrated launches" - meaning that while startup of the new models may be slow, there will not be any downtime in most cases.

"There will be no abrupt halt," Rewey said during a preview of Ford's Crown Victoria, its first all-new large sedan since 1979 which will go on sale March 21 as a 1992 model. "In most instances there will not be extensive downtimes."

This is in contrast to industry leader General Motors Corp. GM President Lloyd Reuss said Wednesday that 1991 will be "a balancing act" as the giant automaker changes at least eight of its 33 U.S. and Canadian assembly plants to build nine new car and two new truck models.

Some of those plants will undergo extensive changes that may idle workers for as long as seven months, including a four month changeover to new models at its Lansing, Mich., A and B plants. Such changes may allow GM to keep production in line during what is expected to be a weak year for U.S. car and light truck sales.

Both GM and Ford, which slashed production dramatically for the fourth quarter of 1990, expect U.S. vehicle sales for 1991 to slip by approximately 700,000 units to about 13.5 million cars and trucks, down from 14.2 million units for 1990.

At Ford, company spokesman Dave Caplan said most of the plants that will be changed over next year are light truck facilities as Ford redesigns its aging Econoline and Club Wagon vans, as well as its F- Series pickup trucks for 1992.

Those plants are Norfolk (Va.) Assembly, Twin Cities (Minn.) Assembly, Kansas City (Mo.) Assembly, Michigan Truck (Wayne, Mich.) Assembly, and Ontario Truck (Oakville) Assembly. Ford's Ohio Truck plant in Avon Lake, Ohio, is also being refurbished to build an all-new minivan under a joint project with Japanese carmaker Nissan.

Ford car plants to undergo changeovers include its Atlanta and Chicago factories, to prepare for freshened versions of its mid-sized Taurus and Sable cars for 1992. The Tempo/Topaz compact car plant in Oakville, Ontario, will also be modified as those cars get V6 engines and a new front end.

Ford's St. Thomas, Ontario, facility will begin production next month of the carmaker's all-new Ford Crown Victoria and its Mercury counterpart, the Grand Marquis. These are Ford's first all-new large sedans since 1979.

ZURICH, Switzerland (DEC. 13) UPI - Africa, backed by its strong showing at the World Cup, will have one extra team when the soccer championship comes to the United States in 1994 while Europe will have one less.

The decision, announced Thursday by FIFA, world soccer's governing body, will give Africa three teams instead of two in the 24-team tournament. Europe will field 13 instead of 14.

Asia will receive two berths, South America three and North and Central America and the Caribbean one. Defending champion West Germany and the host United States will qualify automatically.

Three other teams will compete for a remaining berth. The winner of the Oceania qualifying group will face the runner-up of the North- Central America-Caribbean zone. That winner will face the fourth-ranked South American club for a tournament spot.

''These changes reflect what happened in the last two World Cups when the Africans did very well, particularly Cameroon last time when it advanced into the quarterfinals,'' said Joseph Blatter, FIFA's secretary-general.

Cameroon advanced further than any African team at last came summer's World Cup in Italy. Egypt, Africa's other representative, played Holland and Ireland to scoreless draws before losing to England in the first round.

Blatter also confirmed from FIFA headquarters that Israel, which is boycotted by many Asian nations, has been shifted from the Oceania qualifying group to Europe.

FIFA also suspended all teams representing Iraq, citing the political uncertainty in the Persian Gulf. It also banished Costa Rica for all competitions involving age limits, including the Olympics, for two years.

Special measures were taken against Colombia whose national and club teams play international games only abroad because the security of referees and visiting teams cannot be assured at home.

FIFA also announced a special commission will be introduced in mid- January. The panel, which will include former French great Michel Platini, is to make recommendations on improving the sport.

CHICAGO (DEC. 13) UPI - White men get the best prices when negotiating with dealers on a new car, but the same dealers demand much higher prices from blacks and women, according to a study released Thursday.

The study, commissioned by the American Bar Foundation, suggests discrimination against blacks and women might be attributed to attempts to extract as much money as possible from consumers dealers deem most likely to be "suckers."

"Black men and women weree having to pay two to three times the markup of white men," said Ian Ayers, who conducted the study for the American Bar Foundation. White women, he said, generaly paid a 50 percent higher markup than white men.

"This type of discrimination violates our traditional civil rights norms," said Ayres, an assistant professor at Northwestern University School of Law and research fellow at the American Bar Foundation.

"Although blacks and women as groups are poorer than white males, the dealers may be making inferences about differences in their knowledge about the car market and their willingness to bargain," said Ayres. In short, he said, dealers apparently believe blacks and women are less informed consumers and that, as a result, they can get higher prices.

A panel of test shoppers - all displaying middle-class characteristics and trained to negotiate similarly - made more than 500 visits to Chicago area car dealers. Ironically, Ayers said, testers were likely to get the worst deal from sales people of their own race and gender, according to Ayres.

Testers in the initial segment of the study included one white woman, one black woman, one black man and three white men. Average dealer markups on "final price" quotes - after 165 dealer visits - were $362 for a white male; $504 for a white female; $783 for a black male; and $1,237 for a black female.

Subsequently, 400 tests were completed utilizing 36 testers, including five black males, eight black females, six white females and 17 white males. Statistically, the results were similar, except black men paid slightly higher markups than black women.

The testers were instructed to follow scripts, borrowed from methodology used in fair-housing tests, as closely as possible during their negotiations with car dealers. Discriminatory treatment was measured in initial offers, final offers and the kinds of questions asked and information stressed by the sales people.

He said the best remedy for the discriminatory pricing is legislation forcing dealers to post average prices charged. Barring that, however, he said there are several remedial methods to discourage such discrimination.

"Suits by both consumers and attorneys genera1 could try to target dealerships that discrinminate on the basis of race and gender," Ayers told United Press International. "Consumers ... can also help protect themselves by becoming better informed about how you bargain and learning about what dealer's costs are," he added.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - A former close associate of Charles Keating Jr., the indicted former operator of a failed Californina thrift, spent a second day testifying before the Senate ethics committee Thursday under a grant of limited immunity.

The panel must decide whether the so-called Keating Five senators - Alan Cranston, D-Calif.; Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.; John Glenn, D-Ohio; John McCain R-Ariz.; and Donald Riegle, D-Mich. - improperly pressured bank regulators to benefit Keating and his Lincoln Savings and Loan Association.

The committee questioned James Grogan, a former Lincoln vice president and corporate counsel of Lincoln's parent company, Phoenix-based American Continental Corp., in a closed session.

Keating, who contributed $1.3 million to the senators' re-election campaigns and other pet causes, has been indicted on state securities and fraud charges in California and is the target of a continuing federal grand jury probe.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - President Bush welcomed seven of Saddam Hussein's former American hostages to the White House Thursday and said the Iraqi dictator deserves no reward for releasing them.

''Hell, no. Not one thing,'' Bush told reporters during a picture- taking session when asked if Saddam should receive a goodwill gesture in return. ''You don't want to reward a kidnapper.''

Flanked by the former captives, Bush also said that he expects to be able to defuse the tension in the Persian Gulf. ''One way or the other, I will,'' said Bush, who has threatened war.

The meeting marked the first time Bush has met with any of the former hostages and took place just hours after a third U.S.-chartered freedom plane left Baghdad, this one carrying 32 U.S. citizens.

The flight raised to 201 the number of Americans evacuated from Kuwait and Iraq during the past five days, and the White House said it now believes all Americans who want to leave have done so. About 500 remain behind.

The former hostages who met with Bush Thursday were identified by the White House as: Bill Rodebush of Oklahoma; John Cole of Texas; Glenn Coleman of Massachusetts; Ernest Alexander of Pennsylvania; Robert Hanby of Gahanna, Ohio; Antonio Mireles of Annandale, Va.; and Ralph Montgomery of Florida.

Some were held as ''human shields.'' Others took refuge in the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait. Others still hid from Iraqi troops in Kuwait and Iraq.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush called the meeting to receive their first-hand accounts of life in occupied Kuwait and Iraq and to learn more about the actions and atrocities of Iraqi troops.

''I am very anxious to hear from every one of you,'' Bush told the former hostages before reporters were escorted from the Cabinet Room. ''Who wants to go first?''

Overall, since Iraq's Aug. 2 takeover of Kuwait, more than 2,500 Americans have been evacuated from Iraq and Kuwait, and another 800 have escaped.

Among those evacuated Thursday were Nathaniel Howell, the U.S. ambassador to Kuwait, and four of his staffers. Their departure effectively shut down the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait, which had remained open in defiance of Saddam.

''We feel that the mission of the embassy in Kuwait to evacuate the Americans in the area has been completed,'' said State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler.

''And for that reason, Ambassador Howell and his staff were authorized to depart,'' she said. ''They took all necessary measures to assure that there would be no security compromises.''

Fitzwater said if any of the remaining Americans decide to leave at a later point, they would likely be able to do so on daily commercial flights.

The press secretary said Bush withheld meeting with any former hostages until all Americans who wanted to leave Kuwait and Iraq had been able to do so because he did not want to ''raise their value.''

Bush has maintained from the beginning of the gulf crisis that he would not negotiate for the release of the hostages and demanded that Saddam withdraw from Kuwait unconditionally.

Saddam, in a surprise Dec. 6 announcement, said he would release all hostages. The action came just a week after Bush proposed high-level talks between the United States and Iraq.

Dates for those talks have not yet been agreed upon.

#90347u1377 12/13/1990 ~United Press International

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) UPI - The dollar firmed up against the main currencies in thin New York trading Thursday after the U.S. government released data showing retail sales in decline, but not as sharply as some had expected.

The Commerce Department said November retail sales slumped 0.1 percent after falling a revised 0.2 percent in October - but some economists were predicting a much sharper spending decline of up to 0.8 percent.

"The dollar's a touch firmer on the fact that retail sales weren't as bad as people expected," Earl Johnson, a Harris Bank vice president and foreign exchange analysts based in Chicago, said, citing "real thin" trading.

Late in the New York session, the dollar was trading at 1.4788 German marks, up from 1.4755 marks Wednesday, and 132.20 Japanese yen, up from 131.55. The British pound fell back to $1.9450 from $1.9500.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2670 Swiss francs, up from 1.2615; 5.0255 French francs, up from 5.0100; and 1,115 Italian lire, up from 1,112.

Unlike some analysts, Johnson sees no change in sentiment favoring the U.S. unit. "It's premature to talk about a stronger dollar," he said. U.S. interest rates stand to fall a whole percentage point over the next four or five months he said, while German and Japanese rates should stay firm. "For me, that's a prescription for a weaker dollar," he said.

Only a Persian Gulf flareup or efforts to rescue the greenback by Group of Seven major industrial economies will create a true dollar rally, he said.

In Europe, the dollar closed mostly higher in aimless trading amid uncertainty over whether the Federal Reserve will cut U.S. interest rates further.

The dollar gained in late trading after Iraq denounced the United States for rejecting its proposed date for the start of talks in Baghdad, accusing the Bush administration of merely seeking a cover for war. Iraq wants the talks to begin Jan. 12 - three days before the United Nations' deadline for Iraq to end its occupation of Kuwait.

The Deutsche Bundesbank's decision to maintain German interest rates at the current level had little effect in currency markets. Dealers disagreed on whether the stronger-than-expected U.S. retail sales were positive or neutral for the dollar.

The dollar closed higher in Frankfurt at 1.4792 German marks against 1.4758 Wednesday but was unchanged in Zurich at 1.2635 Swiss francs. In London, the pound closed unchanged at $1.9440.

The dollar rose in Paris, at 5.0160 French francs vs. 5.0070, and in Milan, at 1,113.60 lire vs. 1,110.75, but closed slightly lower in Brussels, at 30.64 Belgian francs vs. 30.66 Wednesday.

Sterling gained on other monies after Norman Lamont, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, said interest rates would not fall until the pound strengthened within the European currency stabilization grid. Later in the session, sterling slipped on data showing the largest monthly increase in British joblessness in more than nine years.

In Tokyo earlier, the dollar fell against the Japanese yen in expectation of lower U.S. interest rates, closing at 131.30 yen vs. Wednesday's 131.88.

Mitsuhiko Kinugasa, Daiwa Bank's chief dealer, said market players focused on a possible interest rate hike by the Bundesbank.

In Zurich, gold closed unchanged at $371.50 an ounce but rose in London to $372.25 an ounce from $371.25.

Silver closed lower in both Zurich, at $4.00 an ounce vs. $4.05, and London, at $4.00 compared with $4.04.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $373.50 an ounce, up from $372 Wednesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold contracts at $374.30 an ounce, ahead from $372.70 the previous day.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.025 an ounce, down from $4.045. Comex silver ended trading at $4.006 an ounce, off from $4.026.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - The United States and the Soviet Union announced Thursday that they will be opening new consulates general in Kiev and New York.

The consulates had been planned for more than five years, but became side-lined in 1986 amid mutual charges that they would be used for espionage and subversion against the other government.

The announcement follows by one day the agreement by President Bush to grant the Soviet Union up to $1 billion in agricultural credit guarantees and other concessions designed to help the Soviet government get through winter.

Under the agreement, the U.S. government will open temporary offices in Kiev, in the Ukraine, and the Soviets will open another office in New York City, in addition to the Soviet Mission to the United Nations.

In their meeting Wednesday, Secretary of state James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze also talked about eventually eliminating closed areas in both countries.

Soviet diplomats in Washington and U.S. diplomats in Moscow are prohibited from traveling more than 25 miles from the city's center without special permission.

The United States proposed scrapping that provision at a Baker- Shevardnadze meeting in September 1989, but bureaucratic problems prevented the beginning of what U.S. officials called their ''Open Lands'' proposal.

The two new consulates are designed to take care of growing tourism and business contacts between the two countries.

In the past, the FBI had objected to the Soviets establishing a new mission in New York. The agency argued that Moscow used such officies mainly to expand espionage capabilities in the United States. The FBI also said that keeping track of spies was costing too much money.

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. (DEC. 13) UPI - A U.S. Marine Reservist who said last month he would not join his unit when it left for the Persian Gulf was arrested early Thursday, officials said.

Lance Cpl. Eric Hayes, 24, of University City, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, was arrested at 2 a.m. Thursday at his apartment on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, a university spokesman said.

Hayes did not resist arrest on a deserter absentee warrant by two military police officers and three U.S. marshals, said Willie Greason, chief deputy for the U.S. marshal's office in East St. Louis.

Hayes was taken to Scott Air Force Base, about 20 miles east of St. Louis, where he was held until a Marine Corps aircraft picked him up, a base spokesman said.

Marine officials were expected to take Hayes to Camp Lejeune, N.C., where his combat unit was undergoing training. His unit, the Dragon Platoon of the 3rd Battalion, 24th Marine Reserve Division, is being deployed this week to Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield.

A spokesman for the Marine Corps said Hayes would be assigned a lawyer as soon as possible and that he probably would face court-martial at Camp Lejeune.

Hayes, a senior majoring in psychology at SIU-Edwardsville and president of the campus's Black Students Association, held a news conference at the university Nov. 30 to announce he was refusing orders to report for active duty and would seek status as a conscientious objector.

''I refuse to be a pawn in America's power play for oil profits in the Middle East,'' Hayes said at the news conference. ''I refuse orders to activate me into the regular Marines. I declare myself a conscientious objector.''

On the same day, some 200 members of his unit reported for active duty at its command headquarters at Lambert-St. Louis International Airport. The Dragon Platoon is an anti-tank assault unit.

The reservist had continued his studies at the university since his announcement. Final examinations for the fall quarter are being held this week.

Hayes enlisted in the Marine Reserves in August 1986 for six years of active service and two years of inactive service.

With his announcement, Hayes became one of about 30 members of the Armed Forces publicly refusing orders to report for active duty in the Middle East.

Bill Ramsey, a spokesman for the American Friends Service Committee, said several members of the group protested Thursday outside Scott Air Force Base after learning of Hayes' arrest. The committee is a Quaker organization that has supported the rights of individuals to refuse military service for reasons of conscience since its founding in 1917.

''It is not his will to be shipped,'' Ramsey said. ''He specifically and publicly said that he was not going to Saudi Arabia, and we're going to to everything we can to support him in that stance.''

KANSAS CITY, MO (DEC. 13) UPI - Hallmark Cards Inc. has named Harry F. Frigon, formerly a senior executive with BATUS Inc., to oversee corporate development in a restructuring of top management at the privately held company.

The greeting card giant said Wednesday that Frigon, who served as president and chief executive officer at BATUS, would hold the new post of Hallmark's executive vice president-corporate development and strategy. He also will serve as chief financial officer. "We were looking for a particular blend of executive experience," Hallmark spokesman Steve Doyal said Thursday.

Before joining BATUS, a holding company owned by Britain's B.A.T. Industries PLC, Frigon held a variety of operating, corporate and management positions with such companies as Masco Corp., General Housewares and General Foods Corp. At BATUS, the 56-year-old Frigon was responsible for the company's holdings in paper, retailing, financial services and tobacco.

"Hank Frigon has extensive expertise in corporate financing, retailing and in international operations," said Irvine Hockaday, Hallmark president and chief executive officer. "That expertise will serve Hallmark well as we integrate corporate strategies across the company and work to extend our existing business, expand our international markets and explore additional new sources of earnings."

Hallmark also said it has created a corporate executive committee that replaces the office of the chairman, which has been disbanded by Hallmark Chairman Donald J. Hall.

The executive committee includes Frigon, Hockaday, Robert L. Stark, who is president of the company's personal communications group, and Robert A. Kipp, group vice president-corporate communications and services.

Another change announced Wednesday is the re-naming of Hallmark's Social Expression Group to "Personal Communications Group," which Hallmark said better describes the group's mission. The restructuring is part of a plan called "Hallmark 2000: New Departures," a plan designed to set the company's direction into the next decade and beyond.

Hockaday told Hallmark workers in an employee publication the company would continue to be "governed by the beliefs and values that Hall family ownership has instilled in us."

"But Hallmark also will be committed to a broader definition of our core business, a more global presence in world markets and a much expanded view of the scope of our possibilities."

(DEC. 13) UPI - The official Iraqi News Agency says the government is angry over U-S allegations that Iraq is trying to stall high-level contacts with the United States. U-S officials rejected the Iraqi proposal for talks in Baghdad on January 12th as being too close to the U-N deadline for a withdrawal from Kuwait. The agency quotings an Iraqi Foreign Ministry official as saying Iraq will reject any U-S-imposed date. In his words- ''Iraq alone will fix a date for the talks.''

For the first time in six months, retail sales declined in November. The Commerce Department says retail sales were off one-tenth of one percent last month, though sales would have gained two-tenths of one percert if automobile sales were excluded. The government said the November dip followed a revised gain of two-tenths of one percent in October.

The Office of Thrift Control reports that savings and loans NOT under government control lost 631-point-four-Million dollars during the third quarter of the year. And many of the losses came because of declining real estate values. O-T-C Director Timothy Ryan says fourth-quarter losses will be even greater and he sees NO reversal until real estate markets improve.

President Bush has lost another member of his team. William Bennett says he does NOT want to become Republican Party chairman. Bennett recently stepped down as head of the nation's anti-drug campaign and now says he canNOT take up the party chairmanship from Lee Atwater, who is suffering from a brain tumor. Bush also is looking for replacements for Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole and Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos , both of whom have resigned.

South Korean President Roh Tae Woo arrived in Moscow today on the first-ever visit to the Soviet capital by a leader from Seoul. Roh was accompanied by his wife and a 15-member entourage for a series of meetings with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. The two had their first meeting at the Kremlin shortly after Roh arrived.

On the Korean Peninsula itself, the prime ministers of North and South Korea ended a third round of talks with NO agreement on how to end the 45-year division of their nation. But despite the lack of progress, the leaders agreed to meet again on February 25th in the North Korean capital.

Four hand-made crosses... the largest just eight inches high... will remain on the Christmas tree in the Pennsylvania state Capitol rotunda in Harrisburg. A federal judge has refused to order their removal, rejecting arguments that they represent the establishment of Christianity as a state religion. The American Civil Liberties Union filed the action, alleging that its members were so shocked by the sight of the crosses made by Pennsylvania senior citizens that they would change their routes in walking through the Capitol.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) UPI - Stocks closed mixed in active trading Thursday, with the Dow industrials pressured by a late jump in oil prices but the broad market narrowly higher.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which surged 36.14 Wednesday, fell 7.92 to close at 2614.36.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 0.19 to 180.06. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index slid 0.85 to 329.34. The price of an average share fell three cents.

Advances barely led declines 782-752 among the 2,029 issues crossing the Big Board tape. Volume totaled 162,110,000 shares, down from 182,270,000 traded Wednesday.

Stocks opened slightly lower and drifted near Wednesday's closing levels in quiet trading through midday. But in the afternoon, the Dow slid further when oil prices climbed. January crude oil futures closed up $1.07 at $26.42 a barrel, pressured by jitters about the failure of the United States and Iraq thus far to agree on a date r talks on the Persian Gulf crisis.

"Oil prices might have had something to do with the late drop, but we still were only down 8 (on the Dow), so I don't think it had a whole lot of effect," said Dale Tills, manager of institutional equity trading at Charles Schwab & Co. in San Francisco. "I think it looks like the advance is petering out. There just don't seem to be enough people interested in moving the market to new highs," said Tills.

He noted the blue-chip Dow industrials have run up from the low 2500s, largely on prospects for lower interest rates and a peaceful solution to the Mideast crisis, but said the advance seems to be getting a bit tired. "Everybody is still real skeptical about the fundmentals of this market, the economy and everything," he said.

"It's going to take probably a little bit more to break through the resistance at the 2635 level. There's going to have to be positive news from the (interest) rate area or the Mideast to blast through those levels to 2700," said Tills.

One of the few bright spots was the chemical sector, which rallied on news that Vista Chemical agreed to be acquired by a major German oil and petrochemical company for more than $590 million.

On the trading floor, AT&T, which has launched a tender offer to acquire computer manufacturer NCR Corp., was the most active issue, up 5/8 to 31.

Vista Chemical followed, catapulting 28 3/4 to 53 3/4 and leading the rest of the chemical sector higher. Quantum Chemical gained 3/4 to 15 1/8, BFGoodrich added 7/8 to 39 3/4, and Olin gained one to 38 1/2.

Despite recording higher sales for early December, General Motors was third, down one to 34 1/4.

Toys 'R' Us was next, off 1 1/8 to 23 1/2. A Salomon Brothers analyst was said to cut his earnings estimate for the retailer's current fiscal year.

Elsewhere, Hilton Hotels plunged 2 5/8 to 39 1/2 in heavy trading after surging Wednesday on takeover speculation.

Among the other blue chips, IBM fell 1 1/2 to 112 7/8, General Electric lost 3/4 to 56 1/4 and American Express fell 1/2 to 21 5/8, while Woolworth jumped 1 1/8 to 30 1/4 and Union Carbide added 3/4 to 17 1/2.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 197,246,580 shares, compared with 219,281,310 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices fell in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index lost 1.00 to close at 306.71. Declines led advances 311-253 among the 841 issues traded. The price of an average share lost three cents. Composite volume totaled 13,766,270 shares vs. 14,901,290 traded Wednesday. Energy Service led the Amex issues, up 1/8 to 2 3/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 1.08 to 371.50.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - A Pentagon official said Thursday all options are open in the Pentagon's review of the A-12 Avenger stealth attack plane, a sign the program might end up in even deeper trouble.

Defense Secretary Richard Cheney told Congress in April that development of the carrier-based plane was on time and within budget, but weeks later he was embarrassed and the program went into a spin because the contractors said it was $1 billion over budget and more than a year late.

Three senior Navy officers associated with the program were fired or censured and the Pentagon's top procurement official, who had a hand in briefing Cheney about the program, has resigned. John Betti will be replaced Jan. 1 by his deputy until a successor can be nominated and confirmed.

The program is undergoing a review by Deputy Defense Secretary Donald Atwood, and Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams also ruled out Thursday any additional disciplinary actions in connection with the program.

He said that in the review, ''All options are under consideration.''

The plane, under development by General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas, is designed to be a radar-evading replacement for the aging A-6 attack bomber now carried by aircraft carriers. The initial contract was for about $4.3 billion and the plane was to get its first flight this year. It is not expected to fly until next year at the earliest.

The principal focus of the review, said Williams, is on the plane itself.

''What do we do now, knowing what the inspector general's report (that triggered the punishments and Betti's resignation) says, knowing what the Navy's report says, what do we do about it? Do we continue on? Do we seek other options? That's the decision pending,'' said Williams.

He said he expected Cheney would make a decision this year because the fiscal 1992 budget must be finished soon for submission to Congress.

''It's going to have to be addressed before the budget package for '92 is ready,'' he said.

The Pentagon's investigation of the episode said that the Navy had the information showing the plane was experiencing cost and schedule overruns but the data was not viewed as something that should have set off alarm bells with senior officials sufficiently loud enough to have been heard by Cheney, who was getting ready to tell Congress about a major review of aviation programs, including the A-12.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - For the first time ever, the military has activated an emergency civilian blood collection program in case of a Persian Gulf war and civilian hospitals have been told they may get casualties, Pentagon officials said Thursday.

The American Red Cross and American Association of Blood Banks have been notified by the Pentagon to activate an emergency blood supply contract called the Armed Services Blood Program.

''The reason we are doing this to ensure we have adequate blood to support the expected influx of personnel to Operation Desert Shield by early next year,'' Pentagon spokeswoman Susan Hansen said.

Hansen emphasized that the Defense Department will continue to conduct its own blood drives among active and reserve military personnel and their relatives. ''This (the civilian drive) represents a small supplement to what we need overall,'' she said.

Beginning Monday, civilian groups have been asked to begin sending 375 units of blood to the McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey each week and were told to prepare to supply a minimum of 800 units of blood per day if fighting breaks out, blood association officials said. A unit equals about one pint of blood.

In addition, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said civilian hospitals that belong to a medical program similar to one that allows civilian airliners to be pressed into military service have been contacted, but he refused to name the hospitals.

The civilian facilities, Williams said, would be asked to take war casualties if the domestic network of military and Veterans Administration hospitals were fully taxed or if some wounds required medical specialities not commonly found at military hospitals.

Although the military has had an agreement with civilian blood centers to supply blood in emergencies since World War II, the plan has never before been invoked, even during the Vietnam War, officials said.

''The problem is they just deployed a lot of troops and are implementing this contract to cover themselves - to make sure their needs are met,'' said Marcia Lane of the American Association of Blood Banks, which operates 2,400 blood centers nationwide.

The United States has sent some 400,000 troops to Saudi Arabia as part of the Operation Desert Shield, which was sparked by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The United Nations has authorized the use of force against Iraq Jan. 15 if Saddam Hussein does not pull all of his troops out of Kuwait.

''This is unusual because the military didn't need to ask us for it (blood) during Vietnam. My guess is Vietnam was a long, drawn out, low- level conflict whereas if conflict does occur in the gulf it will be much more intense and therefore require much more blood at once to treat the wounded soldiers,'' said Elizabeth Hall of the American Red Cross.

In addition to compensating for the lack of military donors, the activation of the contract is aimed at making sure any problems with the system are worked out before blood is needed urgently for wounded soldiers, officials said.

''It's sort of a preparedness measure for both the Red Cross and military to ensure smooth shipment if needed,'' Hall said. ''Just in case they need us they want to make sure the system is working to get it to them.''

The request for 375 units of blood weekly will not put a strain on the civilian blood collection system and neither association plans to call for more donations immediately, officials said.

But Lane noted that donations typically drop off during the holiday season and urged Americans to continue to donate. However, if the need escalates to 800 units of blood per day or more, extra measures would be needed.

Currently, the Red Cross collects about 4.2 million units of blood per year, which represents about half the nation's blood supply.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 13) UPI - Fare wars returned with a vengeance to California this week as airlines, facing increasingly tight-fisted customers, slashed their lowest prices on the key Los Angeles-San Francisco routes to $20 for a one-way trip.

"The airlines don't really have much choice - they have to generate some business," said travel industry analyst Daniel Hersh of the Los Angeles investment firm Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards in an interview Thursday.

"The fare cuts point up the fact that there are a lot of empty seats flying around in California," Hersh said. "The outlook for the economy is starting to sink out here, too."

The new fares are for 21-day non-refundable tickets purchased in advance and for flights between Jan. 3 and Feb. 28, traditionally the slowest travel period of the year.

As in the past, the California cuts were started by discounter Southwest Airlines, which reduced its 21-day fares last week from $29 to $20 on flights between Ontario and Burbank in Southern California and Oakland. The cuts were then matched by the major carriers serving the north-south corridor - American Delta, United, and USAir.

The number of seats available are limited and the fares are generally of no use to business travelers, who face with walk-up coach fares of up to $220 for a one-way ticket.

Dallas-based Southwest traditionally discounts its flights at this time of year, Hersh noted. "They can afford to discount - that's how they're set up," he said.

However, discounting is more problematic for the major Los Angeles-San Francisco carriers. The corridor accounts for about five percent of the domestic market and is the sixth-busiest in the nation. "We lose money on these fares," said Tim Smith, a spokesman for American. "What we're doing is protecting market share and maintaining brand loyalty."

USAir spokesman Larry Pickett echoed the sentiment: "We're certainly not making any money on these fares. When you include taxes and increased fuel costs, there's not much there for profit."

USAir announced last month it would slightly scale back its California flights next year, but that has been the only retrenchment so far in the state.

"I would have expected USAir would be the logical candidate to pull back, since they are in the worst shape financially," Hersh said. "But they seem to be hanging in there."

One travel agent said she thinks the cuts are certain to produce increased volume for the carriers. "I think it's a nice gift," said Amy Bernard, a travel agent in Pasadena, Calif. "I've been getting kind of embarrassed quoting the increased fares elsewhere. I see it being done as much for image-polishing as anything else."

(DEC. 13) UPI - American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was poised Thursday to begin a proxy fight to oust NCR Corp. directors if the NCR board persists in its opposition to AT&T's takeover efforts.

But NCR was lining up meetings with its institutional investors to seek their support in the battle against AT&T's $6.1 billion hostile takeover bid, while drafting a formal response to the communications giant's unsolicited $90 a share tender offer.

A Cleveland investment adviser who counsels several major institutional investors with holdings in NCR said the company has scheduled meetings with the institutions' representatives to discuss the takeover bid.

An AT&T spokesman said the company was prepared to begin a proxy fight if NCR directors formally oppose the tender offer, but emphasized that no decision had yet been made whether to proceed with a proxy solicitation.

An AT&T source, however, noted, "We could get all the paperwork filed tomorrow (Friday) and be sending proxy solicitations by the end of the day." "But we still hope they (NCR directors) will see the sense of this combination and we will be able to reach a friendly agreement," he added.

A lawyer familiar with the situation said a proxy solicitation would bring pressure against NCR to accept a merger and, if successful, allow AT&T to neutralize NCR's antitakover defenses.

The NCR board has yet to adopt a formal response to the cash tender offer, though company sources say directors are certain to turn thumbs down, as they did with two previous stock-for-stock merger proposals by AT&T.

NCR directors met in New York to review their situation Thursday - a day after Chairman Charles E. Exley Jr. revealed he had received expressions of interest from several potential white knights who might help NCR elude AT&T's grasp.

There was no statement from NCR following the meeting - indicating they had yet to complete drafting of their formal response and recommendation to stockholders on the AT&T bid.

An NCR spokesman said the company would not issue any statement until it had filed its official response to the tender offer with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and noted that the deadline for filing is Dec. 19.

AT&T launched its cash tender offer exactly a week ago after NCR directors rejected a $90 a share, stock-for-stock merger proposal, amdeded and strengthened the company's antitakever Shareholder Rights plan, and said there could be no negotiations unless AT&T upped its offer to $125 a share.

And a senior AT&T executive said NCR demanded that the company sign a three-year standstill agreement to see confidential financial information NCR directors said would substantiate the $125 pricetag.

New York-based AT&T proposes to combine its computer business with NCR in a new corporate entity that would operate under the NCR name and with present NCR management.

AT&T went into the computer business seven years ago but has had trouble getting established. The company had hoped its computer sector would break even for the first time in the fourth quarter. Analysts say that, apparently, is not to be. AT&T contends NCR is a perfect partner for AT&T's computer business, because both companies focus on networking and open computer systems.

"Our decision to make the proposal to NCR was after a long period of evaluation of NCR's capabilities and potential aa well as its culture and the quality of its management and its position with customers," said Bob Kavner, former AT&T chief financial officer and currently group executive in charge of the company's computer systems group.

"When you go through each of those categories and match them up with where AT&T is at, there is a remarkable cohesiveness," he said. Exley, however, has contended that AT&T is trying to dump its troubles on NCR - along with a hefty debt for financing the takeover.

DETROIT (DEC. 13) UPI - The nation's leading automakers said Thursday sales of domestically made cars and light-duty trucks during early December rose a combined 22.3 percent, but the gains were measured against extremely weak sales in the year-ago period.

Sales of domestically built cars alone during the Dec. 1-10 period rose 27.8 percent from a year ago when measured on a sales-per-day basis. Light truck sales rose 14.3 percent.

The annual sales rate for domestically built cars - the most common measure of industry performance - was 6.5 million cars during the latest period vs. a weak 5.0 million rate last year.

But Tom Webb, chief economist of the National Automobile Dealers Association, cautioned against reading too much into the industry's latest performance. "The upturn from November's dreadful finish is heartening," Webb said, but he added "the comparisons are against a disasterous year-ago period."

Webb said that "deteriorating confidence in the economy is producing a self-perpetuating downward cycle" but that the industry can expect a modest rebound within six months if interest rates are lowered and there is a peaceful solution to the lingering Persian Gulf crisis.

Together, the nine companies - General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp., American Honda Motor Co., Nissan Motor Manufacturing U.S.A., Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Mazda Motor Manufacturing (USA) Corp., Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America, Inc. and Subaru-Isuzu Automotive Inc. - reported sales of 137,024 cars and 83,968 trucks in the United States during the Dec. 1-10 period. This compares with 107,259 cars and 73,449 trucks sold in the year-ago period.

The daily selling rate of 27,624 vehicles compares with 22,589 vehicles sold each day for the same period last year. There were eight selling days in bothyears' selling periods.

So far in 1990, the automakers have sold 6.54 million domestically made cars, down 3.1 percent from the 6.72 million units sold in the comparable 1989 period when measured by sales per day.

Domestic light truck sales so far this year have totaled nearly 3.8 million units, off 3.3 percent from almost 3.92 million trucks sold during the same time span a year ago.

During the early-December period, sales of GM's domestically made cars rose 28.5 percent, while its truck sales rose 11.6 percent. Second-ranked Ford posted sales gains of 32.3 percent and 32.6 percent, respectively, in cars and trucks.

Chrysler's car sales rose 25.4 percent, but light truck sales, including Jeeps and minivans, declined 13.2 percent when compared with the combined total a year ago.

Among the smaller "transplant" automakers reporting sales of U.S.-built cars, Toyota posted a 47.4 percent gain from relatively low production volumes a year ago.

Toyota also began disclosing import sales on a ten-day basis effective with this period. Counting imported Toyota and Lexus models, its total U.S. car sales for early December rose 38.5 percent. Toyota's light truck sales, which are imports only, declined 12.6 percent.

Honda posted a 31.6 percent drop in sales of its domestically made cars, to 3,861 units from 5,588. Honda spokesman Mike Spencer said the decline was due to a sharp slump in Civic sales reflecting the expiration of a dealer incentive program Nov. 30.

Nissan said sales of its U.S.-built cars totaled 1,646 units vs. 912 units a year ago, while domestically made compact truck sales were 1,360 units vs. 1,104.

Mazda sold 984 cars produced at its Flat Rock, Mich. assembly plant, up from 480 a year ago. Mitsubishi reported sales of 875 cars built at its joint-venture plant with Chrysler in Illinois, higher than 648 a year ago. Suburu-Isuzu recorded sales of 347 cars and 370 trucks built at its new joint venture plant in Lafayette, Ind.

Net changes for the smaller transplant carmakers are not included, since they do not give an accurate picture of sales performance. Many transplant manufacturers are still increasing output from very low year-ago levels. Also, transplant sales represent only a portion of total sales, which also include import sales that are reported on a month-end basis only.

(DEC. 13) - The Big East announced Thursday it will begin conference football play in 1991 and intends to meet with officials from Rutgers, Temple, Virginia Tech and West Virginia to discuss joining the football-only league.

Those Big East members already in the football conference are Boston College, Miami, Pittsburgh and Syracuse.

In a statement released from its headquarters in Providence, R.I., the Big East said the Division I football-only conference has ''received the support and endorsement of the entire Big East membership.''

The grouping of the major football independents on the East Coast will improve the members' prospects for postseason bowl bids and potentially attract greater television revenue.

''We have put forth a tremendous amount of time and effort in laying the groundwork for a football conference,'' Commissioner Mike Tranghese said. ''We are excited about the prospects of Big East football.''

Tranghese said conference officials plan to meet individually with representatives of Rutgers, Temple, Virginia Tech and West Virginia in mid-January.

''I think the only thing that's lacking now is we need to have a face-to-face conversation and determine if it's in everyone's best interest to move ahead '' Tranghese said.

Thursday's announcement followed an all-day meeting in Washington between Tranghese and athletic directors Ed Bozik of Pitt, Sam Jankovich of Miami, Jake Crouthamel of Syracuse and Bill Flynn of Boston College.

''I'm delighted with the four schools that we have and delighted with the four schools that we're about to have exploratory talks with,'' Crouthamel said.

Crouthamel said he was confident the new Big East conference ''would do the same thing for our football program as it has for the basketball program.''

Big East members Georgetown, Syracuse, Villanova, Seton Hall, Connecticut and St. John's have enjoyed national prominence in basketball.

Crouthamel said it will be difficult to get league play start by next fall.

''But as I see it, you've got to start someplace,'' he said. ''The sooner you start the sooner you get it going.''

Said Pitt's Bozik: ''I'm very pleased with the progress we've made so far. If things go as planned, we have the opportunity to form a football conference that from top to bottom will be as viable as any in the country.''

Virginia Tech Athletic Director Dave Braine called Thursday's development a ''giant step'' for athletics at his school. ''I have great confidence that the Big East football conference will become a reality and that Tech will be a member of that conference.''

The reaction from West Virginia Athletic Director Ed Pastilong was not so enthusiastic. While Pastilong said he was ''pleased'' with the latest development, he expressed some concerns, among them the Big East's desire to get the football league up and running in less than a year.

''This is a complex project with much detailed planning involved from many sides,'' Pastilong said. ''Now we can discuss establishing philosophies for the new league, and then look toward such specific areas as scheduling, bowls, revenue sharing, etc., and see how those meet West Virginia's needs and concerns. It's important that we take the time to do things properly.''

Pastilong also emphasized the necessity that all eight members ''have an equal say in establishing goals and specific details and procedures for the league after these initial discussions take place.''

Boston College's Flynn conceded time is short to get a conference together by next season, but added, ''There are six teams in there that are already playing each other, and you don't have to play everybody.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - Another experimental AIDS vaccine will soon begin testing in the United States, officials said Thursday.

A total of 24 people will receive the vaccine at the University of California-San Francisco and at the Los Angeles County/University of Southern California Medical Center to test its safety, officials said.

The vaccine is made from a synthetic version of a protein known as HGP-30, which is part of the core of the virus that causes AIDS. Because it is only a segment of the virus, the protein can not make people sick, but researchers hope it will trigger an immune system reaction that will protect against infection.

Study participants must be healthy and must not be infected with the human immodeficiency virus, or HIV, which causes AIDS, officials said.

''We want to get people into the study as rapidly as possible,'' said Dr. James Kahn, an assistant clinical professor at the University of California-San Francisco. ''There is no risk of becoming infected with HIV from this vaccine trial.''

The vaccine was developed by Viral Technologies, Inc., a joint venture between CEL-SCI Corp. of Alexandria, Va., and Alpha-1 Biomedicals, Inc., of Washington.

The vaccine has been tested in 18 people in Great Britain and so far appears to be safe. Results about the effectiveness of the vaccine for protecting against infection with the AIDS virus have not be made available.

The vaccine is the latest in more than a half-dozen experimental AIDS vaccines undergoing testing in the United States. So far, the results have been inconclusive.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - New findings may dampen enthusiasm for innovative ways of attacking viral diseases like AIDS and the common cold with natural protein molecules, scientists reported Thursday.

Researchers from New York's Columbia University said they found mutant forms of the polio virus appeared to evade protein molecules designed to mop up the virus and prevent it from multiplying.

Similar proteins - genetically engineered versions of the natural gateway, called a receptor, that a virus uses to enter cells - have recently generated attention as potential weapons against the AIDS virus, Epstein-Barr virus and cold-causing viruses.

For example, National Institutes of Health researchers have produced synthetic copies of CD4, the receptor the human immunodeficeincy virus or HIV uses to invade key immune cells. Scientists had hoped that soluble CD4, which has not been very impressive in human tests to date, would sop up HIV before it had a chance to enter healthy cells.

Researchers are currently trying to hook up toxins to soluable CD4 so the drug not only has the power to attract HIV and block its reproduction, but to actually kill the virus.

However, in a study published in the journal Science, Columbia's Geraldo Kaplan and his colleagues said their work with the polio virus indicates that tightly attaching to cell receptors may not be the crucial step in viral infection.

''Reduced binding (to receptors) ... did not have a major impact on viral replication'' in the test tube, they wrote.

Although their research was limited to the polio virus, the scientists said they think the work could have important implications for treatment of AIDS and other viral diseases.

''These findings temper enthusiasm for the use of soluable receptors as anti-viral compounds,'' they said.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) UPI - Former junior welterweight champion Meldrick Taylor, longing to wear a belt again, will move up a weight class to challenge World Boxing Association welterweight title-holder Aaron Davis Jan. 19 as part of a longterm television deal announced Thursday.

The Davis-Taylor fight at Trump Plaza in Atlantic City, N.J., will be the first of a 10- to 12-fight package giving exclusive television rights for three Main Events-promoted stars to Home Box Office.

Taylor, 24-1-1 with 13 knockouts, lost his International Boxing Federation 140-pound title to undefeated Julio Cesar Chavez. In a unification bout likely to win 1990's Fight of the Year, the referee stopped the fight with two seconds left while Taylor was standing. He had been leading on the judges' cards when he was decked and got up.

''I am a champion, that's why I want the belt,'' said Taylor, who admits he lives for the rematch with Chavez. He also said HBO executives' reaction to his loss made a tremendous impact on him.

''After the fight was over, they told me 'Chavez might be the champion but you're the star,''' Taylor recalled. ''That helped me.''

HBO will carry fights featuring Taylor, undisputed lightweight champion Pernell ''Sweet Pea'' Whitaker and junior welterweight Hector ''Macho'' Camacho for one to two years.

Taylor, who has struggled to reach 140 pounds, will fight his first welterweight bout against the victor over Taylor's stablemate and friend Mark Breland. Davis knocked out Breland to win the WBA welterweight crown last July.

''With us, we always got a guy who can come back and win it for us,'' Whitaker said of the 1984 Olympians promoted by Dan Duva, including heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield.

Whitaker, who will fight Poli Diaz Feb 23 in a double-header with Camacho facing Louie Lomelli, passed out cigars to celebrate the birth of his third son. Davis stuck out his hand for a cigar but kept his annoyed expression as the always bubbling Whitaker chattered.

''Hopefully after I knock out Meldrick Taylor, I'll be one of the superstars '' said Davis, 32-0 with 20 knockouts, using the description HBO and Duva lavished repeatedly on their fighters. ''I'm gonna get my respect Jan. 19 - I might even take him out early.

''If he can't hurt a junior welterweight, how's he gonna hurt me?'' Davis asked. ''He'd be better off taking that fight with Chavez than taking me,'' he said.

Taylor-Chavez had been set for January and would have brought the fighters $2.5 million each for a 10-round, non-title bout - Chavez also is planning to move up to 147. Chavez's promoter, Don King, said the fight is off because of Duva's grudge against King regarding their heavyweight fighters. King claims because he and Tyson have demanded the first defense by Holyfield - causing controversy over the new champion's plans to fight George Foreman in a voluntary defense April 19 - Duva is holding up Taylor-Chavez.

''If Meldrick Taylor had any (guts),'' he'd have $2 1-2 million for a non-title fight,'' King said.

Duva claims King blew the Taylor-Chavez deal because he wanted too much money for himself. According to Duva, when King asked for a delay to get the site fee he wants, Duva responded he would indeed still sign for Taylor-Chavez but after Taylor fights Davis. Chavez then objected - whether he doesn't want Taylor to face him as a champion or to make life tough for King - and said he won't sign if Taylor fights Davis.

''I think it is related,'' Taylor said of the cancelled rematch and the heavyweight issue. ''It's going to happen, it's got to happen. I'll get the rematch.''

Whitaker said boxing demand will mandate Taylor-Chavez.

''They could lose their next 10 fights each,'' Whitaker said, ''and people will want the rematch.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - A hole in Earth's protective ozone layer over the South Pole, which usually closes by the end of November, persisted into December this year, the National Oceanic and Astmospheric Adminstration said Thursday.

Measurements from sounding balloons on Dec. 6 showed ozone levels were significantly below levels recorded on the same date in 1987 - the year when the most severe ozone depletion was measured, the agency said.

The hole is believed to have remained open longer because of winds that build up in the Antarctic from September to November but continued through December this year, said Samuel Oltmans of NOAA's Climate Monitoring and Diagnostics Laboratory in Boulder, Colo. The winds prevent ozone from flowing to the South Pole, he said.

The South Pole, however, has begun to have sunlight 24 hours a day, which tends to warm the atmosphere and halt the destruction of ozone until next fall when the process begins again, Oltmans said.

In fact, another set of measurements taken Dec. 10 indicate that the ozone hole has begun to close again, the agency said.

Ozone is a highly corrosive form of oxygen produced by complex reactions with chemicals in the air. ''Good'' ozone, found naturally in the upper atmosphere, or stratosphere, forms a layer that shields Earth from the sun's ultraviolet rays, which can cause skin cancer and other health problems.

Recently, holes in that protective layer have been detected over the South and North poles.

''Bad'' ozone, created by the reaction of sunlight with pollutants like car exhaust and industrial emissions and found closer to ground in the troposphere is a component of smog and can cause breathing problems.

(DEC. 13) UPI - The U-S-charter flight dubbed ''the last hostage plane'' by Arab radio reports arrived in in Frankfurt, Germany, today with 94 people aboard, including U-S Ambassador to Kuwait Nathaniel Howell. President Bush wants to hear first-hand from the former American hostages in the Persian Gulf area, so he is meeting with seven of them today at the White House. Some of the hostages were used by Iraq as ''human shields,'' and the others hid out in Iraq or Kuwait for up to four months.

The official Iraq News Agency is quoting an Iraqi Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying his nation will never allow the United States to impose on it the dates for top-level talks on the Persian Gulf crisis. The report quotes the spokesman as saying... ''Iraq alone will fix a date for the talks.''

Blood bank officials in Washington, D-C, say the Pentagon has activated an emergency civilian blood collection program for the first time... apparently to prepare for fighting in the Persian Gulf. The American Red Cross and the American Association of Blood Banks reported the move.

Paroled child-killer Arthur Shawcross was convicted today of murdering 10 Rochester, New York, area women during a two-year spree that gripped the city in fear. Shawcross showed NO emotion as the verdict was read. Defense attorney Thomas Cocuzzi said he will appeal the conviction, for which Shawcross faces sentences totaling 250 years in prison.

Abbott Laboratories today announced a new, quick test to diagnose strep throat that takes just six minutes, instead of the standard test that can take two days. Abbott says a quick test has been available in doctors' offices for several years, but the accuracy of its new test is comparable to the so-called ''gold standard'' test, which could take up to two days to complete.

BALTIMORE (DEC. 13) UPI - A former CIA agent who became an important arms broker in the Iran-Contra scandal was sentenced by a federal judge Thursday to 16 months in prison on income tax charges.

Thomas G. Clines, 62, of Middleburg, Va., was convicted Sept. 18 on two counts of making false statements on his 1985 and 1986 income tax returns and two counts of failing to report foreign financial accounts to the Internal Revenue Service.

He faced up to 16 years in prison and $1 million in fines for the four counts when he was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Norman Ramsey.

In addition to the prison term, Ramsey fined Clines $40,000 and ordered him to pay the cost of his prosecution, which has yet to be determined. His lawyers have 10 days to appeal.

Clines became the eighth person convicted in connection with the secret Reagan administration plan to sell weapons to Iran to win freedom for U.S. hostages and divert the profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels at a time when such aid was banned by Congress.

Although he lives in Virginia, Clines was charged in Maryland because his tax preparer is from Bethesda.

During his 11-day trial, prosecutors told jurors how Clines created an elaborate system, including the use of a safe deposit box in Geneva, to collect some $900,000 in profits from the arms sales he helped broker.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Stuart Abrams charged that Clines only reported to the IRS what he thought the government could document that he made on the deals.

Specifically, Clines was accused of failing to report $203,431 in income on his 1985 income tax returns and $57,009 on his 1986 returns. He also denied having any foreign financial holdings in those two years, prosecutors said.

While conceding there was a problem with Clines' 1985 tax return, defense attorney Paula Junghans said Clines filed an amended tax return to truthfully report his income.

Although technically a tax trial, prosecutors called former figures from the Iran-contra scandal to testify, including retired Air Force Gen. Richard Secord.

Prosecutors described how Secord and his business associate, Albert Hakim, sold arms to the Contras at the behest of White House aide Oliver North. Secord hired Clines to obtain field weapons for the Contras, including SA-7 anti-aircraft missiles from China.

Both Secord and Hakim, who also profited from the arms sales, have pleaded guilty in connection with the scandal, but North's three felony convictions were set aside by a federal appeals court in Washington.

Clines worked for the CIA for 31 years before being forced to retire in 1978 by CIA Director Stansfield Turner because of his relationship with Edwin Wilson, another former CIA agent who had been convicted of selling explosives to Libya. Clines later became an international arms broker.

MONTREAL (DEC. 13) UPI - North America's largest mass transit vehicle maker Bombardier Inc. said Thursday it received a $132.5 million dollar subway car order from the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

The new cars are part of the transit authority's plans to modernize its Boston's Red Line subway route, according to Bombardier.

Bombardier said it was awarded a contract to develop and build 86 new-technology subway cars with an option for 56 additional units. If the option is exercised, the total value of the contract would be $215 million.

The new stainless-steel vehicles, to be produced at plants in Quebec and Vermont, will be delivered between June 1992 and June 1994.

The order will represent the first major use of inner-city rapid transit cars utilizing alternating current electric motor technology in North America, Bombardier said.

The new technology offers increased reliability and lower maintenance and energy costs than traditional direct current drive systems, Bombardier said.

Most of the new cars systems, including air conditioning, communications, door-control mechanisms, braking and equipment-failure monitoring, will incorporate microprocessor technology, the company said.

Bombardier is a diversified transportation company with manufacturing interests in mass transit, commercial, commuter and military aircraft, railway equipment and snowmobiles.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (DEC. 13) UPI - The price of Hilton Hotels Corp. stock fell Thursday as investors showed skepticism about a report a group of Japanese investors may make a bid for the company.

Hilton stock fell $2.625 to close at $39.50 a share on the New York Stock Exchange. A total of 1.56 million shares were traded, making it the Big Board's ninth most active issue.

The stock had jumped $2.25 a share on Tuesday and $6.625 on Wednesday following reports that a group of Japanese investors was being put together to make a bid of about $75 a share for the company.

A spokesman for Hilton, which owns, operates or franchises more than 270 hotels, said Wednesday the company has not been approached.

''It's always possible that there is a bid, but the financing for it would be very tough right now,'' said analyst Michael Mueller of Montgomery Securities in San Francisco.

Hilton had announced in mid-1989 that it would consider a buyout offer, and analysts speculated that such a sale could fetch more than $120 a share, which would have put the total cost of a buyout at about $6 billion.

But by late last year, the price of Hilton shares had fallen sharply as it became apparent there was a lack of buyers willing to meet Hilton's asking price - estimated at about $80 a share.

Hilton finally took itself off the block earlier this year.

Mueller said a foreign buyer could emerge over the intermediate term because of declines in interest rates, the value of the dollar and the price of oil, if there is no war in the Middle East.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 13) UPI - Castle & Cooke Inc., which said earlier this year that it might sell Dole Food Co., announced Thursday that it has taken the food giant off the sales block because of a slack market for acquisitions.

The decision came five months after the holding company had retained investment bankers Goldman Sachs & Co. to evaluate a possible sale, which analysts believed could have brought as much as $2.5 billion.

Dole, known for its fresh fruits and vegetables, canned foods, nuts and fruit juices, contributed more than 90 percent of Castle & Cooke's $2.72 billion in 1989 sales.

David H. Murdock, chairman and chief executive officer of Castle & Cooke, said Thursday the potential buyers were not willing to meet the asking price.

''Although several major international food companies expressed interest in acquiring Dole, in the current economic climate, the board of directors did not believe the interested buyers were prepared to pay a price that fully reflected the company's potential,'' Murdock said.

''At the time we retained Goldman Sachs, market conditions suggested that a sale of the Dole Food Co. could be an attractive alternative that might allow shareholders to receive a significant premium above the public market valuation,'' Murdoch said. ''However, over the past several months, the market for acquisitions and acquisition financing has deteriorated.''

Castle & Cooke also said that it sees ''significant opportunities'' for continued growth with the opening of new markets in Eastern Europe.

''We also expect continued excellent markets for Dole's fresh fruits, vegetables, packaged fruits, juices, dried fruits and nuts as consumers continue to be health conscious,'' the company said.

The announcement represents a second tactical shift for Castle & Cooke this year.

The company announced last February that it would spin off Dole into a new publicly traded company. That plan was put on hold in May because of financing concerns and uncertainty over the Internal Revenue Service's tax treatment of the deal.

MUNICH, GERMANY (DEC. 13) UPI - Michael Chang sailed and Pete Sampras struggled, but each made it into the semifinals of the $6 million Grand Slam tournament.

Chang thrashed Henri Leconte of France 7-6 (7-3), 6-3 and Sampras overcame Yugoslavian Goran Ivanisevic 7-6 (7-2), 6-7 (5-7), 8-6. Both Americans have already earned $450,000 and will be competing to reach the final on Sunday, where the winner earns $2 million.

Sampras and Ivanisevic battled for two hours 24 minutes in three long sets. The two 19-year-olds displayed a range of shots, with the clear advantage to the server in the first set.

In the first set tie-break, Sampras won two points in Ivanisevic's serve to go up 5-2. He took the next two points on serve to win the tie- break 7-2.

The second set followed much the same pattern, but Sampras' return of serve became better and the left-handed Yugoslav, ranked No. 19 in the world, struggled with his first serve.

But the match took an unexpected turn when Ivanisevic broke Sampras in the 12th game to even the set 6-6. Sampras, ranked No. 9 in the world, rallied from 2-6 to 5-6 in the tie-break, but the Yugoslav took the set 7-5 on his serve.

Sampras was plagued by blisters on his right foot in the third set, but managed to fight off four break points with the score 4-4. The tournament rules did not allow for a tie-break in the third set and Sampras finally prevailed when Ivanisevic double-faulted.

''I was lucky to win'', Sampras said after the match, adding that Ivanisevic ''grew tired in the end, so I just kept the ball on the court''.

Leconte, after playing strongly in the first set, began to make more unforced errors in the second.

Chang won on his first match point when Leconte - who underwent knee surgery only a month ago - dumped the ball into the net.

''I didn't play very well in the second set,'' said Leconte, ''but Chang is in top form at the moment.''

Chang upset world No. 1 Stefan Edberg in the opening round while Leconte beat Austrian Thomas Muster. Leconte and Ivanisevic earned $300, 000 for advancing to the second round.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (DEC. 13) UPI - An independent human rights group said Thursday 115 civilians were killed in war-related violence last month, with the armed forces responsible for 51 of the deaths.

In its latest report, the non-governmental Human Rights Commission said 62 of the civilian deaths could not be traced to either the military or leftist rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN.

The group said FMLN guerrillas were to blame for at least two civilian deaths.

Military officials refused to comment on the report.

Most of the 115 civilians slain in November have not been identified, the commission said.

The commission said it based its report on information received from various sources, including the nation's four leading newspapers.

To date, El Salvador's decade-old civil war has left more than 72,000 people dead, most of them civilians.

OTTAWA (DEC. 14) UPI - The 7 percent Goods and Services tax Thursday cleared a major hurdle in the Conservative-dominated Canadian Senate, ensuring that Canadians will begin paying the hated charge Jan. 1.

The Senate voted 55-49 to approve the tax, which has already cleared the House of Commons where the Conservative government holds a majority of seats. The bill is expected to receive royal assent approval Friday from the Queen's representative in Canada.

Revenue Minister Otto Jelinek, who is responsible for the legislation, told reporters nearly 1 million businesses have registered for the tax. ''We are ready to go. We will have a launch on Jan. 1 for the benefit of all Canadians '' he said.

Liberal senators tried every possible trick to prolong debate on the legislation after it was referred to the Senate in April. But they were thwarted when the speaker of the Senate, a Conservative who personally supports the tax, suddenly ended debate late Wednesday and ordered the Upper Chamber of Parliament to vote on the measure.

The goods and services tax, intended to replace the 13.5 percent manufacturers' sales tax, will be applied on virtually all goods and services, with the exception of basic groceries, resale houses and some bank services.

Finance Minister Michael Wilson has stated that Canadian companies will be more competitive in domestic and international markets since there will no longer be a tax on exports. In addition, only consumers will end up paying the tax, since any GST paid by businesses on inputs will be refunded. About 75,000 manufacturing firms, importers and wholesalers pay the 13.5 percent manufacturers' sales tax and add it to their prices as a cost of doing business.

According to Jelinek, about 8.7 million low and modest income Canadians will receive a quarterly credit in advance of any GST paid on their household purchases.

Jelinek said the government would begin printing credit checks, at the rate of 9,000 an hour, as soon as the tax bill receives royal assent. About $600 million in credits will be sent to Canadians, he said.

The government has also said the goods and services tax will reduce the amount of tax lost in the underground economy by businesses who refuse to pay tax. Businesses must register with the government in order to get back the GST paid on their purchases.

About 50 countries worldwide have their own version of the GST and most have boosted the rate since it was introduced. Sweden's rate has jumped from 11.1 percent when it was introduced in 1969 to 25 percent.

Even if Canadians dump the Conservatives in the next general election there is no guarantee that the tax will disappear. The Liberal opposition has consistently refused to say what they will do with the tax.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) UPI - Two newsstand operators Thursday filed a $30 million class-action lawsuit on behalf of fellow newspaper dealers charging the striking Daily News drivers union with intimidation.

The lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, accuses the union of committing ''acts of violence, intimidation, vandalism and theft'' that have deprived the dealers ''of the ability to make a fair living.''

The suit, which seeks $30 million in damages under antitrust statutes and under the Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization Act, names as defendants the Newspapers and Mail Deliverers Union and its president, Michael Alvino.

Representatives of the union could not immediately be reached for comment.

The dealers who filed the suit, Nasir Naveed and Kishor Mehta, were acting as representatives for more than 12,000 newsstand dealers and operators, said their lawyer, Henry Korn.

News management has said striking unions have threatened newsstand dealers who sell the strikebound paper and, at times, resorted to violence to stop sales of the News, the tabloid owned by the Chicago- based Tribune Co.

The suit came as federal mediators said they would wait for Daily News management or the striking unions to ask for another negotiating session before setting up talks aimed at ending the seven-week strike.

A daylong negotiating session Wednesday between News management and union officials, looked on by many as perhaps the last chance for a peaceful settlement, ended with no progress reported.

The two sides met separately with representatives of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, after sporadic negotiations since the strike began Oct. 25 produced no common ground.

''They're quite far from reaching an agreement,'' said Bernard DeLury, director of the service.

DeLury said representatives of the News and officials with the Allied Printing Trades Council, the umbrella group for the nine striking unions, met separately with federal mediators from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p. m.

DeLury said a team of federal mediators held ''in-depth discussions with the parties,'' but they were unable to agree on either a format or an agenda for future discussions.

The sticking point was over the News' refusal to negotiate with all the unions as a unit, preferring to talk to each union separately.

''The unions continue to junk the potential benefits of Federal mediation,'' said News spokesman John Sloan.

Management also rejected union demands for all striking workers to be allowed to return to work if the strike is settled and for management to drop more than $150 million in lawsuits against the unions.

George McDonald, the council's president, called the News's attitude during negotiations a ''charade'' and ''a pure sign that the don't want to reach an agreement.''

Meanwhile, ticket sales were reported strong for ''News-AID,'' a benefit for the Newspaper Guild Emergency Health and Housing Drive, the fund set up to help striking reporters, editors and advertising employees, to be held Friday night with appearances by Lou Reed, Pete Seeger and Run-DMC.

Members of nine unions walked off the job Oct. 25 to protest labor practices. Contract negotiations had been under way since January.

CLARKSTON, Mich. (DEC. 13) UPI - A judge Thursday dismissed a first-degree murder charge filed against a retired pathologist in the death of an Alzheimer's disease patient who used the doctor's ''suicide machine'' to kill herself last summer.

The case against Dr. Jack Kevorkian was thrown out following two days of testimony and the viewing of a dramatic videotape in which the patient, Janet Akins, 54, told the doctor, ''I don't want to go on.''

Adkins died June 4, two days after the tape was made, in the back of Kevorkian's van in a remote park. She was hooked up to a device rigged by Kevorkian that allowed Adkins to inject herself with a lethal solution.

District Judge Gerald McNally, calling suicide ''a private and personal matter '' held that Kevorkian committed no crime under state law and that the question of criminality in assisting suicide was an issue for the legislature, not the courts, to decide.

''Mrs. Adkins was the approximate cause of her own death,'' McNally said.

But he invited the prosecutor's office to appeal if it disagreed, and Assistant Oakland County Prosecutor Michael Modelski said it was being considered.

''In my mind, somone went free who acted improperly,'' Modelski said.

Kevorkian said the ruling means ''good hope'' for the terminally ill.

''Society realizes a crying need for this,'' he said.

Kevorkian is barred from further use of the ''suicide machine'' pending a civil hearing before Circuit Judge Alice Gilbert. The hearing had been stayed by the Michigan Court of Appeals after murder charges were filed.

Howard Simon, executive director of the Michigan Civil Liberties Union, which was preparing to enter the case on Kevorkian's behalf, called the ruling ''courageous and logical.''

''I think it was absurd for the Oakland County proseuctor to charge someone who assisted a suicide with murder,'' Simon said.

In the 40-minute videotape, Adkins, of Portland, Ore., made clear her decision to die rather than allow Alzheimer's disease to progress. The video was obtained from Kevorkian's apartment under a search warrant and presented as a prosecution exhibit.

In the video, Adkins declared, ''I don't want to go on.''

Her husband, Ronald, agreed, saying, ''I'm for it because she wants it, because I love her. She should have the right not to suffer and should have a human way to exit.''

In the tape, Kevorkian asked her if she wanted to change her mind, insisting she must be the one to push the button to deliver the lethal injection.

Kevorkian, Adkins and her husband gathered in a room at the Red Roof Inn in Madison Heights, Mich., to make the tape.

''I know the things that Janet through our 34 years of marriage has loved,'' Ronald Adkins said. ''She has been a sort of light in our lives because of her interest and curiosity. Now, seeing the things she loves being taken away from her, for such a curious mind, and have that go away would kill her.''

Kevorkian asked, ''Now, you don't want her to go on?''

Adkins, ''No, I don't.

To Janet Akins, Kevorkian inquires, ''Then it's your decision.''

''Yes, it is my decision.''

Kevorkian also suggested to the husband, ''Of course, you realize she's not terminal.''

''Not in a physical sense, but mentally,'' he replied.

The husband described his wife's mental state as ''rational, she's able to make decision on her own and exercise her own free will.''

Kevorkian asks, ''Janet, are you aware of your decision, the implications of your decision?''

Her reply, ''yes.''

''What does that mean?'' Kevorkian asked her. ''What is it you want?''

''I don't want to go on,'' she answered.

''What does that mean?'' Kevorkian asked again.

''That's the end of my life.''

''What's the word for the end of life, what is it when you stop living?''

''You're dead,'' she said.

Witness Lynda Biedrzycki, now medical examiner in Waukesha County, Wis., who performed an autospy on Adkins while serving as Oakland County medical examiner, said Thursday Adkins died of a ''medical overdoes due to injection, but the manner of her death was suicide.''

''I believe she intended to take her life and pushed the button and did it alone by her own hand.''

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 13) UPI - The Pittsburgh Penguins Thursday acquired center Jiri Hrdina from the Calgary Flames for defenseman Jim Kyte.

Hrdina, 32, had no goals and three assists in 14 games this season. A native of Prague, Czechoslovakia, Hrdina is in his fourth season in the NHL and has 36 goals and 58 assists in 157 career games.

Kyte, 26, had no points in the one game he played this season after being recalled Tuesday from Muskegon in the International Hockey League. Kyte was in his ninth season in the NHL and has 14 career goals and 26 assists. He had two goals and five assists in Muskegon.

The trade is the second this week for the Penguins. Pittsburgh Tuesday traded defensemen Chris Dahlquist and Jim Johnson to the Minnesota North Stars for defensemen Larry Murphy and Steve Taglianetti.

TAIPEI, Taiwan (DEC. 13) UPI - Two strong earthquakes struck Taiwan 17 hours apart Thursday and Friday, and initial news broadcasts on the island reported at least two people were killed.

The U.S. Geological Survey, which monitors earthquake activity around the world, said the first temblor struck at 11:02 a.m. Thursday local time and was recorded at a magnitude of 6.1 on the Richter scale of ground motion.

The second quake hit at 3:50 a.m. Friday and was measured at 6.2 on the open-ended Richter scale, according to the USGS. Both tremors were centered about 80 miles south of Taipei, the capital.

''There were reportedly injuries and some damage, but we have no details,'' USGS spokeswoman Pat Jorgensen said from the agency's office in Menlo Park, Calif.

An earthquake recorded at 6.0 on the Richter scale is capable of causing severe damage in populated areas.

A source in Taipei said local news broadcasts Friday reported at least two people were killed and an undetermined number were injured in the temblors. Damage estimates were unavailable.

Despite the severity of the quakes, the National Weather Service declined to issue a tsunami - or tidal wave - watch for islands in the Pacific, a spokesman said.

The twin Taiwanese quakes occurred hours after a temblor registered 4.7 on the Richter scale rocked eastern Sicily Thursday, killing at least 15 people, injuring more than 200 and leaving as many as 2,000 people homeless.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - The United States, the Soviet Union, Portugal and the two warring parties in Angola agreed to a proposed formula Thursday designed to bring about an end to the 15-year civil war in the African nation.

The fighting, coupled with a severe drought, has produced hundreds of thousands of casualties.

The breakthrough development was announced by Herman Cohen, assistant secretary of state for Africa, and Yuriy Yukalov, a Soviet-African affairs specialist, and Antonio Moniero, the Portugese cabinet secretary.

Officials of those three countries spent parts of Wednesday and Thursday meeting in Washington with representatives of the Angolan government and the U.S.-backed UNITA rebel movement.

Dramatic progress, according to Cohen and Yukalov, was made possible because the Cold War has ended and the two superpowers had decided to cooperate to end a regional struggle.

The proposal means that the Angolan government and the rebel forces will ''refrain from receiving'' outside support without identifying the source of that support.

That formula would not require the United State to admit that it had been sending the UNITA some $60 million annually in weapons, including surface-to-air missiles. The State Department estimates the continuing Soviet support at $500 million annually.

But Cohen told reporters at a newsconference that the United States had supplied lethal aid, marking the first time that a U.S. official conceded publicly there was such covert assistance.

Rebel leader Jonas Savimbi met with Bush on Thursday and predicted that a cease-fire to end the fighting is ''real close.'' Savimbi told reporters that he thanked Bush ''for all the support the United States has been giving us.''

Savimbi met later with Angolan Foreign Minister Pedro De Castro Van Dunem. Afterwards he was asked how close UNITA and the Angolan government were to a ceasefire, Savimbi replied: ''I think we are very close.''

Savimbi has said he will join the cease-fire, but only if his party can participate in a democratically elected government.

''Both the United States and the Soviet Union are joining hands in trying to find a solution for the Angola problem,'' Savimbi said. ''We in UNITA, we wanted to have a cease-fire this year. Unfortunately, it's not possible.

''But we hope to work hard with the government of Luanda, with the United States, with the Portuguese, with the Soviet Union in order to achieve the cease-fire early next year and to have elections by the end of 1991.''

Savimbi predicted that if the elections are free and fair, ''UNITA stands a good chance of winning.''

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that during the Bush-Savimbi meeting, the president reaffirmed ''U.S. support for his movement and expressed hope for a peaceful solution.''

Cohen said the formula for the agreement on Angola was made possible by the 1989 U.S.-brokered accord that ended the war in neighboring Namibia and led to the withdrawal of Cuban forces from southern Africa.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - President Bush, easing U.S. restrictions on the export of some high-tech products, approved a number of high-speed supercomputer export licenses for companies in Brazil, India and China, the White House announced Thursday.

Although administration officials said they could not release full details of the transactions for proprietary reasons, an official said one of the cases cleared the sale of a supercomputer to the Embraer Aircraft Corp. in Brazil, a follow up to a promise made by Bush during his visit to the South American nation last week.

The administration official, who asked not be identified, said of eight cases pending involving the three countries, ''most of them were approved'' and that at least some of the sought after technology will be released to each.

In a statement announcing the action, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said some of the applications were rejected because they ''raised a number of national security concerns.'' The Commerce Department will be notifying each of the companies involved.

But approval of the sales, the largest of which involved millions of dollars, marked an easing of restrictions on the flow of high-tech information overseas reflecting the thaw in East-West relations and the ''changing strategic concerns of the United States,'' Fitzwater said.

The sales had been held up by interagency disputes over the wisdom of exporting the high-tech information to the countries which some fear could be used for building nuclear, chemical or biological weapons, the official said.

Though approving the sales, Fitzwater said Bush ''because of the potential strategic applications of such computers, also required the imposition of stringest safeguards to ensure that the computers will be used exclusively for peaceful civilian purposes.''

The safeguards were not spelled out.

The decisions were included in a package of export control initiatives, including several procedural reforms approved by the president late Thursday, following his much-criticized Nov. 16 veto of legislation attempting to prevent the spread of deadly weaponry, particularly in Iraq.

Fitzwater, however, contended the president's package would streamline export licensing decisions while at the same time ''enhancing our export controls to stem the spread of missile technology and nuclear, chemical and biological weapons.''

The package, which is scheduled to be implemented by Feb. 16, also included provisions for:

-Worldwide export controls on 50 chemicals that can be used to manufacture chemical weapons.

-Export licenses for proposed exports that may be related to the development of missiles or chemical and biological weapons.

-Civil and criminal penalties against U.S. citizens who knowingly participate in actions that promote the spread of missile technology and chemical weapons.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 13) UPI - The board of Occidental Petroleum Corp., in a move that may be designed to blunt takeover speculation following the death of longtime chairman Armand Hammer, said Thursday it had reaffirmed Ray R. Irani as Hammer's successor.

The board said that it voted unanimously to reaffirm its resolution, made last February, that designated Irani to succeed Hammer in the posts of chairman and chief executive officer.

Irani will remain as president of the energy-chemicals giant, a post that he has served in since 1984.

The board's action came on the same day that private funeral services were held in West Los Angeles for Hammer, who died Monday at the age of 92 in his Los Angeles home following a brief illness. He was buried in the family crypt next to his wife, Frances, who died last year.

Hammer had been at the helm of the company since 1957 when it was a small wildcat oil drilling firm and led it to prominence as the nation's 16th largest industrial company.

Irani joined Occidental in June 1983 as chairman and chief executive officer of its chemical subsidiary, Occidental Chemical Corp., after serving as president and chief operating officer of Olin Corp.

Irani is widely credited with building up Occidental's chemicals business, which currently accounts for about half of its $20 billion in revenues. However, the chemicals business has hit a downturn and the company's profits have declined by 40 percent during the first nine months of this year compared with the year-ago period.

In another action, the board named Occidental executive Dale R. Laurance to the board to fill the vacancy created by Hammer's death.

Laurance, who has served since 1984 as executive vice president- operations, was also promoted to senior operating officer of the corporation.

Laurance, 45, joined Occidental Chemical Corp. in June 1983. He previously worked for DuPont and Olin.

Occidental stock was again heavily traded Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange, with 1.3 million shares changing hands as it fell 50 cents to $20.25.

(DEC. 13) UPI - President Bush met with seven former American hostages in Iraq and Kuwait today at the White House, saying he was ''anxious'' to hear from each one of them. Bush also said there will be NO rewards for Saddam Hussein for releasing the captives because NO one rewards a kidnapper. Bush met with the former hostages as the last U-S- chartered flight from Iraq and Kuwait landed in Frankfurt, Germany.

The chartered Iraqi jetliner carried U-S Ambassador to Kuwait Nathaniel Howell four aides and 26 other Americans. U-S officials confirmed that the group was the last one... that NO more Americans who wanted out of Iraq and Kuwait remained behind. Howell told reporters that the Embassy in Kuwait City is NOT closed, just vacated.

Officials say a U-S Marine reservist who said last month that he would NOT join his unit when it left for the Persian Gulf was arrested today at his apartment at Southern Illinois University in Edwardsville. 24-year-old Lance Corporal Eric Hayes said last month that he would claim conscientious objector status. Marine officials are expected to take Hayes to Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, where he probably will face a court-martial.

The United States and the Soviet Union announced today that they will be opening new consulates general in Kiev and New York City. The announcement is still another sign of the Cold War's end. The consulates had been planned for more than five years but were sidelined in 1986 amid mutual charges that they would be used for espionage and subversion.

The U-S Geological Survey says two strong earthquakes occurred in Taiwan within 17 hours of each other, causing undetermined damage and injuries. A spokesman in Menlo Park, California, said the first quake was measured at six-point-one on the open-ended Richter Scale, and the second was put at six-point-two. Officials say both temblors were centered about 80 miles south of Taipei.

The national Centers for Disease Control says flu-like illnesses increased in the week ended December 8th, with 13 states and the District of Columbia listing cases of the contagious disease. TUSTIN, CA (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Trimedyne Inc. (NASDAQ:TMED) Friday reported its financial results for the quarter and fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, revenues were $3,462,000, a 26 percent increase from revenues of $2,743,000 for the June 30, 1990, quarter, the first quarter-to-quarter increase in sales since December 1988. However sales for the current quarter were 48 percent less than the $6,612,000 reported for the comparable period of the prior year.

In the current quarter, the company had a loss of $1,152,000, or 17 cents per share, compared with a loss of $3,770,000, or 57 cents per share, in the June 30, 1990, quarter. Net income for the year-earlier quarter, however, was $328,000, or 5 cents per share.

The loss for the most-recent quarter includes write-offs of $422,000, consisting of a $203,000 increase in the reserve for excess and obsolete inventory and a $219,000 write-off of leasehold improvements and is net of an income tax benefit of $379,000, resulting from the utilization of a net operating loss carryback compared with an income tax expense of $84,000 for the same quarter of the previous year.

Revenues for the current year were $13,661,000, a decrease of 59 percent from $33,256,000 reported for fiscal 1989. The company lost $7,370,000, or $1.11 per share, for fiscal 1990 compared with income of $1,257,000, or 18 cents per share, for fiscal 1989.

The loss for the current year includes write-offs of $3,412,000, consisting of an increase in the reserve for excess and obsolete inventory of $2,338,000, a write-off of leasehold improvements of $419,000 and a $655,000 loss on the sale of the company's non-medical laser subsidiary.

In the prior year, there was a write-off of $701,000 as a reserve for excess and obsolete inventories. The fiscal 1990 loss is net of a $1,029,000 income tax benefit resulting from the utilization of net operating loss carrybacks. The company incurred an income tax expense of $704,000 in the previous fiscal year.

HOUSTON (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Santa Fe Energy Resources Inc. announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Santa Fe Energy Resources of China Inc. has signed an agreement with the China National Oil Development Corporation for what is believed to be the first mainland China exploration contract granted to a foreign company.

The negotiations, which Santa Fe initiated in 1988, resulted in an agreement which allows exploration and development activities on approximately 4 million acres in the Jianghan Basin (Dongting Sub-Basin) of Southeast China, approximately 500 miles northwest of Hong Kong.

The work commitment calls for the completion of seismic surveys and the drilling of two exploratory wells during the initial three year period.

Santa Fe Energy Resources of China Inc. holds a 25 percent working interest in the project. A subsidiary of Petrocorp Exploration Ltd. of Wellington, New Zealand is the operator and has a 60 percent interest; and a subsidiary of Nomeco Oil & Gas Co. of Jackson, Mich. holds the remaining 15 percent.

Santa Fe Energy Resources Inc. is a large independent oil and gas company based in Houston with ongoing activities throughout the United States and several foreign countries. The common stock of Santa Fe Energy Resources is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol SFR.

SEATTLE (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Alaska Airlines frequent fliers will receive triple mileage credit on all flights between Dec. 15 and March 15. The bonus mileage also applies to all flights on Horizon Air, Alaska's sister carrier.

Under the program, a round trip flight between Anchorage and Seattle, for example, will earn the carrier's mileage incentive plan members more than 8,600 miles, while one between Seattle and Los Angeles will earn them more than 5,800 miles. The bonus applies to actual or minimum mileage credits, whichever is greater.

The triple mileage plan is different from frequent flier promotions recently introduced by other carriers - a minimum number of flights are not required in order to receive awards.

Alaska frequent fliers can redeem a round trip coach ticket on Alaska for travel in the United States when they have accumulated 15,000 miles and on Horizon at 10,000 miles. Alaska and Horizon serve more than 60 cities in Alaska, Mexico, Canada, and seven Western states.

PORTLAND, OR (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Joseph J. Barclay, president and chief executive officer of Cascade Corp. (NASDAQ: CASC), reported relatively strong operating results for both the third quarter and nine months ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Consolidated net sales for the three-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990, were $44,140,000 compared to sales of $41,010,000 for the same period in 1989. Net income for the third quarter of 1990 was $2,810,000 (47 cents per share) compared to 1989 third quarter net income of $2,980,000 (50 cents per share).

For the nine month period ended Oct. 31, 1990, net sales were $128,275,000 representing an increase of 6 percent when compared to 1989 sales of $120,530,000. Net income for the nine months of 1990 totaled $7,390,000 ($1.23 per share) compared to net income of $8,685,000 ($1.45 per share) for the corresponding 1989 period.

Barclay noted that incoming orders for lift trucks in North America, Australia and several European markets continued to soften during the third quarter.

While sales of Cascade attachment products remain relatively strong in most major market areas, "Worldmast" sales have been particularly hard hit by this decline as OEM customers reduced their production schedules and adjusted their inventory levels. SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, CA (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Guy F. Atkinson Company of California (NASDAQ:ATKN) Friday announced that the company would take a sizeable fourth quarter charge which will result in a loss for 1990.

''The directors have accepted management's recommendation to take a fourth quarter pre-tax charge of approximately $20 million,'' stated Chief Executive Officer Thomas J. Henderson.

''This charge reflects major additional losses now expected in two of our construction operations as well as several non-recurring items.''

''Atkinson is restructuring and consolidating its construction operations to more closely focus them to marketplace realities and opportunities. Downsizing is continuing within selected construction operations and corporate headquarters,'' Henderson said.

In concert with the recognition of the charge and the restructuring, the board voted to omit the next quarterly dividend. Dividends have been paid at the quarterly rate of 12 cents per share since August 1988.

''With these actions, Atkinson is positioning its heavy construction unit to match the performance of its successful building and industrial construction units and its on-going profitable diversified operations in manufacturing, industrial pipe distribution, and oil and gas exploration and production,'' stated Henderson.

SACRAMENTO, CA (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - American Recreation Centers Inc. (NASDAQ:AMRC) announced record second quarter operating revenues of $13.2 million for the quarter ended Nov. 28, 1990, an increase of 12.3 percent over last year's comparable revenues of $11.7 million.

Revenues for the six months ended Nov. 28, 1990 totaled $25.6 million, an increase of 21 percent over last year's comparable revenues of $21.2 million.

Direct marketing revenues were up 34 percent over last year's second quarter and for the six month period were up 51 percent over last year's comparable period. Bowling revenues were up 3 percent for the quarter and 7 percent for the six month period compared to last year.

Second quarter net income was $546,000, or 11 cents per share, compared to $436,000, or 9 cents per share, last year, an increase of over 25 percent.

For the six months ended Nov. 28, 1990, net income of $656,000, or 13 cents per share, represents a dramatic improvement over last year's six month results of $68,000, or 1 cent per share. Also, last year's six month results included a $326,000 pre-tax gain on sale of property.

The direct marketing division continues to be a strong contributor to the company's profits with the Right Start Catalog producing a record second quarter operating profit of $468,000, a 44 percent increase over last year's second quarter.

For the six months ended Nov. 28, 1990, the Right Start produced operating profit of $1,024,000, an 87 percent increase over last year.

The bowling division also continues to turn out increasing operating profits despite unusually dry and warm weather which adversely affects the indoor recreation business.

The bowling division produced an operating profit for the second quarter of $894,000, a 5 percent increase over last year. For the six months ended Nov. 28, 1990, the bowling division operating profits of $1,003,000, reflect the dramatic improvement disclosed during the first quarter of this year and represent a 241 percent improvement over last year's six month bowling operating profits.

American Recreation Centers Inc. is the largest publicly held corporation in the country devoted primarily to the operation of bowling centers.

The company operates 27 bowling centers, 22 in California and 5 in Texas with an aggregate 1,126 lanes.

American Recreation Centers Inc.'s wholly owned subsidiary, the Right Start Catalog Inc., is a nationwide direct marketer of high-quality products for infants and children.

LA JOLLA, CA (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Precision Aerotech Inc. (ASE:PAR) Friday announced sales of $16,262,000 for the quarter ended Oct. 31, compared with $18,184,000 for the like period a year ago.

Net income from continuing operations was $155,000 for the quarter, compared with a net loss of $560,000 for the like period a year ago. Net income, including the effect of discontinued operations, was $139,000 compared with a net loss of $6,361,000 for the like period a year ago.

Sales for the six months ended Oct. 31 were $33,229,000, compared with $34,943,000 for the like period a year ago. The net loss from continuing operations was $576,000 for the six months ended Oct. 31, compared with a net loss of $416,000 for the like period a year ago. The net loss, including the effect of discontinued operations, was $597,000 for the six months ended Oct. 31, compared with $6,588,000 for the like period a year ago.

Sales increased at the Speedring Inc. and Speedring Systems Inc. subsidiaries for the quarter ended Oct. 31, compared with the like period a year ago. The planned restructuring and downsizing at the Aero Technologies Inc. subsidiary, completed earlier this year, resulted in lower sales compared with the like period a year ago.

Manufacturing margins for the quarter ended Oct. 31 improved over the like period a year ago, in part as a result of numerous actions undertaken during the current and preceding two quarters to restructure and improve the performance of the Coast Aerotech Inc. subsidiary. Contributing to the improved margin at Coast was a favorable inventory adjustment resulting from the intensive review of costs and assets completed during the quarter.

Manufacturing margins at the other subsidiaries were generally comparable to or better than plan during the first six months of the current fiscal year.

Targeted improvements in asset utilization are being achieved and cash flow for the first six months was favorable to plan.

HOUSTON (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Mesa Offshore Trust (the ''trust'') Friday announced that it has been advised by Mesa Limited Partnership (''Mesa'') that Mesa has signed a definitive agreement to sell certain producing oil and gas properties and undeveloped leasehold acreage to Seagull Energy Corp. of Houston.

A letter of intent relating to the sale was announced in October 1990.

Mesa has also advised the trust that the definitive agreement differs from the letter of intent in that Mesa's Gulf Coast properties and certain other properties will not be included in the sale package.

Accordingly, the properties to be sold to Seagull will not include Mesa's 10 percent interest in the Royalty Properties of the trust or Mesa's 0.01 percent interest in the Mesa Offshore Royalty Partnership (the ''partnership'').

Since Mesa will not be selling its interest in the Royalty Properties to Seagull, Mesa will continue as the operator of the Royalty Properties and the managing general partner of the partnership. Mesa has further advised the trust that it does not expect the Seagull sale to have an effect on the operations of the trust or the partnership.

PORTLAND OR (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Ringor International Ltd. (OTC:Pink Sheets), an Oregon based athletic shoe manufacturer, has signed an agreement with an Oriental investment group for a combination of cash and revolving credit to build the production capabilities of the company over the next 10 years.

This development creates a dramatic opportunity for Ringor's growth. Due to limited capitalization, Ringor had been forced to turn away an additional $5 million in sales over the last three years alone.

The current state of the art in cleated shoes is the patented circular pattern designed and manufactured by the Ringor Corp. This shoe effectively reduces the potential for impact and spiral type injuries and is applicable to all cleated sports.

Frederick Ihlenburg, president of Ringor, explains the excitement over Ringor's unique product and market approach: ''Ringor not only has the most revolutionary design for cleated sports, it is the only nationally recognized brand of performance athletic footwear that is structured to market directly to the consumer. This enables Ringor to enjoy both the wholesale and retail profits.''

He adds: ''Offering the product direct is a tremendous hedge against the poor economic conditions that will see traditional retailers suffering more and more each year. In general, whereas times of economic downturn may see a reduction in fashion, ath/leisure footwear consumption, the demand for performance footwear for team sports has always remained strong.''

Ihlenburg adds: ''Families today have a heightened awareness of teenage activity. Parents are more devoted than ever to their children's participation in wholesome activities. As a result, spending for athletic involvement has seen no cutbacks in family budgets.''

The investment group recognized that no other major footwear company is, or can easily be, geared to take advantage of the growing shift from team-oriented retail sales in stores to direct sales from the manufacturer.

Yu Ping Lee, managing partner for the group, said: ''We have allowed revolving credit facilities of approximately $5 million for Ringor's 1991 fiscal year. Production has started and goods will be available at Ringor's U.S.A. location by mid-December.''

Lee adds: ''We have wished for some time to conservatively expand our investments to include consumer products. We've been watching the U.S. athletic shoe market and, in particular, the Ringor brand. We believe Ringor offers the best possibility for a significant return due to what we believe will be a strong exploitation of its high-end quality and technology.

''We stand ready to expand our capital involvement as it becomes necessary to insure the company's growth through product development as well as by acquisition.''

ORLANDO, FL (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Laser Photonics Inc. (NASDAQ:LAZR) announced Friday they have received approval from the FDA to begin clinical investigations with the STONELASER lithotriptor.

According to company President and Chief Executive Officer Mark T. Fukuhara, ''We believe Laser Photonics is the first company to receive FDA clearance to begin patient investigations with an alexandrite solid-state laser system designed to treat urinary and biliary tract stones.

''We anticipate completing our clinical investigations and receiving clearance from the FDA to begin marketing this system mid-year 1991.

''We believe this new solid-state technology will allow the company to rapidly capture a significant market share by providing a system which is easier to use, more reliable, and substantially less costly than laser products currently on the market.

''We also anticipate receiving clearance this month to market a Nd:YAG/ 532 green wavelength laser.

''This wavelength, when combined with the Nd:YAG 1.06 wavelength on which we received clearance to market in October of this year, is considered to be the laser system of choice for laparoscopic/endoscopic surgery such as laser cholecystectomy (gallbladder removal) and other general surgical applications.

''The only other competitor currently cleared to market this combination wavelength laser in the United States is Laserscope.''

Laser Photonics Inc. designs, manufactures and markets solid-state and gas laser systems, components and other peripheral equipment for applications in the medical and scientific markets.

FREMONT, CALIF. (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Phil E. Phillips, who joined Credence Systems Corp. in August following a long tenure at Teradyne Inc., has been named general manager of Credence's new Beaverton Division.

Credence currently expects to complete the acquistion from Tektronix Inc. by the end of the year.

Phillips will report to David J. Mees, chairman and chief executive officer. He replaces Vince Lutheran, who served as general manager of the STS Division while it was owned and operated by Tektronix. Lutheran will remain in a consulting capacity.

''I've known Phil for a long time during his career with Teradyne,'' Mees said. ''He has all of the skills and expertise to optimize the opportunities for Credence as it assumes a leadership position in the ATE market.''

Phillips will have P & L responsibility for all products produced in Beaverton. The manufacturing organization will report to Kent Goheen, vice president of operations, who is responsible for the manufacture of all Credence products.

''The ATE industry is in the process of restructuring itself and Credence is emerging as a new leader,'' Phillips said. ''This kind of challenge doesn't come along very often, and it's a very stimulating and exciting one.''

Phillips joined Credence in August as vice president of marketing for the Digital Products Group, which is based at the company's Fremont headquarters. He spent more than 20 years in a variety of marketing, sales and management positions at Teradyne Inc., where he managed field sales and factory-based marketing teams in Boston, Phoenix, Dallas and Tokyo.

Credence is a leading supplier of digital VLSI and mixed-signal test systems used by test engineers in all phases of IC production test including device characterization and debug, production test and incoming inspection.

DENVER (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Caspen Oil Inc. sold certain natural gas wells in Louisiana for an undisclosed amount.

While Caspen does not intend to pursue a general strategy of property sales, in this particular case, the price offered allowed Caspen to reduced its bank debt by $4.7 million and restructure its remaining $2 million debt into an interest-only term loan with a balloon payment in June 1993.

The loan will bear an interest rate of prime + 1, with interest payable quarterly. Consummation of this restructuring agreement eliminated any and all technical defaults with Caspen's lending institution.

Caspen is an American Stock Exchange listed company engaged in oil and gas exploration, production and acquisitions primarily in the southwestern United States. On Oct. 31, 1990, Caspen had 14,860,349 common shares outstanding owned by approximately 4,800 shareholders.

HOUSTON (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Baker Hughes Inc.'s (NYSE/PSE/Zurich:BHI) chairman, president and chief executive, J.D. Woods, Friday announced that Baker Hughes had terminated discussions with parties interested in acquiring its Baker Hughes Tubular Services Inc. (BHTS) subsidiary.

Baker Hughes further announced that it had decided to retain its ownership interest in BHTS and not seek to sell the company at this time. Baker Hughes Tubular Services is a leading worldwide provider of inspection services, internal plastic coating and premium threaded connections for the oil and gas industry.

For the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990, Baker Hughes Tubular Services had revenues of approximately $100 million.

Woods indicated that with the deterioration in the financial markets, the proposed sales price of BHTS was below the company's expectations. He further indicated that the company is comfortable with retaining its ownership of BHTS as part of its overall strategy of providing equipment and services to the oil and gas industry.

Woods said: ''Baker Hughes Tubular Services Inc. provides quality services to their customers as do the other Baker Hughes companies. We are pleased with their management and the overall performance of BHTS. We are somewhat disappointed in the market perceptions of the value of this business and believe retaining it will create more value for our stockholders than a disposition.''

CHICAGO (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - GEO International Corp. (NYSE/PSE:GX) announced results for the year ended Sept. 30, 1990, as a $13.3 million loss, or 80 cents per share, on revenues of $157.2 million.

In the prior year the company reported a $13.5 million loss, or 83 cents per share, on revenues of $164.8 million.

John E. McConnaughy Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of GEO, said fourth-quarter results include a provision of $8.1 million to reduce the carrying values of certain assets in contemplation of their sale. McConnaughy said the company has had preliminary discussions with potential buyers and that proceeds from the asset sales would substantially improve the liquidity of the company.

Fourth-quarter operations were also affected by a decline in screen printing and seismic services revenues. McConnaughy explained the decline in screen printing revenues was primarily related to equipment sales.

Customers may have delayed purchases until the industry's annual trade show held the week following the close of GEO's fiscal year as well as a general softness in the market for capital goods, he added.

While seismic services sales were off in the fourth fiscal quarter, the prospects for improved sales and operating performance in GEO's oilfield businesses are promising as the domestic energy industry begins to adjust to the events occurring in the Middle East, McConnaughy concluded.

Geo International provides equipment, inks and supplies to the graphic arts industry, production equipment and supplies to the oil and gas industry and non-destructive testing services to assure quality to many industries.

MITCHEL FIELD, NY (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Frequency Electronics Inc. announced that net sales for the six-month period ended Oct. 31 were $26,234,000 as compared with $30,094,000 for the like period last year.

This reduction resulted from delays and stretch outs of certain programs.

The net loss for the six-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990, was $2,228,000 compared with a profit for the like period last year of $1,470,000. This loss is a result of higher-than-anticipated design and development costs associated with fixed-price commercial satellite programs and declining profit margins in the defense industry, affecting microwave components and assemblies at FEI Microwave, the company's west coast operation.

Although Frequency Electronics has been impacted by the stretch outs and delays in DoD programs, the demand for FEI products relative to satellite systems, secure communications, electronic warfare and navigational systems remains steady, and the company has been successful in obtaining new business.

The company has instituted major cost-cutting programs, the effect of which will have an impact on profitability for fiscal 1991 and substantial savings in fiscal 1992.

The investment in commercial satellite receivers, down converters, frequency sources and timing systems for ground communication offers many new business opportunities.

Frequency Electronics is aggressively pursuing its core business with the Department of Defense while at the same time inserting its technology in commercial satellites and ground communication systems.

With a dedicated workforce and the support of the company's customers, stockholders, and a product line and a technology that has both vital DoD requirements as well as commercial usage, the company expects to achieve increases in profitability in the future.

SAN RAFAEL, CA (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Children's Discovery Centers of America Inc. (NASDAQ:CDCRA) Friday announced higher third quarter 1990 revenues and operating earnings on a comparable basis.

Earlier this week the company announced that it had completed the sale of its troubled Arizona subsidiary pursuant to a plan adopted by its board of directors effective pursuant to a plan adopted by its board of directors effective June 30 of this year.

As a result of these actions, revenues and expenses for the subsidiary are not included in 1990 third quarter results. Therefore, year to year reported revenues and income figures are not directly comparable.

On a comparable basis, excluding the Arizona subsidiary in both 1989 and 1990, quarterly revenues increased $925,000 or 39 percent, and nine month year to date revenues increased $3,500,000 or 55 percent from the corresponding periods in 1989. On the same basis, operating earnings increased $70,000 or 50 percent for the quarter and $190,000 or 30 percent for the nine month period.

The company stated that the improvement in revenues and operating earnings was largely attributable to new centers acquired during the last 12 months. There was also, however, an increase in sales of approximately 9 percent in centers open in both years and a small improvement in operating margins.

At the time of its recent announcement of the completion of the sale of its troubled Arizona subsidiary, the company also announced that it had executed a merger agreement to acquire Magic Years Child Care and Learning Centers Inc. (NASDAQ:KIDS), a leading provider of employer-based child care services with 33 centers located in Pennsylvania and other mid-Atlantic states.

Richard A. Niglio, chairman and chief executive officer of Children's Discovery Centers, said, ''The addition of the Magic Years employer-sponsored centers to our existing growing base in this specialized area will position Children's Discovery Centers as one of the leaders, nationwide, in the important emerging market for employer-based child care.''

Niglio added that Children's Discovery Centers counts among its current employer clients such well known entities as Wang Laboratories, TRW Space and Defense, and the County of Los Angeles. Also, the merger is expected to result in substantial cost efficiencies and an acceleration of the company's acquisition program into the Magic Years' markets, according to Niglio.

SAN DIEGO (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - PS Group Inc. (NYSE:PSG) Friday announced it had amended its shareholder rights plan to allow for the ownership by Berkshire Hathaway Inc. and its affiliates of up to 45 percent of PS Group's common shares without triggering the provisions of the rights plan.

Berkshire Hathaway, through various subsidiaries, presently owns approximately 22.1 percent of PS Group common shares, and prior to the latest amendment was permitted to own up to 22.5 percent.

In connection with the amendment to its shareholder rights plan, PS Group and Berkshire agreed, among other things, that:

1) Berkshire will vote all shares of PS Group common stock owned by it in excess of 22.5 percent in the same proportion as all other PS Group shares are voted in connection with all matters on which common shares of PS Group are voted; and

2) Berkshire will not be a ''participant,'' as defined in federal proxy regulations, in any PS Group proxy contest.

Berkshire has advised PS Group that it expects to purchase additional PS Group common shares, although the extent and timing of any such purchases will depend on price, market conditions, availability of funds and Berkshire's evaluation of other investment opportunities.

Berkshire has also advised PS Group that, based on consideration of the same factors, it may in the future determine to sell PS Group shares owned by it.

Berkshire will not be able to make purchases that exceed 25 percent of PS Group's common shares until Berkshire has made a new filing under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act (which Berkshire has advised it will make in the near future) and the applicable waiting period under such act has expired or been terminated.

PS Group Inc. is a combined aircraft leasing and holding company. It owns a controlling interest in USTravel Systems Inc. and Recontek Inc. USTravel Systems is one of the nation's largest travel management companies. Recontek has developed a proprietary process of recycling metallic hazardous waste and recently opened its first commercial recycling facility in Newman, Ill.

SANTA BARBARA, CA. (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Bondholders owning more than 98 percent of County Bank's subordinated debt have agreed to convert their notes into equity capital, according to the bank's president, Roy G. Green.

The bank's capital position will be substantially strengthened by the new core capital resulting from the transaction.

Green stated that County has $22.4 million in long-term subordinated debt issued in 1986, and the holders of $22.15 million (representing 98.8 percent of the total) have given County signed agreements in which they will exchange the debt for shares of a new issue of preferred County Bank stock.

It is anticipated that the transaction will be completed before Dec. 31, and will raise County's core capital ratio to 2.3 percent.

County is also proceeding with its plans to offer a new issue of preferred stock to its present shareholders, Green noted. He said that the stock issue has been increased from $10 million to $22 million, which would bring County's core capital level to 5 percent by June 30, 1991.

''County believes that financial institutions with 5 percent core capital will be uniquely positioned to take advantage of some attractive business opportunities in the financial services field,'' he said.

The debt-to-equity conversion also will create a one-time extraordinary pre-tax profit to County of approximately $17.7 million, according to Green. This gain, when combined with 1990 operating profits, will enable County to increase its loan loss reserves by $20.8 million during 1990. County believes the additional reserves are prudent in the current period of economic uncertainty.

Green stated that County expects to complete 1990 with an after-tax profit of approximately $200,000, substantially higher reserves, and a significantly strengthened capital position.

The year-end results reflect both a third-quarter loss of $5.6 million resulting from the decision to increase reserves and projected fourth-quarter profits of $4.7 million resulting from the debt-to-equity conversion and the establishment of additional reserves.

County Bank has assets of over $1 billion and has headquarters in Santa Barbara. It maintains 10 branches throughout the Ventura, Santa Barbara, and San Luis Obispo areas.

HOLYOKE, MASS. (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - December 14, 1990 -- Heritage Bancorp, Inc. (NASDAQ:HNIS) today announced that its sole subsidiary, Heritage Bank for Savings, has entered into a consent agreement with federal and state banking regulators. Heritage had previously disclosed that it was in discussions with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation concerning certain measures to be taken by the Bank in response to the FDIC's most recent Report of Examination.

Under the agreement, the Bank consented to the issuance by the FDIC of a formal regulatory order which calls for Heritage to take actions to increase its regulatory capital ratio. In addition, under the order, the Bank is required to reduce its levels of non-performing assets, modify lending and collection policies and procedures, reduce its reliance on certain types of borrowings and deposits, maintain higher levels of liquidity, and refrain from paying cash dividends on the Bank's stock without prior regulatory approval.

At the same time that Heritage entered into the consent agreement, the FDIC approved the Bank's capital plan, which had been submitted in early December. Under the approved capital plan, Heritage has agreed to take specific steps over the next two and one-half years to increase its regulatory capital ratios reduce dependence on certain types of funding liabilities and improve its liquidity ratios.

''The Bank and its regulators have common objectives and have agreed on appropriate courses of action and timetables to achieve those objectives,'' Chairman Covell explained. ''We are hopeful that the actions upon which we have agreed, and which in many cases are well underway, will help to bring

Heritage through this difficult time as quickly as possible. It is also important to note that these steps are not expected in any way to impair services to our retail customers.''

Looking ahead, Heritage anticipates making additional substantial provisions for estimated losses on loans and foreclosed real estate during the fourth quarter. Additionally, results for the quarter will be adversely affected by loss of interest income, workout expenses, and foreclosure costs associated with Heritage's non-performing assets. As a result the Company is expected to have a loss for the fourth quarter and for the year.

Heritage Bancorp, Inc. is the holding company of Heritage Bank for Savings. The Bank operates 27 offices in western Massachusetts. All deposits are fully insured by the FDIC and the Massachusetts Central Fund.

ATLANTA (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Superior TeleTec Inc. (AMEX:STT) announced Friday that it expects to report flat earnings for the third quarter of fiscal 1991, ending December 23, 1990.

For the current period, earnings are expected to approximate $1.1 million, or $.13 per share. In the comparable period last fiscal year, earnings were $1.3 million or $.13 per share.

James R. Kanely, President, Chairman and CEO, stated ''We are disappointed that we do not expect to be able to report a continuation of the string of consecutively improving quarterly earnings that we have experienced over the past three years. In the past few weeks, we experienced an unexpected decline in orders for our copper wire and cable products that will affect our third quarter results.

'' Although we have experienced a reduction in recent contract awards that could reduce revenues in our copper cable business by as much as 10 percent in calendar 1991, we have no explanation for the current slowdown except for the general sluggishness of the economy. We expect to have multiple opportunities in the copper cable marketplace to replace the lost business as a result of the contract award reductions, but we must now approach the 1991 calendar year cautiously because of the more general economic slowdown.

For the six-month period ended September 23, 1990, the Company reported revenues of $79.3 million and earnings of $4,382,000 or $0.50 per share. For the year ended March 25, 1990 the Company reported revenues of $138 million and net income of $4,923,000 or $0.51 per share.

Superior TeleTec Inc. is a diversified telecommunications company primarily serving the independent telephone holding companies, the Regional Bell Operating Companies (RBOC's), and the inter-exchange carriers. The Company offers several product lines including copper wire and cable, fiber optic cable products, equipment used to measure and test digital, fiber optic and analog transmission lines, voice frequency repeaters used in telephone switches, and a digitized voice data transmission product line.

SEATTLE (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Jay Jacobs Inc. (NASDAQ: JAYJ) Friday reported unaudited sales and earnings for its quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990.

Net sales for the third quarter of 1990 were $26,948,000, an increase of 7 percent over sales of $25,099,000 in the third quarter of 1989. The sales increase resulted primarily from new stores opened during the year. The company reported a net loss from continuing operations for the third quarter of 1990 of $608,000, or 10 cents per share. The company reported net income of $336,000, or 6 cents per share, in the third quarter of 1989 which included income from continuing operations of $462,000, or 8 cents per share, and a loss of $126,000, or 2 cents per share, from the company's discontinued wholesale division.

Douglas A. Swerland, president of Jay Jacobs Inc., said: ''The third quarter proved to be particularly difficult due to consumer fears about possible recession and uncertainties related to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. Abnormal markdowns were necessary to compete with prices offered by other retailers.''

During the third quarter of 1990, 17 new stores were opened bringing the total number of stores in operation at Nov. 30, 1990, to 203.

Jay Jacobs sells fashion forward merchandise to young women and men through its 203 apparel stores located principally in regional shopping malls in 11 Western states and four Midwestern states.

SPARTA, N.J. (DEC/ 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Laser Recording Systems, Inc. (''LRS'') 1/8NASDAQ:LRSI (common stock), LRSIW (warrants) LRSIU (units); Boston Stock Exchange:LRSU3/8 Friday announced unaudited results for the third quarter and nine months ended October 31, 1990. For the nine months ended October 31, 1990, sales increased 95 percent and gross margins increased to 55 percent, up from 47 percent last year.

The net loss was the result of higher research and development expenses and selling, general and administrative expenses to sustain a growing engineering and sales force.

The decline in revenues in the third quarter was primarily due to the completion of large jobs in the second quarter or the booking of orders that have not yet been started. In fact, the backlog now stands at a record $750,000. For the third quarter, gross margins rose to 58 percent up from 44 percent in the prior year's third quarter.

Carver Washburn, President of Laser Recording Systems noted, ''We are very encouraged by our year-to-date performance. During the third quarter, Glaxo, Inc. purchased from LRS its fourth ONDA system this year, Schering-Plough Corporation's Research Division awarded LRS its largest single contract award ever, and the Bundesgesundheitsamt (BGA), an office of the German Government, awarded us a contract to deliver a computer-based system for the submission of ONDAs.

''With customers such as these, and a backlog of approximately $750,000, we believe that LRS will continue to grow and will become a major force in the submission of optical new drug applications, as well as in other stages of new drug development,'' Washburn concluded.

LONDON (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Speaking at the ''Liposomes in Drug Delivery: 21 Years On'' conference in London, Eric Mayhew, Ph.D. presented data showing that novel long-circulating liposomes enhanced the tumoricidal activity of an anthracycline oncology drug (epirubicin) in a preclinical study of an established colon carcinoma.

The long-circulating liposomes used by Dr. Mayhew in his study, and identified as Stealth liposomes to distinguish them from ''traditional'' liposomes, are proprietary to Liposome Technology Inc. (LTI), (NASDAQ:LTIZ), a California-based pharmaceutical company.

In contrast, Stealth liposomes remain in circulation for 24 to 48 hours, preferentially surround the tumor, and slowly release epirubicin which then invades and kills the cancer cells over a relatively prolonged period.

Discussing the potential significance of these data, Dr. Mayhew said that Stealth-epirubicin was not injected until the colon carcinoma was established. The tumor in Dr. Mayhew's model was equivalent to a tumor that would be clinically detectable in humans. The purpose of this ''delayed treatment'' protocol was to more closely simulate the clinical situation where a patient typically would not present symptoms until the tumor had begun to grow.

The Stealth liposomes used in Dr. Mayhew's study were prepared with polyethyleneglycol (PEG), a proprietary coating patented by LTI. The PEG enables these long-circulating liposomes to evade detection and uptake by the reticuloendothelial system, circulate for 24 hours or more, and deliver a payload of drug to a target site.

During the same session, Albert A. Gabizon, M.D., Ph.D., today presented data showing that Stealth also improves the tumoricidal activity of another anthracycline drug, doxorubicin. Dr. Gabizon said that survival of laboratory models implanted with J6456 lymphoma in the peritoneal cavity, and infused with Stealth-encapsulated doxorubicin, was significantly increased over the survival rate observed in models treated with free doxorubicin.

These data suggest that Stealth liposomes loaded with an antitumor drug may be useful for treating advanced ovarian cancer, which often disseminates into the peritoneum and is extremely difficult to treat.

Dr. Gabizon used PEG-coated Stealth liposomes as well as Stealth liposomes coated with phosphatidylinositol (PI), another proprietary coating patented by LTI, in his investigations. He has concluded that the PEG liposomes are more stable ''in vivo'' and circulate longer than PI liposomes or any other liposome composition reported in the literature.

In addition, Dr. Gabizon postulates that the superior stability of PEG Stealth liposomes, as compared to PI liposomes, will increase the therapeutic index of certain Stealth-encapsulated oncology drugs, providing an opportunity to develop a line of improved anticancer products.

A Senior Investigator in the Department of Experimental Pathology, Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N.Y., Dr. Mayhew is continuing his preclinical investigations of Stealth epirubicin, sponsored by LTI and designed to identify specific tumor types that may be amenable to Stealth anthracycline therapy. Dr. Gabizon, a Senior Lecturer at Hebrew University, is associated with the Hadassah Medical Organization's Department of Oncology, Jerusalem, Israel.

He is conducting preclinical investigations of Stealth doxorubicin, also sponsored by LTI and designed to develop safety and other data as required to obtain regulatory approval for testing Stealth doxorubicin in humans.

Located in Menlo Park, Calif., LTI's key first-generation products include injectable amphotericin B colloidal dispersion (ABCD) for systemic antifungal therapy, inhaled albuterol to treat asthma and bronchitis, and injectable doxorubicin for anticancer therapy. The company's second-generation product focus is on utilizing LTI's proprietary long-circulating Stealth liposomes to target injectable anticancer drugs, including doxorubicin, to tumors and to deliver therapeutic proteins and peptides.

DAYTON, OH (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - The board of directors of Moto Photo Inc. (NASDAQ:MOTOP) decided Thursday to suspend the regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share on the company's $1.20 cumulative convertible preferred stock.

In announcing the action, Michael F. Adler, chairman and CEO of Moto Photo Inc., said, ''Given the general state of the economy and the softness both in the retailing and photographic industry, the board concluded that it would be prudent for the company to harbor its resources in every way possible.

''Our business is generating positive cash flows even in these difficult economic times as shown by our earnings before interest, dividends, taxes and depreciation of $2,663,000 for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1990.''

Adler continued, ''However, we recognize the company is highly leveraged and our cash resources have been principally used to pay debt. We believe it is imperative to continue to reduce our long term debt, upgrade our stores, and selectively pursue investment opportunities. The company will have available $500,000 for these purposes if the preferred dividend is not paid during 1991. This is significant.

''Moto has paid its quarterly preferred dividend for 20 consecutive quarters and we have only elected to take this step because we believe it is in the best long term interest of all of our shareholders. The dividend is cumulative and will accumulate until the dividends are reinstated.''

''Furthermore,'' Adler said, ''the company is taking additional steps to further increase its positive cash flow. General and administrative expenses for 1991 have been substantially reduced including a reduction of corporate staff. Seven losing stores will be closed. In addition, a select number of company stores will continue to be refranchised with proceeds used to strengthen the company's balance sheet.''

Moto Photo Inc., is a Dayton-based franchisor and operator of one-hour photofinishing stores with 342 stores in operation and 23 under development in the U.S., Canada, Norway and Sweden.

(a)-Reflects: Year end and fourth quarter unusually high charges of $1,125,000 and $427,000, respectively.

Rule further commented that its fourth quarter performance was impacted more by unusually high charges primarily related to professional fees for the U.S. Anchor litigation and additional reserves for trade credits in a declining economy than by the nominal decrease in revenues. Despite the fourth quarter net loss the positive cash flow from non-cash expenses in the quarter more than offset the loss and increased year end cash flows from net income and non-cash expenses by 15 percent to $3,715,000.

SYRACUSE, NY (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Diagnostic Medical Instruments Inc. reported revenues of $1,307,000 in the fourth quarter ended Sept. 30, an increase of 34.2 percent from revenues of $974,000 in the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989.

The company recorded net income of $16,000 for the fourth quarter compared to a net loss of $785,000 recorded in the fourth quarter of last year.

The increase in revenue and improved operating results were primarily due to increasing sales of the new Altair PC Holter systems both domestically and internationally and to tight control of expenses.

Revenues for the year ended Sept. 30, were $5,227,000 compared to revenues of $5,500,000 in fiscal year 1989. The company recorded net income of $60,000, or 2 cents per share, for fiscal year 1990 compared to a loss of $1,262,000, or 32 cents per share, for 1989.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Rochester Gas and Electric Corp. announced Friday that 71 firms submitted 108 notices of intent to bid for RG&E's future electricity requirements.

RG&E's all-source bidding RFP No. 90-1 was issued Sept. 11. The company is requesting up to 50 MW of generating (supply-side) capacity and at least 20 MW of conservation and load management (demand-side) capacity savings.

Notices of intent to bid were requested by Nov. 12. However, notices may still be submitted. These notices are non-binding expressions of interest and do not commit their sponsors to submit a proposal in March 1991.

A total of 36 firms submitted supply-side projects while 35 demand-side sponsors are developing conservation projects that promise participating customers savings as well as reducing RG&E's need for new generation.

The total proposed supply-side capacity was 1564 MW. Individual projects ranged from 0.5 to 50 MW, with an average of 31 MW. Natural gas and a small number of projects using coal or waste comprised the majority of fuels specified.

A total of 176 MW was received for the demand-side projects. They ranged from 0.1 to 20 MW with an average of 4 MW. Although the majority of demand-side projects would involve commercial and industrial customers, there was also significant interest from bidders in the residential and institutional/government customer sectors.

''We are pleased by the preliminary indications of interest,'' said Paul Ruganis, RG&E's manager of corporate planning and demand-side management. ''We are looking for peaking capacity and the large number of sponsors who are prepared to offer dispatchable resources is a positive indication that the results will benefit the company and its ratepayers,'' said Ruganis.

HAMILTON, BERMUDA (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - NOREX AMERICA INC. (AMEX Symbol: NXA) Friday announced results for the first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Revenues for the quarter ended Sept. 30 increased 128 percent to $12,654,000 as compared to $5,547,000 for the first quarter last year. Income from continuing operations increased to $1,593,000, or $0.27 per share, as compared to $335,000, or $0.07 per share, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989.

During the first quarter of fiscal 1991, the company incurred expenses from discontinued operations, related to the sale, in May 1989, of Bermuda Star Line Inc., of $(19,000), or $0.00 per share. For the first quarter of fiscal 1990, the company reported income from discontinued operations of $382,000, or $0.09 per share.

Net income for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 was $1,574,000, or $0.27 per share, an increase of 119 percent over last year's first quarter net income of $717,000, or $0.16 per share.

Kristian Siem, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of NOREX AMERICA INC., stated, ''We are pleased with NOREX's excellent first quarter results, which were primarily attributable to the Company's successful investments in the offshore drilling rig debt of Global Marine. The rigs which collateralize this debt, and are the source of the debt service, continue to be profitably employed and provide a major source of NOREX's revenues.''

Siem continued, ''The Company's shipping operations, which are conducted through its 80 percent owned subsidiary Norgulf Shipping Limited, were negatively affected by the typically slow summer market for the transport of petroleum products and by higher than normal fuel costs for Norgulf's managed fleet. Even with these negative factors, however, Norgulf managed to break even during this period. During the Company's current second quarter, the petroleum products transport market has strengthened and we anticipate that Norgulf's contribution to NOREX's results will improve.''

NOREX AMERICA INC. is currently engaged in vessel ownership, tanker chartering, and the ownership of debt interests in offshore drilling equipment. It is pursuing investment and development in shipping and offshore marine activities.

NAPPANEE, IN (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Mallard Coach Co. Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:MALC) announced its sales and operating results for the year ended Oct. 27.

Net income for the 52 weeks was $1,972,000 or 31 cents per share on sales of $168,910,000. This compared to net income of $4,176,000 or 66 cents on sales of $195,976,000 for last year.

Net loss for the 13 week quarter ended Oct. 27, was $537,000 or 9 cents a share on sales of $39,592,000. This compared to net income of $521,000 or 8 cents a share on sales of $47,539,000 for the like period last year.

The slump in demand for RV products which had developed by the onset of Mallard's fourth fiscal quarter became more pronounced by this quarter's end.

As Mallard's retail dealers grew more cautions in the face of events in the Middle East and the declining national economy, profit margins on Mallard products were narrowed to stimulate gross revenues and lower inventories.

This lead to a loss of earnings in the company's final quarter. Mallard expects to encounter a continuation of difficult market conditions in the months ahead. The company will continue its stringent cost controls in order to provide even greater product values for today's market.

Mallard Coach manufacturers motorized an pull-type recreational vehicles and truck campers in eight locations in Indiana, Michigan, Georgia and California. These products are sold under the brand names of MALLARD, PRAIRIE SCHOONER, FLIGHT LEADER, OVERLAND, DISCOVERY EXPRESS, LEXINGTON, SPRINTER, SPRINT, SPORT AND REAL-LITE.

The company's stock is traded on NASDAQ/NMS under the symbol MALC.

STAMFORD, CT (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Warrantech Corp. (NASDAQ:WTEC) announced Friday that Martin Gerber has been appointed as managing director for Warrantech's Consumer Product Services new Repair Master Division.

Gerber has an extensive background in the field of service contracts, with over 20 years experience in the consumer electronics industry with such companies as Sharp Electronics and Componentguard, a provider of service contracts. The primary responsibility of Gerber's new division will be to implement a fully insured program utilizing tangible packaging.

This program will be made available to distributors, wholesalers and mass merchants, providing them with the opportunity to offer service contract programs which can be purchased by consumers without having to rely on professional retail sales personnel.

''Approximately 40-50 percent of retail purchases of consumer electronics, appliances and home/office products are made in stores which do not possess the capability and/or the personnel to offer service contracts.

''These operations consist primarily of mass merchandisers, the wholesale clubs, small retail establishments and self-service stores. We believe that the majority of consumers today would like to have the option to purchase a service contract, and through this program our customers will be able to reach a significantly larger portion of that marketplace,'' Gerber stated.

Gerber will be located at the company's executive headquarters in Stamford, Conn.

Warrantech Corp. administers service contracts for consumer electronic products, appliances and home office equipment. Through Warrantech Dealer Based Services Inc., the company administers service contracts for automobiles and recreational vehicles.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Seven major banks have extended a one year $750 million line of credit to McDonnell Douglas to help fund the firm's working capital needs in 1991, according to Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine.

Senior business editor Anthony Velocci Jr. reports that the new funding pool supplements a revolving $1.4 billion line of credit that the financially ailing company negotiated earlier this year with 28 domestic and overseas banks.

McDonnell Douglas, the subject of bankruptcy fears, regards the new funding as an expression of banking confidence in the company. But industry analysts have a different view. One of them told Velocci the banks had no choice but to extend the new credit because they "essentially own the company. The banks believe, and rightly so, that the government is not about to allow the nation's number one defense contractor to go under."

The company's $3.2 billion of short and long term debt at the end of 1990 will remain at about the same level next year. That will burden McDonnell Douglas with debt-to-equity ratio of about 84 percent - extremely high, even by the standards of the heavily debt-laden aerospace industry.

The company is also facing a $1 billion tax liability. A senior McDonnell

Douglas official dismissed the talk of bankruptcy as "ludicrous" and attributed the speculation to "sell-side analysts." He said the company has a "relatively strong balance sheet asset-wide," although it may have a liquidity problem.

Aviation Week & Space Technology, published weekly by McGraw-Hill, is the leading journal for the worldwide aviation, aerospace and defense industries. The current issue also spotlights these key developments:

Opening Up Europe's Airline Industry: Bonn bureau chief Michael Mecham reports that regulations proposed by the European Community Commission could force commercial air carriers that enjoy "grandfather rights" to take-off and landing slots to relinquish some of them to new entrants.

The proposed regulations are part of a new "code of conduct" adopted by the EC Commission, intended to insure that airport authorities do not favor their national airlines over new competition. The proposal, approved by the EC's Transport ministers, is likely to face stiff opposition from Europe's airlines and the air transport industry.

Airline Marketing Tactics Attacked: Key U.S. airport officials have launched an attack on airline marketing tactics, calling them destructive to airport development and to consumer interests.

MERRIMACK, N.H. (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Chemical Fabrics Corp. (CHEMFAB)(OTC:CMFB) Friday announced that it has settled the litigation involving the construction of the roof on the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome stadium in Minneapolis.

Under the terms of the settlement agreement, CHEMFAB paid $1.7 million in cash in exchange for a full release from all claims related to the design and construction of the fabric roof on the Metrodome stadium. In April 1990, a judgement was rendered against CHEMFAB and, accordingly, in the quarter ended June 30 the company recorded a $2.9 million pre-tax charge against earnings to provide for the loss contingency. That judgement will now be vacated and dismissed.

Commenting on the settlement, Duane C. Montopoli, CHEMFAB's president and chief executive officer, said, ''Although we maintain that the Metrodome roof was properly constructed in conformity with the contract requirements, we are quite pleased with this outcome. Considering the uncertainty of the appeal process and the amount of the settlement payment in relationship to the amount of the trial court judgement including interest, we believe this to be a very favorable settlement.''

Montopoli also commented on the business outlook for the current fiscal year. He said, ''The convergence of a number of different factors will likely cause the company's sales growth rate to moderate in the second quarter. A soft U.S. economy and a weak dollar in international markets is triggering increased price competition in some of our standard product areas. Also the booking and performance of a number of government contracts is being delayed beyond the end of the quarter. Nevertheless, we expect to be back on track in the second half of the year, and the business outlook for the full year remains good.''

CHEMFAB is an international advanced performance materials company that designs, manufactures and markets flexible composite products intended for use in extreme environments. Typical products consist of woven fiberglass or other high-strength reinforcements coated or laminated with thermoplastics and elastomers, and specialty fluoropolymer films. Worldwide end-use applications are in industrial, architectural, communications, military and protective clothing markets.

PURCHASE, NY (DEC. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - International Paper Friday announced it has established a special reserve of $212 million pre-tax ($137 million after tax), equivalent to $1.26 per common share after tax, which will be charged against 1990 fourth quarter earnings.

Establishment of the reserve follows a detailed company-wide review of all business activities. The company has decided to sell or liquidate certain assets that are either not strategically important, or on which the company is not realizing an adequate return on investment.

John A. Georges, chairman and chief executive officer, characterized the move as ''very positive'' since it ''will enable us to recapture capital that can be better invested elsewhere. This will have a favorable effect on earnings and cash flow in 1991 and succeeding years.''

Asset sales are expected to generate as much as $200 million in after-tax proceeds over the next three years. The company estimates that the pre-tax earnings benefit from these actions will be $25-$40 million annually. Financial returns are expected to be greater in the later years as assets are sold.

Georges said the facilities and business units that have been identified for disposition are not being disclosed at this time but represent more than two-thirds of the total reserve.

He added that the remainder of the reserve would provide for certain costs associated with environmental remediation at several wood-treating plants and personnel costs related to consolidation of activities and improved operating efficiencies.

For the first nine months of 1990, earnings were $546 million or $5.01 per share. In commenting on full-year 1990 results, Georges said, ''We anticipate that fourth quarter operating earnings, before the special charge, will be in line with the analysts' expectations. While the U.S. economy has clearly slowed during the quarter, several factors continue to have a positive influence on our performance. Demand for uncoated printing and writing papers has held up well. Our European businesses have turned in strong earnings all year. Further, exports of bleached board and linerboard, buoyed by the relatively low dollar exchange rate, have been stronger than year earlier levels.''

Looking beyond 1990, Georges commented ''While the economic picture is uncertain, we are confident that the steps taken to lower costs, introduce more value added products, diversify geographically and divest ourselves of under-performing assets will serve us well in 1991 and the years to come.''

International Paper, headquartered in Purchase, N.Y., is a worldwide producer of a wide variety of paper and forest products. The company is a major producer of printing and writing papers, paperboard and packaging products and wood products. The company also operates specialty products businesses and distributes paper and wood products. WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows Executive Telecard (TICKER: EXTL) reports that on Nov. 6, 1990, Singapore Telecom purchased 1.0 million shares of the company's outstanding common stock at $5 per share, representing 14.3% of the outstanding shares.

Executive states Singapore Telecom does not intend to place a member on the board of directors of Executive and there are no arrangements between Singapore and Executive.

The transaction reduced the position of Network Data Systems Ltd., the largest shareholder of Executive, from 20.0% to 17.0% of the outstanding shares.

Additionally, Executive reports it acquired 912,300 warrants to purchase its common stock at $2.50 per share from International 800 Telecom Corp. on Nov. 30, 1990.

The price for the transaction was $2.28 million, states Executive.

This reduces the number of warrants held by Telecom in Executive to 1.09 million warrants.

Executive purchased all the 87,500 outstanding options to purchase shares in Executive in consideration of $130,875.

In other news, on Nov. 10, 1990, Robert A. Roach resigned as president and chief executive officer of Executive.

He was removed as a director, and William V. Moore was elected president and chief executive officer on Nov. 12, 1990.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows the Chicago regional office of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has notified Printron Inc. that it intends to seek authorization from the SEC to file a civil complaint for permanent injunctive relief following an informal inquiry with which the company states it participated fully.

Printron reports it is the company's understanding that the staff of the regional office would allege that Karl R. Huber Jr. was an undisclosed partner defacto officer and director, controlling person, significant employee and beneficial owner of the company.

Printron states it is looking into these allegations to determine an appropriate course of action.

The company says that it has learned that Huber was convicted in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of West Virginia in 1985 on a single count of conspiracy in causing four limited partnership coal tax shelters and their respective limited partners to file false income tax returns between 1976 and 1980.

According to Printron's account, Huber was a syndicator of these partnerships, which claimed losses that later were disallowed by the government.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) - Japan's wholesale prices in November rose 2.0 per cent from a year earlier and 0.4 per cent from October, the Bank of Japan said Friday.

The central bank said that the month-on-month jump was the highest since April when it was 0.6 per cent.

Domestic wholesale prices increased 2.2 per cent from the same month last year and 0.3 per cent from October as higher crude oil prices boosted prices of chemicals such as ethylene, petroleum and coal products.

Import wholesale prices were up 10.5 per cent from a year earlier and 1.0 per cent from the previous month, while export prices dropped 4.8 per cent from a year ago and 0.3 per cent from October, the bank said.

PARIS (DEC. 14) - French consumer prices fell by 0.2 per cent in November taking the increase so far this year to 3.4 per cent, provisional official figures showed on Friday.

Prices had risen by 0.5 per cent in October and in September.

During the last 12 months prices in France have risen by 3.6 per cent, compared with a 12-monthly figure in October of 3.9 per cent.

Finance Minister Pierre Beregovoy said on Thursday that by the end of 1990 prices might have risen by the same amount as in 1989 of 3.6 per cent.

Falling oil prices cut prices by 0.26 of a percentage point in November, and energy accounted for 5.14 per cent of the index, the ministry said.

LONDON (DEC. 14) - New Zealand is close to finalizing the sale of up to 90,000 tons of butter worth more than 100 million U.S. dollars to the Soviet Union, the Financial Times reported here Friday.

If completed, the sale would be New Zealand's biggest since 1970 and its largest-ever outside of Britain, the report stated.

Negotiations for the butter sale, coming at a time when the Soviet Union faces some food shortages and serious supply distribution problems, also follows Moscow's agreement to pay about 75 million dollars in outstanding debts for dairy products already delivered, the FT said.

The talks also involved reaching agreement on price and quantity with the European Community which is also anxious to sell its stockpiled butter to the Soviet Union.

The report said the New Zealand Dairy Board was also involved in negotiating the sale of 32,400 tons of butter to Iran, which at current prices would be worth around 40,000 dollars.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) - Three railway companies are to buy the Shinkansen or high-speed bullet train lines and related facilities they currently lease from a government-affiliated body, for a total cost of 9.1 trillion yen (68.9 billion dollars), industry sources reported Friday.

The three lines are to be sold to Eastern Japan Railway Co., Central Japan Railway Co. and West Japan Railway Co., formed after Japan National Railways (JNR) was privatized and split into 11 companies in 1987.

After the privatization, bullet train lines, including the land, were held by the government-affiliated Shinkansen Railway Holding organization and leased to the three companies under a 30-year contract.

The lines to be sold in October next year are the Tokaido-Sanyo line, connecting Tokyo with Fukuoka, Kyushu, by way of Nagoya, Osaka and Hiroshima, the Tokoku line connecting Tokyo with Morioka, northern Japan by way of Sendai, and the Joetsu line connecting Tokyo with Niigata, a Japan Sea coastal city, north of Tokyo.

The sources said that 8.1 trillion yen (61.34 billion dollars) will be used to pay off long-term debts of the JNR, while the remaining one trillion yen (7.56 billion dollars) will be used to consrutct new bullet train lines.

The companies will spread out the purchase payments over a period of 60 years with an annual interest rate of around 6.5 per cent, the sources said.

Zurich (DEC. 14) - Swissair, which lost 99 million francs (78.5 million dollars) in the first half of 1990, has not as hoped been able to make up those losses in the second half, the airline's president Otto Loepfe said.

Loepfe told an employees' meeting that the normally strong autumn operations, which Swissair had been counting on to help even out the first-half losses, had been hurt by the Gulf crisis, the surge in fuel costs and the Swiss franc's strong value.

He said that the traditionally important side sources of income such as catering and airplane maintenance had not achieved the goals projected in the company's budget planning.

Loepfe said that Swissair would only be able to show a bookkeeping profit for the year by including the gains made in the sales of some of its Dc-10 passenger planes.

He said the company hoped to return to operational profitability in 1991, but the prospects were uncertain. One of the uncertainties included new wage contract negotiations with 15,000 Swissair employees in the new year.

PARIS (DEC. 14) - French health officials are to return or destroy seven tons of frozen Japanese scallops (coquilles Saint-Jacques) bound for the French Christmas and New Year festive market which have been found to be contaminated with toxins.

The French agriculture ministry also said on Friday that it was banning the importation of scallops from Japan.

It said that health tests caried out on a consigment held since May 18 had been positive.

It was learnt on November 29 that 700 tons of Japanese scallops were being held in bond in the northern French port of Le Havre while the results of tests were awaited.

At the beginning of the year analysis of stocks held by customs had revealed an abnormally high presence of toxins, although at a level which was below the European level of toxicity. Further samples were taken in October.

Scallops are one of the traditional dishes in France at Christmas and particularly at New Year, and are eaten in vast quantities.

The health authorities stressed that scallops from other sources were fit to eat and that there should be no shortage for the dinner table.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) - Japan's Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto said Friday the Group of Seven (G-7) industrialized countries should discuss possible aid to the Soviet Union, press reports said.

"Summit countries should hold talks (on the aid)" after four international organizations including the International Monetary Fund release reports on the Soviet economy later this month, he was quoted as saying by Jiji Press.

But Mr. Hashimoto reportedly did not specify when and at what levels the meeting would be held.

Soviet diplomatic sources in Tokyo said Thursday that the Soviet Union needed loans worth 11 billion dollars from the west to reconstruct its economy.

Mr. Hashimoto said the Soviets had informally asked the Japanese government to shoulder part of the loans.

TAIPEI (DEC. 14) - Taiwan's parliament on Friday overcame a filibuster mounted by the island's main opposition force to press for an amnesty for Huang Hwa, the party's self-proclaimed presidential candidate who has advocated formal independence from China.

The lawmaking body, dominated by the ruling Kuomintang (KMT), railroaded proposed regulation allowing indirect investment in and technological cooperation with mainland China, voting 75-16, despite outcries from legislators of the Democratic Progressive Party (DPP).

The KMT decision to bulldoze through the landmark regulation will only increase tension with the DPP, which filibustered parliamentary meetings for a third consecutive session Friday to protest the conviction of Mr. Huang for sedition, analysts said.

DPP lawmakers had threatened to continue filibusters through January unless Mr. Huang was granted an amnesty by President Lee Teng-hui or was included in an upcoming commutation to mark the 80th founding anniversary of the republic.

But the KMT rejected the opposition demand lest it give the "false impression that the ruling party was encouraging Taiwan's independence, which would invite a communist Chinese invasion," said Yao Ying-chi, the KMT parliamentary whip.

"The price we have to pay is too high," Mr. Yao said of granting Mr. Huang amnesty.

Last Saturday, the Taiwan High Court sentenced Mr. Huang to 10 years in prison for advocating a Taiwan independent of China.

Mr. Huang, 51, declared himself the DPP's presidential candidate in March although it was technically impossible for him to run for public office or for the opposition party to field a standard-bearer.

On Thursday, opposition MPs demanded that Economic Minister Vincent Siew be charged with sedition for "extending financial aid" to the communists through the regulation allowing indirect investment on and technological cooperation with the Chinese mainland.

Taipei and Beijing have been technically at war since 1949, when the KMT, or Nationalists, fled here and set up a government-in-exile after losing a civil war to the communists on the Chinese mainland.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 14) - The Belgian central bank on Friday increased the rate on short-term Treasury certificates from 9.70 per cent to 9.80 per cent.

The change, apllicable to certificates with a life of from one to three months was the sixth increase since November 16 as part of a policy introduced earlier this year to link the Belgian franc to the Deutsche mark.

The bank uses the certificates to control the money market, and at the beginning of this week it introduced a common rate for all such short-term instruments so that the yield curve is now flat at 9.80 per cent.

BEIJING (DEC. 14) - French bank Societe Generale said Friday it has struck a deal with two Chinese institutions to open a joint-venture merchant bank in Shanghai in the new year.

Associated Finance Shanghai Ltd., with a registered capital of 20 million dollars, will be geared to financing industrial projects in Shanghai and elsewhere in China, the bank said in a statement.

Societe Generale said it was the first joint-venture bank ever to be set up with Western capital in communist China outside of the country's five special economic zones, where rules are more liberal.

Observers said the founding of the bank dovetails with ambitious plans, backed by Beijing, to develop Shanghai's neglected Pudong district into a regional industrial and financial center.

The agreement to launch the bank was signed Thursday in Shanghai.

Societe Generale is to provide 50 per cent of the bank's capital, with the remainder coming in equal portions from the Chinese partners, the People's Construction Bank and the Shanghai Trust and Investment Corp.

The French side will also name the bank's first director general.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) - Tokai Bank Ltd., the eighth-largest commercial bank in Japan, is looking for a merger partner to expand its retail base.

Tokai Bank, based in Nagoya, wants to join forces with another bank or acquire a smaller one with branches in Tokyo, bank president Ryuichi Kato said in an interview in Friday's Asian Wall Street Journal.

The move was spurred by the recent merger of Tokyo's two strongest banks, Kyowa Bank and Saitama Bank, the Journal said.

Tokai had been considering merging with or purchasing one of the banks before their merger was announced, according to Mr. Kato.

In April, Mitsui Bank and Taiyo-Kobe Bank merged to form the world's second-largest bank, behind Dai-Ichi Kangyo, also of Japan.

PARIS (DEC. 14) - France had a current account deficit of 4.2 billion francs (840 million dollars) in October on the basis of provisional and seasonally adjusted data, as against a shortfall of 7.7 billion francs in September, the Economics Ministry said here on Friday.

In terms of unadjusted data, the current account deficit was 3.4 billion francs in October, against one of 7.7 billion in September.

The deficit had been 2.3 billion francs in August.

For the year's first 10 months, the current account deficit already amounts to 33 billion francs, seasonally corrected, against only 14.5 billion for the same period last year. The worsening is equally marked in terms of uncorrected data: 33.4 billion francs against 14.9 billion.

In gross figures, the merchandise trade balance on a balance-of-payments basis was 7.1 billion francs in the red in October, according to provisional estimates, while the surplus on services and other goods and services was 6.5 billion francs. Unilateral transfers showed a deficit of 2.8 billion francs.

The Economics Ministry commented that the deterioration of the current account balance in October "is due primarily (as in earlier months) to a worsening of the trade balance on a balance-of-payments basis and to a decline in the services surplus (15.5 billion francs)".

It said the latter decline was due essentially "to the appearance of a deficit on income from capital", a trend resulting from "an increase in the holding of franc-denominated assets by non-residents".

KIEV, THE UKRAINE (DEC. 14) - The Ukraine refused "humiliating" offers of international food aid, saying it had enough, but asked instead for medicine during a meeting on Thursday with a senior French official.

Bernard Kouchner, France's secretary of state of humanitarian action, said the Ukrainian minister of health had qualified official Soviet requests for emergency food aid as "humiliating, but said there was an urgent need for medicine."

Mr. Kouchner, on a week-long visit to the Soviet Union, was in Kiev, the Ukrainian capital, to inaugurate a French medical centre for children of the Chernobyl region who were re-housed in Kiev after the nuclear plant melted in April 1986, causing the world's worst nuclear disaster.

The food situation in Kiev is much better than in Russian cities. Shops in the city centre sell at subsidised prices supplies of meat, fish, eggs, butter, cheese and sausage, all products unavailable in Moscow stores for several weeks.

Kiev citizens said the situation improved after the introduction in early November of "coupons" giving only Ukrainians the right to buy in the republic's shops.

These "coupons" worth a rouble or more are distributed to workers with their wages, to retired people with their pension, and to students with their monthly grant. They are not ration tickets because they can be spent at will, but more like "certificates of origin" which must be presented with bank notes for any purchase of food or manufactured goods.

Coupons only cover an average of 70 per cent of a worker's income, the rest goes to pay services such as rent, telephone, the post, etc.

Almost all shops in Kiev demand coupons for purchases of meat, butter, clothes household products and even stationery.

"Of course, this system should not exist, but it's the only way to avoid our shops being bought clean out by shoppers from neighbouring republics," one woman waiting in line said. She then went on to explain how strangers could get coupons on the black market by selling their clothes.

MADRID (DEC. 14) - Rambo showed his soft side this week, the one-man army's furry namesake saving 22-month-old Sandra Rodriguez from freezing, the Spanish news agency Efe reported Friday.

Efe said the little girl, from a village in Galicia in northwestern Spain, wandered off into a wooded area in the mountains near Lugo. Her mongrel companion, Rambo, tagged along.

The child's father, neighbours and the Guardia Civil searched the neighbourhood in vain Wednesday and concluded that Sandra had been abducted.

On Thursday morning, a policeman searching a nearby woods on the other side of a river came upon Rambo, who led him to Sandra. The dog's body heat had apparently kept her from freezing during the nighttime cold.

Sandra was hospitalised with frostbite on her feet and hypothermia.

''I think the money should be spent on health-promoting activies for children, first of all in ecological disaster zones,'' Gorbachev said after receiving the Nobel medal and accompanying diploma at a ceremony in the Kremlin.

The award was handed to him by First Deputy Foreign Minister Anatoly Kovalev, who represented Gorbachev at the official presentation ceremony in Oslo on December 10.

TAIPEI (DEC. 14) - Chang Chun, who dictated Taiwan's foreign policy for about three decades, died of heart and kidney failure here Friday. He was 101.

Mr. Chang, the doyen of elders of the ruling Kuomintang (KMT), made the island's foreign policy decisions for three decades when he served as secretary general to the late president Chiang Kai-shek from 1954 to 1972.

He continued to have a say in foreign policy when his protege, Shen Chang-huan served as foreign minister from 1972 to 1979.

Mr. Chang was against severing diplomatic relations with Japan in 1972 even though ties were at a low ebb. But the late president Chiang Ching-kuo stepped out of the shadow of his father, Chiang Kai-shek, when he decided to break off ties with Tokyo, which eventually recognized the communist government in Beijing.

Mr. Chang served as China's premier from 1947 to 1948 and represented the KMT in negotiations with rebel communists, led by the late Chinese premier Zhou Enlai, during the civil war in mainland China.

Mr. Chang and Chiang Kai-shek were classmates at the Tokyo Military Academy.

Last June, Mr. Chang arranged the first public appearance of General Chang Hsueh-liang (no relation) in 54 years at the general's 90th birthday celebration.

Gen. Chang was placed under house arrest for about five decades for kidnapping Chiang Kai-shek in Xian in central mainland China on December 12, 1936, to force the late president to declare a ceasefire with the communists and form an alliance to fight the invading Japanese.

According to historians, the abduction served as the catalyst for the communist Chinese forces winning the civil war on the mainland and driving Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist, or KMT, army to Taiwan in 1949.

The ceasefire allowed the communist forces, on the verge of being wiped out then, to recoup their strength while the Nationalists fought off the Japanese.

Mr. Chang is survived by two sons and one daughter. One of his sons, Chang Chi-cheng, was former governor of Taiwan's Central Bank.

MAPUTO (DEC. 14) - Parliament in civil war-wracked Mozambique on Friday began a sitting in which it will enact legislation regulating the workings and registration of political parties in a new, multi-party system.

Opening the session, President Joaquim Chissano said all political parties would be expected to "respect national unity" and to "contribute to peace and stability".

The main concern of the ruling Mozambique Liberation Front (FRELIMO) is that parties should be genuinely national, with no regionalist, ethnic, religious or secessionist base.

The FRELIMO leadership has suggested that to register, each new party should present a list of 100 supporters from each of the country's 11 provinces.

The draft bill complements the new constitution which came into force on November 30, finally burying Marxist-Leninist policy and wrenching a sizeable chunk of carpet from under the feet of Mozambique National Resistance (RENAMO) rebels with its commitment to political pluralism.

The government on December 1 reached agreement with RENAMO on the limitation of Zimbabwean troops backing Maputo to designated strategic rail corridors, in what amounted to a partial ceasefire.

The new parliamentary session will also debate the national plan and budget for 1991. Finance Minister Abdul Magid Osman has warned of new austerity measures and a need to keep public spending to 1990 levels.

War devastation apart, the Mozambican economy has been hard hit by sharp rises in fuel prices resulting from the Gulf crisis.

"The rise in the oil price adds to the already enormous difficulties we have been facing in energy, industry, agricultural and transport," Mr. Chissano told parliament on Friday.

BEIJING (DEC. 14) - German government officials signed an agreement granting China a low-interest loan of 220 million Deutschmarks (149 million dollars) here Friday.

The loan applies to the current year. Germany will also provide technical assistance totalling 65 million marks.

German development aid to China had been suspended after Beijing crushed a democracy movement in June 1989. In October, the Bundestag (lower house of parliament) decided to resume assistance.

A 1989 loan - in the same amount as the 1990 credit and bolstered by 460 million marks for subway construction in Shanghai - was also unfrozen.

Although the assistance was not linked to the fate of Chinese political prisoners, German Minisstry for Economic Cooperation Permanent Secretary Siegfried Lengl said it had been made clear to the Chinese government that their treatment was ''extremely significant'' to Bonn.

KARACHI (DEC. 14) - At least two persons were killed and four injured in a factional shootout Friday in the densely populated eastern part of Karachi, welfare workers reported.

The ambulance of the welfare organisation which carried the injured away for treatment also reportedly came under fire by residents of the community.

A top police official put the number of dead at one, with four sustaining injuries in the shootout, but it gave no details about the cause of the clash which was being investigated, Pakistan Press International (Ppi) reported.

Earlier unconfirmed reports had said the clash occurred when local authorities moved to prevent Bengali immigrants from Bangladesh, formerly East Pakistan, from starting a procession. These reports had said that the resulting clash had left seven dead.

Karachi, with over seven million people the largest Pakistani city and the capital of the southern province Sindh, is home to different ethnic groups. They include Urdu-speaking settlers who came from India after the birth of Pakistan in 1947, Sindhis, settlers from Punjab, and Pakhtoons from the North-Western Frontier Province bordering Afghanistan.

Economic interests and social conflicts have often led to unrest in the city since the mid-80's and successive governments have been finding it impossible to control the law and order situation.

DUBAI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES (DEC. 14) - Three children and many women were among 50 Indian nationals who arrived here Friday from Iraq on board the Indian relief ship Vishwa Siddhi.

The Indian consul general, Narendra Kumar, said the evacuees picked up at the southern Iraqi port of Umm Qasr would be flown to Bombay later in the day aboard an Air India plane.

The Vishwa Siddhi mercy voyage to deliver 9,600 tonnes of rice and lentils for Indians and non-Iraqis trapped in Kuwait since Iraq invaded the emirate on August 2 had run into diplomatic problems.

The vessel docked at Umm Qasr in September but was only authorised in November to unload its cargo, after permission came from both the Iraqi government and the United Nations which has imposed a trade embargo on Iraq.

The captain of the Vishwa Siddhi, Raghubir Singh, said the vessel was searched on its way to Umm Qasr by the U.S. Navy off Bahrain in accordance with the U.N. trade embargo on Iraq.

But he said the U.S. forces also helped ferry one of the ship's officers to a Bahrain hospital after he suffered an attack of appendicitis.

MUNICH, Germany (DEC. 14) - A seven-year old German prince became the only heir to a family fortune estimated at more than 5 billion Deutsche marks (3.3 billion dollars), after his father Prince Johannes Thurn und Taxis, 64, died on Friday.

Prince Johannes died of complications of a second heart transplant.

Prince Albert's two elder sisters, Maria-Theresa, 10, and Elisabeth, 8, do not get a look in as, by family tradition, the fortune must not be split and goes down the male line.

The fortune, among the biggest in Europe, will be administered until Prince Albert comes of age by, among others, his 30-year-old mother Princess Gloria. The inheritance includes a castle bigger than London's Buckingham Palace. St. Emmeran in Ratisbonne has 500 rooms the prince can play hide-and-seek in and a library of 225,000 books to read.

His 28,000 hectares (69,160 acres) of forests cover an area six-times bigger than the independent Principality of Liechtenstein.

More prosaically, the prince now also finds himself owner of a bank, real estate and about 50 companies employing more than 4,000 people.

Prince Johannes, once the most sought-after bachelors in Germany, finally married in 1980 when he was 53 a woman 33 years younger. Gloria, Countess von Schoenburg-Glauchau, is known for her extravagant wardrobe.

LONDON (DEC. 14) - Press freedom has improved this year in central and eastern Europe but there were setbacks in many countries, the International Press Institute (Ipi) said here Friday.

''The year 1990 has been an unhappy one for journalists. There has been an increase in attacks on the media,'' it said in its annual report.

Ipi pointed to the situation in Romania where television and the news agency Rompress were still mainly used to release government communiques, while opposition groups were barred from expressing their opinions on the state-owned television.

Independent newspapers in Romania were facing difficulties, it added. Pro-government miners destroyed the offices of the opposition daily Dreptatea last June.

Yugoslav authorities were oppressing the Albanian media in Kosovo, and more than 100 journalists from the daily Politika and the state-controlled television were suspended from work after reporting about an anti-communist demonstration in June.

The institute criticised the Ankara government and said 28 journalists were jailed in Turkey. It said Iranian-born journalist Farzad Bazoft was executed in Iraq in March after having been forced to admit being an Israeli spy. Bazoft was a free-lancer for the London-based weekly The Observer.

Ipi said the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait halted the activities of about 40 publications in the emirate and left 250 journalists jobless. Some of these institutions resumed their work in exile. Iraqi forces looted modern media material in Kuwait.

It added that the situation in South Africa was better since authorities had recently lifted emergency laws on the media, but there were still legal ways for officials to muzzle the press. Ipi noted that unidentified persons killed in July black journalist Sam Mabe from the daily The Sowetan.

UMTATA, South Africa (DEC. 14) - The former President of South Africa's nominally-independent Transkei homeland, Kaiser Matanzima, has been arrested by the homeland's security police, his daughter said here Friday.

Mr. Matanzima was arrested early Friday morning while he was on his way to his farm near Queenstown in South Africa's eastern Cape province, his daughter C. Madikizela told South Africa's domestic news agency SAPA.

Mrs. Madikizela said it was not clear why her father had been detained but that the family had already briefed a lawyer to prepare papers in a bid to challenge Mr. Matanzima's detention in Transkei's Supreme Court.

Mr. Matanzima resigned as president in February 1986.

At the time of his arrest, he had already filed a two million rand (796,812 dollars) lawsuit against Transkei's military government for alleged unlawful detention in 1986.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) - The U.S. troop build-up in the Gulf is now at a point where President George Bush will ''in the very near future'' have the option of a military strike against Iraq, armed forces Chief of General Staff General Colin Powell said Friday.

In evidence to the House of Representatives' Armed Services Committee, both Powell and Defence Secretary Dick Cheney said Bush had still made no decision on whether to take military action.

Cheney said of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein: ''There's absolutely no evidence that he's prepared to withdraw his forces from Kuwait.''

But it was ''pretty impressive'' that Saddam had turned down all times proposed by Washington for direct talks with U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

Powell said there were clearly ''preferences'' for when to take military action. The worst time was when the Gulf region became really hot between July and September.

''There are obviously better time periods than others, but that would not be the determining factor,'' Powell said.

TEHERAN (DEC. 14) - Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh blamed here Friday Saudi Arabia for what he called a glut in heavy crude on the world market, the Iranian news agency IRNA reported.

Mr. Aghazadeh, speaking to reporters on his return from an OPEC conference in Vienna, charged that Saudi Arabia was responsible for most of the over-production in heavy crude.

In Vienna, Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer told him that his country's consumption of heavy crude had doubled because of the massive deployment of U.S. troops in the kingdom since the Gulf crisis, the Iranian minister said.

But Mr. Aghazadeh described as "unacceptable" what he called claims by Saudi Arabia that its supply of heavy crude to the world market was only marginally in excess of demand.

"The difference of price between heavy and light crude now stands at five to six dollars per barrel," said the Iranian oil minister, whose country's economy depends heavily on its exports of heavy crude.

Mr. Aghazadeh said however that the regular year-old conference of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries had helped ease fears about a sharp fall in oil prices.

"The oil ministers of OPEC states, particularly those of the Persian Gulf, have decided to coordinate their oil supply policy in the event of a war in the region," he added, without elaborating.

OPEC oil ministers have reaffirmed plans to restore national oil production quotas to steady crude prices as soon as the Gulf crisis is resolved, the organisation's chairman Sadek Boussena said Thursday.

But as long as a threat of war is still looming in the region, Saudi Arabia and other OPEC producers will remain free to produce as much crude as the market may need.

BEIJING (DEC. 14) - Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen expressed concern Friday at the economic and political situation in the Soviet Union but stressed Beijing and Moscow's common desire to develop "good neighborly" ties.

In a long article published Friday in the intellectual Guangming Daily, Mr. Qian said: "The Soviet economy is experiencing serious problems, the political situation is very complex and opinions vary widely."

Despite detente between Moscow and Washington, the world has entered a period of "great change" and seen the emergence of "new factors of instability," Mr. Qian wrote, citing the Gulf crisis and continuing Arab-Israeli conflict.

"This proves that the U.S.-Soviet rapprochement has brought neither peace nor stability, as some people predicted," he wrote in an article titled "Chinese diplomacy and the world in upheaval."

In eastern Europe, he wrote, "economic difficulties and social instability will continue for a long time."

Stressing that Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's visit here in May 1989 had sealed reconciliation after 30 years of hostility, he said the two giant neighbors wanted to maintain good relations "not only in the interests of the two countries but also for peace in Asia and the entire world."

In the last few weeks, the official Chinese press has reported in detail the economic and political crises facing Mr. Gorbachev.

The Guangming Daily said Tuesday that the Sovet president had personally recognized the "grave errors committed as part of Soviet political reforms and their serious and negative if not devastating consequences."

Since its crackdown on the pro-democracy movement here last year, China's communist leadership has expressed aversion to Soviet reforms, which it blames for a wave of liberalizing change throughout formerly communist eastern Europe.

MUSCAT (DEC. 14) - Oman called on other Arab countries Friday to support

Algerian President Chadli Bendjedid's efforts to find a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis and said hopes for peace were rising.

Mr. Chadli arrived here earlier from Iran on the fourth leg of a regional tour and held talks with the Omani leader, Sultan Qaboos.

The two heads of state have "adopted the same approach and been working above all, since the start of the Gulf crisis, to defend the interests of the Arab nation," said Oman's minister of state for foreign affairs.

Yussef ibn Alawi ibn Abdallah, quoted by Oman News Agency, called on all Arab countries to support Mr. Chadli's efforts, which he said constituted a "very good start" to a Gulf settlement.

"Optimism on the Gulf crisis is gradually taking the place of pessimism," Mr. Abdallah said. "In order for this optimism to be total, it is necessary to support fully the Algerian efforts aimed at a peaceful solution."

The Algerian president, who has also visited Iraq and Jordan on his tour, is to travel on to Syria. But there was no confirmation Friday of earlier reports that he would visit Saudi Arabia.

Mr. Chadli and Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani agreed Thursday that a peaceful outcome to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait was necessary to preserve Arab and Moslem interests.

The security of the Gulf, where a massive U.S-led multinational force has been deployed following Iraq's August 2 invasion, is the "sole responsibility of regional states," according to the Algerian president.

Algeria is seeking an Arab solution to the crisis, amid reports that Mr. Chadli would try during his tour to set up a summit between the Iraqi president and King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, where U.S. troops are based.

The Algerian president's delegation in Muscat said he was not trying to mediate between Arab countries.

ROME (DEC. 14) - The European Community is ready to ease sanctions against South Africa if the government there continues its reform programme, sources attending the E.C. summit said Friday.

Delegates from Luxembourg said a majority of the 10 E.C. leaders meeting in Rome were in favour of honoring Pretoria for the steps it is taking to lift racial barriers.

Among the measures being considered are an end to the embargo on investments and lifting the ban on imports of South African gold coins and steel.

The sources said a final decision would be taken by E.C. foreign ministers when they meet in March, a month after the South African parliament meets to debate the scrapping of more apartheid laws.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) - The Gulf War will already have started in many Americans' homes this Christmas - as one of two board games being marketed as ''Gulf Attack - Desert Shield'' and ''Arab Nightmare: The Kuwait War''.

The Wall Street Journal reported Friday that the former has already gone into its second impression while the latter would be making its debut in time for the last Christmas gift rush next week.

''People are buying them as Christmas gifts for their loved ones,'' one toy shop proprietress told the newspaper of the games, which have unleashed a wave of protest by peace gourps.

The complex games have rules between 80 and 100 pages long, and can go on for days, with players required to have a knowledge of weapons systems, military tactics and politics.

Among macabre point-winning ploys in ''Arab Nightmare'' is for a player to take hostage a prominent American newsman, and then execute him.

A third game, ''The Butcher of Baghdad'', is due out in the new year, having undergone delay in development because its inventor is involved in U.S. Defence Department planning, The Wall Street Journal said.

LONDON (DEC. 14) - North Sea Brent crude oil prices rose strongly here Friday afternoon, after members of the U.S. Congress said President George Bush was prepared to drop the idea of talks with Iraq about the Gulf crisis if Baghdad remains inflexible on the dates for such talks.

Brent for January delivery was up to 28.20 dollars a barrel late Friday afternoon, against 27.35 dollars at the opening and 26.95 at the Thursday close.

An analyst at Kleinwort Benson brokerage said the Washington news had rekindled fears of war in the Gulf. Hopes for a negotiated solution had dropped Brent prices as low as 25.75 dollars a barrel last week, their lowest level since the end of August.

JOHANNESBURG (DEC. 14) - The New Zealand government has refused to grant a visa to South African Foreign Minister Pik Botha to take part in a fishing competition early next year, state-run television reported here Friday.

New Zealand's Foreign Ministry said the policy of the country's new government towards South Africa remained unchanged and that all South Africans who wanted to compete in the tournament at the Bay of Islands in northern New Zealand would be refused visas, television news said.

Mr. Botha could not immediately be reached for comment.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 14) - The Soviet Union reduced defense spending by four percent in real terms last year and is expected to make similar cuts this year according to a North Atlantic Treaty Organization report released Friday.

NATO experts said the Soviet Union spent between 135 and 160 billion rubles on the military last year, about 15 to 17 percent of gross domestic product. One ruble equals 1.80 dollars at the official rate.

The NATO estimate of Soviet defense expenditure is significantly higher than official Soviet figures. President Mikhail Gorbachev announced in May 1989 that the country's defense spending for the year was 77.3 billion rubles.

Explaining the difference, the NATO report said the Soviet Union uses a "narrower classification of defense spending than that used by NATO."

The main reason for the difference, the report said, is that prices charged to the Soviet Ministry of Defense are "substantially less than the cost of manufacturing the equipment."

NATO estimated that it was likely that Soviet defense spending would continue to drop in real terms until at least 1995 under the effects of the withdrawal of Soviet forces from Eastern Europe and disarmament agreements.

The Soviet Union has decided to reduce the amount of gross domestic product spent on defense by between one-third and 50 percent by 1995.

NATO experts said achieving the goal would depend not only on conventional and nuclear disarmament agreements but also on the success of Soviet efforts to convert military to civil production.

However, the report said, "conversion (to civilian output) is unlikely to fulfill all expectations."

"In the short term any financial savings made will be limited by the costs of detroying strategic systems, the conversion of production facilities, verification, and the construction of new military barracks," it said.

"Soviet officials now understand that the financial benefits of arms control and conversion will be smaller and longer than they originally anticipated," the report added.

GENEVA (DEC. 14) - The toppled regime of Chadian president Hissein Habre executed several hundred Libyan prisoners-of-war held in Chad, with France a "silent accessory" to the alleged crime, an African human rights body charged here Friday.

The International Commission for the Respect of the African Charter (ICRAC) stated that it had in August sent a team to Ndjamena to investigate the status of some 2,600 Libyan POWs. The delegates were expelled after two meetings with the Chadian authorities.

The ICRAC, which monitors application of Organization of African Unity (OAU) rights accords, also condemned what it described as the "kidnapping of Libyan military prisoners in Chad" by the United States.

This was a reference to more than 600 Libyan POWs taken during Libyan-backed rebel campaigns against Mr. Habre, who were subsequently trained by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) for commando operations against the Tripoli regime.

The U.S. Air Force last week flew them out of Chad, after former rebel Idriss Deby ousted Mr. Habre with Libyan logistic support.

Libya has also said the POWs were "kidnapped" and had wanted to "return to their families." Tripoli accused the United States of executing those who were not prepared to be evacuated, while French troops in Chad stood by.

PARIS (DEC. 14) - French household appliance firm Moulinex announced Friday that its board of directors had approved a plan to buy Germany's Krups company which also operates in the appliance sector.

The vote is considered a victory for new Moulinex chairman Roland Darneau, who had been elected earlier on Friday to succeed Jean Mantelet, who resigned. Mr. Mantelet was named honorary chairman.

The announcement said that details on the Krups deal would be announced after the two sides sign the final document, which should occur soon.

The Moulinex Group employs 12,000 and had a net loss of 25 million francs (five million dollars) for the first half of the year, against a profit of 47 million dollars for the first half last year. Sales for the first six months this year were 2.5 billion francs, up 17 per cent.

Krups had sales of around 340 million dollars last year. It employs 2,000 and has lost money for the last three years.

MANILA (DEC. 14) - News of an oil strike off the western Philippine island of Palawan fuelled a net stock market rally this week despite signs of diminishing momentum in the latter half.

On the Manila Stock Exchange, the composite index closed Friday at 690.25 points, up 10.9 per cent from last week's finish of 621.99.

The suburban Makati Stock Exchange index finished at 697.14, up 10.5 per cent the previous week's close of 630.69 points.

Average daily turnover in Manila was 3.69 billion shares, up sharply from last week's 1.06 billion shares. Average daily value stood at 134.42 million pesos (4.8 million dollars), also up from the 52.7 million pesos (2.04 million dollars) last week.

At Makati, average daily volume hit 3.223 billion shares, up from 687.6 million shares last week, while average daily value was 116.6 million pesos (4.16 million dollars), up from 46.79 million pesos (1.67 million dollars) last week.

RABAT (DEC. 14) - Bloody clashes were reported Friday from the Moroccan city of Fez during a general strike called by the two biggest trade unions in protest against the country's sharp drop in living standards.

The Moroccan Democratic Workers Confederation (Cdt) spoke of 20 deaths, other sources of 30 to 40 deaths. Besides Fes, violence was also reported from Tangiers, Nador and Kenitra.

Eyewitnesses were quoted as saying some of the poorer sections of Fez saw buildings being set on fire and shops looted.

According to unconfirmed reports, bands of youths threw stones in protest against policemen and members of the military forces being used to drive public buses during the strike.

Riots were also said to have taken place at the university of Fez, injuring a number of persons. The university has been the scene of various confrontations in the past between Islamic fundamentalists and moderate students.

The strike was called by the Cdt and the Moroccan Trade Union (Ugtm) to underpin demands for a 50-per-cent wage rise and a doubling in state benefits for families with many children.

In 1981, drastic rises in prices for bread, cooking oil and sugar led to bloody bread riots that left some 600 people dead.

SAN JOSE (DEC. 14) - Central American presidents meet here Saturday and Sunday in a summit dominated by the renewal of guerrilla warfare and political instability in the region.

The heightening tension follows a period of unquestioned success for the regional peace plan signed in 1987 by Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

The Central American presidents had agreed to devote the meeting to economic problems, but they will not be able to escape the political and military worries of the moment.

The Salvadoran conflict is the clearest case of failure of attempts to pacify the region. Leftist guerrillas have been waging an offensive since November 20 that has taken a high toll in dead and wounded.

The rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) assure that the offensive, and its use of surface-to-air missiles against military aircraft, are aimed at pressuring President Alfredo Cristiani to make concessions in peace talks with the rebels.

The armed conflict in Guatemala, which is three decades old, is far from over despite attempts at dialogue between the Guatemalan National Revolutionary Union (UNRG), which groups the guerrilla forces active in Guatemala, and the Christian Democratic government of Vinicio Cerezo.

The summit in the Pacific port of Puntarenas will be Mr. Cerezo's last. He leaves office January 14, a week after the second round of presidential elections pitting two conservative candidates, Jorge Serano and Jorge Carpio.

The recent killing of 20 peasants, who were shot by soldiers at a demonstration, was a fresh reminder of the country's tarnished reputation in terms of human rights.

President Violetta Chamorro of Nicaragua, meanwhile, has failed to usher in the period of peaceful reconstruction that she promised after her spectacular electionvictory in Februry against the Sandinista National Liberation Front (FSLN.)

At a time when the economic situation is particularly troubling, important allies have broken with Mrs. Chamorro, accusing her of collaborating with the Sandinistas and keeping former Sandinista defense minister Humberto Ortega in power as chief of the armed forces.

LUGANO, SWITZERLAND (DEC. 14) - Alleged Colombian drug trafficker Lianos Sanchez is to be extradited from Spain to Tessin in southern Switzerland, prosecutor Carla del Ponte said here Friday.

Mr. Sanchez was arrested last January 9 in Madrid along with Juan Carlos Betancur. They were said to be the accomplices of Severo Escobar IV.

Mr. Sanchez and Mr. Betancur were arrested in an apartment in Madrid. Police allegedly found them in possession of 300 kgs (660 pounds) of cocaine which was to be sent to Mr. Escobar, who is 25, in Tessink.

Mr. Betancur was extradited from Spain to Switzerland on Thursday.

Mr. Escobar was arrested in November 1989 in Lugano. His father is serving a 35-year prison term in the United States.

The trial of the Colombian traffickers will be held next year. The investigation into their network, which reached into Sweden and Germany, led to the arrest of four more traffickers, including a woman.

NEW YORK, United Nations (DEC. 14) - The U.N. Security Council voted Friday to renew the mandate of the U.N. peace-keeping force in Cyprus.

The group's mandate was extended to June 15, 1991 by a vote of 14 in favor and none against. Canada abstained.

The force was created in 1964 to separate the Greek and Turkish communities on Cyprus. The 2,123-man force has had its mandate extended every six months since then, currently at a cost of about 14 million dollars per half-year period.

Canada, which has long supported the force, said it abstained Friday because of the U.N.'s shaky financial state. Member countries have racked up a total deficit of 172 million dollars since December 1980.

MIAMI, Florida (DEC. 14) - A U.S. delegation has been sent to Europe to ask banks there to unfreeze deposed Panamanian general Manuel Noriega's assets, Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Sullivan said Friday.

State and Justice Department officials travelled to Austria and Switzerland after U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler urged the government to free some of Mr. Noriega's money so he will be able to pay his lawyers.

Mr. Noriega is facing trial on charges of accepting 4.6 million dollars in bribes to allow Colombian traffickers to ship cocaine through Panama without interference.

Mr. Hoeveler was pleased with the government's efforts.

"I'm satisfied at this time they are making a good faith effort to unfreeze funds for the defense," he said.

Neither the State Department nor the Justice Department would immediately comment on the delegation.

Much of Friday's hearing was closed to the press, with Mr. Hoeveler saying that "some of the areas (covered) are legitimately classified."

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) - Most of the largest banks in the United States are on the verge of insolvency and that could cost taxpayers 63 billion dollars in a severe recession, according to a congressional report.

"This nation faces an almost unprecedented situation in having most of its largest banks operating on -- or conceivably, over -- the edge of insolvency," said a summary of the report which was leaked to the press Friday.

The report, written by three economists at the request of a congressional subcommittee, is to be released at a public hearing Monday.

It challenged U.S. Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady's pledge that that bankers, not taxpayers, will pay to rescue banks if necessary.

To avert massive insolvency, tax money must quickly be injected into the government fund insuring deposits, the report said. Even the mild economic downturn expected by most economists would leave the fund short of cash, it said.

Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) Chairman William Seidman has recommended a backup plan be adopted to put more money into the fund -- which he said has enough money to handle the failures foreseen by the agency into mid-1991 -- if needed.

Two authors of the report favor shoring up the FDIC with a massive loan from the Treasury, as large as 50 billion dollars, and recommend banks repay the money over an extended period.

The potential 63-billion-dollars cost to taxpayers was a worst-case scenario, the report said.

CHICAGO, Illinois, Dec 14 (AFP) - U.S. doctors outstripped the rate of inflation last year, earning an average of 11,000 dollars more and bringing home more than 155,000 dollars each, according to a study released this week.

The American Medical Association (AMA) study said the average income of physicians increased 7.7 per cent in 1989 while the Consumer Price Index increased only 4.6 per cent.

AMA president-elect John Ring said Friday he expected the average person's reaction to the incomes "to be surprise," but given the number of hours and intense work doctors do, the high incomes are "understandable."

Average income for physicians last year was 155,800 dollars, up from 144,700 the previous year, the study said.

Dr. Ring said last year's increase was actually smaller than most years since 1981. That year, doctors earned an average of 89,900 dollars, said the study.

The median physician income was 125,000 dollars last year, up from 120,000 dollars in 1988.

The figures represent income before taxes but after all professional expenses.

PASADENA, CALIFORNIA (DEC. 14) - The Ulysses space probe's mission has been threatened by wobbles that European and U.S. technicians running the flight cannot explain, officials said Friday.

Scientists at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said the malfunction appeared November 4, some four weeks before the Discovery probe was launched.

Willy Meeks, one of the officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here, said scientists hoped to counterbalance the wobble by firing the probe's thrusters at appropriate moments.

"Gloom is something I don't feel," Mr. Meeks said. "I'm sure that somehow during the next four years we'll find a way to learn to live with this problem."

Edgar Page, with the European Space Agency, was more pessimistic. Up to 90 per cent of the data the probe was to have collected may be jeopardized by the wobble, he said.

The vibrations are preventing the probe from continuously pointing the probe's main antenna at the Earth, officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said.

The probe was designed to study radio waves from Earth and waves in the solar wind.

An eight-meter (yard) long arm holding an antenna, which was deployed November 4, could be causing the vibrations if, as officials believe, the boom was bent by large temperature vibrations between the side exposed to the sun and the side in the shade.

The 250-million-dollar spacecraft was launched from the shuttle Discovery on October 6. It is to orbit Jupiter in 1992 and, using Jupiter's gravity as a slingshot, be the first spacecraft to orbit the sun's poles in 1994 and 1995.

ROME, (DEC 15) - European Community (EC) leaders agreed here Friday to send a billion dollars worth of food to the Soviet Union and to permit Paris and London to make direct contacts with Iraq.

They also agreed to press the United Nations Security Council to adopt a resolution calling for an international conference on the Middle East, which Israel and the United States have long opposed.

The 12 EC leaders spent most of the first day of a two-day EC summit discussing emergency aid for the Soviet Union and longer-term assistance to bolster the economic reforms of President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Italian spokesman Pio Mastrobuoni said the 12 EC leaders had agreed unanimously to extend 750 million European Currency Units (ECUs, worth about a billion dollars) in aid to the Soviet Union.

Mr. Mastrobuoni said there was also agreement that the EC should quickly strengthen its formal ties with the Soviet Union, which now consist of only an accord on economic cooperation signed in 1989.

A French spokesman said the EC leaders had agreed to ask France and Britain, the community's only permanent representatives to the Security Council, to undertake direct contacts with Iraq.

The foreign minister of Italy, the current EC president, had agreed to meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz on his return from a visit to Washington whose date has not yet been set.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said he had considered going to Baghdad after Mr. Aziz's U.S. visit.

The Italian foreign minister, Gianni De Michelis, said the EC wanted a "parallel and coordinated" channel of communication between the EC and Iraq.

He said the EC had agreed to press the U.N. for a commitment to a regional peace conference that would take place after the Kuwaiti question was settled.

Mr. Mastrobuoni, the Italian EC spokesman, said the EC leaders differed over what form the aid to the Soviet Union should take, how it should be sent and how it should be split between grants and loans.

The European Commission proposed a direct grant of 250 million ECUs and guaranteed credits of 500 million ECUs. But Germany, France and Britain opposed credits.

"The last thing the Soviet Union needs is a lot of debt," British Prime Minister John Major was quoted as saying.

Some leaders were quoted as saying aid should not be allowed to feed "the Soviet black market" through inefficient and corrupt distribution systems.

Mr. Mastrobuoni quoted German Chancellor Helmut Kohl as saying that "Gorbachev's failure would cost Europe much more dearly" than a timely aid package.

French President Francois Mitterrand called for generous and rapid aid for the Soviet Union and urged a strengthening of formal EC ties with that country beyond the accord on economic cooperation that already exists.

Mr. Major approved emergency food aid, but warned against disrupting Soviet production by "dumping" large amounts of food in the country and overloading the Soviet distribution system.

Mr. Major also supported a Dutch proposal for a European energy charter, and called for a Pan European Energy Convention that would help the Soviet Union get oil out of the ground and assist other Eastern European countries with their energy shortages.

ROME, (DEC 15) - EC leaders meeting here on Thursday argued over how and when to lift economic sanctions against South Africa that are now widely flaunted.

Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher of Germany, one of Pretoria's strongest advocates, said late Friday that the principle of lifting the sanctions had been agreed to.

He said the European Community leaders were nearing agreement on an immediate end to the ban on investments in South Africa.

But a spokesman for the presidency of France, which favours a more conditional approach, said no final decision would be made before the heads of state and government meet Saturday morning.

A compromise between proponents and opponents of immediate lifting could be postponing the decision until the South African parliament reconvenes in February and has the opportunity to move further on the path to democracy.

Britain, too, supports the immediate lifting of the sanctions at a time all 12 EC members have opened trade offices in South Africa.

"British policy is unchanged and the rest of the world is catching up," a senior British official said.

MOSCOW (DEC 14) EFE - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said Friday during a visit by his South Korean counterpart, Roh Tae Woo, that he looked forward to changes in the international political climate that could lead to the reunification of South and North Korea.

After meeting with Roh, Gorbachev said both leaders were aware that in the new international political situation, "it will be possible to meet the wishes of the Korean people -- the reunification of North and South Korea."

Gorbachev said the reunification process "would have moved more quickly" had the military tension between the two been reduced.

The two leaders signed a declaration of principles to govern newly established diplomatic relations opened three months ago between the two nations.

Gorbachev and Roh are to meet several times during Roh's four-day stay in Moscow, the first visit of a South Korean leader since that country was formed in 1948.

Soviet Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs Igor Rogachov said the new Soviet ties with South Korea "will not influence" relations with third nations, particularly North Korea "with whom we have had a long tradition of friendship. We will do everything possible to continue the good relations between the Soviet Union and North Korea."

In addition to reunification, trade promises to be high on the two leaders' agenda.

The latest round of talks aimed at normalizing relations between the two Koreas ended without agreement in Seoul on Thursday.

Roh's trip has brought criticism from communist North Korea, Moscow's long-time ally, which has accused the South of trying to destroy its relations with the Soviet Union.

Trade deals worth dlrs five billion along with technical and scientific accords are expected to be signed during Roh's visit, which began Thursday.

Soviet officials have expressed hope that improving relations will open the doors to a flood of South Korean investment.

BERLIN (DEC. 14) EFE - A Berlin court Friday turned down an appeal against a warrant for the arrest of former East German leader Erich Honecker on manslaughter charges connected with his government's shoot-to-kill policy at the Berlin Wall.

The east German news agency ADN quoted Honecker's lawyer Wolfgang Ziegler as saying he thought the rejection of the appeal was unfair.

Honecker's lawyers had argued the former Communist Party boss could not be held responsible for orders given to border guards to shoot East Germans trying to flee to the West because he was acting in accordance with the laws of East Germany.

Honecker, 78, cannot be arrested until Soviet authorities agree to release him from the Soviet military hospital near Berlin where he is said to be suffering from high blood pressure.

The appeal also said Honecker leader was too sick to be taken to prison from his hospital bed.

Ziegler refused to comment on reports released Friday that Bonn is to formally request that Soviet authorities hand Honecker over.

Court authorities ordered Honecker's arrest on manslaughter charges two weks ago.

East and West Germany were reunited October 3 following the collapse of Honecker's communist government last year.

In the years between the Berlin Wall's construction in 1961 and its collapse during last year's peaceful revolution, East German border guards shot dead 190 people trying to escape to the West.

Honecker was jailed briefly after he was toppled but doctors obtained his release, arguing he was too sick to face prison or interrogation on charges of treason, abuse of power and corruption, all of which are still pending.

He underwent surgery for cancer in January and has been ill since then.

MANAGUA (DEC. 14) EFE - Sticking to a campaign promise, Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro Friday signed a decree abolishing the military draft.

"With the abolition of this law ends the jail term for the youth," Chamorro said, after signing the bill. She had suspended the draft when she took office April 25.

When she was elected February 25, Nicaragua had Central America's largest standing army with some 70,000 men and a 10,000-strong state security.

Observers said Chamorro's pledge to scrap the law helped her win the elections.

Sociologists have said the draft contributed heavily to the massive exodus of Nicaraguans after 1983, when military service was made obligatory.

The former Sandinista goverment of president Daniel Ortega relied heavily on the draft to fight against the U.S.-backed Contra rebels in a 1981-90 war which claimed more than 30,000 lives.

Chamorro emphasized the elimination of the draft meant "there will be no more exile; our young men will now enjoy freedom and peace since we do not want more war".

KUALA LUMPUR (DEC. 14) XINHUA - MALAYSIAN NEWSPAPERS TODAY HAILED CHINESE PREMIER LI PENG'S JUST-CONCLUDED VISIT TO THE COUNTRY AS A "FRUITFUL ONE", THAT "PREPARED THE GROUNDWORK FOR FUTURE COOPERATION BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES." LI WAS IN MALAYSIA ON A FOUR-DAY OFFICIAL GOODWILL VISIT FROM SUNDAY UNTIL THURSDAY.

IN ITS EDITORIAL, THE CHINESE LANGUAGE NEWSPAPER NANYANG SIANG PAU SAID THAT "IMPORTANT HEADWAY" HAS BEEN MADE IN SINO-MALAYSIAN RELATIONS AS A RESULT OF PREMIER LI'S VISIT.

THE SHIN MIN NEWS, ANOTHER CHINESE LANGUAGE NEWSPAPER, SAID IN ITS EDITORIAL THAT LI'S VISIT TO MALAYSIA LAID THE FOUNDATION FOR CLOSER COOPERATION BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES IN THE FUTURE. THE VISIT ALSO HELPED TO PROMOTE PEACE AND STABILITY IN ASIA, PARTICULARLY IN THE SOUTHEAST ASIAN REGION, THE EDITORIAL COMMENTED.

THE EDITORIAL ALSO CALLED FOR GREATER EFFORTS BY BOTH MALAYSIA AND CHINA TO FURTHER PROMOTE BILATERAL TRADE RELATIONS, NOTING THAT THERE IS STILL MUCH ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT IN THIS AREA.

WINDHOEK, DECEMBER 14 (XINHUA) -- NAMIBIA ANNOUNCED TODAY IT WILL DONATE ONE MILLION RANDS (400,000 U.S. DOLLARS) TO THE AFRICAN NATIONAL CONGRESS (ANC) OF SOUTH AFRICA TO SUPPORT ITS PEACE NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE PRETORIA GOVERNMENT.

AT A PRESS CONFERENCE HERE TODAY, NAMIBIAN PRIME MINISTER HAGE GEINGOB SAID NAMIBIA IS ENCOURAGED BY THE NEGOTIATION PROCESS IN SOUTH AFRICA AND FULLY SUPPORTS THE EFFORTS BEING MADE BY THE SOUTH AFRICAN PEOPLE TO FIND A PEACEFUL END TO THE APARTHEID SYSTEM IN THEIR COUNTRY.

NAMIBIA FEELS THAT THE ANC, AS THE LEADING FORCE IN NEGOTIA- TIONS WITH THE PRETORIA GOVERNMENT, SHOULD BE BETTER EQUIPPED FINANCIALLY TO EFFECTIVELY AND MEANINGFULLY NEGOTIATE WITH PRESIDENT F.W. DE KLERK, HE SAID.

HE HOPES THAT IN THE NEW YEAR THE NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN THE ANC AND THE GOVERNMENT WILL BE CARRIED ON WITH ADDED VIGOUR AND LEAD TO AN EARLY SOLUTION TO THE CONFLICT IN THAT COUNTRY.

THE ANC AND THE PRETORIA GOVERNMENT HAVE HELD TWO SUMMIT MEETINGS THIS YEAR TO FIND WAYS TO END THE MINORITY WHITE RULE IN SOUTH AFRICA.

UNITED NATIONS (DEC. 14) XINHUA - THE RATE OF DEFORESTATION, PARTICALLY IN THE TROPICS, HAS ACCELERATED CONSIDERABLY OVER THE PAST DECADE, SAYS THE U.N. EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATION (UNESCO).

IN ITS LATEST ISSUE OF "SOURCES," THE UNESCO SAYS THAT THE INCREASE IN DEFORESTATION IS MOST OBVIOUS IN AFRICA, FOLLOWED BY ASIA AND THEN LATIN AMERICA.

ACCORDING TO THE UNESCO MAGAZINE, THE WORLD SURFACE AREA COVERED BY FORESTS WAS 14.5 MILLION SQUARE KM IN 1980 AND 12.82 MILLION IN 1990, DOWN BY 11.6 PERCENT.

IN ASIA, THE FORESTED AREA IN 1980 WAS 3.34 MILLION KM. BUT BY 1990, THE FORESTED AREA HAS BEEN REDUCED TO 2.87 MILLION, DECREASED BY 14 PERCENT.

IN LATIN AMERICA WHICH CONTAINS 59 PERCENT, THE GREATEST PART, OF THE WORLD'S FORESTS, THE DEFORESTATION RATE IS 8.8 PERCENT, DOWN FROM 8.26 MILLION SQUARE KM IN 1980 TO 7.53 MILLION IN 1990.

IN AFRICA, THE FIGURE IS 16.5 PERCENT, THE HIGHEST RATE OF DEFORESTATION IN THE WORLD DURING THE LAST DECADE, FROM 2.9 MILLION SQUARE KM IN 1980 TO 2.42 MILLION IN 1990.

CAIRO (DEC. 14) XINHUA - A DELEGATION OF SEVERAL PROMINENT KUWAITIS IN EXILE ARRIVED IN SANAA, CAPITAL OF YEMEN, TODAY, THE FIRST TO VISIT THIS ARAB COUNTRY SEEN AS SYMPATHETIC TOWARD IRAQ.

REPORTS FROM SANAA QUOTED DELEGATION LEADER AHMED AL-SAQQAF AS SAYING IN AN ARRIVAL STATEMENT THAT "WE HOPE AND PRAY OUR DIALOGUE WITH OUR YEMENI OFFICIAL AND POPULAR BROTHERS WILL BE CONSTRUCTIVE."

KUWAIT WAS SUBJECTED TO A "TREACHEROUS INVASION" BY IRAQ ON AUGUST 2, AND "WE HOPE THAT LOGIC WILL PREVAIL AND THE IRAQI ARMY WILL WITHDRAW FROM OUR HOMELAND WITHOUT FORCING THE REGION INTO WAR," SAID AL-SAQQAF, A KUWAITI GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL IN CHARGE OF SOUTHERN ARABIAN PENINSULA AFFAIRS BEFORE THE INVASION.

THE DELEGATION, CONSISTING OF SEVERAL PARLIAMENTARIANS, HAS BEEN TO SYRIA, LEBANON, JORDAN, EGYPT AND SUDAN. IT IS ONE OF SEVERAL KUWAITI GROUPS TRAVELLING ROUND THE WORLD TO SEEK SUPPORT FOR PRESSURE ON IRAQ TO END ITS OCCUPATION OF KUWAIT.

YEMEN SAYS THAT IT CONDEMNS THE IRAQI INVASION OF KUWAIT, BUT IT IS OPPOSED TO THE U.S.-LED FOREIGN MILITARY BUILDUP IN THE GULF AND STANDS FOR A PEACEFUL ARAB SOLUTION TO THE CRISIS.

LIMA (DEC. 14) XINHUA - THE PERUVIAN CONGRESS APPROVED UNANIMOUSLY THURSDAY A REPORT OF RECOMMENDING THE DISMISSAL OF THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE SERVICE (SIN) HEAD GENERAL EDWIN DIAZ ZEVALLOS, PRESIDENT OF THE SUPERIOR INTELLIGENCE COUNCIL.

THE SENATE ALSO FOUND DIAZ ZEVALLOS GUILTY OF ORDERING THE TAPPING OF PRIVATE PHONE CALLS MADE BY POLITICAL LEADERS, PARLIAMENTARIES, STATE MINISTERS, MILITARY HEADS AND JOURNALISTS.

THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED THAT THE SIN BE REORGANIZED AND THAT THE LAWS RULING THE SERVICE BE MODIFIED TO SET UP A STRUCTURE BASED ON THE PARTICIPATION OF THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH, ARMY AND POLICE INTELLIGENCE AND THE INTERIOR MINISTRY, BUT ALSO ALLOW CONGRESS TO INTERVENE TO GUARANTEE RESPECT FOR CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS.

IT ALSO PROPOSED A BILL UNDER WHICH CONGRESS WOULD RATIFY THE NAMING OF THE SIN HEAD.

A PARLIAMENTARY REPRESENTATION SHOULD ALSO JOIN THE SUPERIOR INTELLIGENCE COUNCIL TO PARTICIPATE IN THE PLANNING OF STRATEGIC INTELLIGENCE PROGRAMS, THE COMMITTEE STATED.

THE COMMITTEE CONCLUDED THAT THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH SHOULD BE URGED TO IMMEDIATELY REMOVE GENERAL DIAZ ZEVALLOS AS WELL AS THE DIRECTIVE BODIES THAT HEADED THE INTELLIGENCE SERVICE IN 1989 AND 1990.

IT WAS INFORMED TODAY THAT THE COMMITTEE'S REPORT WAS BACKED BY REPRESENTATIVES OF ALL THE PARTIES SINCE IT PROVED THE EXISTENCE OF FLAGRANT VIOLATIONS OF CONTITUTIONAL RIGHTS.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) KYODO - THE CURRENT ECONOMIC BOOM IS NOT STRONG ENOUGH TO SURPASS JAPAN'S LONGEST POSTWAR PERIOD OF ECONOMIC EXPANSION, AS HIGHER INTEREST RATES HAVE PUT A DAMPER ON PERSONAL AND CORPORATE SPENDING, SUMITOMO BANK SAID FRIDAY.

THE BANK PROJECTED THE JAPANESE ECONOMY WILL GROW 3.6 PERCENT IN REAL TERMS IN FISCAL 1991, STARTING APRIL 1, 1991, AGAINST AN ESTIMATED EXPANSION OF 5.4 PERCENT FOR FISCAL 1990.

AFTER PEAKING OUT NEXT SPRING, ECONOMIC GROWTH IS EXPECTED TO LANGUISH, FAILING TO SURPASS THE RECORD 57-MONTH ECONOMIC EXPANSION FROM OCTOBER 1965 TO JULY 1970, DUBBED THE "IZANAGI" BOOM.

THE BANK SAID, HOWEVER, THAT SUPPORTED BY UNABATED INVESTMENT BY COMPANIES IN RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT (R&D) AND A DIVERSIFICATION IN PERSONAL SPENDING, THE ECONOMY WILL NOT SLOW TO THE POINT OF GOING INTO A SLUMP.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) KYODO - A PRIVATE POLICY RESEARCH THINK TANK FRIDAY CALLED FOR THE FORMATION OF A PERMANENT PEACE-KEEPING FORCE DIRECTLY CONNECTED TO THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL WHICH JAPAN WOULD SUPPORT FINANCIALLY AND WITH PERSONNEL.

THE PROPOSAL CAME OUT OF DISCUSSIONS BY A GROUP OF JAPANESE POLITICAL SCIENTISTS AND POLICY CRITICS ON HOW JAPAN COULD CONTRIBUTE TO MULTINATIONAL EFFORTS TO KEEP WORLD PEACE AMID THE PERSIAN GULF CRISIS.

UNDER THE PROPOSAL, THE PEACE-KEEPING FORCE WOULD BE COMPRISED OF VOLUNTEERS FROM A NUMBER OF NATIONS AND LIMITED TO SUCH NONMILITARY DUTIES AS OBSERVING CEASE-FIRES AND OVERSEEING ELECTIONS. THE FORCE MEMBERS WOULD CARRY FIREARMS WHEN NECESSARY.

UNLIKE THE U.N. PEACE-KEEPING SPECIAL FORCES ALREADY ESTABLISHED BY SOME NATIONS IN EUROPE AND IN CANADA, THE PROPOSED FORCE WOULD BE, FROM THE OUTSET, A UNITED NATIONS FORCE, THINK TANK MEMBERS SAID.

JAPANESE SELF-DEFENSE FORCES (SDF) PERSONNEL VOLUNTEERING FOR THE FORCE WOULD BE REQUIRED TO LEAVE THE SDF. A GOVERNMENT-PROPOSED U.N. PEACE COOPERATION BILL, WHICH WOULD HAVE ENABLED OVERSEAS DISPATCH OF SDF PERSONNEL, FAILED TO PASS THE DIET IN NOVEMBER.

UNDER THE PROPOSAL, JAPANESE PERSONNEL WOULD NUMBER BETWEEN 50 AND 500, TRAIN AT A PERMANENT TRAINING CENTER IN JAPAN, AND WOULD HAVE 90 PERCENT OF EXPENSES PAID BY THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT.

TOKYO UNIVERSITY POLITICAL SCIENTIST TAKASHI INOGUCHI, ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL AUTHORS OF THE PROPOSAL, SAID THE GROUP DID NOT PLAN TO INFLUENCE EFFORTS BY THE RULING LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY (LDP) AND TWO OPPOSITION PARTIES TO FORGE A NEW POLICY FOR CONTRIBUTIONS TO WORLD PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES. "THIS SETUP WILL SERVE JAPANESE SECURITY JUST AS THE SECURITY TREATY WITH THE UNITED STATES AND THE SELF-DEFENSE FORCES," INOGUCHI SAID.

FOLLOWING THE DEFEAT OF THE U.N. PEACE COOPERATION CORPS BILL IN NOVEMBER, THE LDP, KOMEITO, AND DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST PARTY AGREED TO WORK TOGETHER IN FORGING A NEW PEACE PLAN TO ALLOW THE OVERSEAS DISPATCH OF JAPANESE PERSONNEL TO JOIN U.N. PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES.

ANALYSTS SUGGEST THAT FRIDAY'S ANNOUNCEMENT MAY HAVE AN INFLUENCE ON FUTURE TRIPARTITE EFFORTS TO DRAFT A BILL ACCEPTABLE TO THE MAJORITY OF JAPANESE LEGISLATORS AND PEOPLE.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 14) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

The LABOR DEPARTMENT says the PRODUCER PRICE INDEX was up 0.5% in November - compared to a 1.1% increase in October and a 1.6% jump in September. The consensus expectation had been for a 0.1% increase in November.

The Nikkei average ended its seven-day advance by falling 293.47 or 1.2% on heavy volume. ... In London, the FT 100 INDEX is up 12 points in midday trading but shares of U.S. money center banks are sliding on a leaked Congressional report of severe problems in the banking insurance system, the FDIC. ... The dollar is trading marginally higher. ... The bond is trading sharply lower following the release of the PPI with long bonds yielding 8.17%. Brent North Sea crude oil is up 25 cents to $27.55. ... The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT says retail sales were down 0.1% from October to November, the first decline since May but still a little better than analysts had expected. ... The 2,389 savings and loans still in private hands lost $631 million overall in the third quarter, compared to $302 million in the second quarter. ... Early December car and truck sales by the BIG THREE were up 22.1% ahead of last year, but still below what analysts consider healthy. ... WALT DISNEY CO. and the family of the late JIM HENSON have called off talks for Disney to acquire Henson Associates. RWE AG of Germany is buying VISTA CHEMICAL for $590 million. ... GTE is buying $600 million worth of cellular communications equipment from AT&T in one of the largest cellular purchases ever. ... KANSAS CITY POWER & LIGHT drops its hostile bid to take over KANSAS GAS AND ELECTRIC for 27 a share after KG&E arranged a friendly takeover by KPL GAS SERVICE at 32.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

Defense Secretary DICK CHENEY and General COLIN POWELL appear before the House Armed Services Committee today. ... MOTOROLA says it will produce its next generation of computer memory chips in a Japanese factory as part of a joint venture with TOSHIBA.

FROM THE BULLS:

"The public is becoming very selective at price levels," says JERRY MULLINS at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. "I think we are headed for higher ground. There is some good strength behind this market." (WSJ, 12/14)

"The market overreacts sometimes," says THOMAS BASSO, president of TRENDSTAT CAPITAL MANAGEMENT in St. Louis. "Now the market is recovering from an overreaction to the Iraqi invasion. This type of slow and steady advance is the type that can be maintained. The main reason the advance continues is that people don't see it so it doesn't burn itself out. This type of advance doesn't catch everyone's attention so it keeps clicking along." ("Investor's Daily", 12/14)

FROM THE BEARS:

Beware of bear market rallies, says MARTIN PRING at "Asset Allocation Review." He sees virtually no industry group with a long term, positive trend in price or momentum, and suggests using strength to lower equities to 20% of a portfolio. Pring is, however, bullish on bonds: "Why purchase stocks when bonds are in a positive trend on all counts." Pring would put 50% of a portfolio in 30-year Treasuries. (CNBC "World Business" 12/14)

"We are vulnerable now for a correction because as we move closer to Jan. 15 the political tension issue will resurface," says JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA at GRUNTAL & CO. "If the Fed pulls back from their efforts to ease ... that will keep the bond market under control. And lastly, we've got that old bugaboo - the quarterly earnings coming out - and they won't be a good read. ... The market is trading in a range and this happens to be the upper end." He looks for the market to "work lower" until mid-1991. (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 12/13)

STOCK MARKET:

"Declining interest levels are making stocks look better in the long run, but the economy is looking worse in the short run," says JAMISON GRAF at ONE FEDERAL ASSET MANAGEMENT. "We want to see some more road signs." Meanwhile, he is reducing stock holdings modestly. He says "disastrous" fourth-quarter earnings reports that will come out in January add an element of danger to the market. (WSJ, 12/14)

"Right now, the profit takers won't let [the market] rally, but there is good underlying tone," says HOWARD BERL at MONTGOMERY SECURITIES. ("USA Today", 12/14)

"The market's getting impatient that the process of diplomacy isn't moving along," says JON GROVEMAN at LADENBURG THALMANN. "The longer we go on without some sort of talks, the closer we get to some sort of military confrontation." (WSJ, 12/14)

"The market's tolerance for negative news has improved dramatically over the last 30 days," says JOHN CONLON at ROTHSCHILD. "People have been very concerned over the Middle East. I think that's shifting to the outlook for interest rates, which is favorable. The Fed's got room for one more easing in the next couple of weeks." (NYT, 12/14)

"There are an enormous number of people [in Europe] who have gone out of the U.S. market and are very reluctant to come back," says MAYRI VOUTE, Paris-based managing director of CAPITAL MANAGEMENT INTERNATIONAL. "The mere mention of the dollar induces nausea." (WSJ, 12/14)

STOCK TIPS:

"Investors Daily" focuses on VENCOR INC. as its "Stock of the Week." This hospital services company which has created its own niche market has posted triple-digit profit gains in the past two quarters, and Wall Street expects continued strong growth. JOHN HINDELONG, health- care analyst at DONALDSON, LUFKIN & JENRETTE SECURITIES CORP., notes that hospitals are benefiting from worries about the economy. "As investors are concerned about a recession, recession-resistant companies look better and better," he says. Niche, service companies such as Vencor, have "generally performed well." ("Investor's Daily", 12/14)

RUBBERMAID is featured in the "Heard on the Street" column of "The Wall Street Journal." The article says many analysts believe the company will make good on its promise to grow 15% a year, even during the recession. "It's a growth situation," says PAMELA SINGLETON at MERRILL LYNCH. "I think they can continue the growth rates they had before," says PHILIP MULDOON of OHIO CO. "They're a very well-run company." But KIDDER PEABODY has downgraded the stock from a "buy" to a "hold" and analyst JEFFREY STEIN at McDONALD & CO. says Rubbermaid is a fine company, but it's stock is "overvalued." (WSJ, 12/14)

"The burden of proof remains on the bulls," says CHARLES CARSON at "Dow Theory Forecasts." Carson warns against inferring too much from daily market fluctuations which may be caused by the Mideast situation. "[There will be] losses for investors who chase these short-term moves." His rebound selection is WALLACE COMPUTER, where he thinks profit growth will eventually return to a double-digit pace. (CNBC "World Business", 12/14)

"Insurance stocks are a classic way to play the outlook for falling interest rates," writes BEAR STEARNS in its current newsletter to investors. The report says "another big decline in rates would be a major boon to these companies" and suggests stocks with limited exposure to real estate, mortgage loans and junk bonds. It recommends insurance brokers like MARSH & McLENNAN and casualty insurers like AIG. (NYT, 12/14)

"We are very excited about communications companies - whether they be cellular or cable or in particular companies like GTE that have a big, strong regional dominance, a high dividend payout and consistent growth prospects," says JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA at GRUNTAL & CO. "We are enamored with pharmaceutical companies. They are consistent growers. for new aircraft continues to mount. It's a renewal of the whole fleet, essentially, worldwide." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/13)

DAN DORFMAN gets 10 stock pickers to list their favorite investment for 1991 in his annual feature in "USA Today." The 10 recommendations are WAHLCO ENVIRONMENTAL SYSTEMS; CENTREX TELEMAGEMENT, McDONNEL DOUGLAS, VICORP RESTAURANTS, SP500 DEC. 325 PUT OPTION; MEDCO CONTAINMENT, INTEL CORP., VANGUARD CELLULAR, OFFICE DEPOT and CML GROUP. ("USA Today", 12/14)

TOYS R US dropped 1 1/8 to 23 1/2 yesterday on heavy volume. SALOMON BROTHERS analyst JACK SEIBALD lowered his 1990 and 1991 estimates for the toy retailer, citing increased competition and expectations that the economic outlook for next year will be worse than many expect, with weak consumer spending lasting late into the year. Seibald cut his 1990 estimate to $1.12 a share from $1.25 and his 1991 outlook to $1.35 a share from $1.50. His rating for the company is "neutral." ("Investor's Daily", 12/14)

TOSCO's oil refining capacity make the company one of the better energy plays, says MICHAEL CARTY, senior portfolio manager for VALUE LINE. "Crude oil supplies are adequate ... but refining capacity in this country and worldwide is being taxed to the limit," says Carty. "If anything goes wrong ... we will not have enough refined product. Tosco will take advantage of that and is expected to have very large, year-over-year, earnings gains." (CNBC "Market

Even though she and her clients are not keen on the U.S. stock market in general these days, MAYRI VOUTE, director of CAPITAL MANAGEMENT INTERNATIONAL in France, does have a few U.S. favorite stocks. They include MEDTRONIC, SCI MED and JOHNSON & JOHNSON in health-care, all the "Baby Bell" regional telephone companies and RAYTHEON and LORAL in defense. (WSJ, 12/14)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 14) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"I think probably toward the end of this month or at the latest early January, the Fed will [ease] another notch," says DAVID JONES, chief economist at AUBREY G. LANSTON. That would drop the funds rate to 7% from 7 1/4%, down from 8 1/4% in early July. "There's going to be a program of easing - this economy is in trouble." (CNN "Business Morning", 12/14)

"An overbought bond market incurred a mild correction," observes JOHN LONSKI, senior economist at MOODY'S INVESTOR SERVICES. "In reaction to new data that didn't confirm expectations of a severe recession, investors bid the price of Treasury bonds lower in late trading." He also notes that higher oil prices overcame the favorable implications of another dip in commodities prices which also dampened bond investor enthusiasm. ("Investor's Daily", 12/14)

"The [bond] market is coming into the end of December in a very overbought situation," says WILLIAM SULLIVAN at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. "That heightens the desire to take profits now, because activity is likely to thin out in the next week or so." JAMES CAPRA at SHEARSON LEHMAN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES observes: "The economic numbers allowed people to shift the focus back to the Middle East, where we still have problems. Combine that with a little bit of profit-taking and we were ripe for some sort of sell-off." (NYT, 12/14)

THE ECONOMY:

A leaked Congressional report states that the government may have to support the FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION with taxpayer dollars, but one economist does not see this as a major problem. "The government is backing up the savings and loan industry, essentially shifting from private finance to government finance. That is in effect what we'll be doing here" in the banking industry, says DAVID JONES of AUBREY G. LANSTON. "And in effect that will be a prop under the economy and the banking industry; a very necessary one, but a lot of politics in the process." (CNN "Business Day", 12/14)

"Non-durable sales were up, fairly strongly, and clothing sales were up probably even higher than gasoline sales in the month of November [but] I think a lot of that increase in clothing sales is related to increased promotion more than increased consumer demand," says JANET MANGANO at JESUP, JOSEPHTHAL & CO. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/13)

"So far in this recession, if you date the recession from July, the decline in employment in retail trade is at a 2.5% annual rate," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "It's a huge decline in retail employment as compared to previous recessions. any cheer. It's still important to keep your money in your mattress and your powder dry." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/13)

"While the market was expecting a weaker [retail sales] number, this report is hardly good news," says economist CHARLES LIEBERMAN at MANUFACTURERS HANOVER SECURITIES. (NYT, 12/14)

"I'm expecting department and speciality stores to have the worst Christmas in the past seven years," says PHILIP BROUS, professor of retailing at COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY and former chief executive of FOXMOOR SPECIALTY STORES INC. "And after those numbers come out, I think there will be a major shakeout in January." Brous foresees layoffs far exceeding the bloodbath at department stores in 1988 and 1989. He expects weak retail sales to continue into 1991. ("Investor's Daily", 12/14)

IN WASHINGTON:

The FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION says it wants to reimpose price control on some cable television operators, but the plan adopted yesterday is so vaguely worded, industry leaders are uncertain how it would work. "We have only the vaguest notion as to what the commission is going to throw out as a proposal, much less what the will finally adopt," says JACK GOODMAN of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF BROADCASTERS. JAMES MOONEY of the NATIONAL CABLE TELEVISION ASSOCIATION says, "However moderate the intentions of the FCC, this proposal raises the prospect of the government inhibiting the future development of cable programming by crimping its economic lifeblood." FREMONT, CA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Peak Systems, Inc. announced today that it has filed a legal complaint against Applied Materials, Inc. (NASDAQ: AMAT) in the California Superior Court. The complaint alleges violation of several key elements of a corporate partnering agreement which was signed in September 1989.

According to Peak's president and CEO, Timothy Stultz, the partnering agreement with Applied was the foundation for a broad-based strategic alliance which entailed the adaptation of Peak's proprietary RTP technology to Applied's cluster tool systems. This alliance also addressed co-marketing of these products as well as co-development and marketing of future products.

Peak officials report that discussions with Applied on these and related matters have failed to produce an equitable solution. "The legal action has been initiated to ensure that they don't use our proprietary technology and to bring about an acceptable resolution on the balance of the issues," stated Stultz.

About Peak Systems: Peak was founded in 1983 to pursue innovative product solutions for industrial thermal processing requirements. The company is a leading supplier of Rapid Thermal Processing (RTP) equipment to the semiconductor industry, providing fully automated, stand-alone systems as well as modules for cluster tools. In addition, Peak's wholly owned subsidiary, Aktis Corporation, focuses on equipment development for the growing flat panel display (FPD) market. Peak's product focus is to utilize their proprietary radiant heating technologies to provide enabling process capabilities and enhanced productivity. A privately held company, Peak is headquartered in Fremont, Calif., and distributes its products through an international network of direct representatives, manufacturers' representatives and distributors.

CHATSWORTH, CA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Diodes Inc. (AMEX: DIO), a full-line semiconductor rectifier supplier, today announced sales and operating results for the second quarter and six months ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Results for the second quarter of fiscal 1991 show revenues of $4,002,529, a 28 percent increase over revenues of $3,129,133 recorded for the corresponding quarter of the prior fiscal year. Net earnings showed a loss of $27,812 or 1 cent per share, compared with a net profit of $58,484 or 2 cents per share for the prior year. Management attributes the loss to the effect of a one-time charge of $357,620 associated with termination benefits due a former chief executive over the next two years. The cost of these benefits was recorded as an expense in the second quarter. But for this one-time charge, net earnings would have been 7 cents per share for the second quarter of fiscal 1991.

Results for the six months ended Oct. 31, 1990, show revenues of $7,736,267, an increase of 22 percent over revenues of $6,331,724 recorded for the corresponding six months of the prior fiscal year. Net earnings were $177,806 or 4 cents per share, compared with $76,474 or 2 cents per share for the prior year. But for the one- time charge discussed above, net earnings would have been 12 cents per share for the six months ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Hurley stated: "I am very gratified that, as expected, we have been able to sustain the growth in revenues shown in the prior quarter's sales figures. We expect this trend to continue."

ATLANTA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of First National Bancorp (NASDAQ: FBAC), a Gainesville-based, 11-bank, north Georgia holding company, has authorized a special fourth quarter provision to the loan loss reserve of $6,250,000.

In making the announcement, Bancorp CEO and Chairman Ray McRae noted that "this special provision is our response to the continued softening in the north Georgia economy and will enable First National Bancorp to maintain our position of strength by increasing our reserves against possible loan losses in the future. This addition increases our loan loss reserves to a record

1.76 percent of loans outstanding (not including mortgage loans held for sale), giving us a much more comfortable level of reserves as we enter the uncertainties of 1991."

Reporting on other indicators, McRae noted that First National Bancorp's return on average assets for the year will be approximately 1.18 percent, which compares favorably with industry standards. Bancorp's primary capital position is projected to be at $161 million at year end, a 12 percent increase over Dec. 31, 1989, and a significant 10.19 percent of assets.

In other Bancorp news, the company's previously announced cash dividend of 18 cents per share will be mailed on Jan. 1, 1991, to shareholders of record as of Dec. 14. Dividends declared in 1990 totaled 69 cents per share, up 18.97 percent over the 58 cents declared in 1989. This is in keeping with Bancorp's continued policy of increasing cash dividends a minimum of 18 percent each year.

CLEVELAND (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Customers of National City Bank who are called to active military service will be provided substantial relief on loan payment requirements under a newly-announced policy of the bank.

"The Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act requires that the interest on loans to military personnel, entered into prior to induction, be reduced to six percent " said John V. White, Jr., senior vice president, retail lending division.

"We are going a step further and offering the customer the option of also reducing payments commensurate with the six percent rate," he explained.

For example, an installment loan of $10,000 at 13.5 percent for 60 months would require a monthly payment of $230. The rate of interest would automatically be reduced to six percent upon submission to the bank of certification of the callup.

"The customer could continue to make a monthly payment of $230, thereby accelerating repayment of the loan, since more of the payment would be going to the principal," said White.

"The option we are providing is a reduction in the monthly payment," White explained. "In the example, that reduction would result in a payment of $193.32, a savings of $36.68 a month."

National City's policy applies to all retail loans, said White, including credit cards, installment loans, home equity lines of credit and mortgage loans.

In the case of a home mortgage, the typical interest savings on a $75,000 mortgage balance, reduced to six percent from ten percent, would be $250 on the first monthly payment. The savings would decrease as the balance decreases.

In the case of a credit card account, National City transfers the current balance to a new account at six percent interest. Charge privileges would be available on the old account subject to the standard interest rates and with a reduced credit line.

A $1,000 balance in the new six percent account would result in a monthly savings in the first month of $9.78, reflecting the difference between interest at 17.9 percent ($14.71) and six percent ($4.93).

Equity Reserve accounts, which are a variable rate revolving credit secured by a real estate mortgage, would be similarly treated. These accounts have a current annual percentage rate of 11.5 percent and require a minimum payment of two percent of the balance.

The rate reduction, on a $10,000 equity reserve balance for example, would result in monthly interest savings of $45.83, which would go to reducing the principal balance. Any new advances from the line of credit would be subject to the standard rate of interest.

"The savings provided to the customer by the interest rate reduction is not recoverable by the bank under the law," White stated.

DEARBORN, MI (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation's engineering services unit, CMS Engineering, has been invited by the municipal gas utility and a large engineering firm in Sao Paulo, Brazil, to participate in a major gas conversion project. Sao Paulo, the world's third-largest city with a 1985 population of 14,911,000, is in the process of converting from manufactured gas to natural gas for heating, cooking and other residential and commercial uses.

Representatives from CMS Engineering met recently with officials from COPLASA, the Sao Paulo engineering firm, and COMGAS, the city's natural gas distribution utility, to discuss the conversion project. CMS Engineering's role in the conversion involves its expertise in engineering, marketing, and market research, including demand projection analysis. Approximately 10 CMS Engineering employees will participate in the project, expected to last through 1991.

"We are pleased to be selected by the Sao Paulo companies to participate in this extensive conversion project," said Michael G. Morris, executive vice president of natural gas and marketing for Consumers Power Company, CMS Energy's principal subsidiary.

Consumers Power converted its distribution network from manufactured gas to natural gas during the 1930s and 1940s. This successful transition, and CMS Energy's unique role in converting the Midland Cogeneration Venture from an idled nuclear plant to the nation's largest gas-fired cogeneration facility, were factors in Sao Paulo's selection of Michigan-based CMS Engineering.

Sao Paulo developed a manufactured gas system in the early 1900s for streetlighting and to meet increasing population and commercial heating demand. Manufactured gas in Sao Paulo is created through a native supply of naptha gas. Natural gas, significantly cleaner than manufactured gas, was discovered offshore Brazil in the early 1980s. COMGAS has approximately 440,000 manufactured gas billing accounts in Sao Paulo, the majority of which are expected to switch to natural gas by 1993.

COMGAS estimates that the cost of Brazilian-supplied natural gas "will be considerably lower as compared with manufactured gas."

CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas, interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. CMS Energy Corporation's principal subsidiary is Consumers Power Company, Michigan's largest utility and the nation's fourth-largest combination utility.

LAS VEGAS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - ATI Medical Inc. (AMEX: ATI) registered a 13 percent gain in revenues for its first quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 although profitability was impacted by temporary external factors.

ATI posted revenues of $12,998,800 for the recently concluded three-month period, compared with $11,505,800 in last year's first quarter. The company reported a quarterly net loss of $290,800, or 5 cents per share, compared with net income of $792,364, or 15 cents per share, in last year's first quarter.

Paul E. Stevenson, president and chief executive officer, said the loss reflected competitive price pressures in certain markets aggravated by reduced volume during September in response to threatened healthcare cutbacks in the federal budget. Volume improved dramatically in October following a Congressional decision to keep that funding intact.

Despite these temporary factors, Stevenson expects ATI to resume profitability in the next quarter with gains from its newly launched Americare(sm) subsidiary. The company's future performance should benefit from its planned February entry into the home infusion therapy market. ATI plans to supply intravenous products for this potential $2 billion market.

ATI Medical rents medical equipment primarily to hospitals as well as the entertainment industry through a total of 55 offices in major cities across the country. ATI also sells medical equipment and certain disposables and markets, through its subsidiary, CAMS Inc., a software system to monitor equipment usage within hospitals. The new Americare subsidiary provides medical equipment for rental through exclusive home health care dealers covering 100 markets nationwide.

CLARKSBURG, WV (DEC. 6) PR NEWSWIRE - Winfield Industries' executives and scientists today announced a new technology for solving the growing medical waste problem which is expected to save U.S. health care providers millions of dollars.

Representatives of the San Diego-based manufacturing company made the announcement while opening their new $10 million production facility in the

The technological process, which disintegrates and sanitizes medical waste, is expected to provide immediate benefits to hospitals under increased scrutiny of governmental regulators and environmental groups.

The newly developed process mechanically disintegrates medical waste with controlled shredding and granulation. The resulting "mulch" is automatically washed and sanitized with a liquid disinfectant.

After wastes have been disintegrated, disinfected and deodorized, a de-watering process is used to recycle recovered disinfectant. Independent laboratory testing confirms the effectiveness of the disinfectant against infectious agents.

Before processing, collection bags are electronically scanned to make sure that proper special bags are used and the waste contains no inadvertently discarded metal instruments or radioactive isotopes.

During treatment, a non-toxic dye tints processed material to provide visual indication that it has been treated. Wash temperature and disinfectant concentration are automatically monitored and controlled at effective levels. Any deviation from correct operating conditions is electronically sensed and indicated on the machine's control panel.

Callicoat noted that Winfield Industries decided to develop a new technology when the company was unable to find an existing process or emerging technology that was simple, environmentally sound, safe and cost effective.

Although these hazardous substances can be trapped by scrubbers, community concerns about emissions have made permitting difficult, if not impossible.

WOODBRIDGE, NJ (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - SMG-II announced today that it has extended to midnight, New York City time, on Friday, Dec. 28, 1990 its previously announced offers to purchase up to $155,500,000 principal amount of the 13-1/8 percent junior subordinated debentures due 2003 of Supermarkets General Holdings Corporation and up to 1,700,000 shares of the cumulative exchangeable redeemable preferred stock of Supermarkets.

The offers previously had been scheduled to expire at midnight, New York City time, on Dec. 13, 1990. SMG-II's offer to exchange one share of its Class A common stock for each share of Supermarkets' Class A common stock and one share of its Class B common stock for each share of Supermarkets' Class B common stock has also been extended until midnight, New York City time, on Friday, Dec. 28, 1990.

SMG-II has been informed by the depositary for the offers that, as of midnight New York City time, on Dec. 13, 1990, $31,025,868 principal amount of junior debentures has been tendered pursuant to the junior debenture offer (including $5,637,892 principal amount of junior debentures that had been tendered subject to guaranteed deliveries) and 642,889 shares of preferred stock had been tendered pursuant to the preferred stock offer (including 288,686 shares of preferred stock that had been tendered subject to guaranteed deliveries).

Approximately 36.6 percent of the outstanding shares of Supermarkets common stock had been tendered pursuant to the exchange offer as of the close of business on Dec. 13, 1990.

SMG-II has been advised by holders of an additional 63.1 percent of the outstanding shares of Supermarkets common stock that such holders expect to tender their shares in the exchange offer prior to Dec. 28, 1990.

One of the conditions of the obligation of SMG-II to purchase securities tendered pursuant to the offers is that SMG-II shall have obtained sufficient financing to enable it to acquire the maximum amount of securities tendered for by it in the offers and to pay for fees, expenses and other costs (including tax liabilities) incurred in connection with the offers and related transactions.

SMG-II is currently engaged in negotiations with institutional investors, including the institutional investors identified in the offers to purchase dated Nov. 15, 1990 relating to the offers, regarding the purchase by such institutional investors of shares of SMG-II cumulative convertible preferred stock to provide such financing. No assurance can be given by SMG-II that it will be able to obtain the financing necessary to satisfy such condition.

CLEVELAND (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - In a presentation to the Bank & Financial Analysts Association in New York this afternoon, management of Society Corporation (NASDAQ: SOCI) commented on the status of the examination of its subsidiary national banks by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC). Robert W. Gillespie, chairman and CEO of Society, explained that holding company management had met with the OCC Examiner-in-Charge of Society Corporation's national bank subsidiaries (primarily Society National Bank, Cleveland, the corporation's lead bank, and Society Bank, N.A., Dayton). During the meeting the examiner's preliminary report was discussed. After review by OCC regional headquarters in Chicago, the findings will be presented to the banks' boards of directors after the first of the year.

Gillespie said, "The examination has produced no surprises and management will be taking no specific actions regarding charge-offs or additions to the allowance for loan losses or nonperforming loan categories as a result. Obviously we were pleased to have our evaluation of the loan portfolio confirmed. However, we all know the economy has been deteriorating for several months. Our asset quality monitoring process has resulted in several credits, principally loans in the commercial real estate portfolio, being downgraded under our internal grading system. This suggests to us that it will be prudent to continue our program of adding to our loss reserve in an orderly, planned fashion."

Commenting on the outlook for 1991, Gillespie indicated that the slowing Midwest economy will lead to lower levels of loan growth in addition to the credit-quality concerns. Gillespie said, "In the current environment, there is no question that our ability to control costs will be a major determinant of our ability to attain a 10th consecutive year of earnings per share improvement in 1991."

In his part of the presentation, James W. Wert, CFO of Society, reported on programs designed to reduce annual noninterest expenses by at least $40 million by the end of 1992. Wert noted that current plans call for realizing approximately $20 million of such savings in 1991. Wert said, "Our program is off to an excellent start. I am confident we will succeed in reaching our goal of at least $40 million as new phases take effect."

FULLERTON, CA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Germany has awarded a $5.75 million contract to Hughes Aircraft Co. for new air traffic control equipment to be installed primarily in sites formerly in East Germany.

Hughes, a subsidiary of GM Hughes Electronics, will supply 36 TracView systems for use in airport towers and approach control units under the contract to Bundesanstalt fur Flugsicherung, the German procurement agency.

The TracView system provides air traffic controllers with a real-time, full-color digitized display of aircraft detected by multiple radars feeding into the towers and centers.

When connected to the existing German Flight Data Processing System, TracView will provide automated identification/beacon code correlation and networked beacon code allocation. TracView will replace existing old equipment to provide new capabilities.

The system runs on Hughes proprietary software, derived from its proven air traffic control library, and operates on commercial off-the-shelf, cost-efficient computers and raster scan displays.

Seven TracView systems will be installed in the Leipzig Tower and approach control units and three will be installed in the Dresden Tower and approach control units, both located in the former German Democratic Republic. Two systems will be installed in the Saarbrucken Tower, in what was West Germany.

The Hughes TracView systems will draw sensor data from a wide range of old and new radars built by Western and Eastern Bloc companies, including a new Polish-built AVIA-D radar serving the Dresden Tower.

For some of the radars, Hughes also will supply modern radar extractors for the conversion of raw radar data into digital form. The schedule calls for the systems at the three sites to be operational by the end of March 1991.

The remaining 24 systems will be installed in five additional towers, approach control units and a training facility following completion of site surveys. The remaining sites will be operational by mid-1991.

Hughes TracView systems have been operational as flight following units in the Saarbrucken Tower and the Vancouver Tower in British Columbia, Canada formost of 1990.

The Precision Controls Division will develop a line of control systems used for antenna pointing and tracking of communication satellites and will be located in Richardson, Texas.

Richard E. Thomas, chairman and chief executive officer of Radiation Systems, Inc. (RSi), said that the new division will be headed by Ralph N. White, former manager of the Control Systems Division of Electrospace Systems, Inc. Thomas said that Radiation Systems is extremely fortunate to have White as the leader of the new division because he is one of the most respected people in the field of servo engineering. His reputation among customers and technical expertise immediately gives Radiation Systems recognition in the field.

Precision Controls Division initially includes four equally qualified engineers: Charles C. Huey, Thomas J. Scanio, Kevin B. Keough and Bobby L. Schroeder. These five employees will form the nucleus of the new division. Their extensive, combined experience represents over 80 years of successfully addressing the market of precision control of large dynamic structures. As the development proceeds and contracts are awarded, the division is expected to grow to approximately 15 employees, mostly technical, by the end of RSi's fiscal year (June 30).

Thomas also stated that he is excited about the addition of this capability to RSi's antenna systems products. The Precision Controls Division will add a significant component to the continued vertical integration of RSi's satellite system capability while also offering the general market the highest quality servo control system.

Radiation Systems, Inc. designs, manufactures and installs a broad range of antenna systems for radar, air traffic control, tactical military, satellite earth stations, terrestrial microwave and other specialized uses throughout the world.

NORCROSS, GA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Colorocs Corporation (NASDAQ: CLRX), a designer and distributor of plain-paper, full-color copiers and printers, announced today that it has entered into an agreement with Mega Credit Guarantee.

The arrangement is for up to $20 million in letters of credit and other financings for expanding sales to OEMs (original equipment manufacturers), and for purchasing machines for its cost-per-copy program and for expansion into the European market.

Colorocs also reported that revenues for the first quarter of 1991 are expected to be less than $5.0 million because its primary OEMs, Savin Corporation and HCS Technology N.V., have not ordered units for first quarter 1991. As previously reported, Colorocs expects to deliver more than $10 million in copiers and printers to Savin and HCS in the fourth quarter of 1990.

Charles Muench, president of Colorocs, said, "We believe Colorocs and our private label customers are experiencing softer demand because of the uncertain economic environment. In addition, our ability to sell copiers has been adversely affected by our inability to finance sales. We believe our new financing arrangements with Mega Credit Guarantee will permit us to increase our sales and cost-per-copy program.

"In 1990, Colorocs copiers have had a high level of acceptance in the marketplace. More than 50 percent of the color copiers installed in the U.S. and Australia in 1990 use Colorocs' technology. This market share data is based on Dataquest's estimate that a total of 11,000 units were installed in the U.S. this year."

As 1991 progresses, Muench noted, Colorocs believes its major customers will resume copier and printer orders. "New financing available to some of our customers should aid in this process. Notwithstanding the economic environment the color hard copy market is a new industry that is projected to grow significantly in 1991."

He also noted that sales of the company's plain-paper, full-color printer to OEM and VAR (value added resellers) customers are expected to be strong based on the interest exhibited at the recent Comdex show.

In addition to the Colorocs booth, Aldus Corporation and National Semiconductor each had a Colorocs printer for demonstration in their booths. More than 2,000 inquiries by printer customers, both end-users and resellers, were obtained at the show.

CLEVELAND (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Society National Bank was recently honored by Cleveland Action to Support Housing (C.A.S.H.) for having underwritten the most new residential construction loans within the city of Cleveland last year. The award was presented at the annual C.A.S.H. awards program in November.

This is the second consecutive year that Society National Bank has been honored by the organization. In 1988, C.A.S.H. presented Society with two awards: the first for underwriting the most new construction loans, and the second for underwriting the most total loans from 1982-88, which included rehabilitation loans through the Mortage Loan Department and consumer loans.

According to Henry L. Meyer III, president, Society National Bank, "Society has taken an aggressive role in reinvesting in Cleveland neighborhoods. Working with organizations like C.A.S.H., we remain committed to our communities by helping to both rehabilitate and construct homes within our cities."

C.A.S.H. was established in 1978 with the purpose of stabilizing Cleveland neighborhoods. A partnership was formed composed of city government, community organizations and local lenders to provide housing rehabilitation assistance to eligible homeowners.

Society National Bank is the lead bank of Society Corporation, (NASDAQ: SOCI) one of the largest bank holding companies in the Midwest with $15.6 billion in assets as of Sept. 30, 1990. The corporation has 370 offices in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Florida, including more than 100 in northeastern Ohio. TROY, MI (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - John Bernbach, president DDB Needham Worldwide, has announced the appointment of Bruce Duffey to executive creative director for the DDB Needham Detroit office in Troy, effective Jan. 14, 1991.

Formerly senior vice president, group creative director at DDB Needham Chicago Duffey will oversee the entire creative operation in the Detroit office which services over 30 automotive and general accounts on a local and regional basis.

In his new position as executive creative director, Duffey becomes part of a three-person executive committee consisting of Philippe Defechereux, executive vice president, director of automotive accounts, and Peter J. Farago, senior vice president, who in addition to overseeing the general account group, is also director of business development, finance and administration. The executive committee will report directly to Bernbach.

The appointment of Duffey to Detroit paves the way for the shifting of Volkswagen national creative from New York to the Detroit office. As a result, all strategic creative development, planning and execution will take place in the Detroit office which is located across from Volkswagen of America headquarters in Troy.

Commenting on Duffey's appointment, Ernest Baker, chairman of the executive committee, stated, "Bruce Duffey's arrival completes the coming together of the new DDB Needham Detroit office." Earlier in the fall, DDB Needham Detroit acquired Baker Advertising, Inc., from Ernest Baker, chairman and owner. "He is the essential spoke in the wheel that will drive our creative force and push DDB Needham to the top in the Detroit area," Baker added.

In addition to complementing the Baker acquisition, Duffey's arrival further fortifies DDB Needham's plan to accelerate the growth of new accounts and billings in the Detroit office. "Bruce's creative efforts and skill will play an integral role in the agency's new business team which developed after the Baker acquisition and is really moving ahead with an aggressive menu for 1991 " Farago added.

The stronger creative role will also help to enhance DDB Needham's presence in the Detroit market as a full service agency which has experience in automotive and virtually every product or service category.

Duffey, a frequent Clio and Addy award winner, joined DDB Needham Chicago in 1986 and was responsible for directing the creative on Anheuser Busch, Natural Light, Banquet Frozen Foods, Gallery of Homes, State Farm, General Mills, National Dairy Board, and the USO. He served on the creative staffs of leading advertising agencies in the Midwest for over 18 years. He will relocate to the metro Detroit area in January with his wife and two children.

DDB Needham Worldwide is a wholly owned subsidiary of Omnicom Group, Inc. and has 93 offices in 38 countries on five continents. In addition to Volkswagen United States, Inc. and Audi of America, Inc., the agency handles a variety of non-automotive accounts including, Standard Federal Bank, the Michigan Department of Commerce, Stanley Home Automation and Century 21.

DETROIT (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T has extended for three months its free-for-life charter membership plan for holders of the AT&T Universal Card.

The extension will enable people who have not yet applied to join more than seven million customers who are using their AT&T Universal Cards for shopping, dining, travel, and discounts on long-distance calls.

Charter members of the AT&T Universal Card - issued by Universal Bank of Columbus, Ga. - pay no annual fees for the rest of their lives, as long as they sign up for the card within the charter membership period and use it as they normally would a MasterCard or VISA card, for a purchase at least once a year.

When launching the AT&T Universal Card last March 26, AT&T and Universal Bank had said the charter membership period would last through Dec. 31. The deadline has now been extended through the one-year anniversary of the AT&T Universal Card - March 26, 1991.

"We're delighted to continue offering the card that has set records in the credit card industry in less than a year," said Paul Kahn, president, AT&T Universal Card Services Corp. "This is our way to say 'thanks' to consumers who have voted loudly and clearly that we're offering a combination of quality value and service that's been missing in the bank card industry.

"Extending charter membership will allow even more consumers to take advantage of a unique and innovative card that comes with no annual fee for life - and during our research, consumers were most vocal about their dislike of annual fees associated with bank credit cards."

Kahn said a decision has not been made on any annual fee consumers might pay when signing up for the card after March 26, 1991, and that an announcement would not be forthcoming until early next year.

AT&T said the response to its AT&T Universal Card continues to exceed all expectations. In eight months, more than four million AT&T Universal Card accounts have been opened.

Card members have used their cards to charge more than $3.3 billion in goods and services, and receivables stand at more than $1.3 billion. With more than 6.8 million cards in circulation, the AT&T Universal Card has quickly become the fifth-most-popular bank credit card in the country.

"Consumers have made it clear they want simple, basic, reliable products at a fair price," Kahn said. "They want quality and service they can count on ... and no gimmicks. We've shown we provide that."

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Astrotech International Corporation (AMEX: AIX) today reported net income of $1,024,000 on revenues of $26.4 million for the year ended Sept. 30, 1990. This compares with a net loss of $505,000 on revenues of $12.8 million for the prior year.

These results include, from the respective dates of acquisition, operating results of HMT Inc., which was acquired in February 1989 and AKI Systems, Inc. acquired in December 1989.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Astrotech reported net income of $249,000 on revenues of $7.8 million, compared to a net loss of $670,000 on revenues of $5.8 million for the comparable quarter a year ago. Last year's results were adversely impacted by an unusual charge of $742,000, recorded in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

The company's HMT Inc. subsidiary provides specialized construction services and related products for the maintenance or modification of large aboveground storage tanks for petroleum and petrochemical products at refineries, storage terminals and pipeline facilities. These services and products enable its customers to comply with increasingly stringent environmental regulations and to improve operating efficiencies.

"Our industry has experienced increasing growth due to awareness and concern for protection of the environment, and the need to comply with stringent environmental regulations," S. Kent Rockwell, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive said.

"Consequently, we expect our market segment to continue its growth throughout the coming year, because of significant expenditures by the petroleum and petrochemical industry to address federal, state and local environmental regulations and to make their operations more efficient."

"In keeping with our business strategy, we acquired AKI Systems during fiscal 1990," Rockwell said. "AKI Systems is a specialty designer and fabricator of portable vapor incineration equipment used to remove contaminates from the soil and in degassing aboveground storage tanks. This acquisition compliments the products and services we provide to our market segment."

Rockwell added, "We remain confident about the future growth prospects for our business and are continuing our review of other potential acquisition candidates to further augment our business strategy."

Astrotech also announced that its board of directors has declared a cash dividend of $0.30 per share on its $1.20 cumulative convertible preferred stock for the first quarter of fiscal 1991. This cash dividend is payable on Dec. 31, 1990, to holder of record on Dec. 24, 1990.

KALAMAZOO, MI (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Manatron, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: MANA) today announced results for the second quarter and six months ended Oct. 31, 1990. The company said the quarter's flat revenues were affected by the focus of its municipal customers on the November 1990 elections.

The company reported revenues of $2,035,782 for the quarter just ended compared to $2,043,808 in the year earlier quarter. Operating loss was $25,992, vs. a $9,665 operating profit. Net income was $9,222, nil cents a share, vs. $37,915, or 2 cents a share.

For the half, revenues were $4,165,001 vs. $4,135,929. Operating income was $24,631, compared to a loss of $11,356 in the year-earlier half. Net income was $106,039, or 5 cents a share, compared to $74,149, or 4 cents a share.

There were approximately 2.1 million weighted average shares outstanding in all reporting periods.

"Municipal purchasing decisions are usually postponed during an election period, which affected sales growth in the second quarter," said Allen Peat, chairman. "We did have several sales of one of our newest products -- MIRRS, the Manatron Indexing, Recording and Retrieval System -- including the first two in Indiana. We also completed a good-sized mapping and permit installation in Tuolumne County, Calif.

"We also increased gross profit margin to 49 percent from 48 percent and 45 percent in last year's quarter and half respectively. Net income was down slightly because of higher operating expenses, as payroll costs have increased somewhat and we continue to invest in our advertising and marketing programs."

"Our balance sheet remains rock solid with working capital of $4.4 million on Oct. 31, up from $4.2 million on April 30. Book value per share stands at $2.79, higher than today's stock price which we believe represents an opportunity for the long-term investor," Peat said.

Manatron designs, markets, installs and maintains advanced computer- based turnkey data processing systems for local governments, using its own specialized proprietary software and hardware from leading manufacturers.

(MANA) broke ground today for a new $9 million facility, which will house two Mazda subsidiaries, Mazda Systems Services of North America, Inc. (MSS) and Mazda Research and Development of North America, Inc. (MRA). The new facility in Flat Rock will be located adjacent to Mazda Motor Manufacturing (USA) Corporation (MMUC).

State Sen. Christopher Dingell, state Rep. Vincent Porreca, Flat Rock Mayor Richard Jones and several other Flat Rock city officials were among those in attendance at the ceremony.

When completed, the new 65,640-square-foot, two-story building will provide office spaces for both MSS and MRA. Currently, both functions are housed in MMUC's administration building.

MSS was established on Oct. 1, 1990, to consolidate current information systems functions and provide data processing, computer systems development and information systems consulting services to Mazda's manufacturing, research and development, and distribution functions. MSS is headed by Yoji Toyama, president of MANA, who serves as president of the new company in addition to his current duties.

MSS currently employs 43 people, and will increase the number of employees to approximately 60 by the end of 1991.

In September, MRA completed installation and began operations in Flat Rock of its first local parts testing facilities in the United States. The offices in the new building will serve as an engineering center for MRA's new local parts development capabilities.

MRA currently employs more than 50 people in Flat Rock, for operations of local parts development and testing. The number of employees who engage in local parts development and testing could grow to approximately 100 within the next several years.

MRA, with its headquarters in Irvine, Calif., also has a research and development center in Ann Arbor.

BASKING RIDGE, NJ (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - NYCOR, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: NYCO) announced that stockholders of the company today approved the previously announced proposal to create and issue a new class of stock to enhance NYCOR's ability to make larger acquisitions. The company's primary objective is to acquire and operate underperforming manufacturing operations.

The new class of stock, Class A stock, is expected to begin trading in the NASDAQ National Market System on a "when-issued" basis within the next 10 days under the symbol NYCAV. The symbol will become NYCOA when the shares begin trading "regular way."

The Class A stock will be issued in connection with the stockholder- approved subdivision and change of the outstanding shares of common and Class B stock, which will have the effect of a one-for-two reverse stock split.

Each currently outstanding share of common stock will be subdivided and changed into one-fourth share of common stock and one-fourth share of Class A stock. Similarly, each outstanding share of Class B stock will be subdivided and changed into one-fourth share of Class B stock and one-fourth share of Class A stock.

The new Class A stock will have rights, including dividend rights, substantially identical to the common stock, except that the Class A stock will not be entitled to vote except to the extent provided under Delaware law. The Class A stock automatically will be converted into common stock whenever all of the NYCOR Class B stock converts into common stock.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Medtronic, Inc. (NYSE: MDT) said today that an electronic component problem has caused a brief interruption in clinical studies of a new device designed to control too-rapid heartbeat.

Manufacturing and implanting of the PCD(TM) (pacemaker-cardioverter-defibrillator) were temporarily suspended as the company identified and corrected a problem related to the vendor-supplied component. The problem does not involve design of the device. Manufacturing of devices that are free of this problem has resumed and devices are expected to be available for clinical implants again sometime in January.

There have been no adverse patient outcomes, and the nature of the problem allows patients potentially at risk to be managed effectively with periodic monitoring by their physicians.

Regulatory authorities and all clinical investigators have been informed.

HOUSTON (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - VAALCO Energy Inc. announces that its wholly owned subsidiary, Alcorn (Production) Philippines, Inc., has completed drillstem test (DST) number two in the West Linapacan-1 exploration well.

DST-2 was conducted through 50 feet of perforations over the intervals 5490-5520 and 5530-5550 feet. The test flowed at a stabilized rate of 5051 barrels of oil per day (BOPD) with a maximum rate of 6,708 BOPD, through a 48/64 inch choke. Surface flowing pressure was 582 psi, oil 30.1 degree API gravity, and gas-oil ratio of 324 cubic feet/barrel.

One additional DST will be run prior to temporarily suspending the well. The combination of the results of these tests will be utilized to calculate estimated original crude oil in place and ultimate barrels recoverable.

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Subaru of America (NASDAQ: SBRU) announced today that it will conduct a voluntary recall of approximately 103,000 vehicles to check for possible loose screws in front door latches and loose linkage in the defroster system.

The models affected include certain 1990 and '91 Legacy vehicles which have been determined by their vehicle identification numbers.

In the affected vehicles, some front door latch screws may become loose, possibly causing difficulty in opening the door. In addition, a pin on the defroster shutter linkage can become dislocated, which could prevent the defroster function from operating.

All owners of affected vehicles are being notified by mail and asked to bring their car to any authorized Subaru dealer. At no cost to the owner, the door latch screws will be replaced with modified "lock-tight" screws, and a retainer bracket will be installed on the defroster lever. All Subaru dealers have been provided with the necessary parts and installation instructions.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Coldwell Banker Commercial Group, the nation's largest commercial real estate services firm, today announced the expansion of its investment services activities by reorganizing its Real Estate Investment Banking Group.

The action, which followed an extensive review by senior management at Coldwell Banker Commercial, was taken in response to fundamental changes occurring in the financial and commercial real estate markets.

"The shift from a 'seller's market' to a 'buyer's market'; a withdrawal of credit from the market affecting both debt and equity sales; the window of opportunity created by the surplus of properties in the market, and an increased level of sophisticated competition have created a real need for a coordinated approach to the financing and investment business throughout our company," said James J. Didion, chairman and chief executive officer.

The reorganized Real Estate Investment Banking Group will include the merger of the company's mortgage banking operations in Los Angeles, San Francisco, and New York with the three investment banking offices in those cities, effective Jan. 1, 1991, Didion said.

John Stanfill and Harry Kelly will become co-managing directors of the consolidated Investment Banking Group. Stanfill, who has returned to the company following years of active involvement in real estate investment banking, will become president of the Equities Group, while Kelly will continue as president of Mortgage Banking.

Also reporting to Kelly will be mortgage origination operations outside Los Angeles and San Francisco and existing loan servicing activities, which will continue to function as currently organized and managed under the existing MBS structure.

In addition, the Investment Banking Group will expand its three offices and will recruit selected, experienced investment specialists from Coldwell Banker Commercial Real Estate Services and from other leading investment banking firms. The group also plans to recruit a number of senior level financial officers.

Coldwell Banker Commercial Group, headquartered in Los Angeles, is the nation's largest commercial real estate services firm, with 90 offices across the United States. Services provided by the company include commercial real estate brokerage and management, mortgage banking, appraisal services, real estate investment banking, capital management and portfolio disposition.

ARLINGTON, TEXAS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The heads of the three major unions representing employees at American Airlines met in a private luncheon meeting Wednesday to discuss the status of negotiations between the company's pilots and its management, the Allied Pilots Association announced today.

In attendance were Fred Vogel, president of the Allied Pilots Association, representing almost 9,000 pilots, Ed Koziatek, vice president, Air Transport Division of the Transport Workers Union, representing more than 30,000 mechanics and fleet service personnel, Cheryle Leon, president, and Sherri Cappello, vice president, of the Association of Professional Flight Attendants representing 18,000 members.

Vogel briefed the participants in a closed-door session about the pilots' latest contract offer to management. The pilots' contract has been amendable since Dec. 31, 1989, and both sides have been meeting under provisions of the Railway Labor Act, which also governs the airline industry. A federal mediator is currently in place to help both sides work through the negotiating process and reach an accord. If the mediator decides that the parties are too far apart and not moving toward a resolution, an impasse can be declared which allows both sides to seek self-help after a 30-day cooling off period expires. Traditional self-help usually takes the form of imposed work rules for management and a withdrawal of services, or strike, for the union.

Vogel declined to comment on the degree of progress that was being made at the bargaining table, but he did say that management negotiators were currently studying a counter-proposal to the offer which was presented by the pilot group last Friday.

"I know that both management and pilots would like to have this situation come to an amicable resolution as quickly as possible," Vogel said. "There's a buyer's market out there in the industry for routes, gates, planes, and even entire weak airlines, but management may not be able to take advantage of it until it settles this contract. I just hope they are not being penny wise and pound foolish."

The pilots' proposal asks for a contract commensurate with the airline's industry-leading profit picture. "The pilots have sacrificed for the last seven years to help make American the premier carrier in the United States," said Vogel. "It's just not fair that we created a superpower and get paid like a third-world nation."

NORTHVILLE, MI (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Guardian Industries Corp. has appointed Robert H. Gorlin, 45, as vice president and general counsel, effective immediately.

Gorlin has been serving as Guardian's general counsel since May 15, 1989, and his additional appointment as a corporate officer reflects the expansion of Guardian's legal staff and his added personal responsibilities.

Guardian President and CEO William Davidson said, "Bob Gorlin has made an excellent transition from his previous law practice to a manufacturing company such as Guardian. Guardian has been expanding aggressively on a worldwide basis in recent years and Bob has provided immediate and important contributions to these efforts, both as a key legal negotiator and as a key adviser on East European and Soviet business development."

Gorlin joined Guardian from the law firm of Dykema Gossett, headquartered in Detroit, where he was a partner. Gorlin was a specialist in the areas of antitrust and trade regulation, general commercial litigation and regulatory and administrative law. Since joining Guardian, Gorlin has directed an expansion of the in-house legal staff that reflects Guardian's growth in the international field as well as its overall expansion efforts.

Gorlin earned a J.D. in 1977 from the University of Michigan, where he was editor-in-chief of the Michigan Law Review. Gorlin also received a Ph.D. in Russian history from the University of Michigan in 1973 and a B.A. from Brooklyn College in 1966. He is fluent in Russian.

Gorlin is a member of the Michigan Bar and lives in Birmingham, Mich., with his three children, Andrew, 17; Stella, 12; and David, 9.

Guardian, founded in 1932, is a diversified manufacturer of flat glass and has been expanding aggressively throughout the world in recent years. Since 1988, Guardian has opened new glass plants in South Carolina, Luxembourg and Venezuela, and expects to inaugurate its Hungarian plant and commence construction of a plant in India in the first quarter of 1991.

The company currently operates 10 float glass production lines in the United States, Europe and South America. Guardian also has two pattern glass lines and extensive glass fabrication facilities in the United States, Canada and Europe.

Furthermore, Guardian has developed a variety of technological innovations in the automotive glass fabrication area that has led to recent additional investments in the United States to support the company's growing presence as a glass supplier to the U.S. automotive industry. The company also manufactures a broad line of fiberglass insulation products, molded plastic products, and oil-drilling equipment.

HIGHLAND PARK, MI. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Laurel Cutler, Chrysler's vice president - Consumer Affairs, has announced that she will retire from Chrysler effective Dec. 31, 1990, in order to devote full time to her duties as vice chairman of FCB/Leber Katz Partners in New York.

She is also worldwide director of Marketing Planning for Leber Katz's parent, Foote, Cone & Belding.

Cutler was elected to her current position at Chrysler Nov. 3, 1988, but had been a consultant to the company since 1985.

"I really feel that I accomplished, as a Chrysler employee, what I set out to do -- help focus management's attention on the consumer's perception of Chrysler and its products and assist with the development of brand advertising.

While at Chrysler, Cutler worked closely with the company's advertising agencies as well the Chrysler Youth Committee and Advisory Committee on the Women's Automotive Market. She reported to Bennett E. Bidwell, Chrysler Motors chairman, who is also retiring effective Dec. 31, 1990.

"Laurel was just what the doctor ordered," Bidwell said. "She got achance to get an inside look at Chrysler and then she gave us her observations on our marketing and advertising efforts and our relationship with our customers. We didn't always enjoy what we heard, but her opinions were classic Cutler -- candid, insightful and straightforward.

"Her understanding of the marketplace and her instincts for what consumers are thinking now and what they will be thinking years from now have been, and will continue to be, one of Chrysler's advantages," Bidwell added. "I know that she will continue to be a valuable resource for Ted Cunningham and John Damoose in the years ahead."

Recently, Cutler was named one of America's most powerful women by Ladies' Home Journal. She was also named Women in Management's "Woman of the Year" in 1987.

MARTINSVILLE, VA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - LADD Furniture, Inc.'s (NASDAQ-MNS: LADF) American of Martinsville Contract Division is one of 20 U.S. manufacturing companies which have been selected to participate in a new five-year U.S. Commerce Department program targeted at increasing American trade with Japan.

According to Commerce Secretary Robert A. Mosbacher, more that 120 U.S. corporations expressed interest in the program, and the 20 chosen to participate, "represent a broad cross-section of small, medium and large manufacturers from across the United States."

American of Martinsville, the leading U.S. producer of guest room (hotel/motel) furniture, is the only consumer goods manufacturer among the 20 participants selected by the Commerce Department.

American of Martinsville president Robert J. Maricich said, "We are delighted to have been chosen to participate in this new Japanese trade program. Our company has been working hard during the last several ears to develop new business in Japan, and we have enjoyed some initial early success with Japanese hotel ownership interests.

"We believe this new affiliation with the Commerce Department will help strengthen our efforts to successfully market American of Martinsville products within the large and growing Japanese economy."

Maricich added that, under the terms of the five-year program, American has agreed to publish its product literature in Japanese, participate in at least one Japanese trade show annually, visit Japan at least four times a year, and make appropriate product modifications for the Japanese market as necessary.

Headquartered in High Point, N.C., LADD is one of the largest U.S. producers of residential and contract furniture. In addition to American of Martinsville LADD's major brand names include American Drew, Barclay, Brown Jordan, Clayton Marcus, Daystrom, Design Horizons, Lea Industries and Pennsylvania House.

LADD also owns and operates two support companies - Lea Lumber & Plywood and LADD Transportation - and its stock is traded on the over-the-counter National Market System under the NASDAQ symbol LADF.

HOUSTON (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Sanifill Inc. (NYSE: FIL) has entered into letters of intent to acquire three disposal operations consisting of four disposal sites. Three of the disposal sites are permitted to receive municipal solid waste, and one is permitted to receive construction/demolition waste. One of the letters of intent is subject to a right of first refusal by a third party.

One of the operations owns a newly permitted site. The other two companies had combined unaudited disposal revenues of approximately $7 million and unaudited income before taxes of approximately $2,600,000 for their respective most recent fiscal years end.

Consideration will consist of cash and Sanifill common stock. Each of these proposal acquisitions is subject to the performance and satisfactory completion of extensive environmental due diligence and negotiation of final acquisition agreements. Thereafter, closings would occur in the first quarter of 1991.

Sanifill currently has outstanding letters of intent to acquire eight disposal businesses which own nine disposal facilities, including the three announced above.

HIGHLAND PARK, MICH (DEC. 14) PRWIRE - Chrysler Corporation (NYSE: C) announced today it had been informed that Kirk Kerkorian had acquired in excess of 9 percent of Chrysler's outstanding common stock.

Chrysler said that Kerkorian's stock purchase was not solicited by the company.

The company said that it had not yet received a Schedule 13D report by Kerkorian and would not comment on his motives for such an investment.

In addition, Chrysler's board of directors today adopted amendments to the company's share purchase rights plan.

The amendments reduce from 20 percent to 10 percent the threshold of beneficial ownership at which the rights "flip-in" -- that is, become exercisable to buy Chrysler stock at half-price. The rights plan now provides that if someone acquires beneficial ownership of 10 percent of Chrysler's common stock, each of the rights (other than those held by the 10 percent holder, which become void) entitles the holder, upon payment of the $120 exercise price, to buy Chrysler common stock having a market value (as defined in the rights plan) equal to twice the exercise price.

Prior to the amendments adopted today, the rights plan provided that, if someone acquired beneficial ownership of 10 percent or more of the company's common stock, the rights would flip in if Chrysler's directors determined that the acquirer was an "adverse person", and otherwise flipped in if someone acquired beneficial ownership of 20 percent of the company's common stock.

The amendments also add a provision that, if someone acquires 10 percent, but less than 50 percent, of the company's common stock, the board of directors may exchange each right (other than those held by the 10 percent holder) for one share of common stock.

The company said: "The amendments adopted today are intended to enhance the ability of Chrysler's board to act in the best interest of all the company's shareholders if someone should seek to obtain a position of control or substantial influence over Chrysler."

ROCKVILLE, MD (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Amgen Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: AMGN) announced that the Biological Response Modifiers Advisory Committee to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) today recommended that Amgen's recombinant granulocyte colony- stimulating factor (rG-CSF) be approved for the prevention of infections associated with cancer therapies used to treat nonmyeloid malignancies.

Clinical trials with recombinant G-CSF have shown it reduces the incidence of infection, as evidenced by febrile neutropenia (the condition characterized by fever and a dangerously low white blood cell count), which commonly occurs as a result of myelosuppressive chemotherapy. Myelosuppressive chemotherapy suppresses the production of infection-fighting white blood cells, placing cancer patients at an increased risk for potentially serious infections.

"The advisory committee's action today is a significant step toward commercialization of the product," said Amgen Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Gordon Binder. "We believe that Amgen's recombinant G-CSF will be an important adjunct to the treatment of cancer."

The product is one of a group of therapeutic proteins that regulate blood cell growth. G-CSF stimulates the production of neutrophils, the white blood cells that are the body's first line of defense against infection.

Of the approximately 1 million new cancer cases in the United States each year about 250,000 patients receive myelosuppressive chemotherapy. Cancer patients' frequent vulnerability to potentially life-threatening infections often requires hospitalization and treatment with intravenous antibiotics.

PITTSBURGH, (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Dravo Corp. (NYSE: DRV) today announced the election of John E. Dolan to its board of directors.

An engineering graduate of Columbia University, Dolan, 67, retired in 1988 as vice chairman, engineering and construction, of the American Electric Power Service Corp., the management, technology and service subsidiary of American Electric Power Co.

"During his distinguished career in the power industry, Mr. Dolan has been involved from both an engineering and management perspective in virtually all facets of steam-electric generating technology," commented Dravo Chairman William G. Roth. "His broad-based experience and technical insights will be of inestimable value to us, particularly as we intensify our efforts during the next several years to make the lime and limestone segments of our business as responsive as possible to the needs of coal-burning power plants impacted by the recently enacted federal Clean Air Act," Roth said.

A fellow of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and member of the National Academy of Engineering, Dolan joined American Electric Power Service Corp. in 1950, and during the intervening 38 years held a succession of increasingly responsible engineering and management positions. A registered professional engineer, Dolan also served as a director of American Electric Power Co. and a number of its subsidiaries.

ST. LOUIS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Jones Medical Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: JMED) today announced the resignation of Jerome F. Lowe, as vice president of Sales and Marketing, and as a director, effective Dec. 31, 1990. "After nine years of assisting JMED to grow from inception to nearly $20 million in annual sales, Mr. Lowe is leaving to pursue other business interests," said Dennis Jones, chairman and CEO.

Michael T. Bramblett has been employed to assume Lowe's duties as vice president of Marketing, to commence Jan. 1, 1991. Bramblett has been a member of Jones Medical's Board of Directors since 1987 and therefore has a thorough knowledge of the company's operations. He has an extensive business and marketing background and is coming to Jones Medical from Carlson Marketing Group where he has served as Marketing director since May 1988. He will continue to be a director.

Jerry Rose, Jones Medical vice president of Hospital Sales for the past 14 months, will become vice president of Sales of Jones Medical Jan. 1, 1991.

ST. LOUIS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Jones Medical Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: JMED) announced today that the company has received final FDA approval and release of an initial inventory of Thrombinar Sterile Spray Kits. This new package will be available for shipment Jan. 1, 1991, in 5,000-unit, 10,000-unit and 20,000-unit potencies. The 5,000-unit spray kit is exclusive to the company.

For several months, Jones Medical has been awaiting the final approval of Thrombinar Spray Kits, in order to gain a greater total market share. The company's principal competitor has a sterile spray kit on the market. A great deal of the growth, in the demand for Thrombin products, has been fulfilled with this new package concept. Jones Medical's management believes that Thrombinar will grow at a faster pace as a result of the imminent introduction of Thrombinar Sterile Spray Kits.

DOWNINGTOWN, PA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Chester Valley Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ: CVAL) announced today the repurchase of 100,000 shares of its stock at an average price of $8.15 per share.

Ellen Ann Roberts, president and chief executive officer of Chester Valley, stated, "Due to the depressed market in the price of bank stocks, this repurchase of our stock below what we believe to be its true value, and certainly below its September 30, 1990, book value of $15.20, will provide an excellent investment for the company and its shareholders."

Recently, First Financial Savings Bank, PaSA, the wholly owned subsidiary of Chester Valley, received two commendations for its achievement in performance as of June 30, 1990. Sheshenoff Information Services, which tracks thrifts throughout the nation, granted Chester Valley an "A" rating for excellence in performance as measured by capital adequacy, asset quality and earnings and liquidity. Based on similar criteria, the research firm of Bauer Financial Reports Inc. of Coral Gables, Fla., also awarded a five-star rating to Chester Valley and issued a news release to that effect. The award is based on Bauer's analysis of information reported about the company as filed with federal regulators and is granted to only the safest, most strongly capitalized savings associations in the country.

"It is encouraging," continued Roberts, "that Chester Valley has been recognized by these experts as one of the most credit-worthy savings associations in the United States. These findings further support our decision to invest in the company."

First Financial has been in existence for more than 68 years and is headquartered in Downingtown, with branch offices in Exton, Frazer, Thorndale and Westtown, Pa.

MT. PROSPECT, ILL. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Zenith Data Systems (ZDS), a Groupe Bull company, today appointed Philippe Ribeyre to the newly created position of vice president, product line management.

Ribeyre, a member of Groupe Bull's strategic planning organization for the past 2-1/2 years, will be responsible for determining product specifications, monitoring product development schedules and inventory levels, and forecasting. Ribeyre also will have responsibility for product pricing and profitability.

"By combining the responsibility for product definition and business planning into one organization, we will be able to speed decision-making and the time it takes to get products to market," said Carl A. Michelotti, ZDS president emeritus.

Ribeyre was involved in the decision to acquire ZDS as Groupe Bull's personal computer provider. His credentials include 10 years in marketing and product planning positions at Texas Instruments' European computer division in France, an engineering degree in computer science and a master's degree in business administration.

This new position was created as a result of the decision by Andrew Czernek, vice president of product development and strategy, to leave the company. An 11-year ZDS veteran, Czernek has expressed for some time an interest in taking time off "to recharge his batteries" and believes year-end is the right time for him to do so, Michelotti said.

ZDS also has increased the role of vice president of Engineering Mike Hakeem. Previously reporting to Czernek, Hakeem now reports directly to the president and CEO of ZDS. Hakeem's group will add the functions of a soon-to-be-appointed vice president, technology, who will be based in California.

ZDS is a leading manufacturer and marketer of portable and desktop microcomputers and monitors for single- and multi-user applications. With headquarters in Mount Prospect, Ill., and principal assembly operations in St. Joseph, Mich., ZDS has manufacturing and sales facilities in more than 30 countries.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - More than 600,000 personal-care products have been shipped to the U.S. Armed Forces stationed in the Middle East, Avon Products, Inc. announced today. The shipment will be handled through the Defense Logistics Agency on behalf of Operation Desert Shield.

Avon's donation includes 500,000 sun-protection products from the company's popular Sun Seekers line and, appropriately, 100,000 On Duty 24 Plus anti-perspirants. As the world's largest company of women selling to women, the cosmetics giant also will provide 11,000 holiday "care packages" -- talcs, lotions and soaps -- for each of the 11,000 servicewomen stationed in the region.

"Families have always been an important part of our Avon tradition," said James E. Preston, Avon's chairman and chief executive officer. "Dozen's of Avon's corporate employees and U.S. sales representatives have called and written to express their interest in supporting the troops. We shared their concern and wanted to help.

The bulk of the products can be enjoyed by all of the troops," he said. "But we also wanted to do something special to show the servicewomen how proud we are of their efforts. All of us at Avon wish our servicemen and servicewomen a safe and speedy return home."

MINNEAPOLIS/ST. PAUL, MN (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Angeion Corporation (NASDAQ: ANGN) reported sales of $1,252,196 for the first quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, a 13-percent increase over sales of $1,106,967 for the first quarter in fiscal 1989.

Increased expenses relating to Angeion's research and development resulted in a loss of $203,583, or $.02 per share, for the first quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990. This compared to a profit of $1,684, or $.00 per share, for the first quarter ended Oct. 31, 1989.

Expenses were attributed to Angeion's subsidiary, AngeLase, Inc., and its research and development (R&D) of a product for the nonsurgical cure of arrhythmia. The development of the AngeLase catheter is moving forward ahead of schedule.

"I'm pleased with our overall performance for the first quarter," said Wendell L. King, chairman and CEO. "We finished the quarter on plan in terms of revenues and slightly above plan on earnings, which means we lost less money this quarter than we had planned.

"The first quarter included a number of significant accomplishments," noted King. "We established a subsidiary, AngeLase, Inc., to assume all responsibility for our major research and development focus, a nonsurgical cure for arrhythmia." He cited these other accomplishments: the company's restructuring attracted outside investment commitments; two patent applications, with broad coverage for the arrhythmia catheter technology, were allowed by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office; a new chief operating officer was hired; and a board of directors was established for AngeLase, Inc. The company also began negotiations for the acquisition of XMED, a research-and-development company targeting the automatic implantable defibrillator market.

Minneapolis-based Angeion Corporation is a manufacturer of cardiovascular products. Its subsidiary, AngeLase, Inc., is currently engaged in the research and development of a catheter which would provide a nonsurgical cure for arrhythmia.

Angeion also recently signed a letter of intent to purchase XMED, a research-and-development company which is developing products for the automatic implantable defibrillator market. Angeion's current core business is centered on the angioplasty accessory market.

In addition to Angeion's NASDAQ listing under the symbol ANGN, Angeion is also traded on the Boston Stock Exchange under the symbol ANI.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Pfizer Inc (NYSE: PFE) announced today that it completed the sale of its citric acid business to Archer- Daniels-Midland Company (NYSE: ADM) of Decatur, Ill. Pfizer will report a small gain on the transaction in 1990.

Citric acid is the premier acidulant in the food and beverage industries and is widely used in pharmaceuticals, laundry detergents and various industrial applications.

The citric acid manufacturing facilities involved are in Southport, N.C. and Ringaskiddy, Ireland. The site in Ireland is shared with a Pfizer pharmaceutical production facility, which Pfizer will continue to own and operate. More than 500 people are employed at these locations. A number of sales and marketing people in North America and Europe will also transfer to ADM.

"For more than 100 years Pfizer has been a leader in citric acid production," said Pfizer chairman Edmund T. Pratt, Jr. "It was a difficult decision to sell, but we believe the business and its people will have a better opportunity under today's circumstances with ADM.

"With ADM," Pratt continued, "the citric acid business is an excellent fit. Pfizer's citric technology and experienced people, combined with ADM's access to key raw materials and extensive experience with similar products, promise to serve the best interests of employees and customers. Pfizer will continue to be a premier supplier of food ingredients and other specialty chemicals."

Pfizer Inc is a diversified, research-based health care company with businesses in pharmaceuticals, hospital products, consumer products, animal health, specialty chemicals and specialty minerals. The company reported sales of approximately $5.7 billion and a net income of $681 million for 1989.

MIAMI, (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The recently unsealed affidavit of Investigator Valenti reveals that the U.S. Attorney's office in Brooklyn is broadening its investigation of Eastern's maintenance practices to include a variety of pre-strike allegations of records falsification at Atlanta, as well as certain post-strike allegations of records falsification at Miami and Atlanta. Based on the results of Eastern's own investigation into those allegations which were sufficiently specific to investigate (several of which were also investigated by the FAA), Eastern is confident that the Grand Jury will agree, after conducting its own analysis of the evidence, that the charges contained in the affidavit are without merit.

Incredibly, when it conducted its search of Eastern's premises on Dec. 1, 1990 the U.S. Attorney's office only seized original logbooks for one of the four post-strike incidents referenced in the affidavit. Eastern believes this only confirms that the U.S. Attorney's office was indeed on a fishing expedition when it conducted that search.

Eastern would also point out that the FAA continues its extremely high level of surveillance of the company's operations. In fact, the FAA's most recent inspections revealed that Eastern was safe and that there was no evidence to suggest that maintenance records were being falsified. In addition, many FAA officials and their families fly Eastern frequently, a fact which Eastern believes reflects the agency's confidence in the safety of its operations.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Empire Savings Bank, S.L.A., of Hammonton, N.J., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, Empire Savings Bank, FSB, will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the oversight of the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The takeover did not result in any interruption of Empire's day-to-day operations. The institution and its five branch offices will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Empire was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition in that it had insufficient capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

Empire's condition is due primarily to poor asset quality resulting from management's unsafe and unsound lending practices, and to a deteriorating local real estate market. As a result of asset deterioration, Empire incurred net losses of $8.4 million for the nine-month period ending Sept. 30, 1990, or 5.1 percent of the thrift's total assets.

More than 40 percent of Empire's loans are in high-risk categories, such as speculative acquisition, development and construction loans that are poorly documented and poorly underwritten. As of Sept. 30, delinquent loans totaled $22.2 million, or 10 percent of assets.

Empire was a state-chartered stock association that was a wholly owned subsidiary of Empire Financial Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: EMPR). Shareholders will retain no interest in the new institution.

As of Sept. 30, 1990, Empire reported assets of $219.3 million, liabilities of $218.2 million and tangible capital of $299,000, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of 0.14 percent.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Williams Industries, Incorporated (NASDAQ-NMS: WMSI) reported today that its first quarter, which ended Oct. 31, 1990, produced a loss of $249,529, or 10 cents per share, on revenues of $23,137,353. For the corresponding quarter last year, net profits were $743,098, or 31 cents per share, on revenues of $32,365,513.

Frank E. Williams Jr., chairman of the board, said the 28 percent decrease in revenues from the same quarter last year reflects the drastic drop in the availability of commercial construction work during the past few months, delays in commencement of a number of the company's construction contracts, and the company's previously announced program of integration and curtailment of certain operations. He noted that while consolidated backlog of work on hand is $59 million as compared to $65 million a year ago, bidding on highway, governmental and institutional work is strong and should offset some of the decline in commercial construction work.

Williams stated that the company continues to aggressively pursue its programs of reducing debt by sale of certain assets and cutting operating expenses through further consolidations of some subsidiary companies. He expects an improvement in operating results in the fiscal second quarter and return to profitability during the third and fourth fiscal quarters.

BALTIMORE (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Following is the R.O.C. Taiwan Fund (NYSE: ROC) monthly update:

Overview - the Taiwan Market:

- As the oldest and largest mutual fund specifically set up for international investment in the Taiwan stock market, The R.O.C. Taiwan Fund offers a convenient and efficient way to participate in one of the strongest markets in the world.

- The Taiwan Stock Exchange (TSE) index rose from 549.55 at the beginning of 1980 to 9624.18 by the end of 1989. During the same period, listed companies expanded from 96 to 181 as market capitalization increased from $5 billion to $236 billion.

Market Environment - November 1990:

The Taiwan Stock Exchange index gained 31.9 percent in November. This performance follows the 22.7 percent increase in October and is the biggest monthly advance since September 1987. In one big rally from Nov. 9-23, the market rose on ten of 11 trading sessions.

During this period, the index went up 41.9 percent to its high for the month of 4926, almost doubling from the year's low of 2560 on Oct. 1. The market then fell on four of the next six trading days, with the index finishing the month at 4377.

Besides the lack of negative news in the Middle East, the sharp run-up in share prices reflects both the continuing effect of increased liquidity since the central bank eased its tight monetary policy a few months ago and the highly speculative nature of the market in the absence of strong fundamentals. These factors are reflected in the heavy trading during the month.

The average daily volume of 1.53 billion shares set a new record, surpassing the previous high of 1.25 billion in February when the market peaked. Very short-term trading made up much of the activity; some analysts estimate that illegal "wash sales" often accounted for as much as 50 percent of trading.

In November, pressure on the local currency to appreciate also added more liquidity to the system. Foreign exchange trading was the heaviest since June as manufacturers rushed to convert export earnings and speculators dumped U.S. dollar holdings.

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - MSR Exploration Ltd. announced today that its board of directors has approved and the company has completed the purchase of all of the outstanding shares of Houston Petroleum Company of Houston.

Houston Petroleum is a privately held company which has been in continuous operation since 1961. It is an oil and gas exploration and production company which operates primarily within the upper Texas Gulf Coast. Its reserves are located within the Prolific Frio, Yegua-Wilcox Trends, Southern East Texas Basin and along the Mexia-Talco Fault Trend of Central Texas. The company's independent petroleum consultants, Gruy Engineering Corporation, estimates that Houston Petroleum's proved discounted reserves exceed $8.7 million, its probable discounted reserves $23.2 million, and its possible discounted reserves $51.9 million.

The board of directors of MSR believes that this acquisition will increase its revenues and cash flow based on Houston's 25,000 gross acres under lease, its workover potential and its highly experienced team of oil finders.

The transaction which approximated $4.8 million was a stock for stock exchange; and $650,000 of the $4.8 million was advanced to Houston Petroleum as part thereof.

MSR Exploration Ltd. is an oil and gas production company and is listed and traded on the American Stock Exchange under the symbol MSR.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Jetronic Industries, Inc. (AMEX: JET) today reported a net loss for its third quarter, ended Oct. 31, 1990, of $80,000, or 3 cents per share, compared to net earnings of $24,000, or 1 cent per share, for the third period last year. Revenues for the quarter were $10,010,000 compared to $10,665,000 a year ago.

For the nine months, revenues were $31,174,000 compared to $33,614,000 in the same period last year. The net loss for the nine months amounted to $109,000, or 4 cents per share, vs. net income of $88,000, or 4 cents per share, in last year's initial nine months.

According to Daniel R. Kursman, chairman and president of Jetronic, the third quarter loss was mainly the result of reduced revenues in two of the company's operations.

"The decrease in sales and earnings for the year to date in the electronic communication and navigation equipment operations is primarily attributable to a decrease in revenues of delivered units under U.S. government contracts," said Kursman. Revenues in the third quarter of the marine electronic business were impacted by the general softness in the marine market, which had not affected operations in earlier fiscal periods.

"At this time, we anticipate receiving additional U.S. government contracts for the engineering, production and delivery of electronic communication equipment next fiscal year," Kursman said.

"Our energy conversion products group also reported lower revenues and operating profits due to a slowdown in switchgear and controls orders and military contract business," he added.

"The increase in revenues and earnings for the year to date at the company's retail furniture and appliance operation reflect increased consumer traffic in our two furniture stores, which have been spurred by effective advertising campaigns," said the Jetronic chief executive.

Jetronic Industries, Inc. is a diversified company engaged in the design and manufacture of electronic devices, marine and energy conversion products and retail sales of furniture and major appliances.

READING, PA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Donald K. Wilson Jr. today was elected to the board of Gilbert Associates Inc. (NASDAQ: GILBA).

Wilson, 55, is executive vice president of The Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection and Insurance Co., responsible for the Marketing Department.

Gilbert Chairman and President Alexander F. Smith said Wilson's election "brings to the board nearly 30 years of broad experience in markets very similar to those served by GAI." Hartford Steam Boiler is engaged in insurance underwriting, investments and engineering. The company's engineering operations are centered in the areas of boiler inspection, process and environmental control, environmental health and safety, and hazardous waste management.

Wilson joined Hartford Steam Boiler in 1962 as a special agent in the Philadelphia branch office. Following a number of promotions in marketing and underwriting, he was elected an assistant vice president in 1970. In 1971, he became vice president of marketing and branch office administration; in 1985, senior vice president, and in 1988, executive vice president.

He is a director of The Boiler Inspection and Insurance Company of Canada, a company of Hartford Steam Boiler, and is also on the board of the American Insurance Association.

Active in community affairs, Wilson is president of the board of trustees of Watkinson School, a member of the board of trustees of the Bushnell Park Foundation and a director of Junior Achievement of North Central Connecticut.

A graduate of Georgetown University, he served as an officer in the U.S. Navy from 1958 to 1962. Wilson resides in Glastonbury, Conn.

Gilbert is the parent company of Gilbert/Commonwealth, a leading supplier of consulting engineering; United Energy Services, which provides operational services primarily to operators of power generating facilities; Resource Consultants, a defense services company; GAI- Tronics, a supplier of specialized communications systems, and Green Hills Management Co., a real estate development unit.

ROCHESTER, NY (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastman Kodak Company (NYSE: EK) today announced the formation of a Commercial Imaging Group responsible for commercial sales of information products and systems marketed worldwide by Kodak and within this group, an Electronic Imaging organization where capabilities critical to new imaging directions will be housed.

Formation of the new Commercial Imaging Group (CIG) places responsibility for Information Segment operations and results within one organization instead of two (the Commercial Systems and the Imaging Information Systems Groups formed in 1989). Allied units, such as customer service and support operations, are also lodged within CIG.

The Electronic Imaging (EI) organization will house core product platforms and manufacturing capabilities critical to Kodak's current and future thrusts in the worldwide imaging business. EI comprises the Kodak Apparatus Division, the company's steward for high-volume manufacturing, the Government Systems Division, and units that supply proprietary technology and products to other Kodak business units for image capture, processing, storage and printing. Additionally, the organization will develop indirect markets -- such as the original-equipment-manufacturer channel -- for its core products. The EI organization will report to the Commercial Imaging Group, from which it will receive staff and commercial sales support.

"By forming the Commercial Imaging Group, we will not only enhance the cohesiveness of our research, product development and manufacturing efforts, but we also will intensify our focus on customers," said Kay R. Whitmore, Kodak chairman, president and chief executive officer.

"As the Commercial Imaging Group clarifies and identifies customer needs, we can link those needs more directly than at any time in the past to product development and other activities within the Electronic Imaging organization. EI also will provide electronic imaging solutions and technology to meet the needs of customers served by units of the Photographic Products Group and the Health Group."

SPECIFIC COMPONENTS The Commercial Imaging Group consists of the Copy Products Division, Graphics Imaging Systems Division, Business Imaging Systems Division, Customer Equipment Services Division, Support Operations, the Information Segment marketing operation (formerly Imaging Information Systems marketing), and staff organizations currently supporting the segment. The company named Frank P. Strong Jr. general manager, Commercial Imaging Group; he currently is a company group vice-president and general manager, Commercial Systems.

The Electronic Imaging organization comprises the Government Systems Division, Image Acquisition Products Division, Integration and Systems Products Division Kodak Apparatus Division, Mass Memory Division, Printer Products Division and the Electronic Imaging Research Labs (formerly called the Imaging Information Systems Research Labs). Lawrence J. Matteson was elected a senior vice-president and appointed general manager, Electronic Imaging organization; he currently is group vice-president and general manager, Imaging Information Systems.

"We view this realignment as the logical next step toward our long- range strategy to be the world's best in imaging," Whitmore said.

PALMERTON, PA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Horsehead Resource Development Co., Inc. (NASDAQ: HHRD), and Memtek Corporation (BOSTON: MTK.B) of Billerica, Mass., jointly announced today that the two companies signed a letter of intent for the acquisition of Memtek Corporation (Memtek) by Horsehead Resource Development Co., Inc. (HRD).

The proposed acquisition in which HRD intends to acquire all of the outstanding stock of Memtek for cash is subject to the signing of a definitive agreement, the approval of the respective boards of directors of HRD and Memtek and the approval of Memtek shareholders. The proposed transaction is based on a purchase price which Memtek currently estimates would result in an aggregate payment to Memtek stockholders of approximately $1.5 million, subject to reduction in certain circumstances. HRD has also agreed to provide limited credit facilities to Memtek until closing of the proposed acquisition.

The joint announcement was made by James H. Davis, president and CEO of HRD, and Robert Birch, chairman and president of Memtek. They indicated that, "We are very pleased with the prospect of combining our respective technological and marketing strengths. This acquisition will significantly broaden the range of environmental services which either company currently provides. It will substantially increase both access and distribution to the wastewater and ground water treatment markets for the Ecosorb(R) products of HRD. The acquisition will also provide HRD with enhanced access to inorganic metal-bearing sludge generators for the recovery of products such as copper through its high temperature metals recovery (HTMR) technologies -- an estimated market in excess of $100 million. Memtek's diverse physicochemical technology for metals-contaminated wastewater treatment also provides systems and equipment that can be marketed through HRD's international joint venture affiliations. HRD's strong financial condition will increase Memtek's ability to respond to opportunities in the wastewater treatment market. Each organization brings strong technology, engineering and product capabilities to the combined entity."

HRD is an environmental service company and the industry leader in hazardous waste resource recovery through the recycling of electric arc furnace dust for the recovery of zinc and other useful products.

HRD recently introduced Ecosorb systems to the market as a product for the removal of certain heavy metals from industrial wastewater and ground water.

Memtek is a leading provider of advanced wastewater treatment systems for assured performance. In particular, Memtek offers membrane filtration systems an components as well as in exchange/electrolytic recovery systems for metals-contaminated industrial wastewater. Its revenue from the fiscal year ending March 31, 1990 was $8.6 million. HRD intends to operate Memtek as a subsidiary, with Birch remaining as president.

STAMFORD, CT. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - FAG Finance Corporation announced today that it had extended its previously announced tender offer for all shares of common stock of The Barden Corporation (NASDAQ: BARD). The tender offer had been set to expire at 5 p.m., New York City time, on Friday, Dec. 14, 1990. As a result of today's extension, the tender offer and withdrawal rights thereunder will now expire at 6 p.m., New York City time, on Thursday, Dec. 20 1990. FAG Finance Corporation is a corporation formed by FAG Bearings Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of FAG Kugelfischer Georg Schaefer KGaA.

FAG Finance stated that the Barden tender offer was being extended to permit the conditions to the tender offer, including the expiration of the waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act, to be satisfied.

FAG Finance stated that on Dec. 6, 1990, Barden delivered to FAG Bearings Corporation the "negative declarations" required by the Connecticut Environmental Transfer Law with respect to each property owned, leased or operated by Barden in Connecticut.

FAG Finance stated that it had been advised by The First National Bank of Boston, the depositary for the offer, that as of the close of business on Dec. 13, 1990, 1,066,545 shares of common stock had been tendered and not withdrawn.

ST. LOUIS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) today announced it has signed a new one-year revolving credit agreement for $750 million with 21 leading United States and international banks. The new agreement replaces $710 million of committed credit lines that expired last month.

"The fact that this agreement was heavily oversubscribed reflects the banks' continued confidence in McDonnell Douglas," said Herbert J. Lanese, the company's senior vice president-finance.

"This agreement provides us with the resources we need to continue investment in MD-11 inventory during delivery rate buildup," Lanese said.

"Several of our major programs are beginning to make the transition from investment-intensive development to revenue- generating production," he said. "Deliveries of the MD-11 will accelerate in the coming year now that the new wide-cabin trijet has received certification. Completion of the first C-17 will occur next week, leading to release of funds for continued production."

The new agreement is in addition to McDonnell Douglas' two multi- year revolving credit agreements totalling $1.4 billion that were renegotiated in May.

Of the 21 banks participating in the new agreement, 10 are new to McDonnell Douglas' group of revolving credit banks.

Acting as co-agents for the new agreement are: Amsterdam- Rotterdam Bank

N.V.; Bankers Trust Company; Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, The Chase Manhattan Bank (National Association); Citibank, N.A.; The First National Bank of Chicago; and Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York. The Bank of New York and Barclays Bank PLC are lead managers.

The other participating banks are: Banca Commerciale Italiana; Banco di Roma S.P.A.; Banque Nationale de Paris; First Interstate Bank of California; Mercantile Bank of St. Louis N.A.; The National Commercial Bank; The Nippon Credit Bank, Ltd; Osterreichische Landerbank, A.G.; State Bank of South Australia; The Sumitomo Bank, Ltd.; Union Bank; and Westpac Banking Corp.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Value Line, Inc. (NASDAQ: VALU) reported earnings for the second fiscal quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 or $2,679,000 or 27 cents per share as compared with $4,622,000 or 46 cents per share for the corresponding quarter of the previous year. Earnings for the first six months of the current fiscal year were $7,544,000 or 76 cents per share as compared with $3,695,000 or 37 cents per share in the corresponding period of the previous year.

In announcing these results, Jean Bernhard Buttner, Value Line's chairman and chief executive officer commented, "In a difficult market environment highlighted by economic uncertainty and stock prices which have declined significantly, our revenues are holding up well. Indeed, revenues from our publications, particularly the Value Line Investment Survey, have increased from the levels of a year ago. Operating income has declined during the second quarter from the previous year's levels, substantially because of the planned increase in advertising and promotion efforts during the current quarter which have returned more than their cost. Because of the way we account for revenues, most of this increased revenue will not be reflected until next year."

Value Line, Inc. is a major New York based investment advisory and money management firm. The Value Line Investment Survey is the nations's largest independent advisory service. In addition, the firm provides other financial advisory services which are produced in both printed and electronic form. Value Line also provides investment management services to the Value Line family of 12 no-load mutual funds and to institutional and individual portfolios through its asset management division.

YOUNGSTOWN, OH (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Commercial Intertech (NASDAQ: CTEK) today reported record sales for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1990. Fourth quarter sales were $127,446,000, up 10 percent from the $115,817,000 reported in fiscal 1989. Sales for the year were $453,075,000, an increase of 4 percent over 1989's total of $434,775,000.

Net income in fiscal 1990 was $27,607,000, or $2.04 per common share ($1.96 fully diluted) compared with $6,730,000 or $0.57 per share ($0.57 fully diluted) in 1989. Net income in 1990 benefited from non-recurring gains of $5,900,000 ($0.50) from settlement of a patent litigation suit and a gain on the sale of property in the United Kingdom of $2,744,000 ($0.22). Net income in 1989 was unfavorably affected by a loss from a discontinued business investment of $17,389,000 ($1.46).

Fourth quarter 1990 net income was $6,048,000, or $0.44 per share ($0.42 fully diluted) compared with a loss of $7,915,000, or $0.61 per share in 1989. Income from continuing operations was $7,655,000 ($0.59 per share) in 1989. The 1989 quarter included a non-recurring gain on the sale of the underground support division in the amount of $3,072,000 ($0.24) as well as the loss from the discontinued investment ($1.20).

Paul J. Powers, chairman, president and chief executive officer stated, "Sales in the fourth quarter were a company record led by excellent volume in the Astron building systems division in Europe. While sales were up 10 percent over last year, sales were boosted 7 percent by the decline of the U.S. dollar. Similarly, full year sales had a 2 percent assist from the decline of the dollar. A slowdown in some U.S. capital goods markets affected several domestic divisions as the year progressed.

"Operating profit before non-recurring items was down by 16 percent due to economic downturns in Brazil, the U.K., and unsatisfactory operating performance in the Fluid Purification Group." Powers went on to say that, "substantial operating changes as well as the elimination of expenses associated with the lengthy patent infringement suit should help this group make a stronger profit contribution in 1991."

Powers also commented: "The economic outlook for 1991 may be influenced by the long-awaited U.S. economic recession and the Middle East crises. Signs of a slowdown have already affected incoming order rates of several divisions. All operating units of the company are taking steps to reduce costs and maintain sales penetration to minimize the impact of non-controllable economic conditions."

Commercial Intertech is a manufacturer of hydraulic components, fluid purification and engineered metal products.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Although revenue of The Hallwood Group Incorporated (NYSE: HWG) rose to $21.1 million in the first quarter ended Oct. 31, from $18.3 million in the same quarter last year, the company had a net loss of $362,000, or 6 cents per share, compared to a loss of $376,000, or 7 cents per share, last year.

Hallwood's affiliate, ShowBiz Pizza Time, Inc., contributed $1.1 million to income, primarily from Hallwood's 22 percent ownership of the company. Last year, when the ownership was 10 percent, Hallwood recognized a loss of $46,000 attributable to the closing of unprofitable restaurants.

Real estate operations resulted in a loss of $400,000 for the quarter, versus a gain of $26,000 last year. Although rental income climbed to $1.4 million as the newly developed office-retail complex in Brighton, England, reached full occupancy, the Holiday Inn-Lido Beach in Sarasota, Fla., was in its off-season.

Textile products operations showed a loss of $7,000 for the quarter, compared to last year's profit of $531,000 on about the same revenue. A different product mix in the current-year quarter resulted in a lower gross margin than in the prior year.

Hallwood Energy Corporation produced $219,000 in income from its fee as general partner of Hallwood Energy Partners, L.P. (HEP), its 12 percent interest in HEP and profits from its separately owned oil and gas properties.

(a) Loss per share computed on the basis of the weighted average number of shares outstanding during each period.

(b) Income tax expense relating to continuing and discontinued operations for the fourth quarter and year of fiscal 1990 include the write-off of deferred tax assets in the amount of $460,000 and $76,000, respectively. The deferred tax assets which were written off primarily relate to expenses recorded for financial purposes but not yet deducted for income tax purposes. The deferred tax assets were required to be written off because current accounting standards require that there is reasonable assurance that the deductions will be realized against taxable income. The Company believes that it will have taxable income in the future that will allow it to realize all or a portion of the tax benefits of these future tax deductions. There is presently no assurance that the Company's taxable income will be sufficient to allow it to realize all or a portion of these deferred tax assets.

MCLEAN, VA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - NVR L.P. (AMEX: NVR) said today that it will not make the interest payments due Dec. 15, 1990, on its publicly traded bonds. Previously, the company characterized the payment as "very unlikely." The company also said that, consistent with an operational restructuring plan announced earlier, it is currently developing a financial restructuring plan. As part of that process, discussions have begun with advisors to certain holders of the bonds.

The company said that it did not expect to pay any further interest on these bonds until the financial restructuring plan is consummated. The company also reiterated an earlier statement that it is engaged in negotiations with its lending banks to continue providing working capital financing for its operations.

RICHMOND, VA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Crestar Financial Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: CRFC) announced today that it will increase its allowance for loan losses during the fourth quarter to approximately $145-150 million, in recognition of worsening regional economy and weakening local real estate markets. At the same time, the Board of Directors declared the company's regular quarterly dividend of $.33 per common share, payable January 30, 1991 to shareholders of record on January 10, 1991, and a dividend of $.7875 on Crestar's adjustable rate cumulative Preferred Stock, Series B, also payable January 30, 1991 to shareholders of record on January 10, 1991.

Crestar Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Richard G. Tilghman stated that "our regional economy has clearly moved into a recession, a situation exacerbated by the exodus of military personnel from the Hampton Roads area. In short, more and more of our customers are feeling the pinch of a deteriorating regional economy and, predictably, so are we."

Tilghman added, "It is important to recognize that although our decision to increase the loan loss reserve has a negative impact on fourth quarter earnings, Crestar's fundamental safety, soundness and financial strength are not affected. Our capital position remains strong, our reserve level solid and even after absorbing higher provisioning expense, Crestar will report a profitable year -- albeit not at the level we would have liked."

The company expects to report net income for the full year 1990 of approximately $55 to $65 million. Final results for the quarter and for the full year 1990 will be released on January 17.

This forecast assumes a fourth quarter provision for loan losses of approximately $55-65 million, compared to a third quarter provision of $19.7 million. It also assumes net charge-offs of approximately $35-40 million for the quarter. Nonperforming assets are expected to rise to approximately 3.00 percent of loans and other real estate owned at December 31, 1990.

With $12.7 billion in assets, Crestar Financial Corporation is the holding company for three banks with 270 banking offices in Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia. Other subsidiaries provide insurance, brokerage, mortgage banking, leasing and investment advisory services.

CHICAGO, (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The Chicago Dock and Canal Trust, (NASDAQ: DOCKS), a publicly held real estate investment trust, today reported net income for its second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, of $1,250,000, or $.21 per share. The trust reported net income of $361,000, or $.06 per share for the same period in the prior fiscal year.

For the six months ended Oct. 31, 1990, operations resulted in net income of $2,556,000 or $.44 per share. The trust reported net income for the same period in the prior fiscal year of $1,109,000, or $.19 per share.

During the second quarter, the trust declared a dividend of $.07 per share. This dividend compares to $.06 per share for the same period in the prior fiscal year.

The Chicago Dock and Canal Trust is a real estate investment trust engaged primarily in the business of owning real estate and interests in real estate for investment. The trust, formed in 1962, is the successor to the Chicago Dock and Canal Co., founded in 1857 by Chicago's first mayor, William Ogden. The trust's assets include ownership of a major interest in the Equitable Building and a substantial portion of the land at Cityfront Center, a major mixed-use development, both in Chicago.

The trust also owns Kipling Plaza (a 90,000-square-foot shopping center in suburban Denver), Lincoln Garden (a 73,000-square-foot office complex in Indianapolis), and One Michigan Avenue (a 144,000-square-foot office building in Lansing, Mich.).

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Seaman Furniture Company, Inc., which is privately held, stated today that its second quarter report for the three months ending Oct. 31, 1990 has been mailed to the holders of its 12 percent junior subordinated notes due 1999 and filed with United States Trust Company of New York, as trustee.

For the second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 Seaman reported an increase in net sales to $66.6 million as compared to $63.9 million for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1989. Income from operations, before interest, amortization of intangibles and income taxes, was $1.31 million for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, which was slightly higher than the $1.29 million in income from operations for last year's second quarter.

Reflecting the benefits of the company's restructuring in November 1989, Seaman reported a net loss for the second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 of approximately $2.0 million, a $7.5 million improvement over last year's net loss of $9.5 million for the second quarter, which included an after-tax income benefit of $3.5 million. The company noted that these results are positive in light of the continuing downturn in the retail furniture market in the Northeast.

Interest expense for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 was $2.8 million, a 76.4 percent decrease from the same period last year of $12.0 million.

For the six months ended Oct. 31, 1990, net sales were $131 million, an increase of 2.3 percent over the $128 million for the same period last year, with same store sales being even when comparing these two periods. Seaman had a net loss for the six months ended Oct. 31, 1990 of $3.1 million, an improvement of approximately 83 percent from the $17.9 million net loss for the six months ended Oct. 31, 1989, which included a $6.6 million tax benefit.

The company has opened six new stores in the current fiscal year: Orange, Conn. in June, 1990; Middletown, N.Y. in August, 1990; Poughkeepsie, N.Y. and Enfield, Conn. in October 1990; and Waterbury and Wethersfield, Conn. in November 1990. Early performances of these locations are meeting management's expectations.

Seaman's is the nation's second largest furniture retailer in the United States and the largest in the Northeast, operating 38 stores in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

LIVONIA, MICH. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Fretter, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FTTR) today reported a 2.6-percent increase in net sales from $51.9 million in the three-month period ended Oct. 31, 1989, to $53.3 million in the three-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990. This increase reflects a decline in comparable store sales of $630,000 (1.3 percent) for the three-month period ended Oct. 31 1990.

The company attributed the modest sales increase in the three-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990, compared to the prior year's same quarter, to new store openings offset by the small decrease in comparable store sales. The company attributes the improved comparable store sales figures, compared to the first six months of the year, in part to its aggressive merchandising.

The company reported a net loss of $489,000 (3 cents per share) for the three-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990. This compares to net earnings of $885,000 (6 cents per share) for the three-month period ended Oct. 31, 1989. The company reported a net loss for the nine-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990, of $2.4 million. This compares to net earnings of $1.7 million for the nine-month period ended Oct. 31, 1989.

For the nine-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990, the company reported a decline in net sales of 6.2 percent to $143.7 million at Oct. 31, 1990. This compares to net sales of $153.2 million at Oct. 31, 1989. This decline reflects a decline in comparable store sales of $13.3 million (9.5 percent) for the nine-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990. The company attributes the decline in sales for the nine-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990, primarily to the weak specialty retail environment in general coupled with highly competitive marketing areas. A comparable store for a given fiscal period is a store that was open for all of that period as well as all of the prior fiscal period of which a comparison is being made.

Fretter, Inc. is a leading specialty retailer of home entertainment products, consumer electronics and appliances with 60 store locations in Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

VERO BEACH, FLA. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Dixon Ticonderoga Company (AMEX: DXT) reported a net loss in its fourth quarter and fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990 -- a year of substantial restructuring and rebuilding, President Gino N. Pala announced today.

For the fourth quarter, the company reported a loss from continuing operations of $1,138,000 (or 37 cents a share), on revenues of $21,518,000, compared with a loss of $2,359,000 (or 77 cents per share) on revenues of $21,818,000 in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989. Net loss for the quarter was $2,324,000 (76 cents a share) reflecting a loss from discontinued operations of $1,186,000 (39 cents a share).

For the year, the company had a loss from continuing operations of $3,831,000 (or $1.25 per share) on revenues of $82,045,000, compared with a loss of $1,218,000 (or 40 cents per share) on revenues of $80,220,000 in fiscal 1989. Net loss for the year was $5,033,000 ($1.64 per share) reflecting a loss from discontinued operations of $1,202,000 (39 cents per share). The 1990 loss also reflects a nonrecurring pre- tax charge of $1,896,000 for restructuring costs.

The loss was due largely to varying factors, Pala said, based upon management decisions to address and restructure ongoing operational deficiencies and to embark on significant new strategies involving asset management and redeployment.

In addition, Pala explained, the 1990 results reflect the loss incurred in connection with the disposal of the Refractory products segment, which does not fit strategically into the company's future. The proceeds received will go toward the reduction of indebtedness.

Pala also explained that the company's strict inventory reduction program contributed to reduced indebtedness in 1990. Planned inventory reductions and asset disposals in 1991 are expected to further reduce indebtedness and related interest expense.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Security Pacific President and Chief Executive Officer Robert H. Smith said that today's adjustments of its debt ratings are unjustified.

"We disagree with the adjustments of our ratings. The announcements we made earlier this week to strengthen out profitable core businesses, increase our reserves for credit losses, and disband our merchant bank will result in substantially stronger and more consistent future profitability. Security Pacific will be a company with significantly lower risk characteristics. The overall strengths of the corporation permit us to take these actions at this time, and we expect to report a profit of $160 million to $200 million for the year.

"Security Pacific has very large, solid and growing franchises throughout the western United States, producing strong earnings streams and a very healthy capital formation rate. We think that these ratings adjustments are unjustified, given Security Pacific's underlying strength and our long history of quality performance," Smith said.

PONTIAC, MICH. (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Perry Drug Stores, Inc. (NYSE: PDS) today reported its results for the fourth quarter and the 1990 fiscal year which ended Oct. 31.

Sales for the fourth quarter were $161 million compared to $162 million for the comparable period in 1989.

The company reported a fourth-quarter loss of $3.8 million, 37 cents per share compared to net earnings of $1.3 million, 13 cents per share, for the fourth quarter in 1989.

Sales for fiscal 1990 totaled $658 million, compared to sales of $670 million for the previous year.

Earnings from operations in fiscal 1990 before the effect of a change in an accounting method were $595,000, 6 cents a share. After applying the one-time charge for a change in accounting method of $6.8 million, 67 cents per share, the net loss for fiscal 1990 was $6.2 million, 61 cents a share, compared to net earnings of $7.1 million, 70 cents a share, in fiscal 1989.

In the fourth quarter of 1990, the company changed its method of accounting for store inventories from the retail method to a specific item cost method which more accurately reflects inventory value by eliminating the averaging and estimation inherent in the retail method.

AUSTIN, TEXAS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Tracor Holdings Inc., has named James B. Skaggs president and chief executive officer of Tracor Holdings. Skaggs, who was elected chairman of Tracor in March 1990, replaces William C. Moyer of California, Md., who recently announced his decision to retire from the company on Jan. 4, 1991.

"Bill Moyer has made significant contributions during the 30 years he has worked for Tracor," Skaggs said. "We thank him and congratulate him on his retirement."

Moyer joined Tracor as an engineer and progressed through a series of technical management positions leading to the position of group vice president of Tracor Applied Sciences in 1979. In 1983, he was named to Tracor's board of directors and served as a director until 1987, when Tracor was acquired by Westmark. In December 1989, he was named acting president and chief executive officer, and, in January, he received the full authority of the position.

Moyer received his B.S. in mechanical engineering from Southern Methodist University in 1959 and his Ph.D. in mechanical engineering from the University of Texas at Austin in 1966.

Moyer took advantage of an early retirement incentive offered for a short time by the company. Approximately 100 other employees from throughout Tracor are expected to retire under this program.

Skaggs has nearly 30 years of experience with defense companies and programs. In 1964, he joined the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), progressing through a series of management positions.

From 1971 to 1982, he served in a variety of senior positions with System Development Corp. (SDC), a corporation with annual sales of $250 million primarily from computer-based services and systems for government and industry. He was named SDC's chief operating officer (COO) in 1977 and president in 1981 and guided SDC through a successful acquisitions by Burroughs Corp.

Tracor, owned by privately held Westmark Systems Inc., is an international technological products, systems, and services company with headquarters in Austin.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Krelitz Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: KRLZ) reported today that sales from continuing operations for the six months were $127,607,000, as compared to $94,061,000 last year, a 36 percent increase. Income from continuing operations increased 59 percent to $502,000, or $.22 per share, as compared to $316,000, or $.14 per share, for the same period last year. Net income, including discontinued operations, for the six months was $520,000, or $.22 per share, versus $168,000, or $.08 per share, last year.

Sales from continuing operations were $66,024,000 for the second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, over sales of $48,098,000 for the same period last year. Income from continuing operations was $239,000, or $.10 per common share, compared to $150,000, or $.06 per share for the second quarter last year. Net income, including discontinued operations, for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 was $282,000, or $.12 per share, compared to $58,000, or $.02 per share, for the second quarter last year.

Higher sales volume across virtually all customers segments, combined with the addition of a significant new customer in June, account for the approximate $34 million increase over last year. The increased sales volume has resulted in improved profitability for continuing operations.

Krelitz Industries, Inc. is the largest independent drug wholesaler in the Upper Midwest. The company also distributes general merchandise and develops and markets computerized management systems.

The company's common stock is traded nationally over-the-counter under the NASDAQ symbol: KRLZ.

ST. PAUL, MN (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Northwest Airlines and KLM Royal Dutch Airlines today announced a partnership involving their cargo operations in Canada.

Under the partnership, KLM Cargo Canada will market and sell the cargo products of both airlines throughout Canada.

"The coupling of both carriers' networks to and from Canada will provide Canadian shippers and importers from Halifax to Vancouver with global access to world markets by placing one call to either airline," said Stan Wraight, director of KLM Cargo for Canada.

Northwest will rely on KLM's 19-member staff to serve as a general sales agent for its cargo products in Canada.

KLM serves the Canadian cargo market at Halifax, Montreal (Mirabel), Ottawa, Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver. Northwest provides freight services at Montreal (Dorval), Toronto, Winnipeg and Edmonton.

"Under the KLM/Northwest alliance, we will be able to broaden Northwest's exposure to Canadian shippers through KLM's established network of sales representatives," said John Kempe, Northwest's director of cargo marketing and sales.

The partnership will open to Canadian shippers a true global cargo network, including 130 cities in the United States, 12 Asian destinations and nearly 150 trans-Atlantic cities.

ATLANTA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The Banker's Note Inc. (NASDAQ: BKNT), an Atlanta-based chain of 75 specialty women's apparel stores, and Heirlooms Inc. the company's Philadelphia-based majority owned manufacturing subsidiary of women's apparel, reported a consolidated loss for the third quarter, ended Nov. 3, of ($559,000) compared with earnings of $23,000 a year earlier.

For the nine months the net loss was ($263,000) vs. earnings of $307,000 a year earlier.

Consolidated sales for the second quarter were $11,606,000 compared with sales of $12,060,000. Year-to-date sales were $37,604,000, compared with $31,183,000.

The loss per share was ($.17) in the third quarter compared with earnings of $.01 per share last year. For the nine months, the loss per share was ($.08) compared with earnings of $.09 in the prior year.

Management attributed the loss to depressed sales levels in September and October resulting from a decline in general economic conditions as evidenced by reduced consumer spending.

Management has taken steps to reduce expenses in an uncertain retail environment and in expectation of heavy promotional activity in the fourth quarter which will result in reduced operating margins.

WASHINGTON, (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Home Federal Bank for Savings, Waukegan, Ill., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, Home Federal Savings Bank, F.A., will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the management of the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The takeover did not result in any interruption of Home Federal's day-to-day activities. The institution will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Home Federal was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

Home Federal's condition is due primarily to weak management, a high cost of funds, misclassification of assets and a high concentration of poorly underwritten commercial real estate loans. The commercial loan portfolio amounts to approximately 33 percent of total assets.

As of June 30, 1990, the institution had troubled assets of $41.3 million, or 11.4 percent of total assets, including $30.9 million in assets classified as substandard or loss. More than half of Home Federal's troubled commercial loans were made outside the institution's market area.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, Home Federal reported an operating loss of $1.68 million and a net loss of $4.43 million. The institution is insolvent in that it has negative tangible capital.

Home Federal Bank for Savings was a federally chartered stock association wholly owned by board chairman Alan Pollack and his wife. They will retain no interest in the new institution.

As of Sept. 30, 1990, Home Federal Bank for Savings had assets of $348.1 million, including goodwill; liabilities of $339.7 million; and tangible capital of negative $2.49 million, for tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 0.72 percent.

LOS ANGELES, CA (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - A Sherman Oaks family was victimized yesterday morning by two gun-wielding suspects who stole their 1990 Lexus automobile.

At approximately 6:45 a.m. on Thursday the family was accosted by two young men who forced their way into their home with semi-automatic pistols. The suspects demanded the keys to the car, which was parked in the garage, asking "Where's the lady with the black Lexus?" Although no shots were fired, at one point during the ordeal, the victim and one suspect struggled, with the victim sustaining a laceration to the head. The suspects then de-activated the Lexus' factory alarm system and fled in the car.

The vehicle was reported stolen at 7:30 a.m. Using the LoJack homing signal, Los Angeles Police Department police officers tracked the car down and located it at approximately 8:55 a.m. at Fourth and Western in Los Angeles. Further investigation is pending. The 13th successful recovery contributes to a 100 percent recovery rate for stolen LoJack vehicles in Los Angeles County.

Nationwide, the LoJack system has a 95 percent recovery rate in six states - Massachusetts, Florida, New Jersey, Michigan, Illinois, and California. The Los Angeles Stolen Vehicle Recovery Network also has netted two suspects being apprehended as they were driving the stolen LoJack-equipped vehicles; two auto theft rings uncovered with one case clearing 22 additional cases of auto thefts; and two cases of vehicles taken at gunpoint.

The LoJack recovery system is responsible for four arrests (30 percent arrest rate) with one additional suspect being indentified and arrest warrant issued.

LoJack, sold through new car dealerships and direct to after-market customers, has now installed several thousand cars with the new radio location technology. The Recovery System retails for $595 installed, with no additional fees or charges. It can be purchased by calling 1-800-LA LOJACK (1-800-525-6522), or by visiting one of over 300 authorized new car dealerships.

SAN FRANCISCO, (DEC 14) PR NEWSWIRE - ACA JOE Inc. today announced its results of operations for the third fiscal quarter which ended Oct. 27, 1990. The company lost approximately $3,445,000 on sales of approximately $2,583,000 or 15 cents per share which included a $1,000,000 provision (4 cents per share) for certain retail store dispositions. That compares with losses of $2,425,000 on sales of $3,182,000 or 24 cents per share in the same quarter last year.

The company plans to bolster and expand its wholesale and international operations, open additional retail outlet and franchise stores, and to renovate, sell or close certain non-profitable retail stores. The company is also presently negotiating for additional financing because its present primary source of funds, a credit line from its major shareholder, United Trend Holdings, B.V., is presently overdrawn and will expire on Feb. 1, 1991. There are no assurances that such new financing will be obtained.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Ellerbe Becket, Inc., a Minnesota-based architectural and engineering firm with a large U.S. practice, announced today the opening of an international office in Tokyo, Japan. Managing director of the office is Gerald A. Simons, senior vice president, who will divide his time between Minneapolis and Tokyo.

Ellerbe Becket is a registered first-class architect in Japan, a requirement to obtaining work in that country. The firm is already designing an 800-bed hospital and a large resort hotel. According to Simons, Ellerbe Becket anticipates major growth in the Japanese design and construction market, especially in the areas of health care, commercial development, and entertainment and leisure.

"Opportunities in Japan range from modernization of medical facilities to the development of whole new towns on landfill in Tokyo Harbor. As the U.S. construction industry continues to plateau, it's essential that large firms encourage a global perspective. Opening an office in Tokyo is Ellerbe Becket's way of ensuring stability and growth for its practice," said Simons.

Ellerbe Becket has teamed up with an associate firm, Sato Kogyo Co., Ltd., to pursue work in Japan. With 5,000 employees and a number of offices and subsidiaries, Sato Kogyo is Japan's 10th largest design and construction company. Simons said that associating with a respected Japanese firm has strengthened and facilitated Ellerbe Becket's marketing and communication efforts in that country.

Ellerbe Becket was founded in Minnesota in 1909. In addition to Minneapolis and Tokyo, the firm has offices in New York City, Washington, D.C., St. Louis, Kansas City, and Los Angeles. Ellerbe Becket has earned a number of design awards in recent years, including citations for design excellence from Progressive Architecture in 1986, 1988, 1989 and 1990. The firm's major long-time clients include the Mayo Clinic, the University of Notre Dame, 3M Company, and State Farm Insurance Companies.

SALT LAKE CITY (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Bonneville Pacific Corp. (NASDAQ: BPCO), reported second quarter revenues of $32,410,000 resulting in a loss of $25,872,000 or $1.94 per share for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990. Total revenues for the year to date are $61,320,000, resulting in a loss of $26,977,000, or $2.06 per share.

Bonneville's Chairman of the Board, Robert L. Wood, noted that the second quarter loss was expected and reflects the previously announced write-off of approximately $13.2 million of project development costs and the recording of reserves for the estimated decline in value of its Kyocera electric generating facility and its food processing plant in California totaling $6.5 million.

For the corresponding quarter of the previous fiscal year, Bonneville Pacific had a loss of $641,000 or 5 cents per share on revenues of $13,123,000. Revenues for the first six months of the previous year were $23,077,000 with a loss of $1,947,000 or 15 cents per share.

Per share amounts are based on 13,339,778 and 12,908,522 weighted average shares outstanding during the second quarter of fiscal 1990 and 1989, respectively.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Olympic Federal Savings and Loan Association, Berwyn, Ill., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, Olympic Federal Savings Association, will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the management of the Resolution Trust Corporation.

The receivership did not result in any interruption of Olympic's day-to-day operations. The institution and its 16 full-service branches will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Olympic was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition in that it had insufficient capital, with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

Olympic's condition is due primarily to a substantial amount of goodwill assumed in supervisory mergers with four troubled institutions in 1982, producing a severe drag on operating income.

Income from loan sales and from the liquidation of bad assets acquired through those mergers sustained the institution for a time. By 1988, however, the proceeds were insufficient to offset operating losses.

Olympic's deterioration was compounded by mergers with two additional institutions in 1984. The poor condition of those thrifts resulted in an increase in Olympic's regulatory net worth requirement, forcing the institution to eliminate its goodwill more quickly.

As of Oct. 31, 1990, Olympic had $113.9 million in goodwill remaining on its books. The institution had net losses of $2.62 million in the fourth quarter of 1989, and $11.8 million through Oct. 31, 1990. The institution is insolvent in that it has negative tangible capital.

Since August 1989, the institution had been operating under regulatory restrictions that limited growth and the acquisition of brokered deposits. Since January 1990, loan originations and purchases had been limited to one-to-four-family mortgages that met secondary market underwriting standards.

RIGA (DEC. 14) TASS - SOME 4,000 COMPLAINTS AND APPLICATIONS ABOUT HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATIONS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED BY THE LATVIAN SALVATION COMMITTEE THIS YEAR. THEY DESCRIBE VIOLATIONS OF NOT ONLY SOVIET CONSTITUTIONAL FUNDAMENTALS BUT ALSO INTERNATIONAL NORMS.

COMMENTING ON THESE COMPLAINTS, PRESIDIUM MEMBER OF THE LATVIAN COMMITTEE ALEXEI LITVINENKO SAID THAT THE LATVIAN PEOPLE'S FRONT (LPF) AND ITS GROUP IN THE REPUBLICAN PARLIAMENT "ARE OPENLY AND HURRIEDLY PREPARING TO BREAK OFF COMPLETELY WITH THE SOVIET UNION AND TO ESTABLISH A TOTALITARIAN SEMI-NAZI REGIME".

LAWS ADOPTED RECENTLY BY THE REPUBLICAN PARLIAMENT WHERE THE MAJORITY IS CONTROLLED BY THE LPF, PROMPT THE FOLLOWING CONCLUSION: THE SLOGAN "THE RIGHTS OF A NATION ARE ABOVE HUMAN RIGHTS" DOMINATES THE LATVIAN STATE POLICY.

LITVINENKO DESCRIBED THE RECENTLY ADOPTED LAWS AND DECISIONS TO FORM LAW AND ORDER DETACHMENTS, ESTABLISH LAND BORDERS WITH THE RUSSIAN FEDERATION, BYELORUSSIA, LITHUANIA AND ESTONIA AND TO REPEAL STATE HOLIDAYS OF THE USSR IN LATVIA AS A VIOLATION OF THE USSR AND LATVIAN CONSTITUTIONS.

IN ADDITION, HE CONTINUED, LATVIA REFUSED TO GRANT PRIVILEGES TO INVALIDS AND PARTICIPANTS IN THE GREAT PATRIOTIC WAR, 1941-1945, PROVIDED FOR BY SOVIET LEGISLATION. THE REPUBLIC DEPRIVED THIS CATEGORY OF PEOPLE OF PREFERENTIAL MEDICAL AID.

REJECTING A PLAN FOR NEW HOUSING CONSTRUCTION TO MEET THE NEEDS OF PEOPLE ON THE WAITING LIST, THE REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT HOPES TO RESOLVE THIS PROBLEM DUE TO THE OUTFLOW OF RUSSIAN-SPEAKING POPULATION FROM THE REPUBLIC.

IN LITVINENKO'S OPINION, THERE IS GROWING DISCRIMINATION AGAINST PEOPLE AND SOCIAL GROUPS, ESPECIALLY SERVICEMEN AND THEIR FAMILIES. THEY DO NOT RECEIVE FOOD COUPONS, MEDICAL ESTABLISHMENTS REFUSE TO GIVE THEM MEDICAL AID, AND THEY ARE NOT HIRED AT FACTORIES AND OFFICES.

THEIR CHILDREN ARE BARRED FROM CRECHES, KINDERGARTEN AND SCHOOLS.

LITVINENKO STRESSED THAT IT IS NECESSARY TO REPEAL LAWS AND DECISIONS ADOPTED BY THE LATVIAN PARLIAMENT AND GOVERNMENT, WHICH RUN COUNTER TO THE SOVIET CONSTITUTION, AND TO CALL TO ACCOUNT THOSE WHO ARE GUILTY OF FANNING UP ETHNIC STRIFE AND OF VIOLATING THE SOVIET PRESIDENT'S DECREES.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 14) UPI - Brigham Young quarterback Ty Detmer, who set an NCAA record with 5,188 passing yards this season, was named Thursday as winner of the Maxwell Award, presented to the best college football player in the nation.

Detmer, a junior who won the Heisman Trophy earlier this month, received 1,993 points in the voting conducted by the Maxwell Football Club of Philadelphia.

Notre Dame's Raghib Ismail was second with 1,385 points, Colorado running back Eric Bieniemy was third with 747 points, and Virginia quarterback Shawn Moore was fourth with 431 points.

Detmer completed 361 of 562 passes this season and threw for 41 touchdowns while giving up 28 interceptions.

In his career, he has completed 709 of 1,127 passes for 11,000 yards and 86 touchdowns with 53 interceptions.

Detmer, who already holds 42 NCAA records, has announced that he plans to return to BYU for his senior season.

The Maxwell Club also named Penn State's Joe Paterno as winner of its award for college coach of the year.

Paterno's Nittany Lions lost their first two games of the season, then won nine straight and earned a berth in the Blockbuster Bowl, where they will play Florida State.

RICHMOND, Va. (DEC. 14) UPI - Buddy Earl Justus, believed to be the only man under a death sentence in three states, was executed Thursday night for the 1978 rape and murder of a pregnant nurse.

Justus, 38, was pronounced dead at 11:06 p.m. EST in the electric chair at the State Penitentiary in downtown Richmond. Justus, who had suspended his final appeals, said in an interview hours earlier he ''was ready to go to a better place.''

Justus was condemned to die for the Oct. 3, 1978 rape and murder of Ida Mae Moses, a nurse of Ironto, Va., who was 8 1/2 months pregnant when Justus broke into her home, sexually assaulted her and shot her in the head.

Justus, who was abused as a child and went on to marry and divorce his foster mother, had asked Gov. L. Douglas Wilder to either commute his sentence to life or watch the execution in person, but Wilder refused.

Justus dined on steak and French fries for a last meal.

As he entered the death chamber Thursday night, Justus nodded twice to the man who had investigated the Moses murder and took his confession, Montgomery County Sheriff Louis Barber.

Prison Chaplain Russ Ford told Justus shortly before a mask was placed over the condemned killer's face, ''Be strong. You'll move on.''

Justus made no final statement.

''He died with a great deal more dignity than his victim did,'' Barber told media witnesses afterwards inside the chamber.

Justus also was under death sentences in Florida and Georgia for the murders of saleswoman Stephanie Hawkins in Tampa, Fla., and Rosemary Jackson, a housewife in Mountain Park, Ga., before his Oct. 11, 1978 arrest.

His lawyer says Justus suffers from brain damage, but in an interview with Roanoke radio station WFIR, Justus accepted responsibility for the crimes, while citing his history of drug use and an abusive father.

''I was able to forgive myself. I'm at peace with myself. I'm ready to go to a better place,'' he said. ''In order to be forgiven, you've got to forgive others.

''I still take the responsibility solely for myself because I wasn't strong enough to turn away'' and avoid drugs and handle the child abuse, he said. ''I hold responsibility for my actions because I should have been strong enough to resist those drugs.''

He also said he was prepared to die in Virginia's electric chair though he opposes capital punishment.

''We are supposed to be a society that's supposed to be caring ... and that to continue capital punishment is taking steps backward. There's better ways to deal with it than to take lives.''

He said he tried to commit suicide at Mecklenburg Correctional Center several months ago because he felt no useful purpose any longer.

On Wednesday, attorney James Copacino said he persuaded Justus, who has refused to continue his appeal, to allow him to petition the governor for clemency. The petition was based on new tests that reveal the killer suffers from organic brain damage.

''It's a real outside shot,'' said Copacino, a Georgetown University law professor. ''A lot of people disagreed with my decision not to file anything in court on Buddy's behalf.''

Earlier this week, Wilder, who has refused to intervene in two previous executions this year, indicated he would allow the execution to proceed unless some startling new evidence emerged.

Copacino extended an invitation to Wilder to witness the execution at the State Penitentiary if he were to deny clemency, but the governor rejected it.

Justus, the oldest of seven children, was beaten repeatedly by his alcoholic father. At age 13, officials say he intentionally stole a pistol, bicycle and a truck so that welfare officials would remove him from his home.

(DEC. 14) UPI - A House panel heard a series of sketches from defense analysts and retired military men. They told the panel what a war to liberate Kuwait might look like. And they said thousands of people could be killed or wounded. One retired colonel said U-S casualties in an allied assault could range from 18-hundred to as many as 18-thousand.

Virginia executed a man who was under a death sentence in three states. Bobby Earl Justus died in Virginia's electric chair in Richmond late Thursday night. He said just hours earlier that he ''was ready to go to a better place.'' Justice was executed for the rape and murder of a pregnant nurse. He also was under death sentences in Florida and Georgia for murders of women.

Mexican authorities say the bodies of 12 members of a religious group were found in a house in Tijuana Thursday. Six other people are hospitalized in comas. A four-month-old girl who's still alive was found in her dead mother's arms. Officials say the victims might have been poisoned, or overcome by gas fumes.

U-S scientists say a four-year-old girl who underwent the first official attempt at human gene therapy is doing well. The Ohio girl has NOT suffered any serious side-effects from three monthly gene-therapy sessions. She has a rare, inherited immune system defect.

A federal study indicates babies face a greater risk of dying from crib death during the winter than in any other season. The Centers for Disease Control says the study also showed that sudden infant death syndrome is most likely to strike babies between the ages of one and four months.

An independent human rights group says 115 civilians died in war- related violence in El Salvador last month. The group says the Salvadoran armed forces were responsible for 51 of the deaths. More than half the deaths cannot be traced to either side of El Salvador's civil war.

The National Zoo in Washington reports the death of its egg-laying queen ant. The ant was accidentally decapitated by worker ants... her children... but are tending to her as if she were alive. The queen ant lost her head a week ago when worker ants were trying to squeeze her through a small hole in her nest.

(DEC. 14) UPI - The day the last American hostages left Baghdad also brought a court ruling that favors President Bush in committing U-S forces to a war without congressional approval. 30 Americans were aboard what's expected to be the last mercy mission out of Baghdad. The U-S ambassador to Kuwait, Nathaniel Howell, was on the plane. In Washington, a federal judge refused to block Bush from committing forces to war without first getting approval from Congress.

One official said Justus died with a great deal more dignity than his victim. He also was under death sentences in Georgia and Florida for murdering women.

Officials in Tijuana are trying to figure out what caused the deaths of 12 people and illness of six others. The 18 belong to a religious sect that gathered in a small house in the Mexican border city. Three of the dead were children. Neighbors say the group chanted and prayed loudly until late Wednesday night. Their bodies were found Thursday.

Federal investigators have NOT figured out why an Amtrak train derailed and hit a commuter train in Boston. But a report says the Amtrak ''Night Owl'' apparently was going more than twice the 30-mile-an-hour speed limit. Another report says investigators have NOT been able to read the train's tape recording, which would have told them the exact speed.

The best and the worst of the NBA met Thursday night, and the surprising winners became Kings for a day.

Antoine Carr came off the bench to score 20 points and the Sacramento Kings overcame a 19-point first-quarter deficit en route to a 100-88 upset of the Portland Trail Blazers at Arco Arena.

Portland, gunning for the 1969-70 New York Knicks' league record for best start of a season at 23-1, lost for just the second time in 21 games. The Kings, who had lost two straight, improved to 4-15.

''This is really a big win for these kids,'' said Sacramento Coach Dick Motta, who has four rookie first-round draft picks on his roster. ''This is just a prelude to what can happen to this team.''

Motta was ejected with 2:23 remaining in the first half, and Portland Coach Rick Adelman said that was the game's turning point.

''I thought the momentum got away from us in the second period after Dick got tossed,'' he said. ''I know Dick, and I know he tried to get himself tossed.

''We were playing well at that point. There really isn't much more else to say other than they played well and we didn't.''

The Blazers, whose only other loss this season came at home to Phoenix - they were 8-0 on the road - raced to an 11-0 advantage. The Western Conference champions shot 63 percent from the field in the first 12 minutes, held the Kings to 36 percent and took a 38-19 lead.

But Sacramento rallied in the second quarter to get within 53-46 at halftime. Reserve Leon Wood scored 10 points in the period for the Kings.

After a tight third quarter, Sacramento opened the final period with a 15-6 burst for an 85-75 advantage. Carr and Wayman Tisdale, who had 18 points, each had two baskets during the spree, and Portland got no closer than eight the rest of the way.

Clyde Drexler and Jerome Kersey had 20 points apiece for the Blazers.

Elsewhere, New York beat Minnesota 87-76, Atlanta defeated New Jersey 106-97, Utah outpointed Denver 141-126, Phoenix stopped Orlando 125-114 and Golden State downed Seattle 129-106.

Knicks 87, Timberwolves 76

At Minneapaolis, Charles Oakley, playing a season-high 44 minutes, collected 22 points and 17 rebounds to go with Patrick Ewing's 31 points and 15 rebounds as New York posted its first two-game winning streak under Coach John MacLeod. Pooh Richardson had 22 points for Minnesota.

Hawks 106, Nets 97

At Atlanta, Dominique Wilkins scored 23 points and Kevin Willis added 18 to lift the Hawks. New Jersey was led by Mookie Blaylock with 22 points and Sam Bowie with 14 points and 16 rebounds.

Utah 141, Nuggets 126

At Salt Lake City, Karl Malone scored 39 points and Jeff Malone added 29 to send the Jazz to their sixth consecutive victory and 11th in 12 games. John Stockton contributed 18 points and 17 assists for Utah. Orlando Wooldridge led Denver with 29 points.

Suns 125, Magic 114

At Phoenix, Kevin Johnson scored 15 of his season-high 38 points in the fourth quarter to lift the Suns to their fourth straight triumph. The Magic, who got 25 points from Scott Skiles, led by 10 points midway through the third quarter but lost for the 11th time in 12 road games.

Warriors 129, SuperSonics 106

At Oakland, Calif., Chris Mullin and Mitch Richmond scored 20 points apiece as Golden State improved to 13-8, its best start since 1981. Seattle was paced by Dana Barros with 24 points.

(DEC. 14) UPI - Pittsburgh Coach Bob Johnson may have a tough time selling the Penguins on the virtues of defense.

With nine different players scoring, the Penguins, who have allowed the third-most goals in the league, snapped a four-game winless streak with a 9-5 rout of the New Jersey Devils.

''It seems like when things are going well we score a lot of goals,'' said Pittsburgh's Kevin Stevens. ''Tonight, we got out there and got a couple of early goals and that seemed to open their game up. When we can score goals they have to come after us and they started taking chances. That's when we capitalized.''

''It was a shootout,'' said New Jersey Coach John Cunniff. ''We were wide open with them, and there's no way we can play that way with that team. We made mistakes and bang, they scored right way. They scored on every one of our mistakes.''

Tony Tanti scored at 9:31 of the second period, giving Pittsburgh a 5-3 lead and knocking out Sean Burke in favor of Chris Terreri. But the Penguins scored four times in the final period, clinching goalie Wendell Young's first win of the season.

''It's a relief to get your first win,'' said Young. ''Here it is December and I get my first win. I don't think I've gone this long in my life without a win.''

''We didn't get many bounces here the last couple of weeks, and tonight we got a lot of bounces,'' said Johnson. ''Some of the guys that haven't scored got some. That's extremely important. It was good for the guys to get some enjoyment from the game.''

In other games, St. Louis defeated Minnesota 4-2, Boston ripped Hartford 8-2, Detroit handled Quebec 5-2, the New York Islanders tied Philadelphia 2-2, Chicago nipped Winnipeg 5-4 and Calgary topped Los Angeles 4-1.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Blues 4, North Stars 2

At St. Louis, Bob Bassen scored two goals and Brett Hull became the first NHL player to reach 30 goals this season, leading the Blues. St. Louis entered the final period down 2-1 but scored three unanswered goals to earn the victory. Bassen gave the Blues a 3-2 lead at 6:05 of the final period with a rebound.

Bruins 8, Whalers 2

At Boston, Ray Bourque and Craig Janney each collected four assists, powering the Adams Division-leading Bruins to a sweep of back-to-back games. The game was marred by an altercation between the benches. On Nov. 23, also in Boston, Bruins Coach Mike Milbury and Hartford Coach Rick Ley tried to climb the glass between the benches to get at each other.

Red Wings 5, Nordiques 2

At Detroit, Steve Yzerman scored his fifth goal in five games and Brent Fedyk and Bobby Dollas added third-period goals, pacing the Red Wings. The Red Wings matched a season-high with 47 shots at goaltender Ron Tugnutt, who kept Quebec in the game through the first two periods by turning back 36 shots.

Flyers 2, Islanders 2

At Philadelphia, Randy Wood scored midway through the third period, leading New York. Wood scored his ninth goal of the season at 9:08 of the third period after the Flyers failed to get the puck out of their own end. Philadelphia had a two-minute power play in the overtime but had only one shot on goal.

Blackhawks 5, Jets 4

At Chicago, Dirk Graham snapped a tie with his second goal of the night with 4:12 remaining, rallying the Blackhawks. Graham, who scored his first of the game in the opening period, scooped up a rebound in the crease and lifted it over goaltender Bob Essensa. The last Winnipeg victory at Chicago Stadium came Jan. 30, 1985.

Flames 4, Kings 1

At Inglewood, Calif., Gary Roberts collected a goal and an assist in the third period, leading Calgary and extending Los Angeles' winless streak to eight games. Kings' Coach Tom Webster was ejected with 10:04 remaining in the second period after receiving a bench minor for arguing for a penalty against Jamie Macoun.

HONG KONG (DEC. 14) UPI - Seven Vietnamese refugees set themselves on fire Friday to protest a government policy of repatriating boat people fleeing their homeland for economic reasons.

The seven, part of a group of 10 boat people at the Whitehead detention center staging a hunger strike against the policy, set their blankets and clothes ablaze Friday morning.

Officials said camp guards quickly extinguished the fire. The boat people sustained minor injuries and were taken to a nearby hospital.

''The group had not taken food since Sunday and we had some officers standing by because we expected some trouble,'' said Raymond Lai, assistant commissioner of Correctional Services. ''As soon as they lit their clothes and blankets, the officers rushed forward and put out the fire.''

Whitehead, the largest and most volitile of Hong Kong's refugee camps, houses about 22,600 of the British colony's 53,000 boat people.

Officials said the seven had been classified as economic migrants through a Hong Kong screening policy and faced repatriation to Hanoi.

Only those boat people who can prove that they face political persecution if returned to Hanoi are eligible for resettlement in third countries.

The rest - an estimated 90 percent of Hong Kong's boat people - face continued life in the camps or a one-way ticket to their homeland.

PALM MEADOWS, AUSTRALIA (DEC. 14) UPI - American Dale Eggeling, coming off her finest season on the U.S. tour, used a new putter to grab the first- round lead in the $228,000 Daikyo Australian Ladies Masters golf championship Friday.

The 36-year-old from Tampa, Fla., notched seven birdies in a sizzling 5-under-par 68 to lead compatriot Kristal Parker and Australian Ann Jones by two shots.

One shot further back at 2-under 71 were Japan's Chihoro Nakajima and Fumiko Muraguchi, Americans Cindy Figg-Currier, Tammie Green and Danielle Ammaccapane and Australians Jan Stepehenson and Corinne Dibnah.

The top 10 combined to record 51 birdies and an eagle, despite an afternoon sea breeze that toughened the water-strewn, 6,234-yard course.

Eggeling finished 24th on the U.S. tour with earnings of $147,990.

MOSCOW (DEC. 14) UPI - Lithuania announced Friday its representatives will boycott the Congress of People's Deputies opening Monday because the Baltic republic considers Soviet Union a foreign state.

The 10-day congress of 2,250 delegates will discuss a new union treaty for the nation's 15 republics and elect a vice president for the new country and a new premier.

It will also carry out a rotation of one-third of the members of the smaller, permanent parliament, the Supreme Soviet. New members will be elected to the Parliament from among the deputies at the Congress.

Lithuania's deputies stormed out of the last Congress in March saying that their goal is independence and the affairs of the Soviet Union no longer concerned them. That congress elected Mikhail Gorbachev president of the country.

A statement issued Friday said Lithuania's Supreme Council on Thursday decided not to take part in the Congress because of Lithuania's declaration of independence March 11.

''Lithuania is no longer tied to any obligations concerning the validity of the constitution of the U.S.S.R., and (thus) the deputies elected by the Lithuanian people lose their status,'' the statement said.

The deputies, referred to in the statement, were elected earlier before Lithuania's March 11 declaration of independence. Ironically, the multicandidate elections were part of Gorbachev's first major political reforms that ended seven decades of single-slate ballots.

''Without a special decision by the Supreme Council of the Republic, citizens of the republic of Lithuania have no right to participate in the work of the highest governing bodies of other states, among them the U.S.S.R,'' the statement said.

The decision is likely to spark criticism from the minority Russians in the Baltic republic, arguing that they have been deprived of a voice about their future in Lithuania.

Of Lithuania's population of 3.6 million, only 8.6 percent are ethnic Russians. Ethnic Lithuanians comprise 80 percent, and Poles 7.7 percent.

Only one Lithuanian deputy, Nikolai Medvedev, an ethnic Russian who lives in the Baltic republic, has attended the daily sessions of the Supreme Soviet.

Medvedev, one of the most accessible and articulate lawmakers, keeps both the Lithuanians and ethnic Russians aware of developments in Moscow.

An independent state between World Wars I and II, Lithuania was occupied by the Soviet army and then annexed in 1940 as part of a secret deal between Soviet dictator Josef Stalin and Nazi leader Adolf Hitler.

Lithuania's sister Baltic republics, Estonia and Latvia were also absorbed into the Soviet Union at the same time. They too have declared their intention of leaving the Soviet Union.

ROME (DEC. 14) UPI - European Community leaders began a two-day summit Friday to launch historic steps toward a common currency, closer political ties and a joint foreign policy for post-Cold War Europe.

The summit, marking the debut of new British Prime Minister John Major, culminates with the inauguration on Saturday of twin constitutional conventions, on economic and monetary union (EMU) and political union.

Heads of state arrived Thursday evening for a glittering black-tie evening at the opera, featuring superstar tenor Luciano Pavarotti in Puccini's ''Tosca.''

The first item on business on Friday was consideration of $1 billion in emergency food aid for the Soviet Union, which was likely to be approved.

EC leaders were also expected to discuss the Gulf crisis, South Africa and the stalled world trade talks, which collapsed in Brussels last week over the EC's massive program of farm subsidies.

Major, in a speech to the House of Commons in London before leaving for Rome, stressed the importance of successfully completing the trade- liberalization talks. ''For us and for others, the risk of failure would be a very high price to pay,'' he said.

The constitutional conventions, known as ''intergovernmental conferences,'' are scheduled to end late next year with profound changes to the EC's founding charter, the 1957 Treaty of Rome, including landmark moves toward forging a federal Europe out of historically warring nation-states.

''Our feeling is that Rome, with these two conferences, will be an important turn in the life of the Community,'' said Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, the current EC president, a leading advocate of creating a ''United States of Europe'' with a single currency and a common foreign policy.

The EC's halting and inconsistent response to the gulf crisis, with only Britain and France sending ground troops, showed to many the need for a unified voice in foreign affairs.

President Bush contacted Andreotti on Thursday, urging EC leaders at the summit to stand united behind the U.S.-led opposition to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, officials said.

Last week, French President Francois Mitterrand and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said in a joint letter that EC political union ''should include an authentic policy of common security which could lead in the long run to a common defense.''

France withdrew from NATO's integrated common defense apparatus in 1966, and has since insisted on strict independence in defense policy. One EC diplomat said France's joining in the letter was a ''remarkable development.''

Details of monetary union and political union will be worked out in tough negotiations over the next year, with many differences still to be resolved and precise wording to be agreed upon.

A common defense, for example, could create problems for staunchly neutral Ireland, an EC member, as well as for other neutral countries seeking EC membership such as Austria and Sweden.

Some EC governments are reluctant to undermine NATO. There are also doubts about a quick move to a single currency, from Britain as well as other quarters including Germany's powerful Bundesbank.

All eyes are on Major, who will set the tone for Britain's contribution to the debate over Europe's future. His predecessor, Margaret Thatcher, fell from power last month over her strident opposition to further EC integration.

At the last EC summit, Oct. 27-28 in Rome, Thatcher said other Community leaders were living in ''cloud-cuckoo land'' when they outvoted her 11-1 to set 1994 as the starting point for a central European bank, with a single currency to follow in several years.

Aides to Major, who also opposes a single currency, say the substance of his stand will be the same, but the style will be different. Thatcher's unyielding style toward the EC was so grating that other leaders simply stopped listening to her message.

''This one will not be an 11-1 summit,'' said a top British diplomat in Brussels.

Major, who was Britain's chancellor of the Exchequer, or treasury, before taking over the prime ministership, has proposed a parallel 13th EC currency - the ''hard ECU'' (European Currency Unit) - that would compete alongside national currencies.

Approval of $1 billion in emergency food aid to the Soviet Union is likely, but balance-of-payment assistance likely will be delayed pending a report from the International Monetary Fund.

The most divisive issue at the summit might be the 107-nation talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which adjourned in disarray Dec. 7 over a bitter dispute between the EC and the United States over Europen farm subsidies.

Some EC governments, including Britain and the Netherlands, feel the summit must make a positive statement showing some degree of future flexibility in the GATT talks. ''We would look pretty foolish if we just said that GATT is very important,'' one Brussels diplomat said.

But in a pre-summit news conference, the president of the EC Executive Commission, Jaques Delors, said U.S. expectations of steep cuts in EC farm supports were unrealistic.

''The attitude of the United States aimed at treating the Community as plague-stricken and to set all countries against us,'' Delors said.

(DEC. 14) UPI - The 12 European Community leaders begin a two-day summit Friday in Rome to launch historic steps toward a common currency and joint foreign policy for post-Cold War Europe. Heads of state arrived Thursday evening for pre-summit festivities.

Federal investigators tried Thursday to determine whether an Amtrak train driven by an apprentice engineer on the job only two days was speeding when it derailed and smashed into a commuter train inside a station, injuring more than 260 people.

Military sources in Jerusalem say a former deputy military commander of Israeli forces in the Gaza Strip has been convicted in the 1989 death of a 16-year-old Palestinian.

Former U-S national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski has revealed that a tough warning from Washington persuaded former Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to cancel Warsaw Pact plans to invade Poland 10 years ago.

The Parliament of Soviet Georgia Thursday suspended the powers of all local governments in the republic and imposed a state of emergency in a troubled region where three people were killed in ethnic clashes.

TAIPEI, Taiwan (DEC. 14) UPI - An earthquake measuring 6.7 on the open-ended Richter scale hit Taiwan early Friday, 17 hours after another big temblor rocked the island, killing two people.

Officials said the Friday quake, which hit at 3:49 a.m., was centered 18 miles southeast of Hualin, a city on the east coast of Taiwan.

Landslides and structural damage occurred but there were no immediate reports of injuries from the Friday quake, according to local authorities.

There were 210 aftershocks that followed the earthquake, according to the Seismology Research Center in Taipei.

The quake came less than 17 hours after an earthquake measuring 6.5 on the Richter scale struck just 6 miles from Hualian, killing two people and injuring three.

In Menlo Park, California, the U.S. Geological Survey reported the first quake Thursday measured 6.1 on the Richter scale while the second temblor on Friday measured 6.2.

Both quakes were centered about 80 miles south of Taipei.

HONG KONG (DEC. 14) UPI - World No. 2 Nick Faldo of Britain shot a brilliant 9-under-par 62 Friday to claim the lead after the third round of the $350,000 Johnnie Walker Classic.

It was the fourth time in his career that the double U.S. Masters and British Open champion fired a 62 and it gave him a commanding 3-stroke lead over European Ryder Cup teammate Ronan Rafferty entering the final round of the 72-hole event Saturday.

Faldo showed no signs of a wrist inury that had been troubling him and was at his superlative best.

His round was made up of an eagle, seven birdies and 10 pars.

Faldo began the tournament with a disappointing round of 72 and followed with 68 Thursday.

''The difference today was that the putts dropped for me,'' he said.

He shot three birdies on the front nine and five on the back, plus an eagle 3 at the 12th, where he holed a bunker shot from 30 yards.

(DEC. 14) UPI - Strong storms dumped snow on the Pacific Northwest and the Rocky Mountain states as temperatures plummeted nationwide Friday, dipping below zero in the northern Midwest, while a gale warning was posted for the mid-Atlantic coast.

Snow advisories were up throughout southern Utah as a cold front pounded its way across the state dumping at least 8 inches of snow on Cedar City, while drivers in the northern half of the state battled icy roads left over from an earlier storm.

The storm took aim at Colorado with winds gusting over 30 mph causing blowing and drifting snow. Accumulations were expected to reach 8 inches in the northern and central mountains.

A second storm moved into western Washington bringing up to a foot of snow to the Cascades Mountains and rain to areas lying below 1,000 feet, where lows generally were in the 30s. Several inches of snow also fell on Idaho during the night.

On the other side of the continent, a gale warning was posted for the waters off the coast of Washington, D.C., and Baltimore, where a strong cold front carried winds near 40 mph.

Temperatures in several cities were as many as 30 degrees below Thursday's highs and cold weather took hold on the Northeast and northern Midwest. Bridgeport, Conn., which had a record 58 degrees Thursday had a low in the 20s with winds at more than 20 mph.

In Boston, it was windy and much colder. Skies were becoming mostly clear with a low in the mid 20s and northwesterly winds at 20 to 30 mph.

Snow flurries dotted Michigan's Upper Peninsula, where the thermometer plunged to minus 5 degrees, while much of the Midwest had cloudy skies and lows in the 20s.

Dense fog cut visibility in northern California, and along the Gulf Coast Friday morning. Visibility was reported near zero in Baton Rouge, La., and was down to a few hundred yards in Tallahassee, Fla.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) UPI - The Japanese government has agreed to increase its share of the payment of costs of maintaining U.S. military bases in Japan from the current 40 percent to about 50 percent, a Japanese newspaper reported Friday.

Japan's business daily, the Nihon Keizai Shimbun, reported Japan has agreed to pay the bases' gas, water and electricity bills and the salaries of all Japanese employees working at the bases.

U.S. and Japanese officials would not confirm the report but a high- level American delegation was discussing the issue in talks with Japan Thursday and Friday.

Japan will sign a new agreement on base support with the United States in January, the newspaper said.

Japan's increased payment of U.S. base expenses will be phased in from October 1991 to 1995, the report said.

By 1995, Japan will be paying for 50 percent of the total costs of maintaining U.S. bases in Japan, the report said.

Japan provided $3.3 billion to support the U.S. bases in fiscal 1990, which ends March 31, 1991.

With the new plan, Japan is expected to add $75 million to its contribution in 1991 increasing that to $680 million by 1995, the report said.

The United States has been urging Japan to increase its financial support for the U.S. forces amid growing criticism of Japan as a ''free rider'' in defense.

MANILA, Philippines (DEC. 14) UPI - Government troops battled communist rebels in the southern Philippines, leaving 20 guerrillas and a soldier dead, a military report said Friday.

The report said the troops were on patrol when they encountered some 100 communist New People's Army guerrillas on Thursday in Bansalan village, Davao del Sur province, 650 miles south of Manila.

A gun battle ensued, but when troop reinforcements arrived, the rebels fled, leaving behind 20 of their slain comrades. The government lost one soldier dead and another was wounded.

The 17,000-strong NPA has been waging a 21-year rebellion to set up a Marxist state in the Philippines.

In another incident, unidentified men lobbed a grenade at a car dealer in the southern port city of Davao Thursday night, injuring two people, police said.

CLARKSTON, MICH. (DEC. 14) UPI - A judge Thursday dismissed a first-degree murder charge filed against a retired pathologist in the death of an Alzheimer's disease patient who used the doctor's ''suicide machine'' to kill herself last summer.

The case against Dr. Jack Kevorkian was thrown out following two days of testimony and the viewing of a dramatic videotape in which the patient, Janet Akins, 54, told the doctor, ''I don't want to go on.''

Adkins died June 4, two days after the tape was made, in the back of Kevorkian's van in a remote park. She was hooked up to a device rigged by Kevorkian that allowed Adkins to inject herself with a lethal solution.

District Judge Gerald McNally, calling suicide ''a private and personal matter '' held that Kevorkian committed no crime under state law and that the question of criminality in assisting suicide was an issue for the legislature, not the courts, to decide.

''Mrs. Adkins was the approximate cause of her own death,'' McNally said.

But he invited the prosecutor's office to appeal if it disagreed, and Assistant Oakland County Prosecutor Michael Modelski said it was being considered.

''In my mind, somone went free who acted improperly,'' Modelski said.

Kevorkian said the ruling means ''good hope'' for the terminally ill.

''Society realizes a crying need for this,'' he said.

Kevorkian is barred from further use of the ''suicide machine'' pending a civil hearing before Circuit Judge Alice Gilbert. The hearing had been stayed by the Michigan Court of Appeals after murder charges were filed.

Howard Simon, executive director of the Michigan Civil Liberties Union, which was preparing to enter the case on Kevorkian's behalf, called the ruling ''courageous and logical.''

''I think it was absurd for the Oakland County proseuctor to charge someone who assisted a suicide with murder,'' Simon said.

In the 40-minute videotape, Adkins, of Portland, Ore., made clear her decision to die rather than allow Alzheimer's disease to progress. The video was obtained from Kevorkian's apartment under a search warrant and presented as a prosecution exhibit.

In the video, Adkins declared, ''I don't want to go on.''

Her husband, Ronald, agreed, saying, ''I'm for it because she wants it, because I love her. She should have the right not to suffer and should have a human way to exit.''

In the tape, Kevorkian asked her if she wanted to change her mind, insisting she must be the one to push the button to deliver the lethal injection.

Kevorkian, Adkins and her husband gathered in a room at the Red Roof Inn in Madison Heights, Mich., to make the tape.

''I know the things that Janet through our 34 years of marriage has loved,'' Ronald Adkins said. ''She has been a sort of light in our lives because of her interest and curiosity. Now, seeing the things she loves being taken away from her, for such a curious mind, and have that go away would kill her.''

Kevorkian asked, ''Now, you don't want her to go on?''

Adkins, ''No, I don't.

To Janet Akins, Kevorkian inquires, ''Then it's your decision.''

''Yes, it is my decision.''

Kevorkian also suggested to the husband, ''Of course, you realize she's not terminal.''

''Not in a physical sense, but mentally,'' he replied.

The husband described his wife's mental state as ''rational, she's able to make decision on her own and exercise her own free will.''

Kevorkian asks, ''Janet, are you aware of your decision, the implications of your decision?''

Her reply, ''yes.''

''What does that mean?'' Kevorkian asked her. ''What is it you want?''

''I don't want to go on,'' she answered.

''What does that mean?'' Kevorkian asked again.

''That's the end of my life.''

''What's the word for the end of life, what is it when you stop living?''

''You're dead,'' she said.

Witness Lynda Biedrzycki, now medical examiner in Waukesha County, Wis., who performed an autospy on Adkins while serving as Oakland County medical examiner, said Thursday Adkins died of a ''medical overdoes due to injection, but the manner of her death was suicide.''

''I believe she intended to take her life and pushed the button and did it alone by her own hand.''

MANILA, Philippines (DEC. 14) UPI - Provincial officials in the central island of Cebu asked President Corazon Aquino Friday to deregulate petroleum prices to prevent rationing, the government said.

But in Manila, militant groups Friday pressed demands for a rollback in the prices of petroleum products to levels before they were raised last week by an average of 45 percent.

Some 300 protesters, wearing black arm bands, banged tin cans, honked car horns and exploded firecrackers in demonstrations at the Makati financial district, a street corner near Aquino's palace and two other places in the capital.

Also Friday, land transportation officials authorized a 20 percent increase in bus fares to 5 cents as a result of the higher pump prices.

A government statement said provincial officials of Cebu asked Aquino to allow prices of petroleum products to seek their own levels on the free market to prevent rationing.

Cebu is one of several provinces which have posted growth in the country hit hard by a series of natural and political disasters. Cebu officials are struggling to overcome the devastation by a typhoon last month.

Officials in Manila have warned they may have to ration petroleum if the government continues to subsidize pump prices.

The International Monetary Fund has asked the government to remove the subsidy to curb a ballooning public sector deficit estimated at $2. 14 billion.

The measure was one of the recommendations of the IMF to enable the Philippines to secure $700 million in new credits.

The Philippines is saddled with $28 billion in foreign debt and needed hard currency to continue importing oil. The soaring oil prices sparked by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait last August have severely affected the Philippines, which imports most of its crude.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) UPI - Japan is not to blame for last week's breakdown of the GATT world trade talks, but it may be ready to reassess its positions, Foreign Ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe said Friday.

''During the Uruguay Round, we took so many measures to increase access to our markets. But when it comes to agriculture, the main dispute took place between the Economic Community and the United States, '' he said.

Watanabe's remarks were the latest in an intense review of Japan's role in the Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which collapsed in Brussels Saturday at the end of a five-year effort to extend the rules governing multilateral free trade.

Japan appears to be rethinking the policy which earned it strong criticism from U.S. officials.

''We have not changed our position yet,'' Watanabe said, ''but we are in the process of considering.''

Japan has so far refused to alter its near total ban on rice imports. This, together with the European Community's agricultural supports and export subsidies were the main sticking points with the United States and other agricultural exporting nations known as the Cairns group.

Most of the blows at the meeting in Brussels were exchanged between the United States and the EC, but afterwards U.S. officials blamed Japan for hanging back in the shadows.

''Even though Japan is the biggest beneficiary they really invested nothing in the effort to bring GATT to a successful conclusion,'' said a senior U.S. official who asked not to be identified. ''They (the Japanese) were a free rider.''

This assertion was rejected by Noboru Hatakeyama, head of international trade policy at the Ministry of International Trade and Industry.

''Actually, Japan took the lead in (investment measures), for example,'' he said. ''In the field of anti-dumping we contributed a lot. And in other areas, we have shown many, many flexible attitudes.''

But he drew the line at rice, saying the government was bound by a parliamentary resolution that opposes importation of rice.

''I think Japan has shown enough compromise (on other issues),'' Hatakeyama said.

The Foreign Ministry's spokesman was not so absolute.

''We have said all along that when others put their most difficult issues on the table, we will,'' Watanabe said.

But even that position was unacceptable to the Americans.

''The first step had to be agricultural liberalization,'' the U.S. official said.

Otherwise, he said, developing countries would refuse to accept other changes, even though they stand to suffer tremendously if the free trade system breaks down.

Japan may like the status quo, but it has a duty to itself and poorer countries to play a more positive role in supporting the GATT system, he said. However, deep fractures have appeared within the Japanese government over the issue of rice.

On Monday, Kabun Muto, minister of international trade and agriculture, attacked the agriculture ministry's position that Japan should stand by its ban on rice imports.

Japanese intransigence on agriculture limited its role in the GATT talks, he said.

Meanwhile, the Foreign Ministry officials reportedly spread concerns that Japan might have to negotiate its rice market directly with the United States if the GATT talks do not resume.

That brought an angry response from Agriculture Minister Tomio Yamamoto, who said the Foreign Ministry could negotiate whatever it liked, but he was sticking by his position.

Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu, whose Liberal Democratic Party relies heavily on the farm vote, attempted to quell the disputes by reiterating the government's basic opposition to rice imports but at the same time commissioning a panel to ''coordinate'' Japan's GATT policies.

In the background, Liberal Democrats and government officials began whispering of the need to eventually accept partial liberalization of the rice market.

Figures such as 50,000 tons a year or 3 percent - the latter was defined in a GATT draft as minimum access - of the rice crop have been reported in the Japanese press during the week as a possible compromise.

SOWETO, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 14) UPI - African National Congress President Oliver Tambo called Friday for a re-evaluation of the movement's campaign for economic sanctions against South Africa, citing ''new developments in the country and abroad.''

Tambo addressed the opening session of what was the ANC's first national conference in South Africa since President Frederik de Klerk lifted a 30-year ban on the movement 10 months ago.

The ANC chief defended the imposition of sanctions as ''a victory of no small measure'' in the struggle against white minority rule.

Having returned to the country Thursday after three decades in exile, Tambo also warned, ''At no stage should we ever allow the strategic initiative to shift to the other side'' and urged an intensification of the fight against apartheid ''on all fronts.''

But, to silence from the estimated 1,600 delegates, he added, ''It's no longer enough for us to repeat the trite slogans.

''We should therefore carefully re-evaluate the advisability of the retention of sanctions given the new developments in the country and abroad,'' he said, referring to de Klerk's 11 months of racial reforms and positive overseas reaction to the changes.

Tambo, mentioning sanctions, was raising one of the six issues that the three-day consultative conference at an exhibition center on the outskirts of the nation's largest black township of Soweto is due to debate. Other matters are negotiations, tactics, factional violence, organizing, and a program for 1991.

Sanctions imposed by Europe and the United States in 1985 and 1986 at the urging mainly of the ANC are now under review by legislators or on the way to lapsing. ANC Deputy President Nelson Mandela has appealed to European Community leaders, who met for a second day in Rome Friday, to retain sanctions until the ANC decisively indicated otherwise.

Tambo, 73, noted firmly the ANC would not slacken in its struggle for a ''non-racial, democratic South Africa,'' raising his voice slightly to offset his halting delivery, a result of a stroke in August last year that partially paralyzed him.

''The golden thread is our absolute determination to regain our freedom,'' he said in his 30-minute address. ANC efforts to bring about democracy had ''finally brought apartheid to the brink of defeat.''

Tambo repeated an ANC demand for a democratically elected constituent assembly to precede a post-apartheid government.

''All South Africans, black and white, should be organized into a mighty vehicle of liberation,'' he said. ''The election of a constituent assembly would assist in restoring people's confidence in democratic processes.''

Pretoria has rejected calls for a constituent assembly, saying any new constitution must be final and discussed at substantive power- sharing talks.

Racial reforms and ANC concessions, including the suspension of its 29-year armed struggle against white rule in August, have cleared the way for full-blown talks.

Tambo said negotiations could succeed only if ''all the parties are ready to negotiate and enter into agreements in good faith.'' He added, ''The government's record is, at this stage, far from satisfactory.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - Inflation at the producer level slowed in November as producer prices rose 0.5 percent after posting three consecutive advances of more than 1 percent, the Labor Department said Friday.

The slowdown was more apparent in the department's index for intermediate goods, which rose a modest 0.1 percent in November after gaining 1.5 percent the month before.

Prices for crude materials dropped 6.2 percent last month after rising 8.7 percent in October.

The index for energy goods still continued to rise but at a much slower pace after three months of steep price hikes. Consumer food prices rose by 0.8 percent, keeping pace with October's increase.

The index for other finished goods, excluding the often volatile food and energy categories, increased by 0.5 percent in November after showing no change in October and increasing by 0.6 percent in September.

For the 12 months ended in November, the index for finished goods prices rose by 7 percent. During the same period, consumer food prices advanced 4.2 percent while energy prices, boosted after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, soared by 38.4 percent.

Excluding food and energy prices, the index rose by 3.6 percent from year-ago levels. Prices for intermediate goods rose by 5.2 percent during the period and crude goods prices jumped by 13.8 percent.

But there were signs of price easing in November. After climbing steadily for the three previous months, the index for finished energy goods inched up only 0.1 percent in November.

Prices for gasoline and home heating oil dropped 2.6 percent and 7.3 percent during the months after jumping by 8 percent and 15 percent in October. Prices for natural gas rose 5 percent, after posting a slight decline the month before.

Consumer food prices rose by 0.8 percent last month, slightly below the 0.9 percent rise in October. Higher prices were posted for fresh and dried vegetables, fish, pork, beef, veal and confectionary products.

Lower prices were posted for dairy products, processed fruits and vegetables, eggs and cooking oils.

After gaining about 1.5 percent in each of the past three months, the index for intermediate materials and supplies gained only 0.1 percent in November. Energy prices dropped slightly while prices for food, feed and construction materials also declined.

Prices for durable manufacturing materials dropped 1 percnet after showing no change the month before. But prices for non-durable manufacturing materials gained 1 percent after rising 1.3 percent in October.

Economists watch producer prices closely because these prices reflect changes down the economy pipeline before products reach consumers.

Prices for crude goods fell a record 6.2 percent in November after posting substantial gains in each of the three previous months. Declining energy prices were responsible for the decrease.

Prices for crude energy materials dropped 10.3 percent, the largest decline ever posted in this category. Crude petroleum prices fell 16.1 percent after posting record advances twice in the three previous months.

(DEC. 14) UPI - Active arbitrage and profit taking pushed stock prices lower Friday on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, ending a rally that had lasted seven straght sessions.

The benchmark Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which posted a powerful 643.56-point gain Thursday, slipped 293.47 points to 24,349.50.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all major issues dropped 13.66 points to 1800.32 points after gaining 34.48 points Thursday.

Declines outpaced advances 661 to 343, while 132 issues remained unchnaged.

Elsewhere in Asia, stocks closed lower in light trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange driven down by rumors that the colony's leading bank planned to move its headquarters.

The benchmark Hang Seng Index dropped 24.43 points to 3,125.69. The fall followed a loss of more than 10 points Thursday.

Among the narrower indexes, financials lost 18.61 points, utilities slipped 14.98, properties tumbled 41.34 and industrials dropped 28.19 points.

In Singapore, stock prices slid in moderate trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange in profit-taking.

The blue-chip Straits Times Industrial Index fell 6.82 points to 1188.33. The broader-based All Singapore Index slipped 1.04 points to 328.36.

Volume amounted to about an estimated 48.9 million shares.

Elsewhere around the region, in Bangkok, stock prices edged higher in moderate trading on the Thailand Stock Exchange.

The Securities Exchange of Thailand Index added 5.48 points to 649. 58.

In Taipei, stocks closed lower on the Taiwan Stock Exchange.

The Taiwan Weighted Index, which gained 37.12 points Thursday, lost 68.07 points to 4,304.31 in light trading.

In Australia, stock prices closed lower on the Sydney Sharmarket backgrounded by Thursday's report showing Australia's November's unemployment jumped to 8.2 percent.

The All Ordinaries Index lost 9.7 points to 1,310.0 - just 15.5 points short of its low for the year.

Turnover amounted to 59.9 million shares as declines outpaced advances 152 to 89.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - Declining automobile assemblies pushed industrial production down 1.7 percent in November, the greatest monthly decline since a 2 percent drop in January 1982, the Federal Reserve said Friday.

November's decline followed a revised 0.9 percent drop in October and reflected the weakness that has hit the nation's manufacturing sector.

The Fed said automobile assemblies were down 20 percent in November. The decline, which was coupled with a sharp curtailment in output of automobile parts and materials, accounted for more than half of the overall production reduction.

Production at utilities fell 3.6 percent mainly from unseasonably warm weather the Fed said.

In a further sign of economic weakness, the Fed said other types of industrial output slid ''noticeably'' for the third consecutive month.

Total industrial capacity utilization dropped 1.5 percentage points to 80.9 percent.

At 107.5 percent of its 1987 annual average, industrial production in November was 0.6 percent below year-ago levels.

The Fed said the declines were widespread throughout manufacturing. Output of durable goods fell 2.5 percent in November.

Production of consumer goods other than motor vehicles was curbed sharply again last month, the Fed said. Production of goods for the home, such as appliances and furniture, continued to weaken while clothing output maintained the downward trend that has been evident all year.

Output of consumer energy products, namely gasoline and electricity for residential use, also declined sharply last month.

The production of business equipment other than automobiles and trucks was reduced about 0.25 percent last month after falling 0.5 percent in Ocotber.

The Fed said the recent weakness has been concentrated in industrial equipment. Output in this sector had risen sharply, the Fed said, between March and September.

In November, production of construction supplies continued to fall and was down nearly 17 percent from the year's high.

''Apart from the decline in parts and manufacturing for motor vehicles, the most significant decreases in output of materials occurred in the energy components, particularly in electricty generation and coal mining,'' the Fed said.

Excluding motor vehicles and parts, manufacturing output fell 0.8 percent in November after a decline of 0.7 percent in October and an 0.5 percent fall in September.

GREEN BAY, WI (DEC. 14) UPI - The Green Bay Packers will be without starting quarterback Don Majkowski the rest of the season following the 1989 All Pro's surgery to repair the tendon leading to the rotator cuff in his right shoulder Coach Lindy Infante said.

Majkowski had the surgery Thursday in San Diego, where he had gone to seek a second opinion on his shoulder.

Orthopedic surgeon Gary Losse operated after discovering the tear while performing arthroscopic surgery to examine the injury, which Majkowski suffered Nov. 18 in a game against the Phoenix Cardinals.

Infante, acting as the team's medical spokesman, said the injury is not a career-threatening one. He said Majkowski will be unable to throw for three to six months but should be able to play next season.

''Doctors feel very good about his chances for full recovery. There ws no mention of career-ending or anything remotely like that,'' said Infante. ''The prognosis is a good one and they feel like the repair went successfully.''

The Packers, who are 6-7 but still in the hunt for a wild card playoff spot, will go with Anthony Dilweg as their starter Sunday in Philadelphia against the Eagles. He has played well at times this season but faltered the last two games, including last week when he failed to put any points on the board in three quarters against the Seattle Seahawks.

Dilweg was lifted from the game and third-stringer Blair Kiel almost brought the Packers back to victory, firing a pair of fourth-period touchdowns as Green Bay lost 20-14 to Seattle.

Majkowski, who went to the Pro Bowl last season and held out for more money until right before the start of the regular season, had been at odds with Packers physician E.S. Brusky on the injury. The doctor had said last week Majkowski should be able to play and said no tear had been found in tests he conducted.

Majkowski had still felt pain and said he was not ready to play, creating a controversy over his shoulder. After consulting with team officials he decided to seek the second opinion from Losse, a shoulder specialist, and Losse found the tear.

Infante said Losse discovered the tear while performing arthroscopic surgery to repair an impingement - a condition in which a tendon has caught on a small piece of bone in the area.

During the surgery Losse also found a ''one-half by one-half inch tear'' in the tendon leading to the rotator cuff, which he then repaired.

''They did not find the tear until they went in. It wasn't like they went in looking for a tear. They went in with the scope to examine the area,'' said Infante.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) UPI - Julio Cesar Chavez, the undefeated junior welterweight champion widely regarded as the best pound-for-pound boxer in the world, has signed a six-fight, $15 million contract with promoter Bob Arum, ending his association with Don King.

The attorney for Chavez, 73-0 with 60 knockouts, and Arum announced the signing Thursday night. Chavez, 28, holds two 140-pound titles, including the International Boxing Federation version formerly held by Meldrick Taylor won in a highly controversial fight last March. He is also the World Boxing Council title-holder.

King's failure to make a deal for a Taylor rematch proved the final straw in Chavez's building dissatisfaction with his promoter, the champion's attorney Leon Pizante, said Thursday night.

Pizante said Chavez, a native of Culiacan, Mexico, Thursday night arrived in Las Vegas, Nev., where Arum and the attorney have been negotiating since Tuesday.

Pizante said since King's contract with Chavez ran out last July, Chavez had entered into only individual bout agreements with King. Chavez fought on the undercard of a King promotion Saturday night in Atlantic City, N.J. The next was to be a Taylor rematch in January but Pizante and Taylor's promoter, Dan Duva, said King wanted so much money for himself that he couldn't get a site for the fight.

Piznate said the terms of King's agreement with Duva for the rematch called for King to make the fight by Nov. 13. The attorney said King never notified Chavez his $2 1-2-million payday for a non-title fight fell through. The champion didn't know until he got to Atlantic City last week he wouldn't have a foreseeable chance to prove he deserved to beat Taylor, who was stopped by the referee with two seconds left while back on his feet.

''Julio was very upset because he wanted to fight him but Julio didn't know that King was unable to put together a fight, even in March, '' Pizante said. ''King was basically unavailable to Julio in Atlantic City. He just doesn't think people will hold him to his word.

''It got very critical Nov. 12 or 13, they wanted to know where we're going to fight,'' Pizante said. ''They have to work with television and also, it's very bad for their fighter to sit that long, even very bad for Julio (who fights often).

''They held up their end,'' Pizante said of Duva and Taylor.

''Don King's failure to put that fight together as promised cost them Julio

Cesar Chavez,'' Duva said. ''He's very important because he fits into so many important fights this year and next year, with Taylor, (Hector) Camacho, (Pernell) Whitaker and Aaron Davis.''

A spokesman for Arum said the contract won't take effect until May, 1991. King's attorney would not immediately available for comment.

''The thing is, everyone in the boxing business from the boxers to the casinos to the TV networks are catching up with Don King,'' Duva said. ''The only man who hasn't is Mike Tyson,'' Duva said.

DAYTON, OH (DEC. 14) UPI - Lt. Gov. Paul Leonard said Friday it is time for AT&T to ''reach out and touch someone else'' and abandon its hostile takeover attempt of Dayton-based NCR Corp.

Leonard, in remarks prepared for delivery at Sinclair Community College, urged Ohio citizens not to patronize AT&T.

''We preach business retention as the cornerstone of our economic development policy in the state of Ohio,'' said Leonard, who also serves as the state development department director. ''If we really believe that, now is the time to put our money where our mouth is. The effort to deter AT&T is business retention in its purest form.

''It makes absolutely no sense for Miami Valley residents to purchase products from AT&T, and thereby help subsidize the elimination of NCR from the Dayton scene,'' Leonard said. ''Consumer pressure, especially at this time of year, is the one way that concerned citizens can send a strong message to AT&T.''

Leonard went on to say the confrontation must end soon or both companies will suffer.

''The longer this goes, the more dangerous it becomes,'' he said. ''Soon, both companies will be drained of valuable resources; that makes them vulnerable to other sharks who may be swimming in circles and smelling blood.''

The lieutentant governor also said he was skeptical about comments from AT&T Chairman Robert Allen that any job redundancies that occur with the combining of the two firms will be reflected in changes or cuts at AT&T.

''Corporate promises about business retention and no layoffs in a community are about as fragile as tomorrow's stock market, especially in view of the national economy,'' Leonard said. ''In my opinion, if Mr. Allen really means it, he should be prepared to provide that commitment, in writing to Dayton and the state of Ohio leaders.''

Leonard also said that Allen's comments are not very reassuring to stockholders or employees at AT&T, either.

''It sure sounds like a rob Peter to pay Paul strategy to me,'' he said. ''I would like to see a written commitment that if the takeover is successful, there will be no job loss at AT&T or NCR facilities in Ohio.''

(DEC. 14) UPI - Fire officials in Revere, Massachusetts, say they have brought a huge fire under control. The fire that engulfed a number of triple-decker houses burned out of control for about three hours before firefighters got the upper hand. Gusty winds sent burning embers flying over the area from a triple-decker house, setting about five others on fire. There have been NO reports of deaths or injuries to residents. However, at least three firefighters were reported injured.

A published report says a man reputed to be a major cocaine trafficker and successor to the ''king'' of the Bolivian cocaine trade was quietly arrested at his home near Los Angeles. Jorge Roca-Suarez reportedly was arrested at his 19-room house in suburban San Marino. An UNnamed law enforcement source said the arrests resulted from a federal indictment that is expected to be unsealed today.

Authorities are trying to determine if the deaths of 12 members of a religious group were accidental, or if the worshippers were poisoned. The bodies were found in a small house east of downtown Tijuana, Mexico, after a night of chanting. The bodies were found sprawled in a circle. Six people, including the 72-year-old spiritual leader and a four-month- old girl found in her dead mother's arms, were hospitalized in comas.

In Hong Kong, seven Vietnamese refugees set themselves on fire to protest a government policy of repatriating boat people fleeing their homeland for economic reasons. The seven were among a group of 10 boat people at the Whitehead detention center staging a hunger strike against the policy. Officials said camp guards quickly extinguished the fire. The boat people sustained minor injuries and were taken to a nearby hospital.

North Korean Prime Minister Yon Hyong-muk went home from South Korea today after UNsuccessful talks with his South Korean counterpart on how to end Korea's 45-year division. Yon came to Seoul for the third round of the inter-Korea prime ministers talks and had two meetings with the South Korean prime minister. No agreement was produced except that they will get together again in the North Korean capital February 25-28.

BONN, GERMANY (DEC. 14) UPI - Prince Johannes of Thurn and Taxis, considered one of Europe's richest man with a global empire worth more than $1 billion, died Friday after his second heart transplant in seven weeks. He was 64.

The prince, who has suffered from heart disease for several years, received the first heart transplant Oct. 26 in a six-hour operation. An infection required follow-up surgery. Several days ago, his body rejected the donated heart and another transplant was needed.

Surgeons operated again Wednesday, but his body was too weak to recover fully from the second transplant, physicians said. The aristocrat died in a hospital near Munich.

The prince, whose ancestors created the postal service in central Europe 500 years ago, ruled over a global empire of companies, properties and real estate worth an estimated $1.3 billion to $3.4 billion.

The prince is survived by his wife Gloria, 30, and three children.

Family tradition dictates that the prince's son Albert, 7, will inherit the empire - which includes Europe's largest privately owned forest property, 50 companies, the largest European brewery, a bank, castles, and apartment buildings.

Trustees and Princess Gloria, who married Europe's most eligible bachelor in 1980, will manage the empire until Albert's 18th birthday.

The billionaire - whose full name was Johannes Baptista de Jesus Maria Louis Miguel Friedrich Bonifazius Lamoral Prince of Thurn and Taxis - his wife, son Albert and daughters Maria Theresia, 10, and Elisabeth, 8, lived in a 500-room castle in southern Germany that is larger than London's Buckingham Palace.

The funeral will be held after Christmas, a family spokesman said.

BOSTON (DEC. 14) UPI - An apprentice engineer tried three times but was unable to brake his speeding Amtrak train moments before it derailed and slammed into a packed commuter train, federal investigators said.

More than 260 people were injured Wednesday when the Amtrak Night Owl from Washington, D.C., rammed the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority commuter train inside Boston's Back Bay Station.

Rookie engineer Richard Abramson was at the controls when the train, speeding at more than 90 mph, derailed on a curve despite his attempts to slow it, federal officials said.

''He made three attempts to slow the train, and in each instance, in his opinion, the brakes failed to set up properly to slow the train,'' Susan Couglin, vice chairwoman of the National Transportation Safety Board, said Thursday night after interviewing Abramson in his hospital room.

Coughlin said it was estimated the average speed in the mile and a quarter before the crash was 91.8 mph, during which the train traveled 6,590 feet.

She added, however, that investigators will probably never know exactly how fast it was going when it jumped the track because one of the recorders was destroyed in the crash and the other, for unknown reasons, did not record the last five miles of the trip.

''We have no explanation of why'' the recorder failed, Couglin said. ''We will never know the exact speed of impact.''

Abramson, 41, of Trumbull, Conn., told investigators that the last time he looked at the train's speedometer it registered between 60 and 70 mph.

''I was driving. The next thing I knew, we were in a heap of wreckage in the engine. There was fire all around us. it was scary,'' Abramson said in Friday's Boston Herald.

Amtrak Train 66 was just arriving from Washington and was being driven by Abramson, a trainee who had just begun to work on regular lines, under the supervision of senior engineer Willis E. Copeland, 53, of Bethany, Conn.

Copeland, a 25-year railroad veteran, had previously been involved in several major rail incidents and on March 27 agreed to a lifetime ban from the Metro-North Railroad, which runs from Pennsylvania Station in New York to New Haven, Conn., the Herald reported.

The report said Copeland was banned because he ran two stop signs and was suspended for 10 days. He was also involved in a Nov. 29, 1988, incident in Port Chester, N.Y., and another In Milford, Conn., on March 9. Both involved signal violations.

Copeland was also involved in a Conrail derailment in the late 1970s in New York City that resulted in his dismissal, although he was later rehired. He was also the engineer of one of the trains involved in a Queens, N.Y., crash in 1984 in which one person died. That crash was blamed on a signal problem.

Both Abramson and Copeland remained hospitalized with injuries suffered in Wednesday's crash. Both have undergone mandatory drug and alcohol tests, but the results have not been released.

Nine other people injured in the mishap also remain hospitalized. None are in serious condition.

Work crews Friday continued to remove the wreckage of the three 120- ton locomotives from inside the tunnel leading into Back Bay station. Some 8,000 feet of track in the tunnel has to be repaired or replaced.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - Business sales rose 0.9 percent in October while inventories rose 0.4 percent from the previous month, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

The government said the value of sales and manufacturing shipments in October were an estimated $551.9 billion, up 0.9 percent from September and 4.9 percent above year-ago levels.

Sales of durable goods, those big-ticket items designed to last three years or more, increased 1.8 percent from year-ago levels.

Within this category, manufacturers and retailers said the value of goods sold in October rose 3.9 percent and 0.9 percent, respectively from year-earlier levels.

Non-durable goods sales increased by 1.4 percent from September and 7.7 percent from year-earlier levels. Within this category, wholesalers and manufacturers sales rose 2.7 percent and 1.6 percent respectively.

Manufacturers' inventories were estimated at $813.9 billion in October, up 2.5 percent from year-earlier levels. Inventories stood at $810.8 billion in September and $807.4 billion in August.

Inventories of durable goods totalled $495.1 billion, up 1.4 percent from year-ago levels while non-durable inventories stood at $318.7 billion, up 4.3 percent from the year before.

The total inventories to sales ration was 1.47 in October, down 0.01 from Septmeber and 0.04 from year-earlier levels.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 14) UPI - A federal judge has refused to dismiss a defamation suit against Donald Trump by an investment analyst who claims the developer had him fired for predicting that the glitzy Taj Mahal would have difficulty surviving.

Trump's lawyers argued that Marvin B. Roffman could not prove that the devloper made statements that cost Roffman his job. But U.S. District Judge Louis Bechtle, in an opinion released Thursday, kept the suit alive.

Roffman contends that he lost his job with Janney Montgomery Scott because he withdrew an apology Trump demanded. While Trump described the billion-dollar Taj Mahal Casino Resort as the ''eighth wonder of the world,'' Roffman suggested that it would not draw the crowds to Atlantic City, N.J., that Trump expected.

The analyst was quoted Mar. 20 in the Wall Street Journal as saying the Taj ''will break every record in April, June and July, but once the cold winds blow from October to February, it just won't make it. The market just isn't there.''

Trump's real estate empire is now in trouble, brought down partly by the Taj's enormous debt. Trump avoided bankruptcy six months ago with $65 million in emergency loans as part of a deal with the banks holding $1.9 billion in debt.

But the Philadelphia Inquirer quoted sources in the Trump organization Friday as saying that he needs $180 million more to survive the winter. Trump was also scheduled to file a final debt restructuring plan Friday with the New Jersey Casino Control Commission.

Trump's lawyers say the plan includes giving the holders of $675 million in debt on the casino a half-interest in the operation in return for their forgiveness of all but 10 percent of the interest due on the bonds.

Roffman's suit contends that the day after the Wall Street Journal article, Trump sent a letter to Janney demanding a retraction or Roffman's firing.

Roffman faxed a letter of apology to Trump Mar. 21, but the next day sent a second letter saying he had reconsidered the apology.

''The conditions under which I signed the previous letter were extremely stressful,'' Roffman wrote in the second letter.

MARYSVILLE, OH (DEC. 14) UPI - The American Honda Motor Co. reportedly is considering building a new Civic model at one of its Ohio plants starting in about a year.

Sources told The Cleveland Plain Dealer in a story published Friday that the new model would not be produced in Japan. It would be built only in Marysville or nearby East Liberty, Ohio.

The company on Thursday introduced its first station wagon produced entirely in the United States. It was a 1991 model Accord and was designed, engineered and developed in the United States.

The wagon will be built exclusively at Honda's manufacturing plant in Marysville.

ROME (DEC. 14) UPI - European Community leaders agreed Friday to send emergency food aid to the Soviet Union to prevent winter famine and show strong support for the policies of President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The accord came on the first day of a two-day summit that will launch historic steps toward a common currency and a joint foreign policy in the 12-nation EC.

''All without exception agree to give immediate aid to the Soviet Union,'' said a spokesman for Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, who holds the rotating EC presidency.

The EC executive Commission had proposed $1 billion in Soviet food aid, about one-third of it in outright grants and the other two-thirds in credits.

It was not initially decided how much the EC would immediately provide, because some countries said credits would only add to the Soviet Union's debt. Discussion continued at the summit.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany, whose country has already provided food aid to the Soviets, spoke first on the need to send EC food assistance.

''If Gorbachev fails, it's going to cost us even more in the long run so we ought to do something today,'' said Kohl, according to officials.

French President Francois Mitterrand said the EC should go beyond food aid, to include technical assistance and balance-of-payment help, because ''the whole situation in the Soviet Union should be seen as an emergency.''

The EC leaders discussed the Soviet Union's troubled food distribution system, saying it was especially important for food to reach Moscow and Leningrad.

The Persian Gulf crisis, South Africa and the stalled world trade talks were also on the agenda for Friday.

The summit concludes on Saturday with inauguration of two landmark constitutional conventions, on economic and monetary union and on political union.

The ''intergovernmental conferences,'' as they are known, are slated to end next year with changes to the EC's founding charter, the 1957 Treaty of Rome, eventually leading to a single currency and a common security policy.

The new British prime minister, John Major, stressed that Britain was prepared to play a positive role in EC affairs. His predecessor, Margaret Thatcher, fell from power last month over her strident opposition to EC integration.

''I don't think anyone in the Community wants confrontation,'' Major said. ''We have to engage in discussions in a constructive spirit and so must our partners.''

Although Major shares Thatcher's opposition to a single currency and some other EC policies, the new prime minister's tone at his first EC summit was far more accommodating.

''He said there is a real desire in Britain for having the Community succeed, especially among the young people,'' the Italian spokesman said.

Major and several other leaders said it was important for the EC summit to send a strong statement on the troubled world trade talks. Negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade collapsed in Brussels last week over a dispute between the EC and the United States over the Community's huge agriculture subsidies.

Major, according to British sources, said ''the EC must not be too inward-looking, it must be outward-looking,'' whether dealing with the gulf crisis, the Soviet Union or the GATT talks.

''There is a general feeling that the Community did have flexibility on agriculture, but might not have used that flexibility to its full effect,'' the sources said.

NEUCHATEL, SWITZERLAND (DEC. 14) UPI - Prolific Swiss writer Fiederich Duerrenmatt, ever-rebellious author of countless plays, novels and essays, died of a heart attack early Friday, his publishers announced. He was 69.

Duerrenmatt's collected works, running to 40 volumes, include his first big success ''Romulus the Great'' and his later ''The Visit,'' ''The Physicists,'' ''Christmas,'' ''The Fellow Traveller,'' ''Play Strindberg,'' and ''The Rebel.''

A huge man, Duerrenmatt was not always easy to get along with, mainly because severe diabetes made him moody.

Born Jan. 5, 1921, in Konolfingen in German-speaking Switzerland near the capital of Bern, he lived most of his writing life in Neuchatel in the French-speaking part of the country.

His novels and plays - he was also a theater producer - won him international awards, including Germany's Schiller Prize.

Duerrenmatt was a doctor of literature at Temple University in Philadelphia, and he received honorary doctorates from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and Nice University in France.

Son of a parson and pacifist, he was one of Switzerland's two best- known contemporary writers, the other being Max Frisch.

Duerrenmatt first wrote a series of plays and turned to prose only in his later years - ''Beethoven expressed his profoundest music not in his symphonies but in his late quartets,'' he once told an interviewer.

He was involved in a literary scandal in 1981 when an Austrian journalist, Andre Mueller, published a long interview citing attacks by Duerrenmatt on other writers such as Gunther Grass, Rolf Hochhuth, Heinrich Boell, Samuel Beckett, Ionescu, and Frisch.

Duerrenmatt never denied giving the interview but said he had been speaking off the record, did not know he was being recorded, and that remarks were taken out of context.

ASUNCION (DEC. 14) UPI - The Paraguayan Senate Thursday completed Congressional approval of the state alcohol company privatization, which is part of a stabilization plan under an agreement with the International Monetary Fund. The measure is now expected to be signed into law by President Andres Rodriguez.

The Paraguayan Alcohol Administration, as the company is known, has been valued by a consulting firm at $32 million. Congress ruled that the sale of the enterprise will be conducted with the participation of employees and industrialists in the sugar cane distilling business.

In October, the government told the IMF it would reduce inflation from 45 percent a year to 16 percent by December 1991. The government plans to cut inflation by reducing the deficit of state companies, and selling some off to the private sector. At least four other state firms may also be sold. Paraguay's foreign debt is among the smallest in South America, estimated at $1.6 billion.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (DEC. 14) UPI - Soviet defense expenditures, after rising until 1988, started to decline in 1989, a NATO report said Friday.

The report said NATO calculates that Soviet defense outlays ''rose in real terms at a higher rate between 1985-88 than in the previous five years, driven by the production of several new generations of weapons systems whose development predates (Soviet President Mikhail) Gorbachev.

''Unilateral force reductions, withdrawals from Eastern Europe and cuts in military production led to a 4 percent real decline in expenditure in 1989,'' the report said.

''While it is still too early to give definitive figures for 1990, the Soviets appear to be making additional cuts of a similar magnitude to 1989.

''However, defense spending still accounted for 15-17 percent of Gross Domestic Product. The defense sector remains highly inefficient, continuing to tie down a significant proportion of human and capital resources, to the detriment of the civilian sector.

''NATO believes that the defense budget will continue to fall after 1990 as the budgetary impact of force reductions and withdrawals and arms control agreements are felt, and that defense expenditure is likely to decline in real terms until at least 1985,'' the report said.

Analyzing the reasons for the reversal in Soviet defense spending, the report said, ''The (Soviet) leadership now recognizes that the obsession with building up its military power had encouraged NATO to increase its own defense spending and placed an unsustainable burden on the economy.''

''Realization that economic policy was failing, coupled with a reappraisal of political and security policy has led to dramatic changes, including greater openness on defense expenditure and the announcement and implementation of plans for reducing the share of resources going to defense,'' the report said.

Looking to the future, the report said, ''Continuing failure of economic policies would provide an even greater impetus for reducing defense expenditure.

''During the 1990s NATO also expects a radical reduction in the size of the military-industrial complex and a further shifting of resources to the civilian sector.

''Pressure on defense spending and on defense plants to do more for the civil economy will gradually reduce capacity to step up arms production in a crisis.

''However, to the extent that the central authorities retain strong control over defense policy in any agreement between the republics on the future of the union, NATO would expect them to seek to maintain strategic and conventional capabilities at a level necessary to protect the security of the state,'' the report said.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 14) UPI - Three Israelis were stabbed to death Friday at an aluminum factory in the mixed Jewish-Arab coastal town of Jaffa, and police suspected Islamic fundamentalist supporters in the slayings.

The killings sparked violent attacks against Arabs and Arab-owned vehicles in Jaffa and nearby Tel Aviv.

Dozens of angry Israelis, reinforced by supporters of the ultra right-wing Kach movement of slain American Rabbi Meir Kahane, chanted ''Death to the Arabs'' and ''Revenge,'' smashing car windows and setting one vehicle on fire. Kahane was assassinated in New York City last month.

One Arab was stabbed in the head and hospitalized, while police detained at least 16 Israelis as a result of attacks against Arabs, Army Radio reported. The rioting clogged roads around the coastal towns but police broke up much of the violence as the Jewish Sabbath began Friday evening.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, returning from the United States, called the slayings ''gruesome'' and said ''appropriate measures'' would be taken. Police described the attack as one of the most serious intercommunal acts of violence in the Tel Aviv-Jaffa area this year.

Nationalistic slogans in Arabic, found on walls inside the factory, were attributed to the outlawed Islamic Fundamentalist Movement, known by its Arabic acronym Hamas, Police Commissioner Ya'acov Terner said. Friday marked the third anniversary of Hamas' founding.

''The slogans in Arabic on the walls inside are clear,'' Terner said. ''They took responsibility. They came in order to murder.''

Police detained nearly two dozen Arabs for questioning and set up roadblocks in the country's center to try to find the attackers, who they said were two brothers from the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip. One of the Palestinians worked at the aluminum factory, but no suspects had been arrested, police said.

''I am in favor of finding a compromise and to reach an understanding,'' Tel Aviv Mayor Shlomo Lahat said shortly after the slayings. ''But when I see the reaction of the Arabs in the territories and of the Hamas people, I start to think twice. If we have to deal with murderers, this is not the way.''

Police said the three Jews - two men and a woman - were killed by multiple stab wounds and one witness described a weapon found as a ''long commando knife.'' The three Israelis will be buried Sunday in state funerals.

Apparently fearful of attacks by Israelis, thousands of Palestinian workers began returning to the Gaza Strip within hours of the slayings. Army Radio reported police patrols were established along Israeli roads leading to Gaza to prevent stone-throwing and violence against Arabs.

Israel has been hit by a series of stabbing attacks by Arabs against Jews since the Oct. 8 killings of at least 17 Palestinians by Israeli police on the Temple Mount. The Temple Mount, known in Arabic as Haram esh Sharif or The Noble Sancturary, is Islam's third holiest site and the site of the Jewish Temple.

Four Israelis were killed in those stabbings previous to Friday's attack.

''We don't want murders of Jews. Neither of Arabs. We want peace, state next to state,'' one Israeli Arab from Jaffa told Army Radio.

According to reports by police and witnesses, two plant employees entered the factory about 7 a.m. with the two Palestinians and were subsequently stabbed and killed. A third Israeli working at another company nearby was killed after he heard the others' cries and came to their aid.

The slayings were discovered about an hour later by another factory worker who summoned police.

Yossi Sarid, a left-wing member of Israel's parliament, said the slayings might strengthen the hand of Israelis who advocate providing Gaza residents with self-government.

But in a telegram to Shamir, right-wing Israeli parliamentarian Rahamim Zee'vi asked ''how many more victims will be sacrificed until the government of Israel will take measures to liquidate and end the intifada,'' the 3-year-old Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation.

''If the government will not take drastic measures it won't be possible to prevent any more spontaneous Jewish organizations from revenge killings on Arabs,'' warned Yuval Ne'eman, Israel's ultra right- wing Minister of Science and Technology.

ATHENS, GREECE (DEC. 14) UPI - An Iranian cleric renewed Tehran's verbal assault on the United States, describing America as ''the great Satan'' while addressing a congregation, the official Islamic Republic News Agency said Friday.

Former Chief Justice Ayatollah Abdul Karim Ardebili, addressing the prayer congregation in Tehran, said the United States was ''responsible for all problems facing the Muslim world.''

Iranian clerics have not used the term ''the great Satan'' for the United States since the death of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in June 1989, and Tehran residents reached by telephone said the renewed outburst may be a result of the power struggle within Iran.

Algerian President Chadli Ben Jedid attended the prayer ceremony after a meeting with Iranian President Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani.

Ardebili criticized the United States for deploying close to half a million troops in the Persian Gulf, an IRNA dispatch monitored in Athens said.

The Algerian president, who was on a trip to the region in a bid to find a peaceful solution to the gulf crisis, arrived in Tehran Thursday.

IRNA said he held consultations with Rafsanjani on ways of averting a war in the gulf. The news agency gave no further details. Ben Jedid left Tehran after attending the prayer ceremonies.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (DEC. 14) UPI - The Air Force is investigating the discovery of a pipe bomb at NASA's Ames-Dryden Flight Research Facility, a spokeswoman said Friday.

A maintenance worker found the device at about 3:30 p.m. PST lying on the ground less than 20 feet from a small building that houses a dispensary and maintenance facilities, said spokeswoman Nancy Lovato.

''It was a small explosive device. It was not fused. It would not have blown up,'' she said, describing it as ''a cylindrical device'' less than a foot in length and filled with an unidentified powder.

Workers notified Air Force security, who removed the device for analysis, she said. No evaculation was necessary.

The facility serves as a processing center for space shuttles that land at the Air Force base's desert runway.

The shuttle Columbia, which had landed at 9:54 p.m. Monday to conclude a nine-day astronomy mission, was still at the center but was located at least a half-mile from where the bomb was found, she said.

''There is no reason to suspect that that's connected to the shuttle, '' said

Lovato.

About 900 people work at the aeronautics research center, which is located in the Mojave Desert about 80 miles from Los Angeles.

NAIROBI, KENYA (DEC. 14) UPI - Tens of thousands of people are doomed to starve to death next year in Sudan despite international efforts to save them, U.S. government officials said Friday.

Drought now spreads across large areas of northeast Africa, the officials said. Northern Ethiopia will suffer worse food shortages than this year, and the logistics of supplying much of western Sudan with up to 700,000 tons of food will defeat aid agencies and kill ''tens of thousands,'' according to Andrew Natsios, director of the U.S. government's Foreign Disaster Assistance program.

''It is impossible to avoid significant famine deaths,'' he said.

Natsios and other U.S. officials, including regional representatives, refugees specialists, aid officials and Food for Peace officers, were meeting in Nairobi to hammer out a response to next year's problems.

The U.N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization has just completed a report assessing Sudan's harvest shortfall at 1.2 million tons. This, said Khartoum-based disaster representative Rick Machmer, means 8 or 9 million people across Africa's largest nation will face food problems.

''Beginning in two weeks' time, 125,000 tons a month needs to arrive in Port Sudan,'' he said - close to the maximum capacity of the country's only port, 420 miles northeast of Khartoum on the Red Sea.

From there, food will need to move, mainly by truck, up to 1,000 miles west through desert and semi-desert to Kordofan and Darfur provinces, worst hit by the drought, at a cost of up to $500 per ton and a total program cost that could graze $1 billion.

In August, September and October 1991, Kordofan's entire food supply will depend on this relief food, Machmer predicted.

Aid agencies have yet to secure pledges of total cooperation from the Sudanese government, a hard-line Islamic military group which until last week refused to acknowledge an imminent famine and said it was the victim of Western propaganda aimed at undermining its agricultural policies.

''We hope that given the clear indications from the FAO, that will force closer cooperation,'' Natsios said.

Meanwhile, Ethiopia's northern provinces of Eritrea and Tigray, where up to 1 million people may have starved to death in 1984 and 1985, again face major shortages in 1991, and will need 750,000 tons of food to survive.

But disaster representative Bill Pearson had a message of optimism, noting that in 11 of 15 Ethiopian regions, harvests had risen by up to 15 percent and were reaching record levels.

''That, we think, bodes well for Ethiopia,'' he said and attributed the growth to the government's abandonment of Marxist-Leninist agricultural control policies earlier this year. Nevertheless, it would be years before Ethiopia could recover from 20 years of declining per capita food production.

Meanwhile, he also noted, aid agencies were due to deliver their 100, 000th ton of food to Tigray some time this week, ''probably the largest relief effort across active lines of conflict that we know of.''

Tigray and Eritrea are both fighting decades-old civil wars against the government. A breakthrough agreement between the two sides, negotiated by Ethiopian church groups, allowed trucks to take food through battle zones from April this year.

DURHAM, NH (DEC. 14) UPI - Buyouts of American companies by Japanese businesses are good for the U.S. economy and Americans should not fear such acquisitions, a University of New Hampshire political scientist said Friday.

Professor Bernard Gordon said Americans reacted with hostility to takeovers of Universal Studios and MCA Inc. by Matshushita Electrical Industrial Corp. and the purchase of Columbia Pictures Entertainment Corp. by Sony Corp.

But Gordon, who has been researching the effect of foreign trade on the U.S. economy for six years, said such acquisitions actually benefit the U.S. economy.

"Industry purchase is good for industry," he said. "The people who sold it say what every person (in the industry) would say - they're in a very competitive environment and more capital would allow them to compete more effectively."

Gordon said, while Japanese acquisitions attract most of the attention, Britain and the Netherlands have long been the biggest investors in the United States.

"Britain is half the size of Japan and invests twice as much, yet no one mentions them," Gordon said. "Foreigners other than Japanese own A&P, Howard Johnson's and Burger King and nobody kicks about that." Japanese capital invested in American industry, he said, helps to spur growth, create jobs and strengthen the economy.

Gordon also disputed the belief that trade with Japan is one-sided. He said the perception arises because Japan sells highly visible consumer goods, such as cars, while U.S. sales to Japan tend to be medical- or factory-oriented products.

"Sixty percent of what Japan buys is manufactured goods," Gordon said, noting that Japan spent $22 billion on manufactured goods last year, more than

Britain and France combined.

He said the United States has a population that is twice the size of Japan's and that leads to a balance of trade deficit in absolute terms. But on a per capita basis, he said, U.S.-Japan trade is about equal, with each American spending about $374 per year in Japan and each Japanese spending about $360 on American goods. Gordon said the U.S. economy will benefit from freer trade.

"Americans have always sought investment with no barriers against us," he said. "By the same token, we should have no barriers here. If we go that route we'll go the way of the (economic) basket cases of the world."

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - President Bush, though still hopeful of resolution is willing to forgo direct U.S.-Iraqi contacts if the circumstances are not worked out as the United States wants, two Republican senators said Friday.

After a meeting at the White House with Bush, Sens. Richard Lugar, R- Ind., and John McCain, R-Ariz., said the president was opposed to setting a date for the proposed meeting between Secretary of State James Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that pushed up too close to the U.N. Jan. 15 deadline for withdrawal from Kuwait.

But, said McCain, ''I think he's still hopeful. I think he is still doing everything he can to get this meeting.''

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater also maintained there was ''still plenty of time'' for a resolution to the standoff and rejected suggestions that the proposal for high-level talks was in jeopardy of collapsing.

''We still want them,'' the spokesman said.

But the unmistakable threat of no talks came as the clock ticked down toward the 30-day period proposed for the sessions between Bush and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz in Washington, and Baker and Saddam in Baghdad.

Lugar spoke to reporters shortly before the White House announced that Bush also would address the question directly before departing in the afternoon for Camp David.

''The president just said he is not about to give on a date in Baghdad that pushes it up toward the deadline of the U.N.,'' said Lugar. ''I suspect he hopes that Mr. Aziz will come and the Baker visit will occur, but I think the president, as I gathered his mood today, is prepared to have no meetings rather than to see a lot of shoving around.

''He believes that Saddam needs to get the point that it's Saddam that's in trouble - not the United States - and if we have no meetings, then so be it,'' said Lugar, the one-time chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

McCain added that Bush felt he already had ''taken the necessary steps'' to encourage dialogue and, ''if they fail to respond in a reasonable and mature fashion then he's made his best effort and that's it.''

''The president does want these meetings to take place - with the dates and the circumstances that we want,'' he said.

Both senators were at the White House as part of a bipartisan group called the Committee for Peace and Security in the Gulf, a collection of congressmen and private sector individuals basically in support of Bush's policy.

The standoff over the dates for the proposed talks, which have snagged with no agreement on the Baker mission, stems from the wording of the original proposal, made by Bush in his address to the nation on Nov 30.

He proposed that Aziz come to Washington some time after Dec. 15, this Saturday, and that Baker then go to Baghad before Jan. 15.

Bush and Baker have said that the purpose is not to negotiate but to deliver the message, face to face, to the Iraqi government that it must unconditionally withdraw the Iraqi army from Kuwait.

The Iraqis have come back with a proposal that Aziz come to Washington next Monday, Dec. 17, and that Baker go to Baghdad on Jan. 12.

But the administration realized, belatedly, that it would be a mistake to leave the Baker visit until 48 hours before the U.N. deadline for withdrawal, Jan. 15, since it is clear that Iraq would not be able to withdraw all its 500,000 troops from Kuwait in that period.

State Department officials, including spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler, when asked Thursday why the U.S. government is now rejecting an Iraqi proposal that falls within the window of time suggested by Bush, say that the president left himself ''some wiggle room'' by adding the phrase ''on a mutually convenient date'' within the 30-day period.

The United States has proposed 15 other dates for his visit to Iraq, including Christmas and New Year's Day, but the Iraqis have stuck to their original proposal, Jan. 12.

The State Department has ruled out Baker traveling to Baghdad on Jan. 12.

If the standoff continues, the Aziz visit to Washington will not take place on Monday, since the State Department has created a link between the two visits.

If one does not occur, then the second one will not take place, either.

REVERE, MASS. (DEC. 14) UPI - A wind-driven 10-alarm conflagration - one of four fires in the city in a nine-hour period - blazed through a group of triple-decker homes early Friday, forcing more than 100 people to flee in freezing pre-dawn temperatures.

Police were investigating the possibility of arson in the fires.

There were no fatalities and the only injuries reported were to three firefighters from Revere, three from Boston and one from Chelsea who battled the blazes in the Shirley Avenue section of the coastal city near Boston.

''This was the worst that I've seen in 35 years that I've been on the job,'' Fire Chief James Connery said of the biggest fire. ''It is definitely suspicious, as were the other three fires in the city during the night.''

He said investigators were checking reports that three men in a white car were seen at all four fires.

One firefighter said officials were informed by ''an unidentified civilian'' who said he had seen a white car at all of the fires at area residences and said ''some of the residents have seen the occupants of that vehicle in behind the houses acting suspicious.''

Connery said the last fire broke out at 2:43 a.m and embers tossed around by gusty winds quickly caused the fire to spread out of control to other homes in the area.

''It went from building to building, structure to structure and even from street to street,'' Connery said.

He said nine triple-deckers were eventually involved in the fire, and ''three of them were completely destroyed.'' He said the blaze was contained at about 6 a.m.

''In my opinion, I think perhaps there was an accelerant used,'' said Connery. He said his arson squad is investigating the fires for evidence.

Connery said 132 people either fled the burning buildings or were evacuated from neighboring homes. Many were taken to a nearby Jewish Community center where the Red Cross set up a shelter.

Officials said 18 families involving more than 60 people were displaced, including a number of Asian immigrants who have moved into the neighborhood over the past couple of years.

The state has offered aid to help the city find more permanent shelter for the displaced families.

The first fire of the night was reported about 6 p.m. Thursday night. One firefighter was reported injured in an earlier fire, officials said.

Local firefighters were aided by equipment from 20 surrounding communities, including from as far away as Nashua, N.H., officials said.

ROME (DEC. 14) UPI - The new British prime minister, John Major, made his debut Friday at a European Community summit and stressed his determination for Britain to play a positive role in Europe's future.

''I don't think anyone in the Community wants a confrontation,'' said Major. ''We have to engage in the discussions in a constructive spirit and so must our Community partners.''

Major, 47, became prime minister last month when Margaret Thatcher fell from power amid controversy over her strident opposition to EC integration. At the last EC summit, Oct. 27-28 in Rome, Thatcher said her colleagues were living in ''cloud cuckoo-land'' after they outvoted her 11-1 on EC monetary union.

Major said he shared Thatcher's opposition to a single European currency and some other aspects of EC policy, but was eager to present Britain's views in a helpful manner.

''We see it in our national self-interest to build and shape the European Community,'' said a top aide to Major.

The prime minister, he said, is ''wholeheartedly engaged in the great enterprise of building, shaping and developing Europe.''

The change in Britain's approach made an immediate impression at the summit, which concludes on Saturday with the launching of twin constitutional conventions, on monetary union and political union.

''Mr. Major said there's a real desire in Britain for having the Community succeed, especially among the young people,'' said a spokesman for Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, who holds the rotating EC presidency.

On Friday's first item of business, aid to the Soviet Union, Major said the EC should show ''broad solidarity'' with the policies of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

''It is significant that it came from Mr. Major,'' said the Italian spokesman.

Still, the new British prime minister made it clear the United Kingdom planned no radical new European initiatives.

''I was a member of Mrs. Thatcher's Cabinet for a long time,'' said Major, who was chancellor of the Exchequer, or treasury, before taking over the top job. ''The policies we put forward on Europe at that time were agreed Cabinet policies. They remain agreed Cabinet policies.''

Asked if Major's approach to the EC represented a break from the past, the Major aide said, ''In certain key areas like a single currency there is no change on Europe, but we need to get across our positions positively.''

DHAKA, BANGLADESH (DEC. 14) UPI - Elections to the national Parliament of Bangladesh will be held on March 2, state-run television announced Friday.

The decision to hold elections to the 300-seat Parliament was taken by Bangladesh's acting President Shahabuddin Ahmed, who assumed power Dec.6.

The acting president, a former chief justice, said earlier his priority was to hold free and fair elections to restore democracy.

The details of the election schedule will be announced later by the election commission, the television reported.

The decision was taken two days after the interim government of Ahmed arrested ousted President Hussein Mohammed Ershad and several of his former ministers.

Ershad, his wife, Raushan, and his 8-year-old son, Saad, were moved from their home in the military garrison area of Dhaka to a posh diplomatic enclave where they are under house arrest.

Ershad's resignation Dec. 6 capped two month's of protest against his government. The former president, hoping to smother the protest movement, declared emergency rule Nov. 27, banning political activity, suspending constitutional rights and imposing censorship.

The move backfired, triggering mass protests in which opposition political parties were joined by lawyers, teachers and bureaucrats demanding Ershad's ouster.

Ershad took power in a 1982 coup. He won a five-year term as president during elections in 1986 that were largely boycotted by the opposition.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - President and Mrs. Bush are mailing 145,000 Christmas cards featuring a watercolor reproduction of the decorated Oval Office, with all costs paid for by the Republican National Committee.

The painting, by New York interior designer Mark Hampton, depicts the Oval Office Christmas tree in full yuletide splendor with red bows and gold ornaments.

The original painting will be on display in the East Corridor Lobby for the thousands of visitors expected to tour the White House during the Christmas season.

Inside the card is the message in blue script: ''The President and Mrs. Bush extend their warmest wishes for a merry Christmas and a new year that will bring harmony to our world and happiness to you and those you love. 1990.'' The presidential seal is embossed above the message.

Hampton has been engaged in restoration work at the White House and Blair House in the past. It is the first time his art has been featured on a White House Christmas card.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (DEC. 14) UPI - Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar traveled to strife-torn Uttar Pradesh state Friday for talks with local officials on their efforts to end a week of Moslem-Hindu violence that has reportedly killed nearly 200 people in India.

The prime minister's trip came as sporadic violence erupted in several major cities. In the Gujarat state capital of Ahmedabad, police fired more than 100 rounds of live ammunition at stone-throwing protesters, killing one person and wounding five, the Press Trust of India news agency reported.

Chenna Reddy, following the advice of the Congress (I) Party leadership, stepped down as the chief minister of southern Andhra Pradesh state after a party report sharply criticized his handling of the communal strife there.

The prime minister Friday began to try to limit his own political liability due to the conflict.

Shekhar, whose feeble minority government took office Nov. 10 after engineering the fall of Prime Minister V.P. Singh, has been under growing pressure to take active measures to halt the weeklong tide of communal violence that has rocked many Indian cities.

A cartoon on the front page of the prestigeous Times of India newspaper Friday lampooned the new prime minister's approach to the problems facing the nation, showing him issuing orders from the porch of a comfortable palace while the country collapsed outside.

According to reports by the Press Trust of India news agency, at least 195 people have been killed during a week of Moslem-Hindu clashes that have engulfed the states of Uttar Pradesh in the north, Gujarat in the west and Andhra Pradesh in the south.

Police said the situation in the Uttar Pradesh state capital of Lucknow was quiet but tense Friday as Shekhar arrived for talks with Chief Minister Mulayam Singh Yadav.

The two officials discussed the problem of communal violence, but Yadav later told reporters he had enough police forces to control the situation without additional help from the central government, the Press Trust said.

Yadav also told reporters that Hindu agitation in the city of Ayodhya had been peaceful in recent days. Ayodhya is the site of a disputed 16th century Moslem mosque that many Hindus believe was built atop a temple devoted to the god Rama.

A campaign by the Hindu chauvinist Bharatiya Janata Party and its ally, the World Hindu Council, to relocate the mosque and build a temple on the site triggered a confrontation that brought down the Singh government in November.

Hindus make up 80 percent of India's 850 million people, while Moslems are the largest minority in India, numbering 12 percent of the population.

ABIDJAN, IVORY COAST (DEC. 14) UPI - Rebellious Libyan soldiers trained by the United States in Chad to destabilize the regime of Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi will be flown to Zaire Saturday at the request of the Libyan government, which wants them returned to Tripoli, diplomatic sources said.

The 700 dissident soldiers, who were among 2,000 captured by Chad during its war with Libya in the mid-1980s but who later renounced support for the Libyan strongman, were evacuated from Chad by the United States amid great secrecy last weekend.

The evacuation followed the overthrow of the anti-Gadhafi Chadian government of Hissene Habre by Libyan-supplied forces on Dec. 1.

Zairean President Mobutu Sese Seko said that on arrival in Zaire the rebels would be given the choice, already supposedly given in Chad, of returning to Libya if they wished. He did not speculate on their fate should they decide to go home.

Libyan Foreign Minister Mohamed Al-Bechari flew to the Zairean capital Kinshasa on Thursday to ask Mobutu to allow the soldiers into the country. The soldiers received up to two years training by American military advisors at a camp 4 miles outside the Chadian capital N'Djamena.

Some were engaged in military activities against Libya in the disputed Aozou Strip border area between the two countries, dilpomatic sources said.

Gadhafi accused the U.S. of ''piracy'' when the Libyans were flown first to Nigeria after the fall of Habre.

Libya offered the Zairean president regular oil supplies Wednesday. The supplies, which would significantly ease the country's fuel shortage caused by a lack of foreign exchange, would not have to be paid for until 1992, Zairean government sources said.

Mobutu then agreed to the Libyan request for the rebels to be given refugee status in Zaire.

It is not clear whether Zaire intend to allow Libyan officials access to the soldiers. The International Committee of the Red Cross is to coordinate Saturday's arrival of the soldiers.

Nor is it known whether the rebels will be flown aboard the same U.S. military aircraft that took them out of Chad last week to an unkown destination.

The U.S. government has said it no longer has any use for the soldiers, though it is not known if they would have remained under American military instruction in Chad if the Habre regime had survived.

Up to 400 other Libyans, who were captured by Chad during the war between the two countries, were returned to Libya by the new Chadian authorities as an ''act of thanks'' for Libyan support during the civil war that began Nov. 10.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - The government offered further evidence Friday of a stalled economy when it reported that industrial production last month fell to a nearly nine-year low while producer prices and inventory levels rose.

The battery of economic indicators led several economists to conclude that the economy is mired in recession.

''I think we're past the point of quibbling about whether we're in a recession or not. The question now is how far,'' said Peter Radford, chief economist at National Westminster Bank in New York.

Several economists said the most damaging indicator, and the one that could spur the Federal Reserve to ease its Federal funds rate, was the Fed's report that industrial production tumbled 1.7 percent in November.

The production cut was viewed by economists as a precautionary step taken by manufacturers to protect against weak sales. The Commerce Department reported Thursday that retail sales slipped 0.1 percent last month.

Last month's production decline followed a revised 0.9 percent drop in October and was the greatest monthly decline since January, 1982 - when the economy was in recession.

''All notions that the economy might skirt a recession are dashed by the plunge in industrial production and capacity utilization during November,'' said William MacReynolds, director of forecasting for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

''Clearly, the economy rapidly is falling to a degree not anticipated by most analysts just two short months ago,'' MacReynolds said.

The Fed attributed the monthly decline to a 20 percent reduction in automobile assemblies during November. This decline, which was coupled with sharp drops in output for auto parts and materials, accounted for more than half of the overall production reduction.

The Fed said other types of industrial output slid ''noticeably'' for the third consecutive month and total industrial capacity utilization dropped 1.5 percentage points to 80.9 percent.

''Industrial production has fallen like a rock although demand hasn't faded,'' said Robert Dederick, chief economist at the Northern Trust Co. , in Chicago. ''This is clear evidence of a pullback. It is clearly indicative of an on-going recession.''

Dederick attributed some of the production slowdown to ''a degree of precautionary cutting'' in the business sector to protect itself against weak sales.

The Commerce Department said business sales rose 0.9 percent in October while inventories rose 0.4 percent from the previous month. The value of sales and manufacturing shipments in October was an estimated $551.9 billion, up 0.9 percent from September and 4.9 percent above year-ago levels.

Sales of durable goods, those big-ticket items designed to last three years or more, increased 1.8 percent from year-ago levels.

Manufacturers' inventories were estimated at $813.9 billion in October, up 2.5 percent from year-earlier levels. Inventories stood at $810.8 billion in September and $807.4 billion in August.

Inventories of durable goods totaled $495.1 billion, up 1.4 percent from year-ago levels. Non-durable inventories stood at $318.7 billion, up 4.3 percent from the year before.

Prices at the producer level, an indication of inflation further down the economic pipeline, rose 0.5 percent in November.

Although the increase was higher than most economists expected, it was the first time in the three months since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait that prices rose less than 1 percent.

The slowdown was more apparent in the department's index for intermediate goods, which rose a modest 0.1 percent in November after gaining 1.5 percent the month before.

Prices for crude materials dropped 6.2 percent last month after rising 8.7 percent in October.

The index for energy goods continued to rise but at a much slower pace after three months of steep price hikes. Consumer food prices rose 0.8 percent, keeping pace with October's increase.

The index for other finished goods, excluding the often volatile food and energy categories, increased 0.5 percent in November after showing no change in October and increasing 0.6 percent in September.

After climbing steadily for the three previous months, the index for finished energy goods inched up only 0.1 percent in November.

Prices for gasoline and home heating oil dropped 2.6 percent and 7.3 percent, respectively, during the months after jumping 8 percent and 15 percent in October. Prices for natural gas rose 5 percent after posting a slight decline the month before.

The index for intermediate materials and supplies dged up only 0.1 percent after gaining about 1.5 percent in each of the past three months. Energy prices dropped slightly while prices for food, feed and construction materials also declined.

''Those numbers indicate there should be relative stability in the months ahead in inflation at the producer level absent the uncertainty in the (Persian) gulf,'' said Ron Schreibman, vice president of the National Association of Wholesalers-Distributors.

For the 12 months ended in November, the index for finished goods prices rose 7 percent. During the same period, consumer food prices advanced 4.2 percent while energy prices, boosted after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, soared 38.4 percent.

ATHENS, GREECE (DEC. 14) UPI - Police used batons and tear gas Friday to disperse students who became violent during demonstrations against legislation to curb absenteeism in schools.

University and high school students assembled for a massive protest march Friday and some tried to enter the Education Ministry in the city center to present their demands to the authorities.

The students broke through a police cordon and smashed an iron railing at the entrance. Police used batons and tear gas to disperse them. There was no immediate word on casualties.

After the clash, the students reassembled in nearby Constitution Square in front of the Vouli, or Parliament, and marched toward the Athens Polytechnic building about a mile away.

Police at first prevented them from getting into the building and sealed off the entrance but later withdrew and a large number of students entered and said they planned to stage a sit-in to press their demands.

The students were protesting a bill in Parliament that would curn absenteeism by introducing a point system that would contribute toward their grades.

They also demanded better school buildings and the right to participate in decisions that affect them.

The authorities earlier rejected their demands. For three weeks small groups of students have occupied school buildings in several parts of the country.

Education Minister Vassilis Kontoyannopoulos blamed extremist elements for Friday's violence. He said students had ''up till now demonstrated responsibility.''

The minister said the ''main aim of these elements is to hinder dialogue between the ministry and all the members and organizations of the educational community.''

MOGADISHU, SOMALIA (DEC. 14) UPI - The pattern is chillingly familiar in Africa.

It happened in Liberia in June. It happened a few weeks ago in Chad. Now the alarm has gone off in Somalia, and Mogadishu is suffering a breakdown in economy, law, and social order.

Thousands of Somalis either have fled or are trying to flee the hot, dusty Indian Ocean capital city, where the government of President Siad Barre has lost control. Undisciplined special policemen roam the streets armed to the teeth, while outside the city, rebels awaiting collapse are ready to pounce to seize power.

Plans for round-table talks between government and rebel groups, some who have fought Barre since 1981, fell apart last week, and rebel commander Col. Farax Ali Warsame disclosed his force - the United Somali Congress - planned military action in the capital in the near future.

The USC, which operates in the vicinity of Mogadishu, has had enough, the colonel said, speaking from the safety of a posse of bodyguards, armed with machine guns and missile launchers.

''It was previously a hit-and-run war. But now we are consolidating some cities like Gialalassi, like Bulo Burti,'' he said, 100 miles and 130 miles north of Mogadishu.

''Now we are going to start in Mogadishu also,'' he said, claiming he had infiltrated weapons and guerrilla fighters into the city already.

Local residents are standing in endless lines for visas from foreign embassies. Flights out of town are fully booked until the end of the year.

Gunfire echoes across the city 24 hours a day. Bandits hold up cars at gunpoint. Last Monday, for reasons still not clear, a police officer fired into a crowd at Mogadishu airport, killing at least two people. Shots have been fired outside the American School. Each dawn finds fresh corpses in the street.

Unknown gunmen last week shot and killed the general director of African affairs at the Somali Foreign Ministry, former Ambassador to Egypt Hussein Hassan.

Rumors spread fast in Mogadishu. Among them are reports that the Somali air force has killed thousands in a bombing raid on the town of Belet Huen, 190 miles north of the city, an active base for the USC.

Opposition sources are distributing letters purporting to show bank instructions to pay southern African mercenaries $600,000 to fly ''Hunter bombers'' against the rebels.

The country's proposed peace talks have died. Opposition groups withdrew from the conference, supposed to happen this week in Cairo, after Barre declared a state of emergency 10 days ago and arrested opposition figures.

''We have the feeling that this government is not serious, that this regime is not serious at all,'' said Mohamed Nur, a leader of one group, calling itself Manifesto One. ''This is simply an international ploy to confuse the donors.''

But with most of the U.N.'s staff evacuated from Mogadishu this week, there are not too many donors left in cash-starved Somalia.

The United States has moved all but about 40 of its embassy-related staff from the capital. Emergency escape plans have been laid by most other embassies and non-governmental agencies. Italy, the former colonial power, has about 600 nationals in Somalia. Other embassies are understood to be relying on French help from the naval base at Djibouti to the north.

VAL GARDENA, Italy (DEC. 14) UPI - Switzerland's Franz Heinzer, showing he is the man to beat this season, won a World Cup downhill Friday to move to first place in the overall standings.

Heinzer was timed in 2 minutes, 0.21 seconds time, .36 seconds ahead of Bernie Huber of Germany. Atle Skaardal of Norway was third at 2:00. 64.

Heinzer now has 65 points in the overall standings, with Italy's Alberto Tomba second at 47.

''I had the feeling that I could do well today,'' Heinzer said. ''I knew I was the favorite but I was very nervous. I knew the piste could speed up a lot as the race went on, and this is the reason that the win means a lot to me.''

Huber scored his best World Cup result.

''No one was more surprised than me,'' he said. ''Things had not gone so well in training, but I believe it was an exercise in positive thinking.''

Skaardal, recovering from an ankle injury, led a strong Norwegian showing. Teammate Lasse Arnesen finished fourth.

''I can't help but be satisfied with my third place especially after my fall last weekend,'' Skaardal said. ''The course was great and I just hope the conditions are the same for tomorrow and I can have another good race.''

Absent from the top 10 were the Austrians, whose best finish came from Patrick Ortlieb at No. 12.

Helmut Hoeflehner, Austria's World Cup downhill champion, finished 23rd. After the race he learned his father died of cancer. He will skip Saturday's downhill to return home.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (DEC. 14) UPI - The Romanian army refused Friday to reveal which of its members fought for and against last year's revolution, claiming a year is not enough time to find all the answers.

''We need to analyze. We need time,'' Gen. Constantin Codrescu, chief of research, told a news conference called to explain the army's role in the revolution that began Dec. 16, 1990.

''We need to get rid of the emotional state of mind,'' he said. ''There are still question marks.''

Tension has mounted with the approach of the anniversary, in which hundreds and perhaps thousands died in the only regional bloodshed as one communist regime after another toppled in Eastern Europe in late 1989.

The army fought for a week alongside opponents of Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu to overthrow four decades of communist dictatorship Dec. 22. The hated Ceausescu and his wife, Elena, were executed Christmas Day.

Codrescu said authorities still have not identified the counter-revolutionaries - widely described during the revolution as ''terrorists'' - who fought the protesters.

Some believe they were foreign agents. In any case, it is unclear why they refrained from attacking the revolutionary leaders - such as current President Ion Iliescu, Prime Minister Petre Roman and the embryo National Salvation Front - unless some agreement had been reached between the two sides.

Codrescu did not respond satisfactorily to some questions about the revolution but did not deny he knew some of the answers.

''You know how hard it is to write history,'' he said. ''You have in front of you people who have lived through those events. We have felt, we have lived them, and now as we approach a year on, we're reliving them again.''

He said the army had no plan of action until the night of Dec. 22 when it formed a ''strategy in a situation of warfare.''

Cordrescu also indicated a change in position of the army, which emphasized last January it would never turn against the people. He said the army could be involved in preventing social disorder within the country in its role as defender of the constitution.

A small group of demonstrators has gathered every day this week in downtown Bucharest demanding the resignation of Iliuescu. They hold up a huge portrait of Ceausescu that has printed across the top, ''Iliescu's daddy.''

Cordrescu admitted that arms and uniforms handed out to the people during the revolution have not all been rounded up and could be used in future conflicts.

Queried about reports of a large influx of Soviets and Hungarians into Romania Codrescu said border guards report the situation ''normal'' but he declined to give figures.

The establishment daily Adevarul (The Truth) reported more than 16,000 Soviet citizens and 12,000 Hungarians have crossed the border since December.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, HAITI (DEC. 14) UPI - International observers bound for Haiti said they were highly confident this weekend's elections would run smoothly.

''I think this election will be different from the past,'' Aldy Castor, a member of the observer delegation from the National Republican Institute for International Affairs, said Thursday before heading to Haiti.

On Sunday, more than 3 million registered voters will go to the polls to elect a new president, congress and hundreds of local officials.

It will be Haiti's third federal election in four years, the last two marred by successive coups, repression and violence.

''This is like a second revolution for Haiti,'' said an observer from the U.S. National Workers Union who asked not to be identified. ''There is a lot of hope and a lot of faith.''

About 700 international observers, including former President Jimmy Carter, are scheduled to watch the electoral process.

''I think the election just might run smoothly,'' the observer said. ''Our presence and the presence of an important figure like Jimmy Carter will make a difference.''

But Castor said that despite everyone's apparent good intentions, the country's para-military Tonton Macoutes continue to exercise a lot of power.

The Tonton Macoutes, a group of thugs loyal to former dictator Jean- Claude ''Baby Doc'' Duvalier, have been blamed for most of the atrocities in Haiti in the past few decades.

They have also been linked to interim President Ertha Pascal- Trouillot, a supreme court judge who has led the country since March.

Pascal-Trouillot was a high-level official in Duvalier's government and is seen by many Haitians as a puppet of the former dictatorship.

''President Pascal-Trouillot is a Duvalierist,'' Castor said. ''She was in his government ... and she even dedicated her college thesis to Duvalier.

The Tonton Macoutes have been blamed for last week's attempted assassination of leading presidential candidate Jean-Bertrand Aristide. Seven people died in the grenade attack at a rural campaign stop and 53 were wounded.

Aristide, 37, a former priest who was expelled from the Roman Catholic Salesian order in 1988 for pursuing populist political activities, has drawn huge support from rural voters.

''Aritide is the first candidate in a long time to address the interests of peasants and farm people,'' Castor said. ''Some 80 percent of the population is rural.''

Aristide has espoused a populist program in his campaign against the No. 2 man in the race, Marc Bazin, a former World Bank economist.

''Aristide has the support of the people,'' the union observer said. ''He came in late in the campaign and he is the most popular candidate.''

ST. PAUL, MINN. (DEC. 14) UPI - Polar adventurer Ann Bancroft announced Friday she and four companions will try to become the first women to traverse Antarctica and top their male counterparts by making the 1,700- mile trek without dogsleds or motorized vehicles.

If successful, Bancroft also would become the first woman to reach both the North and South poles on foot.

Bancroft, 35, of St. Paul said the four-month expedition will start in October 1991. Joining her will be veteran mountain climbers Sue Giller, 43, Boulder, Colo.; Kellie Erwin-Rhoads, 33, Pocatello, Idaho; Lucy Smith, 39, Lander, Wyo.; and a fifth woman to be confirmed by the end of the year.

''I couldn't have made this trip six years ago,'' said Bancroft, who journeyed to the North Pole in 1986 with fellow Minnesotan Will Steger, who completed a trans-Antarctica trek by dogsled in March. ''But now I have experience in handling extreme conditions and I feel up to the challenge of tackling the world's last frontier.''

The Bancroft team members have started training.

''The training isn't so much physical. It's more group dynamics, shaking down the system so everybody knows what their job is and it becomes just like clockwork,'' she said.

Aside from the physical challenges of the expedition, Bancroft said the mission has messages.

''We want to encourage people everywhere, especially women, to take on new challenges, regardless of their age or condition,'' she said. ''I hope we'll demonstrate that people can do whatever they set their minds to.

''Women continue to be under-represented in many segments of society. Women make up only a handful of the top executives in the country, fewer and fewer motion pictures have strong female roles, and while the pay gap between men and women is slowly decreasing, the gap remains.

''Without strong role models to show them otherwise, it's tempting for people, especially women and young people, to believe they can't change the status quo.''

Like Steger's international team, the Bancroft team has an environmental bent.

''We also believe it's important to call attention to the fragil environment of Antarctica,'' she said. ''The depleting ozone layer is just one example of the many challenges now facing the continent that contains 70 percent of the world's fresh-water supply.

The women hope to travel 15 to 20 miles a day across terrain previously tackled only with a snow tractor by British adventurer Vivian Fuchs and his team in 1957-58. The women will travel by ski, pulling 200-pound sleds loaded with food and supplies. At least part of the way, they will be aided by use of parachute-like sails that will help propel them along the ice. Extra provisions will be dropped at three locations along the route.

Efforts are under way to raise the $2 million the expedition is expected to cost.

Temperatures will range to minus 50 degrees Fahrenheit and winds of up to 100 miles per hour can be expected. The route also is criss- crossed with deep crevasses.

The women also are expected to serve as guinea pigs for a medical research effort that will try to fill in gaps in existing physiological and psychological research on women under extreme conditions. Dr. Pat Walker of St. Paul will work with the team members before, during and after the expedition to monitor physiological changes occurring in the Antarctic environment, including hormonal, lipid and menstrual cycle changes, variations in immune functioning and changes attributed to chronobiologic (biorhythm) effects. The effects of large doses of ultraviolet radiation from the ozone hole above Antarctica also will be observed.

KHARTOUM, SUDAN (DEC. 14) UPI - Two graves containing the bodies of up to 100 Sudanese nationals have been found in neighboring Chad after the collapse of Chad's government, a Sudan official said Friday.

According to the official Sudan News Agency, quoting a source at the general command headquarters of the Sudanese army, two mass graves of some 90 to 100 Sudanese nationals were discovered west of Giguirta in Chad.

Giguirta lies near the desert frontier of the two countries, across which Libyan-backed rebels invaded Chad early this month, forcing President Hissene Habre to flee to Cameroon and installing their leader Idriss Deby in the capital N'Djamena.

The SUNA report gave no date for the graves' discovery. There was no independent confirmation.

MIAMI (DEC. 14) UPI - A Justice Department delegation has been sent overseas to try to convince foreign governments to unfreeze the assets of deposed Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega so he can defend himself against U.S. drug charges, a judge said Friday.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler also said Noriega's drug and racketeering trial would be postponed from Jan. 28 until at least June. No new trial date was set.

Following a closed hearing involving classified information, Hoeveler said a high-level delegation had been sent to Switzerland and Austria to see if either government would be willing to unfreeze some of Noriega's assets. His attorneys in the past have said there is at least $20 million available in overseas accounts that could be used for his defense.

The accounts were frozen at the Justice Department's request after federal officials insisted that they contained Noriega's profits from drug-trafficking activities.

Hoeveler had ordered the government to help Noriega get access to some of his money. After Friday's hearing he said he was satisfied the Justice Department was making an effort to do that.

''We have reported to the court regarding the government's effort to get the funds,'' said Diane Cossin, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Miami. ''We are complying with the court's order.

He said he would keep Noriega's attorneys on the case and would consider putting them on public defender status, under which they could be paid up to $75 an hour, pending the outcome of the delegation's trip to Europe. They have said they normally would be paid up to $250 an hour in a case of this magnitude.

Lead defense attorney Frank Rubino said his team hasn't received any money since taking the general's case nearly a year ago, so they haven't had the funds to do an investigation. They estimated it would take about six months for them to prepare for trial, if Noriega's foreign assets are released.

A 1988 Miami federal indictment against Noriega charges him with turning Panama into a drug-trafficking and money-laundering sanctuary for South American drug smugglers doing business in the United States. Fifteen other defendants were named in the indictment.

A simultaneous indictment in Tampa accuses Noriega of conspiring with a smuggler to import into the United States more than a million pounds of marijuana.

Noriega surrendered in the Dec. 20 U.S. invasion of Panama and was brought to Miami to stand trial. If convicted in the Miami indictment, he would face a maximum penalty of 145 years in prison and a $1.1 million fine.

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL (DEC. 14) UPI - Two prosecution witnesses testified Friday a wealthy rancher and his son plotted to kill ecologist and labor leader Francisco ''Chico'' Mendes Filho for his work in trying to save the Amazon rain forest.

And in another sector of Brazil, gunmen killed another labor leader in the same fashion as the 1988 shotgun slaying of Mendes Filho.

Police said two men with shotguns Thursday killed Jose Helio da Silva, a labor leader representing rural workers near the Northeastern city of Recife. The union treasurer, Jose Cicero, was wounded in an assault modeled after the Mendes Filho slaying, police said.

Police Commissary Florenildo Monte showed newsmen Friday a note that da Silva received last week saying, ''Chico Mendes is sleeping because he talked too much. If you don't shut up, you will be sorry.''

Monte said police have not found the assailants.

In testimony Friday at the Mendes Filho murder trial in the Amazon town of Xapuri, 1,845 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro, prosecution witness Raymundo Figueiredo, 62, told the court that codefendant Darly Alves da Silva, 56, a rich rancher, told him he was going to ''kill'' the ecologist because ''he was putting obstacles in the way of business. ''

Mendes Filho, chief of a rubber-tappers union, won a United Nationsl Global 500 award in 1987 for trying to curb the burning of the rainforest by ranchers. His efforts outraged ranchers, who accused him of interfering in their business opportunities.

Another prosecution witness, Genesio Ferreira da Silva, 15, testified that while living in the house of the Alves family he overheard Darly Alves da Silva and his son, Darci, 26, plot the killing of Chico Mendes.

''I heard everything,'' he told the court.

Darci confessed to the crime when the trial opened Wednesday and said his father is inncent.

Prosecutors say Darci confessed simply to cover up for his father.

The Recife killing is apparently unrelated to the death of Chico Mendes other than that both victims were labor leaders and both were killed by shotguns.

Officials say 415 rural labor organizers have been killed in the past two years in Brazil. Police believe it is retaliation by landlords fearing their land will be taken over, as demanded by peasant leagues.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Friday the hostage release suggests Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein is getting the message the world opposes his invasion of Kuwait.

But, Cheney told the House Armed Services Committee, ''There is no indication that Saddam Hussein is open to a peaceful resolution of the problem he has created.'' All Saddam's actions, he said, ''suggest that he does not yet realize that he cannot prevail.''

Cheney and Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman Colin Powell reiterated their belief that economic sanctions alone are not enough to guarantee that Iraq will withdraw from Kuwait. And they said no decision has been made to go to war.

Questioned about the release of the hostages by Saddam, Cheney said, ''It's beginning to dawn on him perhaps that the world, the United Nations, is serious.''

And Cheney said that if the meeting between Secretary of State James Baker and Saddam comes off, Baker's purpose would be to make clear to Saddam that there is widespread international opposition to his actions, something Saddam's closest advisors may be afraid to tell him in fear they may be punished for telling the truth.

''He's going to restate directly to Saddam Hussein the fact that we're deadly serious about seeing those U.N. resolutions implemented. One of our concerns, frankly, has been that (Saddam) ... doesn't have anyone around him who will tell him the truth, and there's a lot of evidence that telling the truth to Saddam Hussein is dangerous for your career and your health. ... We think it's important to make certain that we have a clear, unmistakable signal, a clear channel if you will, from our government to his government so that he knows exactly'' what the consequences are.

Powell would not spell out specific U.S. battle plans but said an air war alone against Iraqi targets both in Kuwait and Iraq would not be sufficient. Nor would he or Cheney say how long a war might take and how many casualties they might expect.

Cheney also said there should be some international effort to deny Saddam the technology for nuclear, chemical and biological war once he withdraws from Kuwait or is forced out.

And Powell said the addition of another 200,000 troops, who are due to be in place by mid-January when the United Nations has declared that force may be used, does not put the United States in a ''use it or lose it'' situation.

He also said that weather is not a deciding factor in resolving the question of whether force should be used. He noted that heat, sandstorms, clouds and dust affect all forces, not just U.S. forces.

On another matter, Powell assured members that servicemen in Saudi Arabia were free to wear U.S. flag patches on their uniform, calling one unit's prohibition based on concern for Saudi sensibilities ''a small, internal administrative glitch which has been totally absolved.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - The last group of American and Canadian hostages from Kuwait and Iraq - including the U.S. ambassador in Kuwait City - headed home Friday to a hero's welcome.

After 132 days in enforced residence in Kuwait and Iraq, the former hostages left Baghdad Thursday, spent the night in Frankfurt, Germany, and then flew to the United States, where they were scheduled to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., near Washington at 4 p.m. EST.

The chartered plane, according to the State Department task force, carried 48 former hostages, 10 of them Canadians.

The flight from Baghdad Thursday carried 96 people to Frankfurt, but about half of them were foreign nationals who chose to remain in Europe.

Included in the group headed for the United States is Ambassador Nathaniel Howell, who kept the embassy in Kuwait City open despite a blockade around the compound for the last three months.

Howell said in Frankfurt that the American flag was flying as he left the embassy, but there were no diplomats left behind to staff the mission. Officially, the mission remains open, but there won't be any caretakers left inside. The State Department said it will hold the Iraqi government responsible for the protection of the diplomatic compound.

All documents were destroyed before Howell and four other American diplomats pulled out.

The final flight means that about 2,550 Americans were airlifted out of Iraq aboard 15 chartered flights since early August. No more flights are planned, even if some of the remaining U.S. citizens should choose to leave Iraq or Kuwait, since regular commercial flights are now available to Amman.

Those flights are permitted under the United Nations economic embargo because they are defined as humanitarian in nature.

Another approximately 800 Americans made it out of Kuwait and Iraq on their own, sometimes on perilous journeys through uncharted desert country.

Those approximately 500 U.S. citizens remaining behind are mainly the spouses of U.S. citizens. In some cases, the head of the household has dual Iraqi-U.S. nationality and, as an Iraqi citizen, would require an exit visa, which the Iraqi government refuses to issue.

Others are minor children, staying behind with their parents who have chosen to remain in Iraq.

PANAMA CITY, PANAMA (DEC. 14) UPI - A U.S. tuna boat exploded and sank in the Panama Canal zone Friday, killing four people, including two Americans, officials said.

The boat, loaded with 1,053 tons of frozen tuna, exploded at about 1:40 a.m. and sunk at about 6:30 a.m. in the port of Balboa near the Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal, one mile north of Panama City, said Jaime Beitia of the National Port Authority.

Firefighters from Balboa and the Panama Canal Commission evacuated the area and extinguished the fire. Divers recovered the bodies of two U.S. crew members, one Korean crewmember and the body of a Panamanian nightwatchman. The remaining 17 crew members were unharmed, Beitia said.

The dead were identified as Ricahrd Balelo, 51, and Leonel Correia, 37, both of the United States; Chung Suk Kwuon, 47, of South Korea; and Felipe Romero of Panama.

Beitia said a fire that caused the explosion probably started in the machine room of the boat and said one of the crewmen may have been soldering. He said the boat also contained an unknown quantity of ammonia, which may have contributed to the fire.

The boat, called the ''Odette Therese,'' was docked in Balboa for net repair and was scheduled to depart on Tuesday, according to the Panama Canal Commission.

Beitia said transit through the Panama Canal was not affected by the accident.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (DEC. 14) UPI - An ethnic Albanian opposition leader Friday blasted the opening round results of Serbia's first postwar multi-party elections because of a near-total boycott in Kosovo by voters of the province's ethnic Albanian majority.

''The Democratic Union of Kosovo cannot recognize the legitimacy of elections in Serbia because Albanians did not take part,'' said Fehmi Agani.

''I hope that the democratic public in Yugoslavia and the world will not accept the legitimacy of the elections in which only 15 percent of the province's population took part, while the ethnic Albanians did not, '' Agani told a news conference in the Kosovo capital of Pristina, 200 miles south of Belgrade.

The boycott of the Dec. 9 polls was called by ethnic Albanian leaders to protest the elimination of virtually all of the province's autonomy through a new Serbian Constitution enacted in September by the communist government of President Slobodan Milosevic.

Milosevic won re-election with more than 65 percent of the approximately 5 million votes cast. His Socialist Party of Serbia, the name adopted by the ruling communists in July, captured 87 seats in the 250-member Serbian Assembly.

Nine seats went to opposition groups. The remainder will be decided Dec. 23 in runoffs required because no candidates won more than 50 percent of the first-round votes.

In Kosovo, where there are 1.7 million ethnic Albanians compared to 200,000 Serbs, Serbian communists took five assembly seats. The rest of the province's 29 seats are to be decided in the second round and because of the ethnic Albanian boycott, most will almost certainly go to Serbian communists and the rest to Serbian nationalists.

Agani said his organization does not regret the boycott, saying that ethnic Albanians ''cannot be satisfied with crumbs from a table nor with charity. They demand to be equal.''

He said that the re-election of Milosevic, who sought the backing of Yugoslavia's 8.5 million Serbs by pursuing a strong nationalist policy over the past three years, was the result of ''voters' fears of changes'' and a disorganized opposition.

Kosovo has long been a source of conflict between Serbs and ethnic Albanians, who have been demanding self-rule within Yugoslavia. Serbs cherish Kosovo as the ''cradle'' of their culture and Orthodox religion, and charge that ethnic Albanian calls for self-rule are a pretext for secession and merger with Albania.

More than 35 ethnic Albanians have died this year in confrontations with Serbian police.

In July, Serbia dissolved Kosovo's provincial administration and close Albanian-language media after ethnic Albanian lawmakers declared independence from Serbia. Human rights groups have alleged serious violations by Serbian police against ethnic Albanians.

ROME (DEC. 14) UPI - European Community leaders agreed Friday to send emergency food aid to the Soviet Union to prevent winter famine and to show their support for the policies of President Mikhail Gorbachev. The exact amount, which could total $1 billion in grants and credits, was still being debated.

The accord to send food aid came on the first day of a two-day summit that will launch historic steps toward a common currency and a joint foreign policy in the 12-nation EC.

"All without exception agreed to give immediate aid to the Soviet Union," said a spokesman for Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, who holds the rotating EC presidency.

EC leaders were also debating whether to approve, in addition to the food aid, up to $1.4 billion in technical assistance to the Soviets for 1991 and 1992, including funds to improve food distribution.

The EC executive agency proposed $1 billion in Soviet food aid, about one-third of it in outright grants and the other two-thirds in credits. Several countries argued, however, that credits would only add to the Soviet Union's staggering debt. Britain prefers EC technical assistance "so we solve the problems once and for all instead of just this year," said a British government source.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany, whose country has already provided food aid to the Soviets, spoke first on the need to send EC food assistance. "If Gorbachev fails it's going to cost us even more in the long run so we ought to do something today," said Kohl, according to officials.

French President Francois Mitterrand said the EC should go beyond food aid, to include technical assistance and balance-of-payment help, because "the whole situation in the Soviet Union should be seen as an emergency."

The EC leaders discussed the Soviet Union's troubled food distribution system, saying it was especially important for food to reach Moscow and Leningrad.

Soviet assistance dominated the first day of discussions. The Persian Gulf crisis, South Africa, and the stalled world trade talks were on the agenda for Friday night's dinner.

The summit concludes Saturday with inauguration of two landmark constitutional conventions, on economic and monetary union and on political union.

The "intergovernmental conferences," as they are known, are slated to end next year with changes to the EC's founding charter, the 1957 Treaty of Rome, eventually leading to a single currency and a common security policy.

A draft proposal on currency union, circulated Friday, calls for key decisions to be taken by "qualified" or weighted majority, including at least eight EC countries, rather than by unanimity.

The new British prime minister, John Major, stressed that Britain is prepared to play a positive role in EC affairs. His predecessor, Margaret Thatcher, fell from power last month over her strident opposition to EC integration.

"I don't think anyone in the Community wants a confrontation," said Major. "We have to engage in the discussions in a constructive spirit and so must our Community partners."

Although Major shares Thatcher's opposition to a single currency and some other EC policies, the new prime minister's tone at his first EC summit was far more accomodating. "He said there is a real desire in Britain for having the Community succeed, especially among the young people," said the Italian spokesman.

Major and several other leaders said it was important for the EC summit to send a strong statement on the troubled world trade talks. Negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade collapsed in Brussels last week over a dispute between the EC and the United States and other farm exporting countries over the Community's huge agriculture subsidies.

Major, according to British sources, said "the EC must not be too inward-looking, it must be outward-looking," whether dealing with the gulf crisis, the Soviet Union or the GATT talks.

"There is a general feeling that the Community did have flexibility on agriculture, but might not have used that flexibility to its full effect," the sources said.

The EC agriculture commissioner, Ray MacSharry, met in Brussels on Friday with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter. Both reported a new sense of optimism but no dramatic breakthrough. The GATT talks will resume next month in Geneva, provided there signs progress is probable.

(DEC. 15) UPI - Those who perceive the Saturday showdown between 11-2 teams as a character test for the AFC do not include the New York Giants, hosts to the Buffalo Bills.

''They have the best offense we'll face this year,'' Giants defensive coordinator Bill Belichick said.

Giants cornerback Mark Collins, who in the past two games has shut down star receivers Jerry Rice of San Francisco and Anthony Carter of Minnesota, sees no letup covering Buffalo's Andre Reed. Reed has an AFC- leading 63 catches for 834 yards and six touchdowns.

''I've been studying on him since the season started because I never played Buffalo,'' Collins said. ''One week Jerry Rice, one week Anthony Carter, one week Andre Reed, they're anywhere from 1 to 3 any week.''

New York linebacker Carl Banks was asked if the Bills' record is as meaningful as the Giants'.

''They have just as good a team as any in the NFC so I think they would have just as good a record,'' he said. ''They seem to be very in synch.''

Unlike last year, when the Bills were anything but harmonious and left the playoffs after one round. These Bills are gearing for a longer playoff season - much longer.

''When we (the AFC) have sent teams before (to the Super Bowl),'' I don't think we've been balanced all the way around,'' said Buffalo defensive end Bruce Smith, who needs three sacks to match the NFL record of 22 in a season. ''The Buffalo Bills have offense, defense and special ''ffalo

The Bills have yet to clinch the AFC East. They lead Miami by only one game and play the Dolphins next week in Buffalo.

''We rank with anybody in the NFL,'' Smith said. ''Instead of looking past an opponent, we take them very seriously. It's very important to stay focused on the job at hand.''

The Giants have clinched the NFC East but have no interest in losing the spark they regained last week against Minnesota after losing two straight.

''This time of year, it's on,'' Parcells said. ''It stays on. I don't have to say much.''

In another Saturday game, the Washington Redskins visit the New England Patriots. The Redskins can clinch a wild-card spot by beating a team that has lost 11 straight and holds the NFL's worst record, 1-12.

However, the Redskins need look back only one season when they lost to the league's laughingstock, the Dallas Cowboys, who finished 1-15.

''I think we've got to go in there with the feeling they're going to play their absolute best,'' Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs said. ''And we would be absolutely stupid - with everything we've got riding on this - to take it any other way.''

Over the past four weeks, the Patriots have averaged six points a game. They are the league's lowest-scoring team, and at their season average of less than 12 points a game, they would have to play 19 more games to equal NFL leader Buffalo's 373-point output.

Patriots rookie quarterback Tommy Hodson has a fractured ring finger on his throwing hand. If he does not start, Marc Wilson will replace him, despite a 1-9 record in 10 career starts for New England.

Monday night, San Francisco plays the Rams at Los Angeles.

(DEC. 14) UPI - Federal investigators said today that the brakes may have failed on a speeding Amtrak train moments before it derailed and slammed into a packed commuter train in Boston... injuring more than 260 people. Susan Coughlin of the National Transportation Safety Board says rookie engineer Richard Abramson was at the controls of Amtrak's ''Night Owl'' train and tried three times to slow it down, but couldn't. The train was speeding more than 90 miles an hour and derailed on a curve.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government reportedly will increase its share of the payment of costs of maintaining U-S military bases in Japan. A Japanese newspaper says the government will raise its payment from the current 40 percent to about 50 percent. The paper also says the government has agreed to pay the bases' gas, water and electricity bills and the salaries of all Japanese employees working at the bases. U-S and Japanese officials would not confirm the report.

Effects from declining automobile sales are showing up in yet another government statistic. This time industrial production. The Federal Reserve reported a one-point-seven percent drop in the figure last month, the largest monthly decline since January of 1982 and the last recession. And much of the November decline came from a 20 percent drop in activity at the nation's auto factories. Declining auto sales were also blamed yesterday for most of the one-tenth of one percent decline in November retail sales figures.

Inflation continued last month at the producer level but at a slower rate than reported in earlier months. The Labor Department reports wholesale inflation up one-half of one percent last month as expansion of the energy goods index slowed. It jumped right after Iraq invaded Kuwait and pushed wholesale inflation up by over one percent for each month up to November.

Arson is one possible cause that investigators in Revere, Massachusetts, say are following up on after four major fires ripped through the Boston suburb. There are reports of three men seen in a white automobile at all four locations. Equipment from 20 communities eventually helped bring the fires under control. One ripped through a group of homes, forcing more than 100 people to flee.

Virginia executed a killer last night. Buddy Earl Justus was put to death in the state's electric chair in Richmond for the 1978 rape and murder of a pregnant nurse. The 38-year-old Justus was believed to be the only man under a death sentence in three states... also for the murders of a saleswoman in Florida and a housewife in Georgia. Justus suspended his final appeals and said in an interview hours earlier that he ''was ready to go to a better place.''

BUDAPEST, Hungary (DEC. 14) UPI - Prime Minister Jozsef Antall reshuffled his coalition government Friday just one day before he is to face growing dissent at his party's congress.

Antall told a news conference that he replaced Interior Minister Balazs Horvath with Dr. Peter Boros, a minister without portfolio who has been in charge of overseeing the Offices for State Security and Information.

Horvath has been heavily criticized since October when, while acting as the prime minister's deputy, he antagonized cab drivers by threatening police intervention in their protest.

Despite his sacking, Horvath is now a likely candidate for the vacant post of vice president of the Democratic Forum.

Antall said Finance Minister Ferenc Rabar's post is to be given to Mihaly Kupa formerly a senior finance ministry offical and currently heading a private company.

Several deputy state secretaries have resigned, including Katalin Botos of the Finance Ministry and Gyorgy Matolcsy of the government's economic cabinet in association with the rift over the controversial 1991 budget.

The Antall government has been accused of slowness in tackling Hungary's economic problems. Mistakes on the issue of privatisation may cost it the support of its coalition partner, the Small Holders.

Opposition parties accuse the government of losing the support of the nation by lacking bold policies to make up for 40 years of dictatorial rule. Rising prices, growing poverty and inflation have turned the population against the first freely elected government since 1947.

The Antall government faced its greatest crisis in October when the unexpected announcement of almost 100 percent hikes in gasoline prices sent cab drivers into the streets, triggering a three-day nationwide disobedience campaign.

The government was unable to manage the crisis and its reluctance to accept compromise did nothing to boost its image.

Antall, who suffers from a lymph disease, announced the cabinet changes Friday the day before the fourth congress of the Democratic Forum.

Several posts in the party leadership have been vacated by senior party members in recent weeks, suggesting serious cracks within the party leadership.

CHARLOTTE, NC (DEC. 14) UPI - A federal jury Friday ordered jailed TV evangelist Jim Bakker to pay his former followers $129 million in a fraud and conspiracy lawsuit filed by contributors to his defunct PTL ministry.

The jury deliberated nearly 30 hours over five days in the class- action suit, which had sought more than $700 million.

The jury acquitted three other defendants in the litigation: New York minister Aimee Cortese, a former PTL board member; David Taggart, Bakker's personal assistant at PTL; and the accounting firm of Deloitte, Haskins & Sells. Another major accounting firm, Laventhol & Horwath, also was named in the suit but was removed from the litigation when it filed for federal bankruptcy protection in November.

The suit, filed in 1987, alleged that Bakker conspired with other PTL officals and accountants to set up secret accounts that gave Bakker, his wife, Tammy Faye, and top PTL cohorts large salary bonuses.

The jury said Bakker should pay $115 million in actual damages and about $14 million in punitive damages. The jurors said Bakker, who earns 12 cents an hour working at the federal medical center prison in Rochester, Minn., should pay punitive damages because he committed ''common-law fraud.''

No payment plan for Bakker was specified by court officials.

Bakker's attorney called the ruling a victory, because the plaintiffs ''were trying to get him on a violation under the racketeering statutes'' and were trying to prove that Bakker intentionally cheated PTL's contributors.

''They weren't able to get that ruling,'' said attorney James Toms. ''And this dollar amount is just a number on paper, because unless Jim Bakker wins the Publisher's Clearinghouse sweepstakes or something, he's not going to be able to pay anybody anything.

''But he did get a cost-of-living increase recently'' at the prison, Toms said. ''Now he's up from 11 cents to 12 cents an hour. He still has to work more than two hours just to buy a postage stamp.

''So, at best, the plaintiffs have only a symbolic victory,'' he said.

The suit was filed on behalf of 145,000 of PTL's ''lifetime partners, '' who were told their donations to Bakker's ministry would buy them four days and three nights of free lodging each year for life at PTL's Heritage U.S.A. religious theme park.

Bakker was convicted last year on 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy resulting from the way he ran PTL and was sentenced to 45 years in prison.

Bakker resigned from the ministry he founded in March 1987 amid a sex and money scandal. The ministry then went into bankruptcy.

Toms said the finding of ''common-law fraud'' means the jury believed Bakker did not purposefully defraud PTL contributors.

''Jim Bakker did not intentionally wrong his people,'' Toms said in closing arguments. ''He, like all men, is flawed. He made mistakes. But he gave every ounce of energy, enthusiasm and dedicated effort to build his dream and to build it for his peopple, and the dream failed at the hands of others.''

The plaintiffs alleged that one benefactor of the bonuses was PTL President Richard Dortch, 58, who served as the liaision in hush-money payments to church secretary Jessica Hahn, whose sexual tryst with Bakker led to the disintegration of his evangelical empire.

Dortch now is serving a 2 1/2-year sentence at a federal prison in Florida after pleading guilty last year to four counts of conspiracy and fraud at PTL.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - A former close associate of accused S&L kingpin Charles Keating Jr. said Friday Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., set up a controversial 1987 meeting between five senators and bank regulators on Keating's behalf, but skipped the session because he knew it was a ''politically explosive situation.''

James Grogan, vice president of Keating's failed Lincoln Savings and Loan of Irvine, Calif., and corporate counsel for the thrift's parent company, Phoenix-based American Continental Corp., testified under a grant of limited immunity during the 17th day of public hearings by the Senate ethics committee regarding the conduct of the so-called Keating Five senators.

Grogan's testimony, which followed two days of private questioning by the committee, established Riegle's active role in first arranging the April 2, 1987, meeting between the lawmakers and Edwin Gray, then Federal Home Loan Board Board chairman, then obscuring his role by demanding a personal invitation from Sen. Dennis DeConcini.

Riegle's actions came at the same time Keating was arranging a Detroit fund-raiser that netted $78,250 for Riegle, which the senator returned one year later following press accounts of Keating's connections with the contributions.

The panel is investigating whether Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., DeConcini, D-Ariz., John Glenn, D-Ohio, John McCain, R-Ariz., and Riegle improperly pressured bank regulators to benefit Keating.

Keating, who contributed $1.3 million to the senators' re-election campaigns and other pet causes, has been indicted on state securities and fraud charges in California and is the target of a continuing federal grand jury probe.

Grogan was one of seven Lincoln or American Continental figures, including Keating, who invoked their Constitutional right against self- incrimination in refusing to testify before the ethics panel.

But Grogan was compelled to testify and produce related documents under the limited immunity, granted by a U.S. District Court judge. In exchange, Grogan cannot be prosecuted on statements he makes before the committee. He is not facing any criminal charges.

Grogan warned the senators, who will not seek immunity for Keating, that his testimony may be of limited use.

''I don't pretend to be able to speak for Mr. Keating,'' Grogan said. ''Mr. Keating is the only person who could tell you want was in his mind.''

He also said he maintains ''a rather strained relationship'' with Keating, with whom he has not spoken since leaving American Continental in June, because of Keating's dissatisfaction over Grogan's handling of bankruptcy matters.

Riegle's role in the Keating Five affair has been largely vague due in part to Riegle's sworn testiony that he could not remember key events relating to the matter. Earlier, witnesses had speculated on Riegle's role, but Grogan said flatly that Riegle arranged the April 2, 1987, meeting following a personal request from Keating.

''It was his idea to have these meetings and ... he asked me to have the other senators invite him,'' Grogan said of Riegle.

Grogan said Riegle told Keating during a visit to Phoenix on March 9 he had spoken earlier that month with Gray and other senators about coming to the meeting. On March 23, 1987, Keating's fundraiser for Riegle at a hotel Keating owned was attended mostly by Keating employees or company associates, who were the primary contributors at the event.

Riegle, however, did not attend the April 2 meeting, stunning Lincoln officials and leaving the other senators ''miffed,'' Grogan said. The meeting focused on the bank board's lengthy probe into Lincoln, which eventually failed in 1989, costing taxpayers $2 billion.

BANGKOK (DEC. 14) UPI - Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan named a new five-party coalition government Friday, bringing the two main opposition parties into the government and ousting four coalition partners, official Radio Thailand said.

The announcement came only five days after Chatichai was reappointed following a one-day resignation intended to give him a free hand to oust ministers criticized by the powerful military or tainted by corruption charges.

The extent of the shakeup, however, was greater than expected after two of the former coalition parties objected to Chatichai's conditions for joining the government.

Chatichai, 70, then brought into his government the two largest opposition parties - the Solidarity Party and the Thai Citizen Party - that both demanded his ouster in a no-confidence debate in July. The switch left the government with a number of untried ministers and little-known politicians in key positions.

Analysts in Bangkok said the new government was likely to continue most of the main policies of its predecessor, but said inexperience and factional problems would make it difficult for the government to serve out the remaining 20 months of its term.

Chatichai sacked two parties from his coalition, the United Democratic Party and the Mass Party of outspoken leader Chalerm Yubamrung. Chalerm sparked several of the crises that faced the Chatichai government in its first 28 months in power.

His barbed comments and alleged eavesdropping on military communications with a sophisticated mobile radio truck infuriated military leaders who have traditionally had a large say in Thai politics.

Two larger parties, the Social Action Party and the Democrat Party, declined invitations to join the government, saying the originally planned six-party composition would leave too few opposition members of Parliament to act as an effective check on the government. The opposition would have been unable to raise the 20 percent of the house needed to call a vote of no confidence.

The five-party government now controls 227 of the 357 seats in the lower house of the legislature but its new ministers face a strong lineup of opposition leaders.

The Solidarity Party, which was formed only last year from several small parties, and Chatichai s own Thai Nation Party suffer from factional in-fighting.

New Foreign Minister Arthit Urairat, taking up his first cabinet position, is a former governor of the Bangkok Metropolitan Water Works Authority and the owner of a private university. New Finance Minister Banharn Silpa-archa, has never worked in the Finance Ministry, but he has held four other cabinet positions previously.

Chatichai, the first elected prime minister in a decade, will have to face a cooling economy, questions about the competence of his ministers and continuing dissatisfaction among the military.

The former Army commander in chief, Gen. Chavalit Yongchaiyudh, who is building up his own political party, is expected to pose another challenge to the Chatichai government. "I give this government three months, and then I ll be ready," Chavalit said just before the new cabinet was announced.

Analysts, however, predicted a similar lifespan for Chatichai s primiership in August, 1988 and the prime minister still appears determined to continue in office until the end of his term in July 1992.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) UPI - A Family Court judge Friday ordered a 14-year-old neighborhood bully kept in a ''secure'' facility for the first year of a three-year term of state custody for setting fire to a frail Brooklyn schoolboy whose plight won national attention.

It was the maximum term that could be given to the defendant, known only as ''G.S.,'' for the burning and maiming of David Opont on March 7, the day before his 12th birthday.

''G.S.,'' described by a Family Court pychiatrist as showing characteristics of a sadistic personality disorder, was convicted November 24 of kidnapping and attempted murder in the attack on David, along with the attempted robbery of other children the day before.

David suffered burns over 50 percent of his body and has undergone many painful operations followed by extensive rehabilitation.

His story attracted thousands of well-wishers, including former President Reagan, Jesse Jackson, ballplayer Dwight Gooden and comedian Bill Cosby.

At the sentencing Friday, Judge Joseph Esquirol called the offense ''perhaps the most heinous'' he has had to deal with in his career.

''The circumstances of this are shocking,'' the judge said. ''I can't find a word of what I think of this act. ... It was a horrible crime.''

The sentenced youth showed no emotion during the hearing, sitting quietly beside his mother.

Judge Esquirol ordered the boy to the custody of the state Division for Youth for three years, the first year of which will be spent in a ''secure'' facility, and the second in a residential program.

During the last year, the Division For Youth would be expected to make a determination about where the youth should be held. Under law, the boy could be kept in custody up until the time he is 21.

The judge said there should be no home visits during the first year, and also discounted the nine months the child has already been jailed at Spofford juvenile detention center.

During two interviews Family Court psychiatrist Walter Flegenheimer had with the teenager, he noted that he ''at times showed remorse, at other times showed more concern for his own condition that of his victim.''

''He really doesn't realize what he's done ... although he says the victim got burned,'' the psychiatrist said. ''He's still surprised at the condemnation of his peers ... and the attention'' of the media.

''The act itself doesn't have an emotional impact for him,'' he added. ''He's even surprised he was arrested for it,'' saying the boy said he thought he was about to be arrested for truancy when police picked him up in the case.

Flegenheimer told Esquirol the teenager would need at least two years of counseling for the treatment to have a chance to make an effect, but noted that the characteristics of a ''sadistic personality disorder'' were ''present now and highly likely to be present in the future.''

''The chances of success in this treatment are not very good,'' he noted.

ROME (DEC. 14) UPI - European Community leaders agreed Friday to send emergency food aid to the Soviet Union to prevent winter famine and to show their support for the policies of President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The exact amount, which could total $1 billion in grants and credits, was still being debated.

The accord to send food aid came on the first day of a two-day summit that will launch historic steps toward a common currency and a joint foreign policy in the 12-nation EC.

''All without exception agreed to give immediate aid to the Soviet Union,'' said a spokesman for Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, who holds the rotating EC presidency.

EC leaders were also debating whether to approve, in addition to the food aid, up to $1.4 billion in technical assistance to the Soviets for 1991 and 1992, including funds to improve food distribution.

The EC executive agency proposed $1 billion in Soviet food aid, about one-third of it in outright grants and the other two-thirds in credits.

Several countries argued, however, that credits would only add to the Soviet Union's staggering debt.

Britain prefers EC technical assistance ''so we solve the problems once and for all instead of just this year,'' said a British government source.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany, whose country has already provided food aid to the Soviets, spoke first on the need to send EC food assistance.

''If Gorbachev fails it's going to cost us even more in the long run so we ought to do something today,'' said Kohl, according to officials.

French President Francois Mitterrand said the EC should go beyond food aid, to include technical assistance and balance-of-payment help, because ''the whole situation in the Soviet Union should be seen as an emergency.''

The EC leaders discussed the Soviet Union's troubled food distribution system, saying it was especially important for food to reach Moscow and Leningrad.

Soviet assistance dominated the first day of discussions. The Persian Gulf crisis, South Africa and the stalled world trade talks were on the agenda for Friday night's dinner.

The summit concludes Saturday with inauguration of two landmark constitutional conventions, on economic and monetary union and on political union.

The ''intergovernmental conferences,'' as they are known, are slated to end next year with changes to the EC's founding charter, the 1957 Treaty of Rome, eventually leading to a single currency and a common security policy.

A draft proposal on currency union, circulated Friday, calls for key decisions to be taken by ''qualified'' or weighted majority, including at least eight EC countries, rather than by unanimity.

The new British prime minister, John Major, stressed that Britain is prepared to play a positive role in EC affairs. His predecessor, Margaret Thatcher, fell from power last month over her strident opposition to EC integration.

''I don't think anyone in the Community wants a confrontation,'' said Major. ''We have to engage in the discussions in a constructive spirit and so must our Community partners.''

Although Major shares Thatcher's opposition to a single currency and some other EC policies, the new prime minister's tone at his first EC summit was far more accomodating.

''He said there is a real desire in Britain for having the Community succeed, especially among the young people,'' said the Italian spokesman.

TIRANA, ALBANIA (DEC. 14) UPI - Security forces backed by armored vehicles Friday confronted rioters in at least four towns on the second day of unrest that has rocked Albania since Marxist President Ramiz Alia agreed to permit independent political parties, witnesses, police and other sources said.

Some police officers sustained injuries in the disturbances that erupted in the industrial centers of Elbasan and Kavaja, the main port of Durres, and the coastal town of Saranda after protests by thousands of workers, they said.

Police sources said that emergencies were declared in the towns and movement into and out of them was prohibited by the military. Similar conditions prevailed in Shkoder, which was reported to be calm a day after protesters there clashed with security forces.

In Tirana, troops were deployed outside the government radio and television stations and around the ''Student City'' dormitory area of Enver Hoxha University, where three days of protests earlier in the week led Alia to open the door to democratic pluralism in what was Europe's last bastion of orthodox Marxism.

Small groups of soldiers were also posted on city streets. Authorities denied permission to journalists to leave the capital, where the situation was otherwise calm.

Witnesses and other sources said rioters took to the streets of Kavaja, 20 miles southwest of Tirana, and Elbasan, 30 miles southeast of the capital, looting shops and damaging buildings. Official media reports said protesters used dynamite.

Police and troops backed by armored vehicles moved in to restore order, they said.

No other details were available from Kavaja, a metalurgical manufacturing center.

A source described the rioters in Elbasan, an important steel-making area, as ''hooligans'' who began ''looting, smashing and burning. Some cars were set on fire.''

Security forces deployed water cannon to disperse the crowds, he said.

''These are hooligans who are trying to embarrass and disturb the process of democratization,'' said the source, a supporter of the government. ''They are trying to use democracy for destablizing the country.''

However, many workers in Albania's industrial areas are known to have become increasingly dissatisfied with conditions in the tiny Balkan nation of 3.2 million, particularly low pay and food shortages caused by the dire economic plight wrought by 45 years of self-imposed isolation from most of the rest of the world. Police and other sources also reported disturbances in Durres, 20 miles west of Tirana, and in Saranda, 100 miles south of the capital.

In Durres, one source said, crowds gathered in the center of the town and hurled rocks at windows. He said police intervened to quell further trouble in the country's main port on the Adriatic Sea.

There were no additional details available on the situation in Saranda, he said.

Sources said calm prevailed in Shkoder a day after violent clashes between rioters and security forces injured at least 10 people, including its chief of police and one other officer. More than 30 people were reported arrested.

The rioting was believed to be among the most serious outbreaks of unrest to hit Albania since the downfall of Marxist regimes in Eastern Europe in 1989.

An appeal for calm was issued by leaders of the Democratic Party, the first independent political organization formed after Alia's Albanian Party of Labor agreed on Monday to open the doors to political pluralism.

CHICAGO (DEC. 14) UPI - Trading was choppy and grain and soybean futures were mostly higher at the close Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The overall volume was relatively light as the market appeared to have taken on a pre-holiday mood.

Short-covering and positioning ahead of the weekend provided underlying support across the floor.

Soybeans rallied late in the day and were at or near session highs at the final bell. Traders noted a reluctance to sell until details of the export credit package to the Soviet Union are announced.

Corn was fractionally higher in choppy trading with commercials on both sides of the market.

News the Agriculture Department will allow another 300 million bushels of wheat to be put into the farmer-owned reserve kept a floor under wheat prices.

Basis levels were mixed and country movement was light.

At the close, corn was unchanged to up 1 1/4, soybeans up 1/4 to 1 1/2, wheat down 1 1/2 to up 1/2 and oats up 1/2 to 3/4.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 14) UPI - Standard & Poor's Corp. said Friday that it has lowered ratings on about $9.8 billion of debt and preferred stock held by Security Pacific Corp., which recently projected fourth-quarter losses of up to $360 million.

Security Pacific, the nation's fourth-largest bank holding company with assets of about $86 billion, said Monday that it would take a $200 million charge to close or sell its merchant bank operation and boost its loan-loss provision by $600 million. The loan-loss increase, designed to cover $325 million of losses during the quarter, stemmed mostly from real estate problems in Arizona and Australia.

The New York-based credit-rating agency said the downgrades reflect concern over the deterioration in international loan quality and continuing losses incurred by Security Pacific's Arizona bank.

"Current ratings also incorporate the expectation of significant deterioration in domestic lending in general and real estate lending in particular as the economy weakens," S&P said.

Some analysts said they expect Security Pacific to post good earnings next year, but S&P said the prospects are dim because nonperforming assets are expected to be above their historic high.

S&P noted that the company's capital and reserves are "modest" relative to the risk profile of the loan portfolio but that the decision to get out of the international area of merchant banking and its commercial finance businesses will cut down risks. Security Pacific's stock was off 75 cents to $21.25 a share in early afternoon trading Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

DETROIT (DEC. 14) UPI - A sportier version of Chevrolet's radically restyled full-sized Caprice sedan will receive Motor Trend magazine's Car of the Year Award for 1991, it was learned Friday.

While the award will not be officially announced until Jan. 9 at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit, sources said the magazine has selected the Caprice LTZ sedan, which is not on sale yet.

The Motor Trend Car of the Year Award, given nearly every year since 1949, is one of the best known and widely publicized prizes in the industry, worth millions of dollars in influential advertising and publicity for the winning nameplate.

"There is no question that the award moves the product," said John Krausman, a Motor Trend salesman, who said the magazine would announce the winner next month. A Chevrolet spokesman neither declined or confirmed the selection.

The Caprice LTZ, manufactured by General Motors Corp., is based on the rear-drive, V8-powered Caprice Classic sedan that was given an all new body for 1991, marking its first major design change in 14 years. But it has a stiffer suspension to improve its road handling. The LTZ was selected from a eight cars and minivans chosen as finalists by the magazine's editors.

Other cars vying for the award included the Buick Park Avenue Ultra, Ford Escort GT, Mercury Tracer LTS, Oldsmobile Custom Cruiser station wagon, and Oldsmobile Ninety-Eight. Minivan models included Chrysler's Dodge Caravan ES and Plymouth Grand Voyager LE.

Each year a field of all-new or substantially redesigned cars are evaluated by Motor Trend editors for ride, handling, style, comfort and value. They compete against similar cars in their class, but the car with the highest overall rating wins.

Under magazine rules, the winning car must be available for sale or order at the time of the award's announcement, Krausman said. Earlier this year, Motor Trend awarded the Mazda Navajo sport utility vehicle as the recipient of its first annual Truck of the Year award. Its Import Car of the Year award will be announced at the Chicago Auto Show in February, Krausman said.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (DEC. 14) UPI - Three members of the Montreal Canadiens were arrested and charged with fighting early Friday after rushing from a downtown bar to help two women.

Charged are players Shayne Corson, 25, Michael Keane, 23 and Brian Skrudland, 27, who was charged under his legal name Norman. Also charged are Dennis Levene, 29 and Felix Christian, 30, both of Winnipeg.

The three players and the two Winnipeg men spent the night in custody and were released early Friday afternoon after posting $500 bail and promising to appear in court Jan. 4.

Winnipeg police spokesman Eric Turner said all seven combatants suffered cuts, bruises and scrapes, and that Keane and Corson were taken to hospital but declined to be treated.

Turner said the fight erupted at about 2:30 a.m. outside the Rory Street Marble Club, a popular downtown nightclub.

Turner said two women who were ejected from the club continued their dispute outside, and two men joined the fray in an effort to separate them.

Keane and Corson, watching the scene from inside the bar, thought the women were being accosted and rushed to their aid.

''They supposed the girls needed rescuing and they got involved with the other two guys,'' Turner said. Skrudland eventually joined the melee.

The Montreal Canadiens play the Winnipeg Jets Saturday night at Winnipeg Arena.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - President Bush announced the death of the Cold War in November, but it was old news, since the world already had accepted the collapse of communism, illustrated by the fall of the Berlin Wall.

Eastern Europe finally pried itself loose from the Kremlin's grip while Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev held back the Red Army. He was rewarded with the Nobel Peace Prize.

Finally, on Nov. 21, the leaders of 34 nations adopted the sweeping Charter of Paris, the treaty that reduces the NATO and Warsaw Pact conventional arms in Europe, ending four decades of ideological and military tension.

''The era of confrontation and division of Europe has ended,'' the heads of state said in the final document of the three-day summit of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Bush put it more simply. ''The Cold War is over,'' he declared, ''and now we move on to working with the various countries and others for a peaceful and stable Europe.''

So profound has been the political upheaval in both Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union in just over one year that the longtime democracies have had a hard time adjusting.

And the United States, which had designed its military posture to meet the Soviet bloc threat and possibly World War III, was suddenly faced with the question: ''Who's the enemy?''

And although he was slow on the uptake in realizing that he could do business with Gorbachev, Bush was ready with a vision of a ''new world order.''

This new order entailed the bolstering of the United Nations into a powerful force that could exert its authority over regional conflicts and brushfires. With the Soviet Union and the United States on the same side, the possibilities for East-West cooperation became an instant reality.

The 26-nation coalition that Bush lined up against Iraq was a tour de force of diplomacy and boded well for strengthening the world organization to repel aggression. It can hold as long as the allies' mutual interests do, and with the shrinking world, those interests - political and economic - are becoming more entwined.

But while the East-West military threat has been subdued, major economic problems have arisen which must be resolved to keep the political trends on the right track. The United States is suffering economic stagnation at a time when its aid is badly needed by the Soviet Union as it seeks to move from a totally controlled economy to a free market.

After World War II, the United States had deep enough pockets to sponsor an altruistic Marshall Plan that revived Western Europe and made it strong enough politically and economically to withstand Soviet feints testing its ability to expand its control on the continent.

But now the United States cannot bankroll the reforms it is strongly pushing among the emerging democracies and in the U.S.S.R., and there is concern that the peoples of the fledgling democracies might become disillusioned and turn back to previous leaders.

By PATRICK MOSER - UPI

BONN (DEC. 14) UPI - On Jan. 1, 1990, thousands of Berliners danced on the newly-opened Berlin Wall to mark the start of a new decade free of the Iron Curtain division of their city, but few could have guessed they were also ushering in the year of German unification.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl himself has admitted that he had no idea at the time that more than four decades of a divided Germany would end before the year was over.

''No one can forecast today how the process of rapprochement between the two states in Germany will develop. But I am convinced that unity will come, if people in Germany want it,'' he said in a New Year's message on Dec. 31, 1989, when he was still chancellor of only West German.

Less than 10 months later, East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere bid farewell to his state, the red, black and gold flag of unity was hoisted over all of Germany, and Kohl became the leader of all Germany.

The Oct. 3 merger of East and West Germany capped months of dramatic changes and tough negotiations, created an economic giant in the heart of Europe and altered the continent's military balance.

The turning point in Germany's post-war history was marked by the massive democracy demonstrations of autumn 1989 that led to the collapse of East Germany's hard-line communist dictatorship and, three weeks later, to the opening of the Berlin wall on Nov. 9, 1989.

Prime Minister Hans Modrow, who then headed East Germany's reformist but still communist transitional government caused some astonishment on Feb. 1, 1990, when he joined calls for the unification of the two Germanys. ''Germany should again be a united fatherland for all Germans,'' he said.

The unification process gained momentum on March 18 when the communists who ruled the country for 40 years were voted out of office in East Germany's first free elecions, which brought in a coalition headed by Kohl's protege and fellow conservative, Lothar de Maiziere.

The conservative victory was seen as a popular mandate for Kohl's plan for swift unification.

No one knew at that stage what the timetable would be, and the first hurdles cropped up during May 6 negotations in Bonn, dubbed two-plus-four because of the participation of the two Germanys and the four victorious World War II allies - Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

The Soviet Union made it clear at the talks that it would not allow a united Germany to be a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Western military alliance.

A compromise started to emerge at the next meeting of the six foreign ministers in Berlin on June 23. The apparent warming of the talks was symbolized by the removal - witnessed by the ministers - of one of the last relics of the cold war: Checkpoint Charlie, the Western allied control post at the foot of the wall, in the American sector of the city.

The first step toward full political union was implemented July 1, with the formation of a German economic union, which brought the strong Deutsche mark and the West German economic system to East Germany, but also brought industrial stagnation and growing unemployment to the eastern state.

After 40 years of centrally planned economy, the 8,000 East German state-owned firms were ill-equipped to deal with free and tough competition. Several collapsed and most had to lay off workers.

The final unification hurdle was cleared later in July when Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev told Kohl at a meeting in the Soviet Union that Moscow had dropped objections to plans for Germany's membership of NATO.

And the countdown started Aug. 23, when, after weeks of arduous negotiations, East and West Germany set the date for the merger.

Germany again became a single unified nation as the last stroke of midnight heralded Oct. 3, 1990.

Millions of people celebrated the historic merger in a night of solemn ceremony which erupted into joyous celebrations. Later in the day, about 20,000 people marched through the streets of Berlin, protesting unification, under the motto ''Germany, keep your mouth shut.''

About 1,000 masked leftist youths broke off from the demonstration to clash with police in eastern Berlin's downtown Alexander Plaza.

Such clashes became increasingly frequent in eastern Berlin and were largely seen as the reason for the Dec. 2 electoral defeat of the Social Democratic Party in all-Berlin elections.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - President Bush refused to budge Friday on his dates proffered for direct U.S.-Iraqi peace talks, saying he will not be party to ''Saddam Hussein's manipulation'' to get around a Jan. 15 deadline to get out of Kuwait.

''That deadline is real,'' Bush insisted.

Speaking as he headed off to the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md., Bush sounded no compromise in his refusal to set a proposed meeting between Secretary of State James Baker and the Iraqi president too near to the U.N. deadline for withdrawal from Kuwait.

He noted that since proposing the high-level direct talks, billed as a last chance to avoid war, the United States has offered 15 different dates for Baker to travel to Baghdad.

Iraq has come back with only one date, Jan. 12, which the administration says is too close to the deadline for Saddam to withdraw his troops. A planned session between Bush and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz in Washington, proposed for Dec. 17, is tied to both meetings being scheduled.

''In offering to go the extra mile for peace ... I did not offer to be a party to Saddam Hussein's manipulation,'' said Bush. ''He ought to get moving and do something reasonable - if he really wants to move for peace. ... If it's simply that he is trying to manipulate, that is what I will have no part of.''

He noted that Saddam has managed to meet with a dozen or so dignitaries and celebrities who have traveled to Baghdad since the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and insisted, ''It simply is not credible that he cannot, over a two-week period, make a couple of hours available for the secretary of state on an issue of this importance - unless of course he is seeking to circumvent the United Nations deadline.''

Bush's remarks came as administration officials began speaking more openly of the possibility the proposed talks will not happen if the circumstances are not worked out as the United States wants.

After a meeting at the White House earlier, Sens. Richard Lugar, R- Ind., and John McCain, R-Ariz., said Bush was ''still hopeful'' the high-level exchanges would take place but that he was prepared ''to have no meetings rather than to see a lot of shoving around,'' according to Lugar.

The standoff over the dates for the proposed talks stems from the wording of the original proposal, which Bush said he wished he had made clearer in an address to the nation Nov 30. Then he proposed that Aziz come to Washington some time after Dec. 15, this Saturday, and that Baker then go to Baghad before Jan. 15.

Though setting no deadlines for Saddam to accept a date for the Baker meeting, Bush said he supposed the Aziz meeting was ''on hold'' until the matter is cleared up and stressed there would be little or no room for compromise.

''I want a peaceful solution to this crisis. But I will not be a party to circumventing or diluting the United Nations deadline, which I think offers the very best chance for a peaceful solution,'' he said.

BY PATRICIA KOZA - UPI

WARSAW, POLAND (DEC. 14) UPI - The heady days of revolution in Eastern Europe were but a memory as 1990 drew to a close, and a new, grim reality set in: how to pay the staggering bill for freedom.

As the old communist dogma of fraternal brotherhood was buried, bitter displays of nationalism threatened to tear apart such cobbled- together postwar states as Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

In Poland, where the march toward democracy started a decade ago with the birth of the Solidarity movement, the nation seemed rudderless despite the election of Solidarity's founder, Lech Walesa, as its president.

Poland's - and Eastern Europe's - first postwar non-communist government is gone. Its brave economic reform plan, the darling of the International Monetary Fund, is a shambles. Its parliament is a useless relic from the communist past, unrepresentative of the population.

In Bulgaria and Romania, where the painful 1989 revolutions only served to vault a new set of ''reformed'' communists into the leadership, the food and energy shortages are worse than ever.

''We're virtually on the edge of extinction as a nation,'' said Bulgarian pollster Euginii Dainov. ''There's no food or bread or medicine.''

Forty years of communism has left the countries of Eastern Europe, home to more than 100 million people, near bankruptcy. Although all these emerging democracies have pledged to move to a market-oriented economy, the enormity of the task is only now being understood.

A recent report by the U.N. Economic Commission for Europe based in Geneva painted a bleak picture of falling output and productivity, rising unemployment and accelerating inflation throughout the region.

These negative factors have been worsened by rising oil prices brought on by the Gulf crisis, and by the Soviet decision to cut back on oil deliveries to its former satellites and demand all payments from Jan. 1, 1991, in hard currency.

''The oil shock has made matters considerably worse, and in Bulgaria, Romania and the Soviet Union basic food shortages are increasing and threaten to become very serious during the winter,'' the U.N. report said.

The rising price of oil is expected to add $10 billion to the region's energy bill in 1991, while at the same time postpone the shutdown of Soviet-designed nuclear power plants in Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria deemed unsafe by Western standards.

In Hungary, striking taxi drivers paralyzed Budapest and other major cities in November when the government tried to impose a 65 percent increase on gasoline prices to compensate for the oil shortfall.

The enormity of the difficulties facing the countries that once were Soviet satellites may be seen in one area alone: the transfer of state- owned property to private hands.

The crucial privatization process has been slowed by fears that foreigners will buy up choice properties at bargain-basement prices, by claims and counter-claims of former owners of nationalized or confiscated plants, and by public outrage in Hungary and Poland when it became known that former communist managers were buying into some of the former state companies.

A Polish official notes grimly that if Warsaw proceeds at the pace Britain sold off its state-run industries during the Thatcher years, it will take 173 years to privatize its 7,000 companies.

The boldest plunge toward market economy in the East Bloc was taken by Poland, which last Jan. 1 announced an economic austerity plan to stem hyperinflation.

It worked, but at a heavy cost. Real incomes dropped nearly 40 percent, unemployment shot beyond 1 million, prices skyrocketed and industrial output plunged 30 percent.

On Nov. 25, the patient Poles said ''enough.'' They voted Solidarity Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki out of the presidential race with Walesa, supporting instead an emigree Canadian businessman, Stanislaw Tyminski, who promised a get-rich-quick scenario.

Mazowiecki resigned the next day, although the government stayed on as caretaker pending Walesa's nomination of a new premier. Meanwhile, the fate of Poland's economic stabilization program, much admired in the West, hung in limbo, although Walesa has said he would continue it ''with corrections.''

#90348u1187 12/14/1990 ~United Press International

MOSCOW (DEC. 14) UPI - In perestroika's sixth year, Mikhail Gorbachev has become the captive of a self-devised but powerless presidency impotently watching his nation unravel and the economy turn to handouts from the West.

What should have been Gorbachev's triumph of his six years in power, the 1990 Nobel Peace Prize for ending the Cold War, sent his already falling popularity plummeting further with an approval rating of 21 percent registered in a November poll.

''If democratic elections were held today, Gorbachev probably would not be able to confirm his right to lead the country,'' the weekly newspaper Moscow News commented.

So vocal was popular resentment at Gorbachev's travels abroad even to obtain French, Spanish and German credits for the faltering economy that the Nobel laureate chose not to go to Oslo to pick up the prestigious award in person.

By year's end, Gorbachev ingominiously had to cancel an internal trip to the republic of Moldavia intended to calm restive Russian and Moslem Gagauz minorities there, when the minority legislators vowed to boycott his appearance in the Moldavian Parliament.

Gorbachev's dilemma can be gauged only by comparing his power base when he took over in March 1985 and the present structure of administration that he has created for himself, largely in 1990.

In March 1985, Gorbachev was elected general secretary of the Communist Party. He was head of the 11-man Politburo that sent its commands through the 300-man Central Committee and then into every factory, school, army division and police headquarters via the thousands of communist primary cells.

The economy, nothing to write home about with any growth due only to the exports of oil and millions in domestic vodka sales, nevertheless worked under the Draconian system in which Communist planners set yearly targets and distributed the products by non-market fixed prices.

But in 1988, Gorbachev resuscitated the largely dormant national Supreme Soviet by mandating multi-candidate elections, opening the way for non-Communists to enter the legislature and even the government, or Council of Ministers - all in the name of getting the economy moving.

Multi-candidate elections were next extended to the 15 republics and the cities of the vast nation, and the Communists were tossed out of office in the largest cities in Russia.

''What you have are some islands of non-Communism - Moscow, Leningrad and Sverdlovsk, and some of the more nationalist republics,'' said one Western diplomat who requested anonymity.

Still Gorbachev seemingly rode high as the crusading reformer early this year when in Feburary he persuaded the Communist Party to abandon its constitutional monopoly of power that had given it seven decades of unilateral rule. But the victory may have been Pyrrhic.

''He stripped the Communist Party of its legal monopoly, but they still own the place,'' said the diplomat, stressing that Communists still control the means of production under the Karl Marx classical definition of Communist power.

Even the multi-party regional elections that ousted Communists from city councils and republican Supreme Soviets in 1990 were not total victories. They led to a counterattack by Communists who control the spigots of economic distribution.

Because Gorbachev refused to give up the leadership of the Communist Party, he can only stand by and watch this struggle and not intervene on the side of those whom the Western diplomat called ''the good guys.''

''Gorbachev still needs the party,'' the diplomat said. ''He can't stop the counterattack. The Communists are still there, and they are the ones that are controlling the industral-military complex, their stronghold.''

Gorbachev's second major political reform of 1990, the creation of what he styled a powerful presidency in March, also turned sour, boxing him into a corner. He now must win the approval of Communist bureaucrats not overly anxious to see their careers cut short.

''The higher his official status rose - first president of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet, then president of the Supreme Soviet and finally president of the Soviet Union - the lower his real significance and authority became,'' Izvestia commentator Yuri Burtin wrote.

As foreign accolades poured in to Gorbachev for ending the Cold War and reuniting Germany, at home republic after republic - 14 of the 15 at last count - declared itself and its laws sovereign, demanding in some cases like the three Baltic republics secession and total independence.

''And what of Gorbachev today?'' Izvestia's Burtin said. ''The leader of a party which resembles a car tire punctured in many places. The president ... of what? Of the union which practically does not exist any longer in its old sense.''

BY KARIN DAVIES - UPI

LONDON (DEC. 14) UPI - Margaret Thatcher changed her country but she couldn't change herself and that, in the end, cost her the premiership of Britain.

Britain's longest serving prime minister this century gave way to the youngest - John Major, the man she wanted to succeed her although not for a few more years. She shed tears when she bowed to the inevitable Nov. 22 and told her Cabinet she would resign for ''the unity of the party and prospects for victory in a general election.''

Thatcher, 65, was one of the country's most respected, most ambitious and most reviled leaders.

The grocer's daughter who became a world figure, changed the course of British government and rekindled her country's international prestige.

The Conservative Party chief for 15 years led Britain to victory over Argentina in the 1982 Falklands War and helped end the Cold War.

On the domestic front, she made eradicating socialism from Britain her personal mission. Her governments carried out a sweeping denationalization of industry and services, curbed the power of left- wing labor unions, sold thousands of public housing units to their tenants and expanded London's role as a key international financial center.

With her ideological soul mate, Ronald Reagan, she helped shape the 1980s, and gave her name to a political philosophy - Thatcherism.

She accomplished it all through sheer grit and determination.

''You turn if you want to - the lady's not for turning,'' Thatcher said in 1980. And another oft-quoted philosophy of Britain's only woman prime minister: ''In politics, if you want anything said, ask a man. If you want anything done, ask a woman.''

Thatcher was once asked how she saw her role as in the Cabinet subcommittee responsible for her government's early privatizations. She was chairing the meeting, unusual for a prime minister. Did she want others to consider her the leader of a team? No, the coach driver whipping the horses, she said.

Finally, Thatcher's whipping boys revolted. Thatcher was brought down by a cabal of back benchers and former ministers, many of whom had suffered the wrath of the Iron Lady.

As The Economist observed, ''In her dozen years of power, Margaret Thatcher changed the face of Britain by the same method that led her in the end to her downfall - a bloody-minded determination to have her own way.''

The leader of the pack was Michael Heseltine, who resigned as Thatcher's defense secretary in 1986, accusing her of trying to undermine the Cabinet to win her way on a plan to save Britain's only helicopter maker.

He stalked her for four years, and when former Deputy Prime Minister Geoffrey Howe made a devastating resignation speech last month, Heseltine challenged her for the leadership of the party and the premiership.

On a first-round ballot Nov. 20, Thatcher won a simple majority but was four votes short of the 65 percent majority she needed for an outright victory: She got 204 votes to 152 for Heseltine with four abstentions.

The bad news was delivered to Thatcher at 6:30 p.m. at the British Embassy in Paris, where she was attending a European summit meeting. Seven minutes later she committed herself to standing in the second round. ''I am actually very pleased that I got more than half the parliamentary party, but disappointed that it is not quite enough to win on the first ballot,'' she said. ''I shall let my name go forward.''

The next day, amid gathering clouds over her future, Thatcher said, ''I fight on, I fight to win.''

But that night, in private talks, 12 of 19 Cabinet miniters said she could not win. She was urged to withdraw by Thursday morning so that other candidates could declare and prevent Heseltine from winning.

''It's a funny old world,'' she started the conversation with each, ''that here I have won a majority of my party, and yet I feel I have to go.''

Her voice cracking with emotion, Thatcher announced her resignation after 11 1/2 years to her Cabinet at 9 a.m. Nov. 22.

A Heseltine supporter later said ''we were within three hours of victory.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - Less than two months after Congress approved the historic five-year, $496 billion deficit-cutting bill - at a political cost that will hound President Bush for a long time - the package is already threatened by world events.

The slumping economy, the increase in the price of oil, the military buildup in the Persian Gulf region and the continued bailout of the savings and loan industry all plague the short-term outlook for reducing the deficit.

In fact, the Congressional Budget Office predicted early this month that the deficit, $220 billion in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, will jump to a record $253 billion this year and $262 billion in 1992.

But CBO contends that by fiscal 1995, the federal deficit will fall below $100 billion for the first time in 14 years. The budget package targeted the following year as deficit-zero.

The huge deficits in the first two years - possibly more than $300 billion if the $60 billion and growing Social Security surplus is not used as an offset - were anticipated by Congress, but they never merited the attention of new taxes or cruel spending cuts.

In drafting the ambitious effort to stem federal spending, Congress adopted a major policy change under which the sheer size of the deficit - the main point since the Gramm-Rudman budget law went into effect in 1985 - does not matter as much.

Instead Congress will shift to holding down its spending initiatives while allowing events beyond its control - a recession or the cost of Operation Desert Shield - to increase the deficit without forcing cuts in spending as the original Gramm-Rudman budget law did.

Congress will begin operating under this new policy when the Senate and House return for the 102nd Congress in January and, because the budget package sets out major spending and tax parameters, many hope that last year's bitter fight will be replaced by at least some years of relative peace.

Certainly, no one in the White House or on Capitol Hill wants a replay of the acrimonious agony that led to the five-year agreement.

Before it ended in the final days of October, Bush gulped his ''read my lips - no new taxes'' 1988 campaign theme and splintered the Republican party and Democrats were forced to vote for higher taxes on Joe Sixpack and costlier premiums for elderly on Medicare.

The debate ranged throughout the summer and fall - much of it in the secluded environs of Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland, at the White House and behind closed doors in the Capitol.

White House chief of staff John Sununu and budget director Richard Darman - Bush stepped in at critical times - negotiatiated with top- level members of Congress and reached a summit agreement. The House promptly rejected it.

Faced with a second shutdown of the federal government and the possibility of draconian accross-the-board cuts in virtually all programs, Congress came up with a last-minute compromise that cleared the House 228-200 after a session that lasted all night and 54-45 in the Senate.

The final package raised the tax rate for the wealthiest Americans from 28 percent to 31 percent, a provision that the summit agreement did not include, and increased excise taxes on gasoline, beer, liquor, wine and cigarettes, as well as a 10 percent luxury tax on high-priced cars, furs and yachts.

The package cut $44.2 billion from the quickly growing Medicare program, but unlike the summit agreement, it mostly slashed payments to doctors and to hospitals - but it also increased the monthly premiums the elderly pay for health care.

TOKYO (DEC. 14) UPI - Japanese traditionally welcome the new year with the tolling of bells, but in 1990 a certain bell set off a crash the likes of which had never been seen before in their nation.

The Tokyo Stock Exchange began falling from the opening bell of 1990 on a slide that would wipe out nearly half its value. By year's end, the whole economy was winding down, and some analysts said GNP growth next year would fall to 3 percent, half its projected 1990 level of up to 6 percent.

Historians may remember 1990 as the year that Japan's postwar economy, growing with the tireless efficiency of the robots it produces, took on a more human face.

Despite the signs of weakness, few worried that Japan would slip into recession, and many said the slowdown would be a welcome cooling off for the fevered economy.

''It's serious enough for Japan,'' said Robert Alan Feldman, an economist with Salomon Brothers Asia. But in contrast to the United States, he said, ''there will be no hard recession.''

On the political front, Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu, who started the year triumphantly by leading his scandal-ridden Liberal Democratic Party to a thumping victory in February general elections, limped into December with his popularity and power eroded by his handling of the Gulf crisis.

Emperor Akihito, who had succeeded his father, Hirohito, nearly two years earlier, was formally enthroned in November in an ancient ceremony witnessed by representatives from 158 nations. He became the first emperor to ascend to the Chrysanthemum Throne under Japan's postwar constitution, which reduced the emperor from a living god to a mere symbol of the state.

Tokyo stock touts, after watching the bellwether Nikkei Index race up to a record close of 38,916 at the end of 1989, were predicting grand things for 1990.

But on Jan. 4, the first day of trading in the new year, the Nikkei began its historic plunge. By Oct. 2, the average price was down an eye-popping 48 percent at 20,221.86. It recovered slightly, but the market remained anemic at year end.

During the steepest fall in its history, the Tokyo stock market lost its status as the world's largest, and investors lost more than $2.6 trillion.

Gradually signs emerged that the stock market crash reflected some real problems in the economy. A worsening labor shortage - as many as 1. 4 jobs for every job-seeker - kept inflationary pressure high.

In response, the official Bank of Japan stuck to its tough monetary policy. It continued to crank up the nation's base interest rate from 2.5 percent in May 1989 to 6 percent by Aug. 30, where it stayed for the rest of the year.

When banks and real estate firms cried ''ouch,'' the bank's governor, Yasushi Mieno, growled back that he would welcome a gradual 20 to 30 percent fall in real estate prices.

Japan's fevered property market gradually softened, raising fears of a global financial catastrophe should Japan's land bubble burst.

With such troubles at home, the torrent of Japanese money flowing overseas shrank to a stream - from $192 billion in 1989 to $128 billion in 1990.

Recession in the United States caused Japanese exports to slip while higher oil prices ratcheted up inflation.

Export growth fell from 15.7 percent in 1989 to 7.7 percent in 1990, according to estimates by the Bank of Tokyo.

Import growth was projected to drop from 19.3 percent to 12.0 percent in 1990. The bank forecast that trade, especially imports, would tail off even further in 1991.

As a result, Japan's trade surplus fell from $53 billion in 1989 to $33 billion in 1990, Sumitomo Life Research Institute estimated.

The trade surplus, a target of U.S. congressional wrath, may rise slightly in 1991 because of exchange-rate fluctuations, but with a recession all but official in America, no real growth in the surplus can be expected, analysts said.

The Persian Gulf crisis, although not nearly as devastating as the oil shocks in the 1970s, added to Japan's inflation and cut demand for Japanese products overseas.

Some economists believe a slowdown was just what Japan's economy needed.

GNP growth in 1990, calculated at 5.0 percent, overshot the ideal mark by a full percentage point, said Masao Susaki, chief of economic research at the Bank of Tokyo. In 1991, GNP growth is expected come just shy of the mark at 3.8 percent.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - The bankrupt Latin Investment Corp. has become the subject of a formal investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission, The Washington Post reported Friday.

The SEC, whose mandate when broadly interpreted includes protecting investors, subpoenaed the financial records of Latin Investment and two related businesses, unidentified sources told the newspaper. An SEC official contacted Friday could not comment on the newspaper report.

U.S. District Court Judge S. Martin Teel Jr. accepted a request to appoint an interim trustee to protect assets of Latin Investment, which are estimated to be in the millions of dollars. The bankruptcy petition was filed Wednesday by Latin Investment depositors under Chapter 7 of federal bankruptcy law.

Should the SEC find that Latin Investment violated securities law by accepting customers' money and investing it in return for an interest payment, it could freeze all assets, appoint a receiver to take control of the company and return to depositors what they are owed, Ted Levine, a securities lawyer, told the newspaper.

Harvey Pitt, a former general counsel to the SEC, said the agency probably would not have chosen to investigate the case if it did not believe "there was someone with deep pockets" from whom to recover funds. More than 2,000 customers of Latin Investment have come forward to show records of deposits after the company shut down Nov. 29.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - The battlelines are drawn, the personnel is in place and millions have been spent in the preparation. The chief questions left are when to attack, who will be the victims, and, most important, will the people back their leaders?

The Persian Gulf in late December? No, just American politics at the end of 1990.

After the final sound bite, negative advertisement and public opinion poll, the 1990 off-year elections produced relatively little change. But most political observers saw this election as only a first battle in the real fight to be waged over the next two years.

And that fight will be marked by voter disgust, congressional reapportionment and the looming presidential campaign in 1992.

Voter rebellion - the ''throw the rascals out'' attitude - was supposed to be the hidden factor, the unknown that incumbents feared, in the November elections.

When the voting was done, little seemed to change on the surface. In the House Republicans lost only nine seats, a relatively small drop in an off-year election for the party holding the White House.

Only one seat in the Senate changed hands when long-shot college professor Paul Wellstone, a Democrat, beat Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn. Both parties apparently dropped a governor's seat to independents - Walter Hickel in Alaska and Lowell Weicker in Connecticut. Republicans led in Arizona but a runoff will be needed in February.

Under the surface, however, there were strong indications voters were upset and were in no mood for politics as usual. House incumbents from both parties across the country won with lower percentages of votes than in past elections. Many figures such as Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Gov. Mario Cuomo, D-N.Y., barely could get 50 percent of the vote against token opposition.

While the total number of governors stayed about the same for each party, there were major shakeups in key states. Democrats Ann Richards and Lawton Chiles took over GOP-held seats in Texas and Florida, while Republicans won control of many Democratic state house in the Midwest Rust Belt region.

''For both parties to lose ground is unprecendented,'' said William Schneider, a political analyst for the American Enterprise Institute. ''It is a warning. Members of Congress stand warned that voters are unhappy.''

''The past few years have been a time of government bashing, a time of scandal and a time of perception of government stalemate and disarray, and a time of economic downtown,'' said Thomas Mann, director of governmental studies at the Brookings Institution. ''Under those circumstances, we shouldn't be surprised that the public is disenchanted.''

Most political observers say voter dissatisfaction is there and will grow or lessen depending on two issues - the Persian Gulf and the economy.

A suitable resolution of the first and an upturn in the second might lessen the concern, although bad news in either case will almost certainly make the public more restless and could cause extensive political fallout.

Limiting terms in office is one way voter disgust could register in the coming decade. California and Colorado passed versions of term limitation this year, and some Republicans leaders including President Bush, Vice President Dan Quayle and California Gov.-elect Pete Wilson have endorsed the idea.

''Like apple pie and motherhood, term limitation is unbeatable in American politics,'' says Mann. ''If it is brought to the electorate, it will be successful.''

More such initiatives are expected on the state and local level, although most political analysts believe federal term limitation will not happen since such a move would require a constitutional amendment which Congress would be unlikely to approve.

Hovever, the pressure from the public might produce some reform in campaign laws, an effort which died in the last Congress.

UPI - When the new decade began last Jan. 1, the coming year was widely regarded as a make-or-break period for both sides on the abortion debate, the emotional political and moral issue that had already divided the issue for 17 years.

By year's end, however, neither opponents nor supporters could claim victory, and most Americans - according to the polls taken throughout the year - remained generally in support of legal abortion in at least some instances while deeply ambivalent about the morality of the issue.

But 1990 did mark a decisive shift in where the political battle over who decides on abortion would be fought as well as a shift on the part of abortion foes to a ''salami strategy'' of imposing piecemeal restrictions and abandoning - for the time being - the grand plan to overturn the 1973 Supreme Court ruling that made most abortions legal.

The shift followed the Supreme Court's July 1989 ruling giving states much more power to regulate abortion - a ruling hailed by abortion foes who have long maintained that public opinion is with them at the local level and that state legislatures would move quickly to supress legal abortion.

Florida provided the first test when Republican Gov. Bob Martinez called a special session of the state Legislature in October 1989 to consider a host of proposed restrictions.

But the Democratic-controlled Legislature sharply rebuffed Martinez, meeting for a little more than a day before rejecting any new limits on abortion in the state.

While supporters of the abortion option rejoiced in the Florida victory, opponents quickly moved on to other states - notably Michigan, Louisiana, Pennsylvania and Idaho, where the state legislatures were more sympathetic.

In Idaho, after a tough and bitter debate, the state Legislature in March passed a sweeping anti-abortion bill that backers hoped would be the vehicle to challenge Roe vs. Wade, the 1973 law making most abortions legal.

But Gov. Cecil Andrus, after publicly agonizing over the bill for a week and facing the threat of a nationwide Idaho potato boycott, finally vetoed the measure.

Louisiana, after a strange, middle-of-the night, end-of-the-session meeting followed a similar scenario, with the legislators twice passing tough restrictions on abortion and Gov. Buddy Roemer twice vetoing the bills.

Defying pundits and political strategists who claimed the political momentum had shifted on the issue and that the Supreme Court had awakened a ''sleeping giant'' among supporters of legal abortion, the National Right to Life Committee called a massive rally in April that saw some 200,000 abortion foes gather in Washington for perhaps the largest anti-abortion rally ever.

And, as the year wore on, abortion opponents won several victories at the state level, notably in Michigan with passage of a law requiring girls under 17 to get a parent's or a judge's permission for an abortion despite a veto by Democratic Gov. James Blanchard.

Sweeping restrictions were also passed in Pennsylvania and, unnoticed by both sides, in Guam. In Pennsylvania, much of the law was struck down by a federal judge, but state Attorney General Ernest Preate Jr. said he would appeal the ruling and thus set up, as abortion foes hope, a Supreme Court showdown that could be the vehicle for overturning the right to legal abortion.

BY MICHAEL MOLINSKI - UPI

(DEC. 14) UPI - No Berlin walls crumbled, no iron curtains were lifted and no Stalinist dictators were executed, but the changes that took place in Latin America in 1990 were nonetheless just as drastic as those that have transpired in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

For Latin America, 1990 meant the end of dictatorships, Marxism and protectionist trade and the rebirth of democracy and beginning of increased economic integration with each other and the rest of the world.

It was a year of endings, but it has given way to a bright future in which development without exploitation is beginning to take shape.

''In 1989, we never could have imagined such profound and unpredictable changes,'' Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez said during President Bush's visit to his country on Dec. 7. ''1990 has been the year of transition for numerous countries to freedom and democracy.''

But Perez was careful to warn, ''There is nothing so difficult as these times of transition, nor as dangerous and full of risks.''

In 1990, Nicaragua ended more than a decade of leftist rule by the Sandinista National Liberation Front, and the Contra rebels lay down their arms after nine years of civil war.

In Chile, Patricio Aylwin was elected president, replacing military leader Augusto Pinochet and ending South America's last dictatorship.

In Brazil, one civilian president succeeded another for the first time since a 1964 coup that ushered in 21 years of military rule.

Mexico and the United States signed a historic free trade agreement that sets the stage for similar accords around the Western Hemisphere.

Throughout Latin America, privatization of government-run industries and opening up of trade barriers began to replace socialist markets and protectionist trade as the popular policies of the day.

In short, Latin America moved away from conflict and toward economic development, although the process still has a long way to go on both fronts.

Central America's last continuing war is still raging in El Salvador, as was made tragically clear by a rebel offensive in November that left hundreds of rebels, civilians and soldiers dead.

Communist rebels still dominate the interior of Peru, killing intruders daily.

Drug lords continue to rule Colombia despite efforts by its president and by the United States to bring them to justice.

In Haiti, Guatemala, El Salvador and other countries, human rights abuses continue to leave hundreds of people dead and pump fear into their respective populations.

Rebellions and uprisings by left-wing groups, right-wing groups, mutinous military officers, religious cults and others continue to breed instability in much of Latin America.

Such insurrections over the past year have threatened some of the region's most developed democracies, like Argentina, as well as some of the smallest and poorest nations, like Trinidad. They demonstrate all too clearly that despite the forward strides, there is not a government in Latin America that is not without its share of fragility.

One prominent exception to the changes sweeping the region is Cuba, and all eyes are focused now on the communist government of Fidel Castro to see if his own Berlin Wall is showing signs of crumbling.

Castro's regime appears solid, but as Bush predicted in a recent news conference, ''Eastern Europe returned democracy to itself, and someday the Cuban people will return democracy to themselves.''

For the United States, the changes in Latin America mean a shift in policy and a different way of looking at its hemispheric partners.

''The United States is putting more emphasis on Latin America now,'' said a U.S. diplomat in the region. ''Basically (the changes) mean a new U.S. approach to Latin America - a more economic approach.

''We've overcome the Central American obstacle,'' the diplomat said. ''Central America is no longer the top priority for U.S. Latin American policy. Eveybody is talking about Eastern Europe now. They need help too, but Latin America is in our hemisphere.''

Bush's year-end trips to Mexico and South America demonstrated the new importance the United States is placing on the region, but his failure during the trip to grant significant trade and debt assistance to the region was enough to warn leaders to be wary of his intentions within his ''initiative for the Americas.''

BY JEFFREY K. PARKER - UPI

BEIJING (DEC. 14) UPI - The imagery seemed a propagandist's dream: the Communist Party politburo exuding socialist ardor as they hacked the frozen earth at a Beijing irrigation project, their laboring breath clouding white against an azure winter sky.

Then, to make sure that the message was not lost, the premier and party chief, two of China's least-loved men, lay down their shovels and browbeat the gathered peasants with yet another call for stability, unity, hard work and love of the great Communist Party.

The choppy, home video-style footage topped the state-run national television news, taking nearly 10 minutes of Chinese prime time.

Pictures and stories about the early December ditch-digging also emblazoned the front page of the party's flagship People's Daily and most other newspapers.

But ask jaded Beijing residents what they think about such communist public relations offensives and expect heads to shake.

''They looked like a bunch of idiots,'' one said with a sneer.

''Sorry, but I never watch the television news,'' said another. ''It's a waste of time.''

Many say the same thing about China's stultifying newspapers.

Eighteen months after ordering a massacre it hoped would crush a nation's yearning for liberty, the Communist Party suffers a serious image problem stemming as much from the brutality of the crackdown as from the flimsiness of its leaders' claims to legitimacy as rulers of China's 1.1 billion people.

Each leader's legitimacy rests almost solely on webs of alliances with ailing senior patriarch Deng Xiaoping and a handful of other wheezing and semi-incapacitated octogenarian revolutionaries - all of them the objects of an obsessive national death watch.

Deng, 86, added uncertainty to the formula by dropping from public sight in July, prompting waves of rumors about his declining health.

The government insists that Deng is happily enjoying his retirement, but by unconfirmed reports the architect of China's decade-old economic modernization may be too feeble to sign his name or speak intelligibly, not to mention elucidate his vision of China's future.

Still, no other leader commands the political clout needed to overrule Deng's coupling of relative economic liberalism with strict social controls - the authoritarianism that mandated the June 1989 army assault on Beijing's Tiananmen Square that crushed China's democracy movement.

Lacking the independent political skill and public respect needed to rule China with their own enlightened vision, the hard-line leaders have been reduced to ruling by coercion, exhortation and intimidation.

Despite the January lifting of the martial law imposed during Tiananmen Spring security actually intensified in the capital during spring 1990 as the city braced for anniversaries of key democracy movement events and the June 4 massacre itself.

Heavy-handed security finally peaked during the Beijing Asian Games in September and October, when by official accounts more than 600,000 police and other security workers were deployed in the city.

The Asian Games itself, touted as a showcase of the nation's modernization, is remembered chiefly as a display of self-conscious excess.

China spent a half-billion dollars hosting its first international sporting extravaganza, but took the fun out of it with draconian controls that put the people of Beijing under virtual house arrest.

''Security Is Unity'' was the official slogan in April during the bloody suppression of separatist rioting in Xinjiang, a restive Moslem region in far western China. Martial law was lifted in April in sensitive Tibet, but tough administrative rules have kept a lid on separatist movements there.

The image-conscious leadership has wielded China's media like a blunt instrument in its efforts to win support, haranguing the public with a string of ideological campaigns that at times seem borrowed wholesale from the chaotic Cultural Revolution of 1966-76.

Hundreds of thousands have been arrested and hundreds executed this year in the heavily promoted ''Hit Hard'' campaign against crime, the ''Sweep up Pornography'' effort and the year-old assault on China's ''six evils'' - prostitution, the selling of women and children, narcotics, superstition, gambling and pornography.

China's economy was something of a bright spot in 1990, boasting steady growth low inflation, bumper harvests and healthy foreign trade, although the gains seem to have come as much despite government policies as because of them.

UPI - Brazil's 41-year-old president is nicknamed ''Indiana Jones.'' When not at his desk or out railing against entrenched interests - overprotected businesses, and overblown state bureaucracies - he is jogging, sailing and practicing karate.

Alberto Fujimori, 52, campaigned for the presidency of Peru by posing as a Samurai warrior, though he speaks only halting Japanese that he learned from his immigrant parents and speaks French and English much better.

When inaugurated on July 28, Fujimori broke precendent by declining to name a single member of his own Change 90 political party to the Cabinet, a sign that he is an independent in fact and not just rhetoric.

Argentina's President Carlos Menem, 60, like Collor, is an avid sportsman who exults in arranging highly publicized tennis matches with the likes of President Bush and Argentine 1990 U.S. Open champion Gabriela Sabattini.

Menem also enjoys flying airplanes, racing cars and boats, and playing basketball and soccer with Argentina's national stars. He wears his sideburns outrageously long, the hairstyle of the late Facundo Quiroga, a famous 19th-century governor of Menem's home province of La Rioja.

Despite their antics, political mavericks Menem, Collor and Fujimori represent a new style of Latin American leadership that will take their nations into the 1990s.

While modern and non-conformist in lifestye, in economic policy they are very much in the mainstream, leading their nations away from decades of nationalism protectionism and inflationary economic policies toward a new era of attracting private investment and international competition.

Instead of the old rhetoric about nationalizing large private companies, Latin America's new leaders talk about ''debt swaps,'' selling state companies, most of which lose money, to private investors while at the same time lowering their nations' overall debt exposure.

Instead of the once favorite practice of ''Yanqui bashing,'' Latin America's new leaders have welcomed Bush's plan for the eventual construction of a Western Hemisphere free trade zone, what Bush calls ''a vision of the largest market in the world,'' that will take years of patient negotiations to become a reality.

Bush unveiled the Western Hemisphere free trade plan on June 27 and got personalized, high-level support for the idea in a whirlwind trip in December to Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Chile and Venezuela.

For Chile and Argentina, such a visit is so rare - discouraged in past decades by either hostility of the populations and leadership or indifference on the part of Washington - that Bush was the first U.S. head of state in 30 years to visit those two countries. Uruguay was last host to a U.S. president 27 years ago when Lyndon Johnson attended a conference of the Organization of American States in Punta del Este.

The 19th-century liberator and visionary Simon Bolivar tried unsuccessfully to establish a form of north-south Western Hemisphere cooperation at the 1826 Panama conference, attended only by Mexico, Colombia, Peru and Central America. The United States then was conspicuous by its absence.

It may well turn out that Bolivar was simply 154 years ahead of his time.

The new generation of Latin American leaders now talks the same language as Washington - pragmatism, efficiency, democracy, and market economics - opening the possibility of forging together the Americas with much closer economic and political ties, despite differences of language, religion and heritage.

The pioneer in the changing relationship is America's closest Latin neighbor, Mexico. At the age of 42, President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, a Harvard Ph.D. is liberalizing Mexico's foreign investment laws and selling off money-losing state companies, such as the airlines, mines, the telephone system and state banks.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 14) UPI - A reputed major cocaine trafficker and successor to the ''king'' of the Bolivian cocaine trade has been charged with 30 felonies stemming from drug ports he allegedly held in the U.S., Bolivia, Colombia, Panama and Mexico, authorities said Friday.

Jorge Roca-Suarez, 38, was arrested Thursday at his plush 19-room house in the affluent suburb of San Marino, U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman Ralph Lochridge said.

Roca is charged with 18 criminal counts in an indictment unsealed Friday in San Diego and faces an additional 12 counts from a separate complaint expected to be unsealed in Los Angeles later in the day, officials said.

The indictments accuse Roca of ''being a principle leader of a continuing criminal enterprise,'' which carries a mandatory life- without-parole prison term, and of conspiring to manufacture, possess and distribute narcotics, Lochridge said.

''We're accusing him of having his own international cocaine trafficking organization,'' Lochridge said. He said Roca's organization was known as the ''Santa Ana Cartel.''

''He was operating in the United States, Bolivia, Colombia, Panama and Mexico '' Lochridge said.

Roca's wife, Beatriz Roca-Torres, 40, also was arrested Thursday in Monterey Park, Calif.

Julius Beretta, an agent in charge of the San Diego office of the DEA told the Los Angeles Times that Roca was ''one of the most significant cocaine traffickers in the United States, on par with a Medellin or Cali cartel leader.''

Roca is the nephew of Roberto Suarez Gomez, who is currently serving a 15-year sentence in Bolivia on drug charges.

Suarez, the patriarch of a respected cattle-ranching family, became known in the 1970s and early 1980s as the ruler of Bolivia's biggest cocaine-trafficking empire and the ''king of cocaine'' in that country.

DEA officials said Roca had already taken over the drug operation by dealing on his own with the Colombian drug cartels, supplying them with semi-refined cocaine paste at prices lower than those charged by his uncle.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 14) UPI - Nearly a year after President Frederik de Klerk launched a daring racial reform program and pledged to abolish apartheid, hopes for a rapid and peaceful end to the country's racial crisis are floundering in a wave of bloodshed.

Hardly a day goes by without more killings in the townships as rival Zulu and Xhosa factions clash with hatchets, axes, spears and guns. The local services in many black areas have collapsed, crime is up, and the numbers of jobless and homeless are soaring.

''I'm still hopeful because the status quo was unacceptable,'' said former member of Parliament Helen Suzman, a white opponent of the National Party's apartheid policies who retired last year. ''We had to change, but I honestly can't say I'm bursting with optimism.''

The carnage that exploded in the densely populated, impoverished urban black townships surrounding Johannesburg complicated and largely overshadowed the reformist efforts of de Klerk, who pledged to create a ''totally new South Africa'' and rid it of apartheid.

South Africa's Institute of Race Relations described the violence as the grimmest ever and said more than 1,500 had died since August.

De Klerk stunned the country when he unveiled his reform program at the opening session of parliament in February. Vowing to lead South Africa back into the community of nations and mindful of the tremendous changes across Eastern Europe, he announced the release from 27 years' imprisonment of black leader Nelson Mandela as the linchpin of the plan.

At the same time, he unbanned the African National Congress, the South African Communist Party and the radical Pan Africanist Congress, and imposed a moratorium on executions. All these steps were intended to meet the ANC's conditions for joining the country's white minority at the negotiating table.

''The season of violence is over,'' the 54-year-old president said. ''The time for reconstruction and reconciliation has arrived.''

With his dramatic announcements, de Klerk had put South African society largely on two parallel but insulated tracks, according to University of Cape Town political professor Robert Schrire. On the one side is the white minority and the black elite moving ever closer to formal negotiations on a new constitution, on the other the vast black majority in the nation's townships.

''There are two report cards for 1990,'' Schrire said, ''a clear failure for the black community at large but a fairly hopeful report card for the white and black elite that since February has made quite stunning progress.''

Critics warned that de Klerk was unleashing powerful and unpredictable forces, but he won kudos from around the world for recognizing that there was no alternative. Much to the ANC's consternation, the international sanctions against Pretoria began to crumble.

De Klerk went further than even some of his advisers had expected, and over the next eight months he moved closer to meeting all the ANC's conditions. He lifted a nationwide state of emergency and agreed in principle to release an estimated 3,000 political prisoners and to facilitate the return of as many as 20,000 South Africans in exile.

In exchange, he secured from the ANC a decision to suspend its guerrilla war, which Mandela helped form three decades ago to force Pretoria to the negotiating table once all ''peaceful'' forms of protest were closed.

De Klerk insisted that negotiations and further reform could not proceed as long as a climate of violence hung over the country. The pledged prisoner releases lurched forward, then halted. The exiles, scheduled to begin returning in October, did not.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 14) UPI - Saeb Erakat is frustrated by another year of spiraling violence, fear and distrust between Palestinians and Israelis and the prospect of more deaths before peace comes.

A self-described Palestinian moderate, Erakat laments a year in which a right-wing Israeli government put the peace process on ice, an attempted seaborne infiltration by Palestinian guerrillas cut short the U.S.-PLO dialogue and hundreds of thousands of Jewish immigrants competed for land, water and work.

''Peace doesn't have eyes. Peace doesn't have a mouth, a heart. We are the ones who can provide peace with the eyes, a mouth, a heart,'' said Erakat, pounding his fist against his chest. ''And peace needs nothing more than a desire. Nothing.

''It doesn't hurt to hope,'' he said.

For Israelis, 1990 found their country battered and besieged politically and financially. The hope Israelis forsaw in the wave of immigration - nearly 200,000 newcomers, mostly Soviet Jews, compared with 12,000 in 1989 - also turned to frustration over housing shortages and economic worries.

Attacks against Israelis rose since the Oct. 8 Temple Mount slayings of more than a dozen Palestinians by Israeli police. Revenge stabbing attacks by Arabs and border incidents killed at least 15 Israelis.

Regardless of their political affiliations, more and more Israelis began looking over their shoulders. Asked by a friend how he was doing, one Israeli living in Jerusalem nonchalantly responded, ''at least I haven't been stabbed yet.''

Relations between Israel and its No. 1 ally, the United States, turned chilly in 1990. Analysts who describe the current state of U.S.- Israeli relations as ''abysmal'' cite the stalemated peace process, reverberations from the Persian Gulf crisis and the clash of personalities between Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and President Bush.

''America is much more in need of an alliance with the Saudis, Egypt and Syria at this point in time than an alliance with us,'' said Hirsh Goodman, editor of The Jerusalem Report, a new English-language weekly journal.

Israel is a ''strategic asset (U.S. officials) are not going to jeopardize,'' Goodman said. But the Bush administration will not go out of its way to when Israeli policy flies in the face of U.S. policy.

On Shamir's relations with U.S. officials, Goodman said, ''They think he's a liar. They don't trust him and they feel betrayed by him.''

The betrayal stems from Israel's shunning of Secretary of State James Baker's efforts to bring about an Israeli-Palestinian dialogue and Shamir's strong belief in the idea of a Greater Israel. Shamir gained strength when the Likud-Labor coalition collapsed over the peace process, and the Israeli prime minister created a government of right- wing and religious parties.

Maintaining his hard line, Shamir reaffirmed in November his government's commitment to an Israel stretching ''from the sea to the Jordan River'' to guarantee the nation's territorial integrity for ''future generations and the mass immigration.'' The reality is that an estimated 100,000 Jews live in the West Bank and Gaza Strip along with more than 1.7 million Palestinians.

''We were left empty-handed,'' Erakat said of the stalled peace process. ''We were left with daggers in our backs as moderates. We were betrayed by the world, especially by the United States.''

Israel's no-compromise policy led to an ideology of despair among Palestinians which in turn sparked a rise in fundamentalism, concluded a report written by Israel's Civil Administration in the occupied territories.

''The political stalemate during the third year of the uprising without any compromise in sight for the near future caused a decrease in the power of PLO activists in the region, since their ideology of a political solution is perceived by the (Palestinian) public as unfruitful,'' the report said.

SUN CITY, Calif. (DEC. 14) UPI - Federico Padres Mexia, the spiritual leader of a religious group whose members were found dead in Tijuana, talked of conversations with God but otherwise kept his neighbors guessing.

Mexican state police Commandante Jose Nunez said Mexia, 72, was the leader of a faith-healing group in the unicorporated Riverside County community of 10,375.

To his neighbors on the quiet street of small new homes where he lived for about two years, he was a slightly eccentric man named Fred who slipped away to Tijuana for months at a time and boasted of lucrative business deals in Mexico.

Mexia remained in a coma Friday. His wife and his lover were among 12 people found dead in what was an apparent asphixiation from a leaking butane lamp.

Mexia's Sun City neighbors, some of them only beginning to make the connection between the Fred they knew and the Federico of Tijuana, said he and his wife had apparently separated.

His house was for sale but there were few interested buyers, neighbors said.

Although Mexia often mentioned conversations with God and disappeared for months at a time to Tijuana, they did not suspect his religious activity.

''He wasn't one that you would want to have a conversation with,'' said Casper Hammer, who lived across the street.

''It was like you weren't talking to a rational person,'' Hammer said, adding that Mexia often referred to ''fantastic'' Mexican business deals involving thousands of dollars.

Hammer said Maxia was apparently an experienced cement worker and had talked about building low-income housing with cinderblocks.

Two neighbors said Mexia told them about talking to God did not attempt to recruit them into his religious activities.

''He said God talked to him or God wanted him to do this or that,'' Hammer said. ''It was just a bunch of mumbo-jumbo.''

Another neighbor, Barbara Myers, remembered Mexia as ''really far out.''

''He was so weird in his religous stuff and he'd just fiddle with things and let his whole yard go to pot,'' she said.

Neighbors said they did not see religious articles in or around Mexia's home.

Hammer said he was in the house recently with friends who were interested in renting it and found the place was tidy despite Mexia's absences of up to eight months at a stretch.

The Riverside County Sheriff's Department, which patrols Sun City, had no reports of criminal or unusual activity at the residence and the District Attorney's Office had no record of cases against Mexia.

Mexia had several grown sons who sometimes visited the Sun City home but the house was empty Friday following the tragedy, neighbors said.

TIJUANA, MEXICO (DEC. 14) UPI - Autopsy reports on 12 people who died during a religious ceremony concluded the deaths were caused by a gas leak from a butane lamp, a police spokeswoman said Friday.

The leak also rendered five other people comatose, a Baja California State Police spokeswoman said.

''The fifth victim seems to be responding, but we cannot confirm it,'' the spokeswoman said.

The bodies were found Thursday just before noon in a circle in a five-bedroom wooden home east of downtown Tijuana, which borders San Diego, by a relative looking for families after a night of chanting.

Police identified the bodies of two men and four women but the identities of two other women and four children were incomplete. Police said the deaths occurred between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. Thursday.

Police initially reported that six members of the unknown religious sect were comatose.

Some survivors told police they fainted after a spice candle was lit during the ceremony.

''They met to partake in religious rites and were burning a fragrant spice candle when all at once they fainted and did not recover consciousness until after they were brought to the hospital,'' a Baja California Police spokesman told reporters Friday.

Among those comatose are the 72-year spiritual leader of the sect and a 4-month-old girl found in her dead mother's arms.

State Police Commander Jaime San Fierro said Federico Mejia, the spiritual leader, was in a coma and that his wife and his lover were dead.

''Investigations indicate that Mejia had recently come back from the United States where he had lived for some time. Relatives of the victims say Mejia had been giving spiritual masses for about a month at the house where the bodies were found,'' San Fierro said. ''The rituals were aimed at curing people.''

Neighbors said noisy late-night prayer meetings were held recently in the house. Witnesses said the group chanted and prayed long into the night on at least three occasions, including Wednesday night.

The dead were slumped in chairs and on the floor of the white stucco home in an area of the La Presa neighborhood about 6 miles east of downtown Tijuana.

Grieving friends and relatives were kept outside by police as the dead were loaded into ambulances and vans.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) UPI - Fitch Investors Service said Friday it has lowered the credit trends of General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., and their respective finance subsidiaries to "negative" from "stable."

The changes reflect the worsening in the domestic operating environment for U.S. automakers, which was greater than expected, the credit rating agency said. This is translating into lower sales and a faster deterioration in their financial performance.

Fitch said the lower credit trend indicates its opinion of GM and Ford's financial performance during the next 12 to 18 months But the "AA" senior debt ratings for GM and General Motors Acceptance Corp., and the "AA-" senior debt ratings for Ford and Ford Motor Credit Co., remained unchanged, it said.

Despite the difficulties in North American automotive operations for GM and Ford, their respective auto finance subsidiaries continue to show good performance, in part because of easing interest rates and competitive conditions, Fitch said.

However, as the operations of both GMAC and Ford Credit are so closely linked to their parents' automotive businesses, their credit trends reflect those of their owners.

Both GM and Ford are expected to post substantial losses for the fourth quarter ended Dec. 31 because of lower production and sales, higher marketing costs and competition, sagging consumer confidence and Mideast tensions.

Last summer, Fitch and several other ratings agencies lowered the senior debt ratings of Chrysler Financial Corp., the financial unit of third-ranked Chrysler Corp.

Earlier this week, Chrysler confirmed it was exploring the possibility of selling a minority stake in CFC to help the unit raise money, since the lower ratings essentially shut it out of the lending market. CFC accounted for about 80 percent of Chrysler's overall profits last year.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) UPI - The dollar strengthened in New York trading Friday on fears the United States and Iraq were headed for war instead of a diplomatic deal on Kuwait, and on inflation news pointing to firm U.S. interest rates.

Currency traders said there was a return to pre-weekend dollar-buying on the perception that U.S. patience was growing short with Iraq in preliminary talks as to when officials of the countries should meet on Kuwait.

Some market players thought President Bush, who scheduled a news conference, might deliver an ultimatum. But although he said he would not sit still for Iraqi manipulation, his comments were not openly bellicose.

Bank of Tokyo senior customer dealer John Lyman reported early dollar-buying on the back of the morning's higher-than-expected producer price index, which measures wholesale inflation. Participants speculated that sign of persistent inflation might slow the Federal Reserve's credit easing.

Late in the New York session, the dollar was trading at 1.4830 German marks, up from 1.4788 marks Thursday, and at 132.85 Japanese yen, up from 132.20. The British pound weakened, selling at $1.9355 vs. $1.9450.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2735 Swiss francs, up from 1.2670; 5.0420 French francs, up from 5.0255; and 1,120.50 Italian lire, ahead from 1,115.

Senior strategist Marc Chandler of IDEA, a New York consulting firm, said he saw market sentiment shifting back to war concerns, which eased last month on Bush's offer to send a high-level emissary to Iraq.

The rising tone between Washington and Baghdad over a date for peace talks is "a big positive for the dollar," Chandler said. Any signs of progress towards peaceful resolution, consequently, will hurt the dollar.

In Europe, the dollar closed higher as investors took refuge from uncertainty in the Persian Gulf and a new perception in the market that U.S. interest rates wil hold steady for the time being.

Gulf uncertainty "tends to give the dollar support on Fridays, because nobody knows what's going to happen over the weekend," explained Avinash Persaud, a currency analyst at UBS Phillips and Drew in London. U.S. indicators created the perception in the market that the Federal Reserve will maintain short-term rates, he added.

The U.S. currency also took comfort Friday from hopes that a Group of Seven meeting due in January will be an obstacle to its slide.

In Frankfurt, the dollar closed higher at 1.4813 German marks against 1.4792 Thursday. In Zurich, it ended at 1.2715 Swiss francs, up from 1.2635. In London, the pound slipped to $1.9405, from 1.9440.

The dollar gained in Paris, Brussels and Milan, ending at 5.039 French francs from 5.0160; 30.75 Belgian francs vs. 30.64; and 1,117.35 lire vs. 1,113.60.

In Tokyo earlier, the dollar gained on the yen on speculation that Japanese banks would need to buy dollars to cover their writeoffs of Venezuelan loans. The U.S. unit ended at 131.87 yen vs. 131.30 yen.

In Zurich, gold closed higher at $373.50 an ounce vs. $371.50 Thursday. In London, gold moved up to $373.25 an ounce from $372.25.

Silver in Zurich closed unchanged at $4.00 an ounce, and in London it slipped to $3.98 from $4.00 Thursday.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $376.75 an ounce, up from $373.50 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold contracts at $376.70 an ounce, ahead from $374.30.

Republic closed cash silver at $3.935 an ounce, off from $4.025. Comex silver closed at $3.937 an ounce, down from $4.006.

(DEC. 14) UPI - An Australian unit of Murdoch Magazines said Friday it has ceased publishing Savvy magazine after only three issues because of a downturn in the Australian economy.

Circulation at the magazine, geared toward young women, exceeded expectations, but advertising did not materialize, Sydney-based Murdoch Magazines PTY Ltd. said in a statement. "Advertisers have run for cover with the dramatic downturn in the overall economy," said Matt Handbury, managing director.

"Savvy has fallen victim to the economic climate. We will certainly keep the concept very alive with a view to pursuing it when conditions are more favorable." Circulation of the last two issues reached 170,000, above the projected circulation of 150,000, Handbury said. The magazine was not distributed in the United States.

Murdoch's U.S. unit recently closed Men's Life, a men's lifestyle magazine, after one issue. It cited the high cost of building advertising and circulation in the current economic environment.

(DEC. 14) UPI - The United States and Iraq have agreed to talk over their troubles but they disagree on when Secretary of State Baker should go to Baghdad and that means the talks may never take place. Iraq is holding tough to its demand that Baker NOT show up before January 12th, just three days before expiration of a U-N mandated deadline. The situation has gotten to the point where President Bush has scheduled an announcement on the talks for this afternoon.

Two Republican Senators report U-S efforts to get high-level talks going with Iraq may be in danger of collapsing. Indiana Senator Richard Lugar and Arizona's John McCain met with President Bush this morning and later said he may scrap the talks if NO agreement is reached on when Baker should meet with Iraq's Saddam Hussein. Bush has tentatively agreed to meet Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Azis in Washington next Monday, but only if a mutually agreed date is reached for the Baker-Saddam talks.

NATO has taken a fresh look at military spending in the Soviet Union and reports it has started to decline after increasing until 1988. The report shows a four percent decline in real terms in Soviet defense expenditures last year. And a similar drop is expected when this year's figures are released.

The Air Force is investigating the discovery of a pipe bomb at NASA's Ames-Dryden Flight Research Facility in California's Mojave Desert. A spokeswoman says a maintenance worker found the ''cylindrical device'' yesterday lying on the ground less than 20 feet from a small building that houses a dispensary and maintenance facilities. The facility serves as a processing center for space shuttles that land at Edward's Air Force Base.

U-S foreign disaster aid officials are meeting in Nairobi, Kenya, to hammer out a response to next year's famine problem in northeast Africa. Officials say tens of thousands of people are doomed to starve to death in 1991 in Sudan despite international efforts to save them. The officials say drought now spreads across large areas of northeast Africa... and northern Ethiopia will suffer even worse food shortages than this year.

PRAGUE, Czechslovakia (DEC. 14) UPI - Czechoslovakia's radical free market finance minister, Vaclav Klaus, faced a major challenge Friday to his efforts to transform Civic Forum into a conservative political party.

Seven Civic Forum ministers were among 89 leading politicians who signed a declaration published in Friday's Prague newspapers calling for the government and Parliament to ''lessen the effects of the economic reforms on socially weak groups.''

They said they formed a Liberal Club of Civic Forum to promote their views.

Klaus was elected chairman of Civic Forum last month and is the architect of the government's free market economic reforms. He has come under increasing criticism from center and left parties that his reforms are too harsh.

Critics say Klaus' plans may destroy the economy and the will of the people for reforms before they allow Czechoslovakia to rebuild an economy damaged by four decades of communist central planning.

But Klaus says there is no ''third way'' to reform, arguing one cannot mix market economics with a planned economy.

''Our short term goal is to create a market economy and let individuals achieve their own goals,'' Klaus told a news conference.

Many of the declaration's signers are close friends of President Vaclav Havel from his days as a dissident and helped found Civic Forum and lead the anti-communist revolution in November 1989.

These include Foreign Minister Jiri Dienstbier, Defense Minister Lubos Dobrovsky, Deputy Premier Pavel Rychetsky, Deputy Foreign Minister Martin Palous and parliamentarians Jiri Ruml and Dana Nemcova, who were all persecuted or imprisoned under the communists for defending human rights.

In their declaration, the ministers said Civic Forum must stay united but that they would fight for social guarantees.

The declaration reads in part:''The market cannot be an end in itself. It is only a means to achieve prosperity and a dignified life in a healthy and clean environment. On the road to this aim, human society is obliged to lessen the effects on its socially weak groups.''

The declaration called for special attention to developing health systems, culture and a school system including vocational retraining for the millions of people expected to be laid off in the economic reforms.

Jan Sokol, leader of the Civic Forum group of deputies in the federal parliament, said he expected Civic Forum to survive without a major split until parliamentary elections are held in June 1992.

Both the ''liberals'' and Klaus's allies said it is very unlikely the formation of such a club would cause an immediate split in Civic Forum.

But Petr Kucera, a founder of the Liberal club who preceded Klaus as Civic Forum's chairman, accused Klaus of gathering the support of people looking for an authoritarian solution to the increasingly oppressive political and economic problems facing Czechoslovakia.

''The right-wing center is formed by people who do not believe in themselves. It's a reflection of a lack of self-confidence, they are looking for someone to help them overcome the problems they face.''

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) UPI - An armored truck guard was fatally shot Friday during a payroll robbery at JFK International Airport by two armed men wearing American Airlines uniforms, authorities said.

The 47-year-old victim was shot as he emerged from the truck outside the American Airlines hanger with a bag containing $65,000, which the gunmen grabbed before fleeing in a blue car, said officials.

The shooting occurred at 5:06 a.m. after the armored truck pulled into a parking lot near the hanger at John F. Kennedy International Airport. The gunmen were described only as two white males.

Police did not disclose the victim's name pending notification of relatives and would not say whether he put up any resistance.

Port Authority spokesman Tom Middlemiss said a baseball cap containing an American Airlines logo was found at the scene, along with one spent shotgun cartridge and two spent shell casings from a .38- caliber revolver.

But, he said, a total of up to eight rounds were fired at a right- side window of the truck at a second guard who was in the passenger seat of the truck and escaped injury.

The victim was shot in the lower back and died about an hour later in Jamaica Hospital.

The armored vehicle is owned by Armor Transport of New York, officials said.

ANKARA, Turkey (DEC. 14) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Friday no guarantees can be given that Iraq would remain territorially intact when the Persian Gulf crisis is over.

Shevardnadze, speaking after talks with Turkish leaders, said Iraq's territorial integrity could have been guaranteed if it had pulled its troops out of Kuwait peacefully, but ''now there is no such thing as a guarantee.''

The Soviet foreign minister said he was expressing his personal views on the concept of Iraq's territorial integrity.

Earlier, Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, who spoke with Turkish leaders a day earlier, said Turkey and Iran share the view that Iraq should remain territorially intact after the crisis.

Turkey has earlier expressed fears that Iraq's oil-rich territories in the northern provinces of Mosul and Kirkuk could fall into rebel Iraqi Kurdish hands if Baghdad suffered a military defeat and collapsed as a result of the crisis.

Turkey does not want an independent oil-rich Kurdish state on its southern border.

Shevardnadze, who wound up a two-day visit to Ankara after discussions with President Turgut Ozal and other Turkish officials, said every effort should be made to bring about a peaceful solution to the crisis.

He said the Soviet public would not endorse any move to send Soviet troops to join the U.S.-dominated multinational force in the gulf in preparation to push Iraqi troops out of Kuwait if they do not withdraw by Jan. 15.

''We also have our principles,'' he said.

Shevardnadze said his discussions focused mainly on the gulf crisis and Soviet views were identical with those of Turkey on the need for a peaceful solution.

''I refrain very much to pronounce the word war because I know how dreadful the consequences can be,'' the foreign minister said.

''I am aware of the military potential there and can calculate very well the dimensions,'' he said. ''I therefore support the idea that every single effort should be made ... to reach a peaceful solution.''

Shevardnadze said the U.N. Security Council resolution setting Jan. 15 as the deadline for a peaceful withdrawal did not mean force would necessarily be used to push Iraq out.

''Meanwhile, we should also keep in mind the possibility of the United States acting outside the framework of the resolution,'' he said. He did not elaborate.

The Soviet leader said Turkey is a politically important state in the region and holds a prestigious place internationally. ''Therefore I am certain it is doing whatever it can to contribute to a solution to the problem,'' he said.

What was important now was that talks between Iraq and the United States should go through, the minister said. ''This is of utmost importance and should be realized soon. We should use this goodwill atmosphere in the best possible way,'' he said.

He said he thinks Washington agrees but he brushed aside Iraqi demands that the Palestinian and Arab-Israeli conflict be discussed as part of overall talks to end the crisis.

''The gulf conflict is pushing the Arab-Israeli conflict into the background '' he said.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (DEC. 14) UPI - For America's space program, 1990 was a roller-coaster year highlighted by three spectacular planetary encounters, six shuttle flights - nine were planned - and a flood of criticism over the flawed Hubble Space Telescope.

NASA's foundering space station project was subjected to yet another round of budget cuts, and a presidential commission recommended sweeping changes in the way the agency operates, including less reliance on the shuttle and development of a new, heavy-lift unmanned rocket.

''America's civil space program is at a crossroads,'' panel chairman Norman Augustine said at a news conference where the widely hailed report was released. ''NASA is neither as troubled as some would suggest nor nearly as good as it will have to be to carry out the kind of space program we recommend.''

NASA, the panel said, should focus on a ''Mission to Planet Earth,'' which would involve launching a set of satellites to study Earth's environment, and a ''Mission from Planet Earth,'' which would focus on the solar system and the eventual exploration of Mars.

Citing the shuttle's unreliability and riskiness, the panel's most controversial recommendation called for forgoing purchasing a new manned orbiter and instead developing a new unmanned rocket for use when astronauts are not absolutely required.

With NASA at a crossroads, the military space program forged ahead in 1990, pressing on with post-Challenger plans to shift high-priority national security satellites from the shuttle to unmanned Titan 4 rockets to ensure reliable access to space.

Two shuttle-class Titan 4 rockets carrying a pair of secret Pentagon satellites were successfully launched in June and November, along with two top-secret shuttle flights, the last such fully-classified shuttle missions currently planned.

In addition, two Strategic Defense Initiative - ''Star Wars'' - missile defense program research satellites were launched atop a Delta rocket in February that was purchased commercially from builder McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Ten other Deltas were launched in 1990 - all successfully - carrying five Air Force Global Positioning System navigation satellites, four commercial communications satellites and a European X-ray telescope.

In another major unmanned launch, an Atlas-Centaur rocket boosted a package of experiments into orbit July 25 in the first commercial launch of the General Dynamics-built launcher.

Despite the successes chalked up by the Delta and Atlas programs, America's infant commercial space program suffered a major setback March 14 when an improperly Titan 3 rocket built by Martin Marietta Astronautics Group of Denver left a $150 million international communications satellite stranded in space.

The satellite's owner, the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization - Intelsat - is paying NASA $90 million to mount a daring rescue mission in 1992 during the new shuttle Endeavour's maiden voyage.

On the scientific front, NASA made major strides in 1990, despite the revelation that the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope's supposedly perfect mirror was ground into the wrong shape, blurring its vision until new cameras equipped with corrective lenses can be launched in 1993.

NASA's Galileo probe zoomed past cloudy Venus on Feb. 10, using the planet's gravity to fling it on to a Dec. 8 flyby of Earth, the first of two such encounters required to whip the nuclear-powered craft onto a trajectory that will put it in orbit around Jupiter in 1995.

While Galileo was heading from Venus to Earth, NASA's Magellan probe slipped into orbit around Venus on Aug. 10 to begin a 243-day mission to map up to 90 percent of the planet's surface using an ingenious cloud- piercing radar system.

Despite trouble with an on-board computer, the solar-powered satellite is working well, beaming back spectacular photos of Venus's tortured surface, revealing huge volcanoes, extensive lava flows and a heavily faulted terrain that will take scientists years to figure out.

ALBANY, NY (DEC. 14) UPI - Gov. Mario Cuomo praised New York state lawmakers Friday for adopting an "historic" $1 billion deficit-reduction plan but scolded them for not cutting more and hinted a delay in state paychecks may be reversed.

At a news conference several hours after the Legislature adjourned early Friday morning, Cuomo chastised the lawmakers for refusing to abolish or consolidate dozens of political patronage posts while thousands of civil service workers face layoffs.

"You can lay somebody off who's carrying a bedpan," Cuomo said scornfully. "That's wrong." He said he would resubmit his proposal to cut or consolidate 50 patronage boards and commissions next year.

The governor also criticized the lawmakers for cutting only half their pet projects out of the budget. He joked that what seems to be a pork barrel to some is "beef if you can get it."

In general, Cuomo praised the package, which is designed to get the state out of an immediate $894 million hole and provide a cushion against additional, expected deficits. Cuomo said the package also includes "more than a billion dollars in recurring cuts that will help begin the process of balancing our next budget."

But Assembly Minority Leader Clarence Rappleyea, R-Norwich, blasted the deficit-reduction package for including: a surcharge enacted on medical facility income; more borrowing, in the form of the delayed paychecks; and gimmicks such as shifting certain state programs to federal funds. As adopted by the Legislature, the deficit plan includes:

- A $190 million cut in state aid to schools, "the first cuts in school aid during a school year since before World War II," according to Cuomo. No school district will lose more than 1.5 percent of its state grant.

- A $140 million surcharge on medical facilities that receive Medicaid funds.

- Restructuring certain state funds to save $362 million.

The state's bad debt and charity funds, which compensate medical facilities that treat people with no money and no health insurance, will be reconfigured to generate $362 million in additional federal funds, thereby reducing the state's outlay, Budget Division spokeswoman Claudia Hutton said.

- A third week's delay in state paychecks to save $135 million. The delay will be phased in over several weeks, but Cuomo hinted it could be reversed if New York's economy and budget improve.

"All of that is subject to negotiations," he said. However, he continued to complain that his proposed no-pay furloughs would have been better than a delay in pay. "The lag is just a loan from state employees," Rappleyea countered.

- A $300-a-year increase in the State University of New York's $1,350 tuition and City University of New York's $1,300 tuition, coupled with better availability of financial aid for part-time students. The increase - the first since 1983 - will bring SUNY and extra $16 million this spring, Hutton said.

- A $17 million cut in legislative "member items," grants to youth groups, senior citizen centers, schools and other organizations in each legislator's district.

The Legislature also enacted a two-year extension of the surcharge on businesses within the Metropolitan Transportation Authority service area for transit projects.

(DEC. 14) UPI - President Bush is scheduled to make an announcement this afternoon on direct talks between the United States and Iraq on the Persian Gulf crisis. And he may say there woN'T be any talks. Iraq is holding tough to demands that meetings between Saddam Hussein and Secretary of State Baker NOT take place earlier than January 12th. That's three days before the end of a U-N mandated deadline that could then allow for the use of the military option to end the crisis. The Bush administration wants the Iraqi meeting to begin sooner.

Investigators who have talked with a hospitalized Amtrak engineer report he tried three times to set the brakes on his ''Night Owl'' passenger train before it derailed at the Back Bay station in Boston. But rookie engineer Richard Abramson reported the brakes would NOT hold. The Amtrak engine then sideswiped the engine of a passing commuter train and the resulting accident injured more than 260 people.

A wind-driven 10-alarm fire swept through a group of triple-decker homes early today in a Boston suburb... forcing more than 100 people to flee in freezing temperatures. Police are investigating the possibility of arson in the blaze, one of four in the coastal city of Revere in a nine-hour period. Seven firefighters were injured. Fire Chief James Connery says the extra-alarm fire was ''the worst'' he'd seen in 35 years on the job.

European leaders meeting in Rome have decided they will send food aid to the Soviet Union this winter. Just how much is still being debated. The Executive Commission of the European Community has suggested a one- BILLION-dollar aid program, one-third in outright grants and two-thirds in credits. But some member nations believe the credits will only further burden the Soviet Union with debt and the issue is still under discussion at the two-day summit.

In Poland, Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki made it official today... he resigned after 15 months in office. The resignation by Mazowiecki, who led East Europe's first postwar non-communist government, also comes three weeks after he lost the presidential race to Solidarity founder Lech Walesa. He said the change in leadership shows Poland is well on the road to democracy.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 14) UPI - The price of Castle & Cooke Inc. stock plunged Friday following the announcement by the holding company that it has taken subsidiary Dole Food Co. off the sales block. Castle & Cooke shares fell $4.625 to $29 a share Friday on the New York Stock Exchange with 1.35 million shares traded.

Castle & Cooke said Thursday that it would not sell Dole because of a slack market for acquisitions and because of expectations of improved future performance from Dole.

The decision to take Dole off the block came five months after the holding company had retained investment bankers Goldman Sachs & Co. to evaluate a possible sale, which analysts believed could have brought as much as $2.5 billion.

Dole, known for its fresh fruits and vegetables, canned foods, nuts and fruit juices, accounted for more than 90 percent of Castle & Cooke's $2.72 billion in 1989 sales.

David H. Murdock, chairman and chief executive officer of Castle & Cooke, said Thursday the potential buyers were not willing to meet the asking price. Analysts have speculated that the possible bidders included Chiquita Brands International and Procter & Gamble, both of Cincinnati, and the Japanese company Sumitomo.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - The Pentagon said Friday it has leased a cruise ship to provide rest and relaxation breaks - and drinks - to participants in Operation Desert Shield.

The first troops will be aboard the Cunard Princess before Christmas, enjoying a pool, health and fitness facilities, television, telephones and, according to a Pentagon press release, ''a variety of entertainment and relaxation opportunities.''

The ship will provide alcoholic beverages, something unavailable to the troops in Saudi Arabia. Soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines will have to pay for their drinks but everything else is free.

About 800 troops at a time will be able to take the two- and three- night breaks from the routine of military life in the desert aboard the 564-foot-long ship. They can take tours and go shopping both aboard the ship and at Bahrain where it will be docked. It also may go out into the gulf for cruises, officials said.

The ship's lounges also will have entertainment for the guests.

The Army, which is renting the ship for $31 million for six months, also is seeking to lease up to three more vessels for use by the troops, hoping to provide as many R&R spots as possible.

However, because of the huge numbers personnel in the region - about 430,000 are expected by mid January - it would take quite some time for many troops to get a chance to relax on one of the ships.

Service personnel getting the R&R opportunity will be picked by a quota system with each service getting a proportionate share of the available slots. Those eligible for the break must have been in Saudi Arabia for two months and each commander will pick those who get to schedule a visit to the ship, officials said.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (DEC. 14) UPI - As leftist rebels continued to rack up battlefield victories, Salvadoran government and military officials this week threatened an all-out effort to defeat the decade-long guerrilla insurgency that has already taken more than 72,000 lives.

''If the (rebels) persist in violent actions, the armed forces will respond with all its energy,'' President Alfredo Cristiani told reporters earlier this week.

But Cristiani's warning fell on deaf ears of the rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN.

After a series of airplane and helicopter downings this week, rebels based in mountainous Chalatenango province chased some 200 members of the elite, U.S.-trained Bracamonte battalion over the border into neighboring Honduras, killing five and wounding at least 15 in the process.

Military analysts say the FMLN's increased use of surface-to-air missiles has thrown government forces off balance. They say the U.S.- supplied fighter planes have been the Salvadoran Armed Force's biggest advantage over the much smaller but more mobile rebel forces.

On Nov. 20, the rebels launched a series of loosely coordinated attacks on army positions in half of El Salvador's 14 provinces and have stepped up the frequency and intensity of combat in contested rural areas, primarily in the provinces of Usulutan and Chalatenango.

More than 200 people have died in the campaign which diplomatic sources characterize as a psychological victory and moral booster for the guerrillas.

The rebels claim their new military campaign is designed to punish the armed forces and force the government into softening its position on military reform at the negotiating table. A new United Nations proposal dealing with reform of El Salvador's powerful military will be introduced at a secret round of talks expected to begin soon.

''All violent actions (by the FMLN) generate more violence, and that puts the dialogue in jeopardy,'' Cristiani said in reference to ongoing peace talks.

Cristiani's conservative government and the FMLN maintain that a political settlement is the only viable way to end their civil war. But government officials said this week the rebel escalation may force a military solution.

After attending the funeral of a helicopter pilot mortally wounded by FMLN groundfire, Salvadoran air force chief Rafael Villamariona told reporters the war would end in 1991 ''one way or another.''

''The government is doing everything it can to find a negotiated settlement to this war,'' Gen. Villamariona said. ''But if the guerrillas continue with this violence it will be the armed forces that imposes an end to the conflict.''

The immediate reaction to the rebels' increased military effectiveness has sped up delivery of close to $50 million in U.S. military aid to the Salvadoran government. The army is talking tough and the most conservative elements of President Cristiani's right-wing Nationalist Republican Alliance party, or ARENA, are complaining about international pressure interfering with the government's ability to win the war.

At a recent party function, ARENA founder Roberto D'Aubuisson said foreign pressure had forced the Salvadoran army to fight the war ''with its hands tied and its eyes blindfolded.''

The army has not said what it might do to step up its war effort, but some observers fear a right-wing backlash could mean more civilian casualties and even the assassination of leftist politicians and union and church leaders.

HOUSTON (DEC. 14) UPI - Continental Airlines Friday outlined an expanded frequent-flyer program in response to similar ticket promotions announced by other airlines earlier this week.

American, United and Northwest announced their promotions Thursday, two days after Delta Air Lines tempted travelers by offering free trips to frequent fliers. Continental's program will allow its customers to earn free tickets in both first class and coach.

Continental, whose parent is in Chapter 11 federal bankruptcy proceedings, also will lengthen the period of the time that free tickets can be earned and used.

A customer flying three round trips or eight segments earns one free coach ticket, while one flying five round trips or 14 segments earns two free coach tickets and seven round trips or 20 segments earns three free coach tickets. Continental's program also allows a passenger to earn two free first-class tickets by flying nine round trips or 24 segments.

The airline said free tickets can be earned for travel occurring from Dec. 15 through March 31, 1991. The free tickets will be good for travel from May 15, 1991, through Feb. 12, 1992. The free trips can be used in the mainland United States, Canada, Mexico, Bermuda, and the Caribbean.

TORONTO (DEC. 14) UPI - Peter Hardy stepped down as chief executive officer and chairman of the board of the Toronto Blue Jays Friday after more than eight years in the post.

Hardy, a founding director of the Blue Jays, will be replaced by two men. William Ferguson will serve as the chairman of the board, and P.N. T. Widdrington was named vice-chairman and chief executive officer.

In a release, Hardy stated: ''At this point, it is time to make a move and pass the responsibilities on. I will continue to serve on the board and support the organization in whatever way I can.''

Ferguson has represented Imperial Trust on the Blue Jays board since 1981. Widdrington, chairman of the board of brewing company John Labatt Limited, has been a board member of the Blue Jays since 1980.

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ (DEC. 14) UPI - Lawyers for Donald Trump filed a debt restructuring plan with New Jersey regulators Friday for the troubled Taj Mahal casino.

The state Casino Control Commission must decide whether the Trump Organization has the stability to continue to operate the Taj to retain the casino license. A spokesman said the body's decision will be made in January.

After some hard-fought negotiations, Trump recently agreed to give the owners of $675 million in risky, high-yielding ''junk'' bonds a half-interest in the casino.

In return, interest rates on the debt will be trimmed by two points and no more than 10 percent will be paid in cash.

While drawing business from other casinos, the Taj - a glitzy $1 billion property billed as the ''eighth wonder of the world'' when it opened - has failed to attract enough gamblers to meet its debt load.

The Philadelphia Inquirer quoted sources inside the Trump Organization Friday as saying the New York developer needs a quick infusion of cash or a quick sale of his Trump Castle property to survive the winter.

Interest payments of $18.4 million and $16.1 million, respectively, were due Saturday for Trump Castle and his third Atlantic City gaming property, Trump Plaza. Both the Castle and the Plaza had barely enough cash to make the payments if all other expenses were ignored.

The developer has also been trying to sell his Trump Princess yacht, which has apparently failed to attract serious bidders. Compounding his financial problems, the Trump Shuttle airline has been hit by rising fuel costs.

If they turns Trump's plan down, the commissioners can either appoint a conservator or lift the Taj's license, spokesman Tom Flynn said.

The Atlantis Hotel and Casino, the only casino to lose its license because of financial problems, went out of business two years ago.

(DEC. 14) UPI - President Bush is still hopeful of a peaceful resolution to the Persian Gulf crisis. But two Republican senators say the president is willing to forgo direct U-S-Iraqi contacts if the circumstances are NOT worked out the way the United States wants. They say Bush is against setting a date for high-level talks that push too close to the U-N deadline for withdrawal from Kuwait.

White House spoeksman Marlin Fitzwater also maintains there's- quote- ''still plenty of time'' for a resolution to the standoff. But Fitzwater rejects suggestions that the proposal for a meeting between Secretary of State Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is in jeopardy of collapsing. He says- ''We still want them.''

The last group of American and Canadian hostages from Kuwait and Iraq headed home today. A chartered plane left Frankfurt, Germany, carrying 48 people, 10 of them Canadian, en route to the United States. The flight is scheduled to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington this afternoon to a hero's welcome.

British news reports say the investigation of the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland two years ago has turned up new evidence implicating Libya in the attack. London's Independent newspaper quotes ''high-level sources'' who say suspicion of Libyan involvement is based on an analysis of a detonator fragment found in a field near Lockerbie, where the plane crashed.

A federal jury in Charlotte, North Carolina, today order jailed T-V evangelist Jim Bakker to pay 129-Million dollars in a fraud and conspiracy lawsuit. The class-action suit was filed by contributors to Baker's defunct P-T-L ministry alleging that Bakker conspired with other P-T-L officials to set up secret accounts that gave him, his wife, Tammy Faye, and top P-T-L cohorts large salary bonuses.

A federal judge in Miami today put off deposed Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega's January trial until at least June. The judge said a high-level Justice Department delegation is being sent overseas to try to convince foreign governments to unfreeze Noriega's assets so he can defend himself against U-S drug charges.

MUNICH, GERMANY (DEC. 14) UPI - David Wheaton jolted Ivan Lendl 6-2, 7-6 (7-4) Friday, setting up an all-American semifinals at the $6 million Grand Slam Cup.

Wheaton, ranked 27th, beat the world's No. 3 player with a strong first serve and brilliant returns in the closing quarterfinal match.

On Saturday, he will face Brad Gilbert, who earlier in the day beat Aaron Krickstein 6-7 (5-7), 6-4, 6-3. Michael Chang plays U.S. Open champion Pete Sampras in the second semifinal.

Wheaton's victory was the tournament's second big upset, following Chang's triumph Tuesday over Stefan Edberg, the world's No. 1 player.

In beating Lendl, Wheaton almost matched his career winnings of $480, 000. He and the three other semifinalists are assured $450,000. Sunday's winner will receive $2 million.

Before a crowd of 5,000 at Olympic Arena, Wheaton needed but 29 minutes to take the first set. Lendl converted less than half of his first serves in the set. Wheaton then attacked the Czechoslovakian's weak second serve, and had three breaks to show for his effort.

In the second set, Lendl missed two break points when up 2-1. When Wheaton could not convert two break chances, the players went to a tie- breaker, won 7-4 by Wheaton.

Gilbert, who entered the tournament as a substitute for injured Andre Agassi, beat Krickstein in a match marked by long baseline rallies, missed opportunities and 15 breaks. The encounter looked more like a duel on clay than one on a fast indoor surface.

After taking the first set, Krickstein rallied from a 3-1 deficit in the tie-breaker to win 7-5. He broke twice early in the second set, but both times Gilbert broke back. Gilbert forced a third set when Krickstein committed his second double-fault on set point.

In the final set, Krickstein twice went up one break. But, as in the previous set, he could not hold the lead. He lost all his service games in the set, while Gilbert held twice. The Californian ended the 2-hour, 41-minute match with his 11th ace.

#90348u1622 12/14/1990 ~United Press International
WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - The last group of American and Canadian hostages from Kuwait and Iraq - including the U.S. ambassador in Kuwait City - arrived home Friday to a hero's welcome.

After 132 days in enforced residence in Kuwait and Iraq, the former hostages left Baghdad Thursday, spent the night in Frankfurt, Germany, and then flew to the United States, where they arrived at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., near Washington shortly before 4 p.m. EST.

The last flight from Baghdad Thursday carried 96 people to Frankfurt, but about half of them were foreign nationals who chose to remain in Europe. The final flight to the United States carried 48 former hostages, 10 of them Canadians.

Secretary of State James Baker attended the arrival ceremony, saying Iraqi President Saddam Hussein ''deserves no thanks, no reward'' for releasing the hostages, some of whom were detained as ''human shields'' at military and industrial sites to deter an attack from U.S.-led forces aligned against Iraq.

''Your ordeal is over, but the ordeal of the Kuwaiti people continues,'' Baker told the former hostages, who stepped off a giant military transport plane into a clear and cold December afternoon before making their way to the warm embrace of family and friends gathered at the air base.

Baker described Saddam as an international outlaw and ''a vicious and capricious dictator.''

Included in the group that arrived in the United States was Ambassador Nathaniel Howell, who captained a spirited effort to keep the embassy open in defiance of an Iraqi order that all foreign embassies in Kuwait close down.

The embassy had its electricity cut off and Howell, about nine State Department employees and roughly 20 other Americans who fled Iraqi troops during the Aug. 2 invasion survived on spartan rations. They also used water from the compound's swimming pool for cooking and bathing.

Howell said he locked the gate and left the garrison flag flying over the compound and he vowed that it will be re-opened.

''Make no mistake, the only industry in Kuwait now is war,'' said Howell in remarks after landing at Andrews. He described the Iraqi troops as digging entrenchments in Kuwait and giving no sign that they are going to pull out.

The final flight means that about 2,550 Americans were airlifted out of Iraq aboard 15 chartered flights since early August. No more flights are planned, even if some of the remaining U.S. citizens should choose to leave Iraq or Kuwait, since regular commercial flights are now available to Amman.

Those flights are permitted under the United Nations economic embargo because they are defined as humanitarian in nature.

Another approximately 800 Americans made it out of Kuwait and Iraq on their own, sometimes on perilous journeys through uncharted desert country.

Those approximately 500 U.S. citizens remaining behind are mainly the spouses of U.S. citizens. In some cases, the head of the household has dual Iraqi-U.S. nationality and, as an Iraqi citizen, would require an exit visa, which the Iraqi government refuses to issue.

Others are minor children, staying behind with their parents who have chosen to remain in Iraq.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 14) UPI - Control Data said Friday the Bush administration has approved an export license allowing the company to ship a large, mainframe computer to China.

Control Data's CYBER 992 model computer is believed to be the highest performance computer the U.S. government has ever approved for sale to China. The Chinese government says the machine will be used by the State Meteorological Administration to improve regional weather forecasting.

The multilateral Coordinating Committee on Export Controls also must approve the sale before the export license can be issued. COCOM approval is expected early next year, and Control Data plans to install the computer in the first quarter of 1991.

The sale requires COCOM approval because it exceeds the present guidelines for China.

The present ''green line'' for China is PDR 550, or a processing data rate of 550 megabits per second; computers exceeding that limit must be approved by COCOM because of the possibility they could be used for military applications. The CYBER 992 is rated at a PDR of 2030.

Control Data said it expects the U.S. government to require security measures to insure its computer is dedicated to civilian weather forecasting.

''Control Data welcomes President Bush's decision to approve the CYBER 992 for this humanitarian application in China,'' said James E. Ousley, president of Control Data's Computer Products Group.

''Reliable weather forecasting is essential to the protection of life and property, particularly in China because of its severe weather patterns,'' Ousley said. ''Control Data pioneered the computer business in China in the 1970s. We are honored that the president's decision means the largest computer ever approved for China is a Control Data CYBER 992.''

The CYBER 992 is considered the minimum strength computer necessary for comprehensive weather forecasting.

Control Data currently has a smaller computer system, a CYBER 960, which is used for limited weather analysis by China's weather agency. The CYBER 960 will be used in conjunction with the new system.

It is estimated that in an average year, severe weather adversely affects about 200 million Chinese, and that about 1700 are killed in various weather disasters.

Forecasts made with the help of the new computer will be broadcast to civilian populations within and outside China, in both Chinese and English. In addition data and forecasts will be distributed to the world weather community to benefit other major weather centers.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) UPI - The Dow industrials posted only a slight gain this week as worries about the economy and the prospects for a peaceful solution to the crisis in the Persian Gulf kept a lid on prices.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 20.55 Friday to end the week at 2593.81 but managed to rise 3.71 on the week, a 0.15 percent gain.

Among broader market indexes, Standard & Poor's 500-stock index slid 0.93 to end the week at 326.82 and the New York Stock Exchange composite index slipped 0.36 over the week to end at 178.71.

Declines led advances 1,040-865 among the 2,183 NYSE issues traded this week. Weekly Big Board volume totaled 779,246,640 shares, down from 990,005,470 a week earlier and 927,760,970 shares a year ago.

Stocks closed slightly higher Monday in very dull trading as prospects for lower interest rates sparked a recovery from early weakness tied to renewed tough talk from Iraq on the Mideast crisis.

Weakness in technology issues dragged prices down modestly Tuesday. But the market rallied Wednesday, when rumblings of peace overtures by an Iraqi envoy sent oil prices down.

Prices closed mixed Thursday, with the Dow industrials pressured by a late jump in oil prices, and an unexpected jump in producer prices Friday sent the market down sharply.

With Wednesday a big gainer and Friday the biggest loser of the week, stocks finished flat. Analysts summed up the week as a pause, known in Wall Street parlance as consolidation.

''It wasn't a bad week for a week of correction and consolidation,'' said Alfred Goldman, market strategist at A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc. in St. Louis.

''We're working on the next bull market and coming out of a bear market, so we have a classically high level of skittishness. That keeps a lid on rallies and enthusiasm,'' Goldman said, calling this a sign of a healthy market.

''The world is still facing a lot of problems. The fact that the market is not shaking, rattling and rolling on the upside means it's operating intelligently '' he said, adding: ''This is a healthy market, a valid reflection of the state of the economy and the world.''

Goldman said that it looked as though stocks broke out of their consolidation when the Dow ran up 36 points Wednesday but that the market was still slightly ''overbought'' at that point.

Overall, Goldman was encouraged, however. ''The market still acts like there's not a lot of stock for sale, and people on the sidelines with cash are more aggressive than potential sellers. Momentum remains up, and I think we're going to get a Christmas present in the form of a rally,'' he said.

Don Hays, director of investment strategy at Wheat, First Securities Inc. in Richmond, Va., agreed.

''This was a pause to refresh, a healthy type of pause. Stocks that were up too much are backing off a little. I think the market is entering a two-week consolidation period,'' he said. ''It should last another week or week and a half. Then we might get a Santa Claus rally.''

On the trading floor this week, Occidental Petroleum was the most active issue off 1/4 to 20 5/8. The activity reflected rampant takeover speculation in the wake of the death of Dr. Armand Hammer, the company's longtime chairman.

AT&T followed, up 3/4 to 30 5/8. NCR rejected its $90-a-share hostile bid, but AT&T said it was determined to conclude a merger with NCR, which closed off 2 7/8 on the week to 88 7/8.

General Motors was third most active, off 3 1/4 to 33 1/4. The No. 1 automaker was cautious about its outlook in a year-end news conference this week, citing uncertainty about the situation in the Mideast.

Among other blue chips, IBM lost 1 1/4 to 111 1/4 and General Electric fell 1 7/8 to 55 5/8, but Philip Morris gained 5/8 to 50 5/8.

Elsewhere, Hilton Hotels surged 6 1/4 to 39 1/4, also amid renewed takeover speculation.

On the American Stock Exchange, the Amex Market Value index fell 0.71 to close Friday at 305.74. Declines led advances 480-319 among the 1,008 issues traded.

Amex volume totaled 53,900,470 shares, compared with 64,409,155 traded a week earlier and 70,777,430 traded in the same week a year ago.

Alza led the Amex actives, up 1 1/2 to 46 1/2.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index lost 2.71 to end the week at 368.83.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - A former close associate of accused S&L kingpin Charles Keating Jr. told a Senate panel Friday Keating contributed huge sums of money with the purpose of ''buying access'' to key politicians, but maintained Keating did not bribe favors from the so-called Keating Five senators.

James Grogan, vice president of Keating's failed Lincoln Savings and Loan of Irvine, Calif., and corporate counsel for the thrift's parent company, Phoenix-based American Continental Corp., testified under a grant of limited immunity during the 17th day of public hearings by the Senate ethics committee into the Keating Five affair.

Grogan, a Glenn aide in the 1970s who later accepted a $300,000 per year job with Keating, shed new light on important aspects of the influence-peddling case, in particular the conduct of Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich. His testimony followed two days of private questioning by the committee.

He said Riegle arranged a controversial 1987 meeting between the senators and bank regulators on Keating's behalf, but skipped the session because he knew it was a ''politically explosive situation.'' Grogan also said meetings with Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., often mixed fund-raising pitches from the senator and requests for action by Keating.

The panel is investigating whether Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., DeConcini, D-Ariz., John Glenn, D-Ohio, John McCain, R-Ariz., and Riegle improperly pressured bank regulators to benefit Keating.

Keating, who contributed $1.3 million to the senators' re-election campaigns and other pet causes, has been indicted on state securities and fraud charges in California and is the target of a continuing federal grand jury probe.

Grogan was one of seven Lincoln or American Continental figures, including Keating, who invoked their Constitutional right against self- incrimination in refusing to testify before the ethics panel.

But Grogan was compelled to testify and produce related documents under the limited immunity, granted by a U.S. District Court judge. In exchange, Grogan cannot be prosecuted on statements he makes before the committee. He is not facing any criminal charges.

''I don't pretend to be able to speak for Mr. Keating,'' Grogan cautioned. ''Mr. Keating is the only person who could tell you want was in his mind.''

He also said he maintains ''a rather strained relationship'' with Keating, with whom he has not spoken since leaving American Continental in June, because of Keating's dissatisfaction over Grogan's handling of bankruptcy matters.

In a statement given privately to the committee Thursday and released Friday, Grogan said: ''He (Keating) believed that it was very important to his business to have political contacts and to be able to get his point of view in front of powerful political people.''

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., then pointed out, ''That's called buying influence.''

Grogan responded, ''I would draw a distinction between buying access and the ability to make your pitch and buying influence and the ability to actually have someone do something.''

Grogan pointed out that Cranston, who received about $974,000 in contributions from Keating, ''several times'' refused to take action desired by Keating. Grogan also said by nature of being an important constituent, Keating felt he already had solid access with DeConcini, Glenn and McCain without the contributions.

Helms pressed Grogan about the appearance of bribery, but Grogan said he never ''smelled the smallest whiff of the type of activity that you're talking about.''

Grogan Friday reinterated his ''buying access'' statements, but said he ''never got the impression'' that the senators would ''require a contribution'' to take action on Keating's behalf. He did state that senators ''only have so many hours in a day'' and that a contribution would give one ''a better chance'' to direct access.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 14) UPI - Lockheed Corp. said Friday that Japan Airlines has invested in its new aircraft maintenance unit, seeking to take advantage of the growing number of Boeing 747 jumbo jets that will need modifications.

Under the agreement, the airline will provide 14 percent of the investment in Lockheed Commercial Aircraft Center, formed in July to perform maintenance and modification on the Boeing jets.

Analysts have endorsed Lockheed's move, saying the business area has significant growth potential.

The center, scheduled to open at Norton Air Force Base about 50 miles east of Los Angeles during the first quarter next year, is expected to employ 450 workers by the end of 1991, with that number growing to 1,000 by 1994.

''The increasing fleet size of 747 aircraft and the continued use of older aircraft has created a situation where available qualified facilities are in short supply,'' said Gary Bowring, president of the Lockheed unit.

JAL has the world's largest fleet of 747s, with 67 in service, and has placed orders for 64 of the newest 747-400 version. Of the 64, firm orders have been placed for 30; the remainder are on option.

Akio Nakamura, managing director and senior vice president of JAL, said: ''We anticipate that a significant number of our 747 aircraft will require maintenance and modification in the future.''

The deal also calls for one JAL executive to sit on the five-member board of the Lockheed unit and for some of its technical instructors, engineers and inspectors to work at Norton.

Lockheed will occupy two bays of a four-bay hangar until 1994, when the Air Force is scheduled to leave the base, and then take over the other two bays.

Lockheed, whose record in the aircraft modification and maintenance dates back to 1938, operates the Lockheed Aeromod facility in Greenville, S.C., and recently dedicated a new facility in Tucson, Ariz.

HOUSTON (DEC. 14) UPI - Los Angeles Lakers All-Star forward James Worthy pleaded no contest to charges of solicitation of prostitution and was put on probation for one year and fined $500, court officials said Friday.

Worthy, 29, notified Harris County Court-at-Law officials that he was ready to plead no contest and he entered that plead to the misdemeanor Thursday, attorneys said.

He also was sentenced to perform 40 hours of community service.

Worthy, the Lakers' leading scorer, was arrested Nov. 15 after he allegedly called an escort service from his hotel room and requested two women. Police said phone calls to the escort service were being monitored by the vice squad.

Two female undercover oficers went to the hotel where Worthy allegedly offered to pay both of them for sex, said police spokesman Dan Turner.

Worthy, a native of Gastonia, N.C., was taken to the jail where he posted $1,000 bond. He arrived at the Summit late in the first half of the game, helping the Lakers to a 108-103 overtime victory against the Rockets.

Court officials said no court action was scheduled this week on the case but it was put onto the docket after Worthy indicated he wanted to plead no contest.

YONKERS, NY (DEC. 14) UPI - A lion was found living in the back of an automobile repair shop Friday, and the business' owner told authorities an unknown man had dropped the animal off four days earlier and had not returned.

Lt. Vincent Fontana of Yonkers Police, said the animal, which appears to be about one year old, was discovered by Sgt. Brian Hill in the back room of Yonkers Transmission, 440 Sawmill River Road, at 4 p.m.

''Beginning last week we started getting many calls from people reporting they had heard a lion roaring,'' Fontana said.

''We get many calls from people saying they've heard lion roaring and these things usually turn out to be nothing to all,'' he said. ''But this time there was something to it.''

''Hill approached the auto shop's owner, Pat Tartaglione, 29, and was told, 'Yeah, it's true - I do have a lion.'''

Tartaglione said an unknown man had left the lion, whose gender was unknown, at the shop on Monday and had promised to retrieve the creature soon.

''During the four days the animal was at the shop the owner fed the creature raw meat,'' Fontana said.

Fontana said the lion had no collar but was kept in a secured area. ''If people went into their shop to get their transmission repaired they probably wouldn't have gotten bitten.''

The policemen said authorities would continue to question Tartaglione.

Yonkers Police turned the matter over to the ASPCA which ordered the animal brought to the society's ''animalport,'' at John F. Kennedy International Airport.

Kathi Travers, director of the animalport said ''I just got rid of one lion, and now I've got another.''

On Monday Travers accompanied, ''Herman'' - a declawed male lion that a Brooklyn family had tried to raise as a pet - to the Endangered Species Survival Center in Lumberton, Miss.

''There seems to be an oubreak of lions in New York,'' the woman said. ''Lions don't belong here. They belong in the jungle... and I don't mean the concrete kind.''

Travers said she understood the lion found in Yonkers had not been declawed, adding ''it will be easier to find a home for this one. It was hard to find a place for Herman because he had no claws.''

TUCSON, Ariz. (DEC. 14) UPI - Bankrupt sunglasses producer Foster Grant Corp. said Friday that it has been sold to The Bonneau Co. for an undisclosed price in a bankruptcy court transaction.

Bonneau, a privately held corporation based in Dallas, said Foster Grant will continue to operate with its headquarters in Tucson, Ariz. and its manufacturing plant in Nogales, Mexico. The company has about 150 employees.

Foster Grant, which has yearly sales of about $35 million in the low- end sunglasses market, filed for Chapter 11 federal bankruptcy protection last Aug. 16, listing $27 million in assets and $60 million in liabilities.

David Moore, the company's marketing director, said that the sale was approved in bankruptcy court in Tucson late Thursday for a price of more than $4 million. The closing documents for the transaction were signed Friday.

Moore said Foster Grant is the nation's leading brand in sunglasses sold for under $30 per pair, while Bausch & Lomb's Ray Ban brand is the leader in the high-end market.

Bonneau is a 25-year-old sunglasses importer and distributor, with about $50 million in annual sales. It acquired Pennsylvania Optical in 1986 and said it has returned that company to profitability and doubled its sales since then.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 14) UPI - A reputed major cocaine trafficker and successor to the ''king'' of the Bolivian cocaine trade controlled a massive cartel which resorted to kidnapping, beatings and murder to protect its business interests, indictments unsealed Friday said.

Jorge Roca Suarez, 38, described by authorities as the highest- ranking cocaine cartel member in U.S. custody, is charged with 30 felonies alleging he headed a vast organization which employed 300 to 400 workers.

Roca's organization, known as ''La Corporacion'' or the ''Santa Ana Cartel,'' had drug ports in the United States, Boliva, Colombia, Panama and Mexico, federal Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman Ralph Lochridge said.

Roca, 38, was arrested Thursday at his plush 19-room house in the affluent suburb of San Marino, northeast of Los Angeles. His wife, Cirila Roca, 38, and two sisters also were taken into custody.

Lochridge said that Roca's status, as a member of an international cartel and the head of his own organization, exceeds that of famed kingpins Carlos Ledher and Juan Ramon Matta Ballesteros, both of whom are in federal custody.

''He's the highest ranking cartel member (in U.S. custody),'' Lochridge said. ''It would be like the chairman of the board.''

One of two indictments unveiled Friday specifically states that Roca ''would, both directly and indirectly, utilize and resort to threats, violence, kidnapping, beatings and murder to facilitate and promote the profitable operation of this continuing criminal enterprise.''

Targets of these crimes allegedly included Roca's ''co-conspirators, business associates and other individuals to whom he owed money ... so as to avoid having to pay his debts,'' the indictment said.

In addition to the arrests, authorities filed several civil suits Friday seeking the seizure of homes and other real estate owned by Roca or his family in the San Gabriel Valley, San Bernardino County and other parts of Southern California. The property is valued at $8 million.

An 18-count indictment in San Diego and one charging 12 felonies in Los Angeles allege that, in 1981, Roca began learning the ropes of the drug business from his uncle, Bolivian cocaine king Roberto Gomez Suarez.

Roca catapulted to the the top of the trade, garnering his own cartel within five years, the indictments said.

Roca, his wife and two sisters appeared Friday in federal court in Los Angeles but detention proceedings were postponed until Dec. 21. Meanwhile, the defendants were being held without bail.

The indictments accuse Roca of ''being a principle leader of a continuing criminal enterprise,'' which carries a mandatory life- without-parole prison term, and of conspiring to manufacture, possess and distribute narcotics, among other charges.

DEA officials said Roca took over the family drug operation by dealing on his own with the Colombian drug cartels, supplying them with semi-refined cocaine paste from the Chapare region of Bolivia at prices lower than those charged by his uncle.

The indictment alleges that Roca ran a cut-throat cartel which used violence and threats to maintain smooth operations and bribed government and law enforcment officials in Boliva and Mexico to secure ''protection'' from prosecution.

Roca allegedly bribed members of a Bolivian National Police squad known as the ''Leopardos,'' a paramilitary anti-narcotics enforcement group, to use radio bases to monitor law enforcment activity in order to evade detection from the DEA and police.

The San Diego indictment alleges Roca operated ''clandestine cocaine laboratories scattered throughout the jungles of Bolivia, each capable of producing (440 pounds) of cocaine per day, along with numerous concealed cocaine storage locations, each having a (plane) landing strip nearby.''

Gomez Suarez currently is serving a 15-year sentence in Bolivia on drug charges. The patriarch of a respected cattle-ranching family, Gomez Suarez became known in the 1970s and early 1980s as the ruler of Bolivia's biggest cocaine-trafficking empire and the ''king of cocaine'' in that country.

(DEC. 15) UPI - The college basketball season kicks into high gear Saturday with several key matchups, including No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas playing No. 18 Michigan State in Auburn Hills, Mich.

Saturday's other top games include: No. 17 Alabama at No. 10 North Carolina, Loyola-Marymount at No. 13 Oklahoma and co-No. 21 Georgia Tech at Temple.

In Friday games, No. 11 Georgia bounced Miami 78-60 and No. 25 Nebraska downed Tennessee Tech 113-92 in the Ameritas Classic in Lincoln, Neb.

The defending national champion Runnin' Rebels will get their first test of the young season against the Spartans, who have struggled this year.

UNLV, 2-0, has been impressive so far, posting decisive victories over Alabama-Birmingham and Nevada-Reno by an average of 45 points.

The Spartans meanwhile, have won two straight after dropping consecutive games to Nebraska and Bowling Green after opening the season with a victory over Furman.

The game will feature three of the best players in the country, UNLV forwards Larry Johnson and Stacy Augmon and Michigan State swingman Steve Smith.

At Chapel Hill, N.C., the 10th-rated Tar Heels will be playing their second straight Southeastern Conference opponent in No. 17 Alabama. North Carolina used a second-half rally to down Kentucky earlier in the week.

Alabama, 2-2, which has played poorly on defense in losses to Southern Mississippi and Wichita State, will need to improve on its woeful free-throw shooting (55 percent) to win.

It promises to be a high-scoring game in Norman, Okla. when Loyola- Marymount, averaging 114 points per game while giving up 123, takes on the Sooners.

Oklahoma, 7-1, has won six straight since a loss to No. 2 Arkansas, and the Sooners are unbeaten in their last 53 games at Lloyd Noble Center.

Two of the best guards in the country will be on the floor in Philadelphia when Temple plays Georgia Tech. Kenny Anderson, the Yellow Jackets' sophomore sensation, will go head-to-head with the Owls' Mark Macon.

In other games involving teams in the UPI Top 25 on Saturday, No. 3 Syracuse hosts Long Beach State; No. 5 Georgetown hosts Texas-El Paso; sixth-ranked UCLA visits No. 24 DePaul; No. 7 Indiana plays Western Michigan; No. 9 Ohio State is at American; No. 14 St. John's welcomes Howard; No. 16 Pittsburgh plays Robert Morris; co-No. 19 Southern Mississippi takes on Northeast Louisiana, co-No. 21 New Mexico State plays New Mexico and No. 23 East Tennessee State is at George Mason.

No. 2 Arkansas, No. 4 Arizona, No. 8 Duke, No. 12 Louisiana State, No. 15 Connecticut, and co-No. 19 South Carolina are all idle.

In Friday's action at Miami, Litterial Green scored 18 points and No. 11 Georgia kept Miami winless with the victory. Georgia, 5-1, which had been averaging 94 points per game in their first six games, struggled against Miami's deliberate style but managed to take an 11-point lead at the half and coasted the rest of the way. The Hurricanes, 0-5, are off to their worst start since 1939-40. Joe Wylie and Jerome Scott led Miami with 16 points each.

At Lincoln, Neb., junior Carl Hayes scored 18 points to lead seven Nebraska players in double figures and the No. 25 Cornhuskers took the opening game of the Ameritas Classic. Nebraska, 8-1, advanced to Saturday's final where it will play the winner of Friday's second game between Bowling Green and Alabama State.

(DEC. 14) UPI - President Bush today stood firm on the dates he's given Iraq for direct talks. (DEC. 14) UPI - President Bush says he won't be party to what he called Saddam Hussein's ''manipulation'' to get around a January 15th deadline to get out of Kuwait. Bush told reporters at a White House news conference- ''That deadline is real.'' The president says he's offered 15 dates up to and including January 3rd for direct U- S-Iraqi peace talks and indicates he's NOT budging from that position. Iraq wants a proposed meeting between Secretary of State Baker and the Iraqi president to take place January 12th, just three days before the U-N deadline for its withdrawal from Kuwait.

The last group of American and Canadian hostages to be airlifted from Kuwait and Iraq arrived home today to a hero's welcome. The 48 former hostages- including the U-S ambassador in Kuwait City and 10 Canadians- landed at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington late this afternoon. Secretary of State Baker told the group Iraqi President Saddam Hussein ''deserves NO thanks NO reward'' for releasing the hostages.

President Bush's decision today to nominate Illinois congresswoman Lynn Martin as labor secretary is drawing fire from the AFL-CIO. Union President Lane Kirkland says Martin's 10-year voting record in the House failed to show what he called a sensitivity toward workers. Bush nominated Martin to replace Elizabeth Dole as labor secretary and as the only woman in his cabinet.

N-C-R Corporation is rejecting a six-BILLION-dollar hostile takeover bid by American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The nation's fifth largest computer firm says it has filed suit charging A-T-and-T of making false statements in its filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission. It says the A-T-and-T filings failed to disclose that the tender offer is conditional upon N-C-R's board of directors approving a friendly transaction with the communications giant. The suit says A-T- and-T also omitted information concerning its failure in the computer industry.

Authorities say 12 members of a religious sect who were found dead in Tijuana, Mexico, yesterday were asphixiated by a gas leak. A police spokeswoman says autopsy reports conclude the deaths were caused by a gas leak from a butane lamp. The 12 died during a religious ceremony in a small house near downtown. The leak also rendered five other people comatose, including the 72-year spiritual leader of the sect.

(DEC. 14) UPI - President Bush says Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein is trying to manipulate to get around the January 15th deadline to leave Kuwait. Bush says he's offered 15 different dates for the talks between Saddam and Secretary of State Baker- up to and including January 3rd. But he says Iraq has proposed only one date, January 12th. And Bush says that's too close to the United Nations deadline for Saddam to withdraw his troops from Kuwait.

President Bush's decision to nominate outgoing Illinois congresswoman Lynn Martin to replace Elizabeth Dole as labor secretary is drawing mixed reaction. The announcement drew a swift and negative reaction from the nation's largest labor federation with more 14 Million members. AFL- CIO President Lane Kirkland charged that Martin's 10-year voting record in Congress ''has NOT reflected a sensitivity to the needs of workers.''

But Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy commended Martin on her nomination, saying the Labor Department needs a strong secretary who's- quote- ''willing to stand up for hard-pressed families against a constant pro-business tilt of the White House.''

The gunmen grabbed the bag and fled in a blue getaway car.

The Senate ethnics committee heard more testimony today in the influence-peddling case against the so-called Keating Five senators. A former close associate of accused S-and-L kingpin Charles Keating today revealed Michigan Senator Donald Riegle's role in the case. He was arrested in his 19-room house in the L-A suburb of San Marino. One official says the trafficker's organization was known as the ''Santa Ana Cartel.''

A Family Court judge in New York City today ordered a 14-year-old neighborhood bully kept in a ''secure'' facility for the first year of a three-year term of state custody. He set fire to a frail Brooklyn schoolboy whose plight won national attention. The 12-year-old victim was burned over half of his body.

Two prosecution witnesses testified that a wealthy Brazilian rancher and his son plotted to kill an ecologist and labor leader for his work in trying to save the Amazon rain forest. And in another sector of Brazil, gunmen killed another labor leader in the same fashion as the 1988 shotgun slaying of the ecologist. But officials say the killings are apparently NOT related.

Police in Yonkers, New York, say they get a lot of calls from people who said they heard a lion roaring. But a surge of calls in the past week sent police to a car repair shop. Police found a lion in the back of the shop. Its owner said a man left the lion four days ago... and has NOT returned. The lion was taken to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals' shelter at the Kennedy airport, where the director said he'd just gotten rid of another lion.

NEW YORK (DEC. 14) UPI - ''Peter Pan'' is an enduring musical of questionable merit that must be endured one more time on Broadway for the sake of the holiday season.

This is a time to take the kids to the theater and ''Peter Pan'' is a show tailor-made for children who have not yet reached the age of critical analysis.

The limited run revival, which opened at the Lunt-Fontanne Theater Thursday, stars one-time Olympic gymnast Cathy Rigby, which may or may not be worth the $50 price of admission according to your memories of Peter Pans of yesteryear.

Mary Martin was sheer sparkling magic in the role of the boy who wouldn't grow up in the 1954 premiere of ''Peter Pan'' and Sandy Duncan brought her own brand of toothy charm to the 1979 revival.

Rigby outshines both in giving the illusion of maleness to Peter and neither Martin or Duncan had the physical ability or stamina to fly about the stage on a wire with Rigby's energetic abandon.

The athlete-turned-actress makes an attractive Peter and her voice is pleasant enough though overmiked as is the entire show, making it the noisiest currently on Broadway. What she lacks is an ethereal quality that this show about childhood dreams requires. She is a literal actress and what you see is what you get.

Stephen Hanan, who doubles as the father of the Darling brood and Captain Hook has the style for this sort of outrageous fantasy that eludes Rigby. His Mr. Darling strikes an off note but his egocentric, insane pirate is a character creation in the great tradition of bravura comedy that puts no limits on eye rolling and eccentric gesture and speech.

Cindy Robinson is quite fetching as Wendy Darling, the little girl who becomes the Neverland mother of the tribe of Lost Boys, and Brit West and Chad Hutchison are stalwart as her brothers. Lauren Thompson is lovely as Mrs. Darling and Bill Bateman is adorable in his furry disguise as Nana, the Darling's nanny dog.

In a large cast that includes Red Indians as well as pirates, Holly Irwin is adorably simple-minded as Tiger Lilly, the Indian princess, and Don Potter is a hoot as Hook's sidekick, Mr. Smee, although his brogue is too exaggerated to be understood. Barry Ramsey handles the crocodile's antics with skill.

This 35th anniversary production of ''Peter Pan'' has been on the road for just a year, but seems no worse for wear. Mariann Verheyen's imaginative costumes seem fresh and the nursery of the Darling's London House is a Victorian confection, dreamily lit by Natasha Katz.

The curtains painted with scenes of London from the air, as the flying Peter and his little Darlings would see them, are most effective. But designer James Leonard Joy stumbled when it came to Neverland which is too garish in the Las Vegas sense of that word, throbbing with violent colors and cluttered with an overkill of rocks and trees.

For this revival, there have been some dialogue restorations from Sir James Barrie's original play and the transitions into musical numbers have been made less abrupt. The first act still drags and the second act still needs editing, but no one ever claimed this was one of Broadway's great musicals.

The original words and music by Carolyn Leigh and Moose Charlap, at there best in ''I'm Flying,'' with additional lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green and additional music by Jule Styne are serviceable and in the case of Styne's ''Neverland,'' memorable.

If you've never seen ''Peter Pan,'' this production ably directed by Fran Soeder is worth a visit.

MUSCAT, (DEC 15) - An Iranian military delegation arrived here Saturday for talks with senior Omani officials on bilateral relations and issues of mutual concern, it was reported here.

Muscat Radio said the delegation, headed by Brigadier Ali Ghafar, the undersecretary at the Iranian Defence Ministry, comprised the assistant Navy commander for naval operations, the director general of manpower forces and the chief of the war and defence industrialisation.

Since its eight-year war with Iraq ended in August 1988, Iran has sought to improve its relations with Gulf states which had provided Baghdad with huge financial aid during that war.

BEIJING, (DEC 15) - The Beijing Jeep Corporation Ltd. (BJC) increased exports in the 11 months of this year by 12 per cent to 3.8 million dollars compared with the same period last year, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said Saturday.

BJC, a joint venture between China's Beijing Automotive Works and the U.S. firm Chrysler, exported 338 Jeeps during the period out of a total production of 41,000 Cherokees and 2,020 Jeeps, a military style vehicle based on a Soviet design, the official agency said.

Exports went to Thailand, the Netherlands, the Soviet Union and Latin America, it said, adding that BJC officials estimated total exports at 5.5 million dollars by year's end.

BJC spokesman Zhang Cailin had said in October that the company planned to build 41,831 vehicles this year, up from the previous estimate of 40,000, after a 23.3 per cent rise in sales between January and September over the same period the year before.

Total production in 1989 came to 39,310 vehicles.

SANAA, (DEC 15) - Yemeni Foreign Minister Abdel Karim al-Iryani Saturday reaffirmed his country's rejection of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

He said Yemen had called for a peaceful Arab solution to put an end to the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait which has entered its fifth month, the Kuwaiti News Agency (Kuna) reported from the Yemeni capital of Sanaa.

Iryani made his remarks during a meeting here with a delegation of the Kuwaiti People's Congress, which has toured Arab states to muster support for the Kuwait cause. Yemen was the last leg in the tour which had taken them to Syria Lebanon, Jordan, Egypt and Sudan.

Iryani told the delegation that Yemen's stance on the Gulf crisis had been ''misunderstood''.

He accused some news media, whom he did not identify, of casting doubts on Yemen's principled attitude which called for a withdrawal of Iraqi forces from all Kuwaiti territory.

Yemen has sided with Iraq in its current confrontation with the U.S.-spearheaded international coalition which opposed the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait.

It has assailed the deployment of the U.S.-dominated 300,000-strong multinational force in the Gulf.

The Kuwaiti delegation asked the Yemeni foreign minister that his country act to persuade the Iraqi leadership to withdraw its troops from all Kuwaiti territory in compliance with the U.N. Security Council resolutions so as to spare the Arab region the horror of war, Kuna said.

RIYADH, (DEC 15) - Philippines Finance Minister Jesus Estanislao arrived here Saturday night for talks with his Saudi counterpart Mohammad Abal Khail, an official source said.

Informed sources in Riyadh said the talks would focus on a request for Saudi aid to help Manila cope with the Gulf crisis.

Hundreds of thousands of Filipino workers lost their jobs in the Gulf after Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

In a related development, a Filipino medical team of 275 doctors, nurses, dentists, pharmacists and para-medical personnel were expected to arrive late Saturday in Riyadh to help out with developments resulting from the Gulf crisis, informed souerces said.

MOSCOW, (DEC 15) - The Russian Congress has asked the local parliament to draw up legislation under which the Soviet Union's largest republic would create its own KGB security service, TASS news agency said Saturday.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin told the congress the proposed law would put all federal KGB offices in Russia under control of a future Russian KGB.

TASS quoted him as saying KGB head Vladimir Kryuchkov had indicated "that in principle he will not oppose our decision."

Mr. Yeltsin, one of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's fiercest critics, was speaking at the close of a three-week session during which the congress legalized limited private ownership of land in the republic.

Deputies came out in favour of a new federal treaty governing relations between Moscow and the country's 15 constituent republics.

The congress also passed constitutional amendments directing the local parliament to draw up legislation providing for a future Russian president to be elected by universal suffrage from among several candidates.

BAGHDAD, (DEC 15) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on Saturday denounced what he described as the corruption of some Arab kings and princes, whom he said visited Arab and Moslem countries to procure women.

He told a delegation of Islamic leaders visiting Iraq: "You all know that some Arab princes and kings visit Moslem countries to select women."

But he did not name the royals he was criticizing and did not cite the countries they frequented for their reported escapades.

The Iraqi leader added that certain women were meant for the royals while others were designated for their ministers.

"Is that Islam?" Mr. Hussein asked, adding that he was not playing international reformer.

Iraq has been at odds with Saudi Arabia and other Gulf states which have permitted the deployment of multinational forces on their territory to dislodge Baghdad's forces from Kuwait which Iraq invaded on August 2.

DAMASCUS, (DEC 15) - Algerian President Chadli Bendjedid held talks here late Saturday with his Syrian counterpart Hafez al-Assad on the Gulf crisis and regional matters, Syrian television reported.

Mr. Chadli, who arrived here Saturday from Oman, is on the fifth leg of a peace mission aimed at averting war in the Gulf.

The Algerian president is seeking an Arab solution to the Gulf crisis, amid reports that he would try during his tour to set up a summit between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, where U.S. troops have been based since Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The Saudi Press Agency meanwhile reported from Riyadh that Mr. Chadli and King Fahd had exchanged messages while the Algerian leader was overflying Saudi airspace.

But there was still no word in Riyadh whether Mr. Chadli would visit Saudi Arabia, as reported earlier.

The Algerian president, who last visited Damascus in January 1987, has also been to Iraq, Iran and Jordan.

Algerian Foreign Minister Sid Ahmed Ghozali said meanwhile that a dialogue between Iraq and the United States is "urgent and necessary."

The official Algerian APS news agency quoted Mr. Ghozali as telling Algerian journalists aboard Mr. Chadli's plane on Saturday that "a date for opening the dialogue is secondary."

Iraq and the United States have failed to agree on a date for talks.

WASHINGTON, (DEC 15) - The U.S. State Department Saturday advised U.S. nationals not to travel to Mauritania or to leave that country, owing to "unsettled conditions" linked to the Gulf crisis.

In its advisory, the State Department said the U.S. embassy in Nouakchott was prepared to assist all those requesting aid in leaving the country and suggested those choosing to stay there should exercise "caution."

The State Department noted that due to the rupture in diplomatic relations between Senegal and Mauritania, all routes between the two countries have been closed, and that it is impossible to obtain a Senegalese visa in Nouakchott.

Mauritania has taken positions in support of Iraq in the current Gulf crisis.

LIMA (DEC. 17) - The Peruvian Senate Saturday gave the go-ahead for a new currency to replace the inti as the national currency next year, government officials reported.

The nuevo sol, as the currency will be called, will be worth one million intis. It currently costs 570,000 intis to buy a U.S. dollar.

The change is Peru's second in five years. The inti replaced the sol in 1985.

Three years of hyperinflation in Peru have made the inti unmanageable because of the long string of zeros printed on most bills. The nuevo sol, officials said, will simplify bookkeeping across the country.

SOWETO, SOUTH AFRICA - African National Congress delegates attending a consultative conference here unanimously voted Saturday against any moves to have international sanctions against South Africa lifted, an ANC statement said.

The first motion passed by the 1,600 delegates, it indefinitely adjourned any rethink of the ANC's pro-sanctions policy.

ANC President Oliver Tambo, just back from more than 30 years in exile, had on Friday asked the conference to "carefully re-evaluate the advisability of insisting on the retention of sanctions, given new developments in the country and abroad".

(Saturday's vote came as European Community leaders at a summit in Rome decided to lift the ban on fresh investments in South Africa to "encourage" President Frederik de Klerk down the road to democracy, according to Belgian Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens.)

The ANC delegates were meeting in closed session Saturday, the second day of their first consultative gathering inside South Africa in 31 years. Delegates had earlier challenged the veteran leadership over the sanctions policy and the suspension in August of armed struggle as a means of pressuring the white minority government to scrap apartheid and introduce democracy.

The conference is due to end Sunday.

AMMAN, (DEC 15) - Any international settlement to the Gulf crisis must be ratified by an Arab summit, PLO leader Yasser Arafat declared Saturday.

"The problems of Arab society must be resolved by dialogue between Arabs," Mr. Arafat told reporters on his arrival in the Jordanian capital from Baghdad. "An international settlement to the Gulf crisis must therefore by ratified by an Arab summit."

The Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) chairman, backing the official Iraqi position, insisted that a solution to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait must be linked to an overall Middle East settlement.

"No solution can be found without a clear and explicit link between all the crises of the Middle East: the Palestinian question and the Israeli occupation of the Golan and southern Lebanon," he said.

Mr. Arafat met in Baghdad earlier Saturday with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz to review latest developments in the Middle East, the Iraqi News Agency reported.

They discussed the "criminal actions carried out by Israeli authorities against the Palestinian people, and the hostile position adopted by the United States against the Palestinian cause in the (U.N.) Security Council," it said.

A proposed Security Council resolution on the Palestinian issue has been postponed repeatedly amid U.S. opposition to a call in the resolution for an international peace conference on the Middle East.

The United States has sought to avoid forging a link between the Gulf crisis and the long-standing Palestinian issue, as demanded by Baghdad and the PLO.

Mr. Arafat was expected to hold talks with King Hussein during his visit here. The two leaders, along with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Yemeni Vice President Ali Salem al-Beid, held a mini-summit in Baghdad on December 4.

CAIRO, (DEC 15) - Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak Saturday urged Iraq to indicate that it is willing to hold talks with the United States on ways to end the Gulf crisis peacefully.

''The choice has to become very clear to the Iraqi leadership,'' Mubarak said at the opening of the new parliament here.

''Will it side with peace and reconciliation with their brotherly peoples or will it attempt to gain time to continue the illegal situation that has emerged as a result of the invasion (of Kuwait)?'' he asked.

The Egyptian head of state noted that more should be done to resolve the Palestinian problem.

Mubarak urged the deputies to work on economic reforms leading to the privatisation of state-owned companies.

He thanked the U.S. and Gulf states for scrapping billions of dollars of debts Egypt had owed to them as a reward for Cairo's stance against the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

BELGRADE, (DEC 15) - Albanian troops were in control of main cities Saturday after three days of violent rioting left 20 people injured and caused more than two million dollars worth of damage, official sources said.

An Albanian journalist reached by telephone in Tirana said tanks and armored cars were deployed in the industrial city of Elbasan in the center of the country, as well as in Shkoder in the north and Kavaje and Durres in the west.

Albanian television Friday showed pictures of extensive damage to Elbasan, the country's third largest city with 81,000 residents, where state radio said "hooligans manipulated children aged 10 to 14, forcing them to be accomplices in their horrible crimes."

In the capital, Tirana, the situation was calm Saturday though the Albanian journalist said soldiers had taken up positions around the radio and television center.

Both the Albanian press and independent sources said rioters in the provincial cities had looted stores but had also aimed at symbols of what is Europe's last hard-line communist regime -- attacking local Communist Party headquaters radio stations and town halls.

The Democratic Party, the country's new and so far only opposition party -- it was formed Wednesday -- issued a new appeal for calm on television Friday night, and Saturday said it supported the measues taken by the government to control the situation, according to a party advisor, economist Gramoz Pashko, who was contacted by telephone.

And for the first time in 40 years, a priest was authorized to speak on Tirana radio to back the appeal for an end to the trouble.

Monsignor Simon Jubani, the archbishop of Shkoder who was freed in 1989 after 22 years in prison, said in a brief statement that "such acts of vandalism go against the will of God."

An Albanian contacted by Agence France-Presse said the fact the archbishop was given air time was considered an amazing developement.

No foreign journalists have been allowed into the country since the trouble broke out a week ago.

In Elbasan, buildings were burned down, including several book stores, and rioters attacked the headquarters of the Communist Party and set four vehicles on fire, according to the Albanian news agency ATA, monitored here.

It said six members of the security forces were injured in the clashes.

Durres, 60 kilometers (37.5 miles) west of Tirana, was also hit by violent demonstrations and many stores were looted there.

BANGKOK, (DEC 15) - A senior official of Burma's military government here on an official visit has warned foreign powers against meddling in Burma's internal affairs, a senior Thai military official said Saturday.

Lieutenant General Than Shwe, the State Law and Order Restoration Council (SLORC) Vice-Chairman and Burmese army chief-of-staff, met with Thai Supreme Commander General Sonthorn Kongsompong before returning home Saturday.

The Burmese leader said Rangoon does not "look favourably towards any foreign power interfering in Burma's internal affairs."

"They (the Burmese officials) also requested that their internal affairs should be left to their concern, and foreign powers should not interfere in Burma's internal affairs, because outsiders do not know the intricate details of Burmese affairs," Gen. Sunthorn said after the meeting.

Gen. Sunthorn said the purpose of the high-level meeting between the Thai and Burmese military was to "review issues of mutual concern we have agreed upon" since Thailand first established relations with the SLORC in December 1988 -- three months after the Burmese military put down a student-led, pro-democracy movement in Burma.

Border and internal security were expected to be high on the agenda of the Thai-Burmese talks, in view of the Burmese authorities' recent closure of the border trading point at Myawadi following a bomb explosion near the customs checkpoint a fortnight ago, observers here said.

The Burmese delegation was here also to attend the Asian Defence Services Exhibition and Conference exhibition featuring new defence technology.

ABU DHABI, (DEC 15) - More banks in the United Arab Emirates should merge to strengthen their standing in the face of international financial blocs, the UAE Central Bank said in a report published here Saturday.

The bank's deputy governor, Sheikh Mohammad bin Sultan al-Dahiri, told the daily Al-Bayan that while such mergers were not urgently needed, given the banks' strength, they were highly desirable because of the international banking climate.

Mr. Dahiri said international banking developments and mergers accompanying the emergence of economic blocs "constitute a good reason for mergers among local banks."

"The 1990's will be a decade of large bank units," he predicted. "So UAE banks have to consolidate their position if they want a place in the international banking arena."

Several UAE banks were forced to merge in 1985 to head off a financial crisis caused by accumulating non-performing debts.

The Central Bank has blamed the banks for the crisis, saying they were too eager to provide loans on which debtors later defaulted during the oil boom of the late 1970's.

Mr. Dahiri said the banks had overcome the bad debt problem and their performance in 1990 was expected to be as good as that of 1989.

"The commercial banks are expected to make profits in 1990 similar to those made in 1989," he said.

Most of the country's 40 banks made record profits in 1989, resulting from an end of the eight-year Iran-Iraq war, which was halted by a U.N.-brokered cease-fire in August 1988.

AMMAN, (DEC 15) - Yassir Arafat, the Palestine Liberation Organisation (Plo) chairman, arrived here Saturday for talks with Jordan's King Hussein on fresh diplomatic efforts to settle the Gulf crisis.

In an arrival statement, Arafat said Arab efforts by himself, Algerian President Chadli Benjedid and King Hussein were aimed at ''opening an Arab-Arab dialogue that would solve the crisis.''

The Plo leader called for an international Middle East peace conference on Palestine and attacked the United States for ''exerting pressure on Security Council members to dilute a resolution aimed at securing protection for Palestinians in the occupied territories''.

Arafat was to take part in a one-week cultural event here to mark the third anniversary of the Palestinian intifada against Israeli rule in the occupied territories.

ST. LOUIS (DEC. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Boatmen's Bancshares, Inc. (NASDAQ: BOAT) reached an agreement with the Resolution Trust Corporation to assume the deposit liabilities of Community Federal Savings & Loan, the largest thrift institution in the St. Louis area.

Boatmen's will purchase selected assets including certain investments and loans. All purchased loans are subject to put provisions at Boatmen's option, which would return unwanted loans to the RTC. Accordingly, Boatmen's has no asset risk exposure. In a unique feature, Boatmen's will finance the value of the one-to-four-family mortgage portfolio for the RTC for approximately 90 days. The RTC will then repurchase this portfolio from Boatmen's at book value.

Boatmen's has a call to acquire Community Federal's physical branches and related equipment, the number to be determined within the next 60 days.

"This transaction, which is indicative of opportunities being presented to well capitalized, profitable banking organizations like Boatmen's, will contribute to net income in 1991," Andrew B. Craig, III, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Boatmen's Bancshares, stressed. "It has all of the attributes of an intra-market acquisition and will provide further momentum to our retail business thrust."

Under the agreement, the bank holding company will pay a premium of $27.1 million for Community Federal's deposits, which currently total $2.2 billion. The premium will be amortized over five years.

The equity/asset ratio and risk based capital/assets ratio of Boatmen's Bancshares will decline temporarily. However, after the asset/liability mix has been adjusted, they will approximate current levels of 7.5 percent and 13 percent, respectively.

The transaction was closed Friday evening and all the former Community Federal branches opened for business Saturday morning under the Boatmen's name.

Boatmen's Bancshares, with pro-forma assets of $17 billion, is the largest bank holding company in Missouri. It has 31 full-service banks and more than 200 locations in Missouri, Illinois and Tennessee, mortgage and insurance companies and a credit card bank in Delaware. Boatmen's also ranks among the top providers of trust services in the nation, with nearly $25 billion under management.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 14) UPI - Saying the $50 billion A-12 Avenger aircraft project is in ''serious trouble,'' Defense Secretary Dick Cheney gave the Navy three weeks Friday to show why the Pentagon should continue the program rather than cancel it.

Cheney told Congress in April that development of the carrier-based attack plane was on time and within budget, but was embarrassed later when contractors said it was $1 billion over budget and more than a year behind schedule.

The controversy, which was detailed in a Defense Department report released last month, has led to the resignation of the fourth-highest ranking Pentagon official, and has resulted in the firing of one senior Navy officer and the censure and reassignment of two others.

In a memo Friday to Navy Secretary Lawrence Garrett, Cheney said the ''A-12 program is in serious trouble. The apparent schedule slippage, cost growth, and management deficiencies in this program are intolerable.''

''I direct you to show cause by Jan. 4, 1991, why the Department should not terminate the A-12 program and pursue other alternatives,'' Cheney wrote.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., chairman of House Government Operations Committee and one of most vocal defense contracting critics on Capitol Hill, applauded Cheney's move, but said problems with the A-12 were merely ''the tip of the iceberg.''

''I hope we will no look at other weapons systems as well,'' Conyers said. ''At the Pentagon, problems have been swept under the rug while airplanes crash and contractors reap unearned billions.''

Under development by General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas, the A-12 is designed to be a radar-evading replacement for the aging A-6 attack bomber now carried by aircraft carriers. The initial contract was for about $4.3 billion and the plane was to get its first flight this year.

Currently, the aircraft is not expected to fly until next year at the earliest.

The program is undergoing a review by Deputy Defense Secretary Donald Atwood, and earlier this week, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams ruled out any additional disciplinary actions in connection with the program.

The Justice Department also said it was investigating whether money went to contractors for incomplete work.

The Pentagon report said the Navy had information showing the plane experienced cost and schedule overruns, but those affilitated with the project deemed the findings inconclusive and failed to place enough emphasis on them in meetings with top officials, including Cheney.

Garrett told a congressional panel this week that at the Pentagon ''we have developed over many years a (procurement) system that is almost adversarial, and at the same time it creates advocacy. It is very hard to push bad news up to the top.''

The controversy created a shakeup at the Pentagon as John Betti, undersecretary of defense for acquisition, resigned. Betti was in charge of the Defense Department's entire $160 billion military procurement budget.

Also, Vice Adm. Richard Gentz, head of the Naval Air Systems Command, was ordered to retire. Rear. Adm. John Calvert, the A-12 program executive, and Capt. Lawrence Elberfeld, the program manager, were censured and will be reassigned.

BALTIMORE (DEC. 15) UPI - The Baltimore Orioles elected not to exercise their option on Ron Kittle's contract, freeing the right-handed power hitter to go elsewhere.

Kittle, who acts as his own agent, must contact the Major League Players Association in order to become a free agent.

''With the addition of Dwight Evans, we wouldn't be able to give Kittle the same opporunities he had,'' Orioles' General Manager Roland Hemond said Friday. ''Doing this is basically like trading Kittle for Evans.

''In the spring, Frank (Robinson, manager) would find it difficult to give everybody the necessary at-bats to get ready.''

Kittle's contract pays about $600,000 for 1991, a bargain in today's free-agent market. The Orioles obtained Kittle from the Chicago White Sox in a mid-season trade for outfielder Phil Bradley.

The Orioles also made a minor-league trade Friday, sending right- handed pitcher Mickey Weston to the Toronto Blue Jays for left-hander Paul Kilgus.

Kilgus, 28, will be assigned to the Class AAA Rochester Red Wings, and Weston will go to the Class AA Knoxville roster because Toronto has no space at Class AAA Syracuse.

Kilgus, 20-32 lifetime with the Texas Rangers and Chicago Cubs, was 0-0 with a 6.06 ERA for the Blue Jays last season. He was 6-8 with a 2. 84 ERA with Syracuse. He has been a starter and reliever.

Weston was 11-1 with a 1.98 ERA for the Red Wings, but was 7 2-3 innings short of qualifying for the ERA title.

It appears that veteran left-handed reliever Joe Price will be playing elsewhere next season.

Price, 3-4 with a 3.58 ERA in 50 Orioles appearances in 1990, was not offered arbitration by the team. Hemond said the chances of re-signing him are slim.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 15) UPI - The Los Angeles Dodgers signed new-look free agent outfielder Brett Butler to a 3-year $10 million contract according to a published report Friday.

Butler, an eight-year veteran, told the Los Angeles Times he had become the Dodgers' third free-agent signing of the off-season, but team officials would not confirm the pact late Friday.

''Yes, sir, I am now signed with the Dodgers,'' Butler told the LA Times from his home in Atlanta. ''I can't tell you how happy I am.''

On Nov. 8, Los Angeles signed Darryl Strawberry and at baseball's winter meetings earlier this month, they signed free agent pitcher Kevin Gross.

Butler batted .309 with 44 RBI and 51 stolen bases for the San Francisco Giants last season. He was granted free agency following the agreement between the Players Association and major league owners which resolved the collusion issue.

Butler, 33, began his career in 1981 with the Atlanta Braves before he was traded to the Cleveland Indians after the 1983 season in a deal that sent Len Barker to Cleveland.

Butler played for four seasons with the Indians, enjoying his best year in 1985 with a .311 average, 184 hits, 28 doubles, and 14 triples.

(DEC. 15) UPI - The New York Rangers are still proving to themselves that they can win on the road. Friday night, they proved it to the Vancouver Canucks.

After dropping the first two games of a four-game road trip, the Rangers have bounced back with a pair of victories, the most recent a 5- 3 triumph over Vancouver.

''We wanted to finish at .500 at least on the road, so it was important to come back and finish (the trip) off with a pair of wins,'' said Brian Leetch, who led the Ranger charge Friday night with the tying goal and a pair of assists.

Rangers Coach Roger Neilson was just relieved to be going home, after salvaging the trip with a pair of wins.

''The last few games we haven't been keeping the goals down like I would like, but as long as we are getting the points I'm not too worried,'' Neilson said.

Brian Mullen clinched the win for the Rangers on a right wing dash, culminating with a blast from 40 feet out that beat Canucks netminder Kirk McLean to the far side at 14:38 of the third period. The goal was Mullen's ninth of the season.

Mullen credited his linemates, John Ogrodnick and Kelly Kisio, saying the trio has been creating numerous chances lately.

''Our whole line has played well, and if we all keep getting chances like we have been, we'll keep putting them in,'' Mullen said. ''But the main thing was to finish the trip with a win.''

Leetch, the games first star, tied the game with his ninth when he blasted a shot from the left point that went through Kirk McLean's legs at 14:06 of the third.

Thirty-one seconds before Leetch's goal, Dan Quinn gave Vancouver a 3-2 lead with his third of the year at 13:35 of the third, breaking a 25-game goaless streak.

Garry Valk notched his second goal of the game and eighth of the season, converting a rebound at the edge of the Rangers crease through Rangers goaltender John Vanbiesbrouck's legs at 0:36 of the third to tie the score 2-2.

An errant pass from Vanbiesbrouck led directly to the opening goal by Valk at 2:42 of the first period. When Lindy Ruff was unable to corral the pass, Valk pounced on the loose puck, picked his spot 12 feet out and beat Vanbiesbrouck low to the stick side.

After controlling the puck for the better part of a minute, the Rangers power play, seventh in the NHL, connected when Bernie Nicholls one-timed his 13th past Kirk McLean from the left faceoff circle at 6:48 of the first period.

Ray Sheppard gave the Rangers a 2-1 lead at 1:41 of the second with an unassisted marker when he deked McLean to the ice before lifting the puck high over the prone keeper for his 13th of the season. Sheppard had capitalized on a Jyrki Lumme turnover in the Vancouver zone.

In what appeared to be the tying goal from a scramble in the Rangers' goalcrease, referee Ron Hogarth ruled the puck was gloved in, despite vehement protests from the Canucks.

John Ogrodnick scored an empty-net goal for the Rangers with one second lefft in the game for the final score.

In the only other NHL game, Pittsburgh nipped Buffalo 4-3.

Penguins 4, Sabres 3

At Buffalo, Joe Mullen scored the winning goal with 13:03 left, leading Pittsburgh. Mullen tipped Paul Stanton's point shot past goaltender Clint Malarchuk, who replaced Daren Puppa after one period. Buffalo's Dave Andreychuk tied it 3-3 with a power-play goal at 11:15 of the second.

(DEC. 15) UPI - Boston Celtics rookie Dee Brown used his speed and shooting Friday night to pump some new life into an old rivalry.

The 6-foot-1 point guard came off the bench to score 12 points and effectively harass Detroit's backcourt stars as the Celtics played non- stop up-tempo basketball in a 108-100 victory over the NBA's defending champions. The Pistons have lost six of their last seven games.

''Containing their guards was the No. 1 priority,'' explained Brown, who also had six assists in his 24 minuts. ''Everything else was icing on the cake. I think I pretty much held my own against Isiah (Thomas).''

Kevin McHale scored 24 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to pace the Celtics, who had seven players in double figures.

The Pistons, who have just one victory in December, are 14-8 for the season and 6-7 on the road.

''We're out of sync, guys are trying to win it themselves,'' said Detroit coach Chuck Daly. ''We'll have to get over that to beat a good team on the road.''

The Pistons, who supplanted Boston three years ago as the Eastern Conference's premiere team, trailed by 17 points midway through the third quarter but used an 18-3 fourth-quarter run to pull within 93-92. Brian Shaw then hit a 12-foot jumper off a loose ball and set up McHale on a fast-break layin for a 97-92 lead with 4:42 remaining.

Detroit's John Salley hit a driving layup at 3:59 but Larry Bird responded with a 3-pointer 23 seconds later and Detroit was never again closer than five points.

''We were right there,'' said Daly. ''If we got the lead then, we might have won, but it didn't happen.''

For Boston, Bird and Reggie Lewis scored 16 apiece, Shaw had 14, Brown and Robert Parish had 12 each and Kevin Gamble 10. Boston improved its record to 18-4, second-best in the league, behind only 19-2 Portland.

''The exciting thing about this team is that we get better as we go along,'' said McHale.

Detroit was without forward James Edwards, sidelined due to a pulled ribcage muscle.

Thomas led the Pistons' offense with 26 points, despite sitting out the final minutes after falling heavily on his back. Joe Dumars had 18 points and Mark Aguirre, starting in place of Edwards, added 13. Dennis Rodman had a game-high 15 rebounds.

The Celtics held a 32-29 edge early in the second quarter when they started a 15-4 surge that featured seven points by Bird on a driving layup, a 3-pointer and a tough rebound in traffic and layin. Brown's jumper from the right corner with 4:18 to go in the half provided a 47- 33 Boston advantage.

In the third quarter, Boston gradually built its lead up to 17 points, Gamble hitting a 17-foot jumper from the right side for a 72-55 lead at 6:38.

Detroit's fourth-quarter comeback was led by William Bedford, who had not played in the first half. Bedford scored 10 of his 12 points points during the 18-3 spurt.

The Celtics have won 18 of their last 19 regular-season games against the Pistons at Boston Garden.

In other games, Washington downed Houston 106-93, Philadelphia topped Miami 95-92, Chicago blasted the Los Angeles Clippers 128-88, San Antonio overtimed Cleveland 116-106, and Portland edged Dallas 106-104.

Bullets 106, Rockets 93

At Landover, Md., Darrell Walker's triple-double - a season-high 22 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists - paced Washington to its fourth straight home win even though Bernard King, the league's third-leading scorer with a 29.5 points per game average, scored only 13 points and sank only five of 18 field goal tries. Akeem Olajuwon led Houston with 22 points, 14 in the second half.

76ers 95, Heat 92

At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley scored 35 points and grabbed 15 rebounds to help send Miami to its sixth straight loss. Rony Seiklay led the Heat with 27 points and Kevin Edwards added 23. Miami is 0-8 against the 76ers in its three years in the league. Hersey Hawkins put Philadelphia ahead for good at 85-83.

Bulls 128, Clippers 88

At Chicago, Scottie Pippen scored 10 of his 22 points during a decisive second-quarter run to propel the Bulls. Los Angeles has lost 14 straight games in Chicago Stadium. The last time the Clippers won there was Jan. 26, 1979, when they were based in San Diego. Jeff Martin led Los Angeles with 22 points.

Spurs 116, Cavs 106 (OT)

At Richfield, Ohio, Willie Anderson tied the game on a spinning jump shot with less than a minute left in regulation, then scored five of the first seven points in overtime for San Antonio. Cleveland was led by 28 points from Larry Nance, and 22 points and 11 rebounds from Brad Daugherty.

Blazers 106, Mavericks 104

At Portland, Ore., Clyde Drexler scored 29 points, including a breakaway dunk that gave the Trail Blazers a 4-point lead with less than a minute left. Dallas could have taken the lead with a minute left in the game, but Derek Harper's desperate 28-foot, 3-point attempt as the shot clock was winding down hit the back of the rim.

MOSCOW (DEC. 15) UPI - A planned visit to Moscow by Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati was canceled at the last minute Saturday. No new date for the trip was announced.

Soviet Foriegn Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said the visit was postponed because of logistical problems connected with the flurry of diplomatic activity concerning the Gulf crisis.

''There has been very vigorous diplomatic activity, many visits,'' Churkin said. ''They decided maybe it is not yet time, maybe it would be better to meet later.''

Velayati had been scheduled to arrive in Moscow Saturday for two days of talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and other officials.

Shevardnadze himself returned to Moscow late Friday night after talks in the United States and Turkey focusing on the Gulf crisis, and early Saturday he met with his South Korean counterpart who was in Moscow with South Korean President Roe Tae Woo.

BANGKOK (DEC. 15) UPI - Thailand will order a cutback in U.S. airlines flying to Thai destinations through Asia and increase its own flights to Asian points due to an escalating aviation dispute with the United States, aviation officials said.

Flights to Thailand by U.S. carriers will be reduced from 38 per week to 28 per week at the end of the winter high season in March, Sribhumi Suhanetr, permanent secretary of the Transport and Communications Ministry, told reporters Friday evening.

Sribhumi said official notification will be given to the U.S. government next week.

He said the government-owned Thai Airways International would add seven flights per week to the Bangkok-Tokyo route and three additional flights per week on the Bangkok-Taipei route, two of the main connecting legs for passengers from the United States.

The changes followed the collapse of negotiations over a new air agreement between Thailand and the United States and the expiration of the existing agreement on Nov. 3.

Officials said the cutbacks would affect four major U.S. airlines flying to Thailand - Delta Airlines, Northwest Airlines, Federal Express and United Airlines.

Thailand has demanded an entirely new air agreement which Thai officials said should fix an equal number of flights for each country. The United States has pressed for continuation of the previous agreement which allows U.S. airlines to increase their flights to Thailand according to market conditions.

Thai flights to the United States have generally not been profitable, and U.S. carriers have made profits on its Thai flights by carrying passengers headed for other major Asian cities such as Tokyo.

Snow fell from the west coast to New England Saturday and violent winds pounded the Rockies while a winter storm blanketed the Plains and Midwest with several inches of snow and gale warnings were up for the Atlantic coast.

Strong winds that topped 90 mph in parts of Colorado eased Saturday but left damaged buildings in their wake in Boulder and Golden as snow advisories went up as another storm took aim on the state.

Storms also dumped snow on Utah, Idaho, New Mexico and Oregon as another area of rain and snow headed toward the Pacific coast soaking northern California and other areas.

Another storm system gathered strength in Iowa and moved northeast toward the Great Lakes and New England prompting winter weather advisories in several states including Pennsylvania and New York.

Snow fell during the night over southern Minnesota and Michigan and snow advisories were posted across the Midwest while light snow and drizzle fell over Chicago and freezing rain and sleet hit Indiana.

The storm was expected to save its greatest punch for New England where the residents were preparing for first significant snow of the season.

Wet weather stretched along most of the East coast and gale warnings were in effect for waters along the Atlantic coast from Washington, D.C. , northward.

Warm, moist weather covered much of the South and fog developed along the Gulf coast, socking in Baton Rouge, La., and parts of Texas.

MOSCOW (DEC. 15) UPI - South Korean President Roh Tae Woo said Saturday he and Mikhail Gorbachev had agreed to put ''unhappy incidents'' like the Korean War and the downing of a Korean jetliner behind them as the two countries form closer relations.

Roh, wrapping up a three-day visit to Moscow that solidified diplomatic relations restored earlier this year, said the new ties would be good for both countries and would also hopefully help in the process of the reunification of Korea.

''Few nations on Earth suffered as much pain and hardship under the Cold War as the Korean people,'' Roh said. ''Under the dictates of the Cold War, the nation and the territory had to be divided and we had to suffer millions of casualties.

''The rapid improvement in our bilateral relations (with the Soviet Union) indicates that an important development is taking place in the Cold War setting on the Korean peninsula.''

Roh said he hoped that the Soviet Union's relations with North Korea, which it backed in the Korean War and a major recipient of Soviet aid, would not suffer because of the improving Soviet-South Korean relations.

He added that his summit with Gorbachev was yet another indication of the major changes in the world and a chance to put the confrontations of the past behind them.

''During the past years there were times when the Soviet Union led one camp opposed to the Western camp in the Cold War ... that generated undesired and unhappy incidents and events including the Korean War and the incident with the airliner of the South Korean KAL airliner,'' Roh said, referring to the downing of KAL Flight 007 by Soviet fighters on Sept. 1, 1983, killing 269 people.

''At the summit meeting with President Gorbachev we promised each other that everything that happened in the past will be a thing of the past, and we will start a new page, a new chapter in the history of our bilateral realtions,'' Roh said. ''We will join our efforts to cooperate in advancing to a brighter future.''

An agreement signed by Roh and Gorbachev Friday pledged trade and economic cooperation between the economically crippled Soviet Union and South Korea, now an economic powerhouse in Asia.

Roh said the two countries' trade level of $1 billion this year could rise as high as $18 billion by the mid-1990s.

The South Korean ministers of trade and industry, and science and technology, were part of Roh's delegation to Moscow along with leading business representatives from Seoul.

Roh also met Russian republic leader Boris Yeltsin Saturday before leaving for a visit to Leningrad, the official Tass news agency said.

Gorbachev and Roh had a surprise meeting in San Francisco six months ago, and their two governments announced Sept. 30 that they would establish diplomatic relations.

TIRANA, ALBANIA (DEC. 15) UPI - The embattled Marxist regime of Albania Saturday asked citizens to help security forces curb anti-government violence by ''ill-doers'' that has rocked major towns, leaving buildings and vehicles damaged or destroyed and at least 16 people injured.

There were no immediate reports of new outbreaks of violence on Saturday. States of emergency remained in effect in at least five towns, meaning entry and exit was prohibited by the military, police sources said.

The unrest erupted after President Ramiz Alia agreed to permit independent political parties as part of a program of gradually loosening the bonds of 45 years of hard-line Marxist rule. The decision announced on Monday followed three days of anti-government student demonstrations for greater democracy.

The appeal for popular support for the security forces was issued Friday night by Justice Minister Enver Halili on state-run television after daylong rioting in Kavaja, Elbasan, Durres and Saranda that followed anti-government protests by thousands of workers.

''I believe it is in the interests of the widest masses of people that I request them to help police in their actions to overcome the present situation '' Halili said.

Halili said ''dark forces'' were seeking to sabotage the program of gradual democratic liberalization implemented in the only Stalinist- style police state to survive the anti-Marxist wave that toppled communist regimes across Eastern Europe in 1989.

Describing some of the trouble on Friday, the official Albanian Telegraphic Agency on Saturday said: ''Major gatherings of ill-doers occurred in Elbasan. Through their vandalism they broke shop windows and plundered the people's wealth.''

Rioters torched shops and tried to storm the headquarters of the Elbasan committee of President Ramiz Alia's Albanian Party of Labor, which has ruled the tiny Balkan nation of 3.2 million with an iron hand for 45 years of self-imposed isolation, ATA said.

Security forces moved against the rioters after they ignored warnings to disperse, it said, and ''several thieves and ill-doers were arrested. Six persons from the forces of order were wounded by stones.''

Two of the injured were hospitalized, including the police chief of Elbasan, a steel-making center, 30 miles southeast of Tirana, ATA said.

Witnesses and police sources said security forces were backed by armored vehicles and water cannon in Elbasan and Kavaja, an industrial town 20 miles southwest of Tirana.

ATA said workers joined police and troops to drive off protesters who tried to gather in the center of Durres, Albania's main Aegean Sea port, 20 miles west of Tirana.

It said the ''malevolent elements'' broke shop windows as they dispersed.

Shkoder, 50 miles north of Tirana, was calm on Friday, a day after clashes between rioters and security forces left at least 10 people injured, including the police chief, the official media and sources said.

ROME (DEC. 15) UPI - The 12-nation European Community Saturday abolished a 4-year-old ban on new investments in South Africa in order to recognize reforms by President Frederik de Klerk, officials said.

The decision was taken on the final day of a two-day summit of EC leaders.

''We recognized the huge changes that have taken place,'' said John Major, the new British prime minister. ''We lifted the investment ban imposed in 1986.''

Britain has long argued for an end to the EC investment ban, and had already itself begun new investments in South Africa.

Other EC sanctions on South Africa apparently remain intact. They include a ban on imports of gold and steel from South Africa, and a prohibition on the trading of South African coins.

Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, who holds the rotating EC presidency, said the decision ''takes note of developments that have occurred'' in South Africa in the past year.

''It is certain that some progress has been made,'' he said. ''We have to send out some kind of encouragement, but there must be a full return to normality. In particular, the laws on apartheid have to be abrogated.''

(DEC. 15) UPI - Iraq Saturday rejected a U.S. proposal that Secretary of State James Baker meet with President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad Jan. 3, intensifying a deadlock over the planned high-level meeting.

Saddam had wanted Baker to come to Baghdad Jan. 12, but Washington rejected that date as falling too close to the U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to withdraw its troops from Kuwait or face the possibility of military force.

''Iraq alone sets the proper appointments for its president to meet foreign officials,'' the official Iraqi news agency INA quoted an official from the ruling Revolutionary Command Council as saying Saturday.

Two Republican senators said in Washington Friday that President Bush may be willing to forgo the high level Iraq-U.S. meetings if the two countries could not agree on mutually acceptable dates.

Bush has refused to budge on his dates proffered for a proposed meeting in Baghdad between Baker and Saddam.

The talks have been billed as a last chance to avert war before the Jan. 15 deadline set by the U.N. Security Council for Iraq's unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait, which was invaded by Saddam's forces Aug. 2.

Meanwhile, the last group of former U.S. hostages evacuated from Iraq and Kuwait returned to U.S. soil Friday.

Thirty-eight U.S. citizens and 10 Canadians received a hero's welcome on their arrival at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., near Washington aboard a flight from Frankfurt, Germany.

Among the last planeload of evacuees were the U.S. Ambassador to Kuwait Nathaniel Howell and several other diplomats who kept the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait city open for four months in defiance of Iraqi orders to close it.

Howell said he locked the gate, left the garrison flag flying over the compound, and vowed it will be reopened.

''Make no mistake, the only industry in Kuwait now is war,'' Howell said. He described Iraqi troops as digging entrenchments in Kuwait and giving no sign they are going to pull out.

Baker was on hand to greet the former hostages, some of whom were detained as ''human shields'' at key sites around Iraq to deter an attack by a U.S.-led multinational force deployed in the gulf region.

''Your ordeal is over, but the ordeal of the Kuwaiti people continues,'' Baker told the evacuees, who stepped off a giant military transport plane into a clear and cold December afternoon before making their way to the warm embrace of family and friends gathered at the air base.

Baker described Saddam as an international outlaw and ''a vicious and capricious dictator.''

Heading off for a weekend retreat to Camp David, Md., Bush said the United States has suggested 15 different dates for Baker trip, and that Iraq has come back with only one date, Jan. 12, which the administration says is too close to the Jan. 15 deadline.

''That deadline is real,'' Bush insisted Friday. ''In offering to go the extra mile for peace ... I did not offer to be a party to Saddam Hussein's manipulation.''

A planned session between Bush and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz in Washington, proposed for Dec. 17, is tied to both meetings being scheduled.

Further dampening the outlook for a peaceful resolution to the crisis, CIA chief William Webster said U.S. intelligence experts have concluded Saddam will not withdraw his troops from Kuwait until convinced he ''is in peril of imminent military attack.''

In an interview published Saturday in The Washington Post, Webster said Saddam is expected to try to stretch out the crisis and will continue to believe he can prevail ''until the first shell is lobbed over him.''

In Turkey Friday, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said no guarantees could be given to Iraq that it would remain territorially intact when the Gulf crisis ended.

Shevardnadze, who was speaking at a press conference after talks with Turkish leaders, said Iraq's territorial integrity could have been guaranteed if it had pulled its troops out of Kuwait peacefully, but ''now there is no such thing as a guarantee.''

Turkey has expressed fears that Iraq's oil-rich territories in the northern provinces of Mosul and Kirkuk could fall into rebel Iraqi Kurdish hands if the Baghdad government suffered a military defeat and collapsed as a result of the gulf crisis.

Also Friday, Algerian President Chadli Benjedid held a second round of talks Friday in Tehran with Iranian President Hojatoleslam Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani on the gulf crisis, Tehran Radio reported.

Benjedid, one of the few Arab leaders on speaking terms with the leaderships of both Iraq and Saudi Arabia, is touring the Middle East on a gulf mediation effort.

The last evacuation flight from Baghdad Thursday carried 96 people to Frankfurt, but about half of them were foreign nationals who chose to remain in Europe.

The final flight means that about 2,550 Americans were airlifted out of Iraq aboard 15 chartered flights since early August. No more flights are planned, even if some of the remaining U.S. citizens should choose to leave Iraq or Kuwait, since regular commercial flights are now available to Amman.

Those flights are permitted under the United Nations economic embargo because they are defined as humanitarian in nature.

Another approximately 800 Americans made it out of Kuwait and Iraq on their own, sometimes on perilous journeys through uncharted desert country.

CHICAGO (DEC. 15) UPI - The board of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange has voted to cut its budget but is opposed to a plan to lower its trading fees.

Facing months of declining trading volume and a petition drive to halve each round-turn transaction fee, the board Friday approved freezing salaries of officers and using attrition to cut 52 jobs. There are about 950 people employed at the second largest futures exchange in the world.

The Merc board told members in letter it would limit next year's budget to less spending that this year, although it did not specify a dollar amount.

The board went on record as being unanimously opposed to a referendum that will go before members Jan. 24 to cut the 50-cent round-turn transaction fee to 25 cents. The board said cutting the fee would undermine its ability to operate the exchange prudently.

''There is no free lunch here. A reduction in exchange revenue necessarily means a reduction in exchange services, initiatives and strength,'' the board said.

However, veteran currency trader Douglas Bragan, who brought the petition, said the fee cut would force ''responsibility on an exchange whose budget is totally out of control.''

Bragan also criticized the cut of 52 employees, saying it did not reach ''top-heavy staff.''

BEIJING (DEC. 15) UPI - City authorities tried and executed sixteen offenders recently for unspecified ''severe criminal acts,'' an official newspaper said Saturday.

The death sentences were handed down by the Beijing Intermediate Court and promptly carried out during the week of Dec. 11-15, the Beijing Evening News reported.

The state-run daily said 12 of those put to death were repeat offenders, some of them former inmates at ''rehabilitation through labor'' prisons.

Under Chinese law, police may send minor criminal offenders to such prisons for up to three years without a formal trial.

Aside from a terse statement that all 16 of the accused ''committed severe criminal acts deserving the death sentence,'' there were no details given as to the nature of their crimes.

Hundreds have been executed this year in China's relentless ''hit hard'' anti-crime campaign and a drive to wipe out the ''six evils'' - prostitution, selling women and children, narcotics, susperstition, gambling and pornography.

The death sentence in China is carried out with a bullet to the back of the neck.

CLEVELAND, TX (DEC. 15) UPI - A helicopter that was flying to port for shipment to U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia crashed in heavy, fog-shrouded Texas brushland, killing all three National Guard members aboard, officials said Saturday.

Maj. Mike Milner of Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., said the helicopter was one of a group of 12 that left Jefferson City, Mo., Friday morning for the Port of Houston and deployment to the Middle East.

Two men and a woman - Missouri National Guard personnel mobilized for Operation Desert Shield - were aboard the huge UH-1 Huey helicopter.

Liberty County sheriff's officers said the weather in the crash area near Cleveland was very foggy at the time.

Sheriff's deputies quoted witnesses as saying it sounded as though the chopper was having engine trouble just before it went down, about 400 yards from the rural Tarkington Fire Station.

A spokesman at the fire station said the accident happened around 7 p.m., but because of the almost inaccessible location, the wreckage was not found until about 4 a.m. He described the crash site as ''in the middle of a half-acre patch of heavy briars'' on the edge of Texas's Big Thicket area.

The spokesman said the three soldiers were pronounced dead, and the bodies were taken to a funeral home in Cleveland.

Deputy Sheriff Don Shawberger said the crew may have been trying to locate an airport to land but became lost in fog.

Army and Federal Aviation Administration investigators were to probe the crash.

ROME (DEC. 15) UPI - The 12-nation European Community launched two landmark constitutional conventions Saturday with goals of a common currency, an EC defense role and a ''single voice'' in foreign policy.

''Not every EC summit deserves to be called historic, but I am convinced this one has achieved a major milestone in European policy,'' German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said at the close of a two-day meeting of EC leaders.

The summit, marking the debut of new British Prime Minister John Major, lacked the antagonistic fireworks common when Margaret Thatcher was Britain's leader. She fell from power last month over her strident opposition to EC integration.

''The atmosphere of this summit was extremely good, extremely positive,'' Major said. ''We intend to be wholeheartedly engaged in the process of building, shaping and developing Europe.''

Sharp differences still remain, however, including Britain's opposition to a single European currency.

Besides cementing closer European ties, the EC leaders addressed a wide range of international issues in the summit's final communique.

They lifted a 4-year-old ban on new investments in South Africa to reward the ''significant'' reforms made by President Frederik de Klerk, but kept intact other sanctions, including an arms ban and a prohibition on imports of South African steel and gold coins, pending further steps to dismantle apartheid.

They restated their demand that Iraq fully withdraw from Kuwait, and ''underlined the importance'' of a proposed meeting between President Bush and Iraq's foreign minister. Breaking with U.S. policy, however, the EC called for an international peace conference on the Middle East.

The summit, ''fully supporting'' the reforms of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, approved $1 billion in food aid and $560 million in technical assistance for the Soviet Union. Lesser aid was approved for Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Romania.

EC leaders stressed the importance of successfully completing the stalled world trade talks, but proposed no new initiatives to break a bitter deadlock with the United States over the EC's massive farm subsidies. The president of the EC executive Commission, Jacques Delors, said U.S. negotiators ''should stop insulting us throughout the world.''

The centerpiece of the summit was inauguration of twin constitutional conventions, on economic and monetary union and on political union, with each holding its first session on Saturday afternoon.

Both conventions, known as ''intergovernmental conferences,'' are expected to end late next year with landmark changes to the EC's founding document, the 1957 Treaty of Rome, leading eventually to a single currency and a joint foreign policy.

In the final communique, EC leaders said the conference on political union would seek ''a means to allow the EC to speak effectively with a single voice on the world stage,'' including a common EC position on disarmament questions and United Nations debates.

The most carefully worded section of the communique dealt with defense policy, which could present problems for neutral Ireland, an EC member, or for other neutrals seeking EC membership such as Austria and Sweden.

''We underline that we see the EC playing a role on questions of defense, without prejudice to obligations of member states and while reinforcing existing NATO links,'' the EC leaders said.

The communique presented only general outlines and not strict mandates for the two conferences, which will entail tough negotiations among national ministers meeting regularly in Brussels over the next year.

''We have a menu for the intergovernmental conferences,'' Major said. ''Our favorite dishes are on that menu. So are others' favorite dishes, but the Community has not yet decided which orders to place.''

Replied the host, EC President Giulio Andreotti, Italy's prime minister: ''The important thing is that all 12 guests have sat down at the table.''

Major said he would try to persuade the dinner party on his alternative ''market-driven'' approach to a single currency. He has proposed a parallel 13th EC currency, a ''hard ECU'' (European Currency Unit) to compete alongside the 12 national currencies.

Delors, who favors a single currency under a central European bank committed to price stability, said he was ''distrustful'' of the hard ECU approach.

''To derail us into something that would not lead to a single currency and a single central bank would be a distraction,'' he said. ''If we need to provoke a political crisis we will do so.''

(DEC. 15) UPI - Iraq Saturday reiterated its rejection of a U.S. proposal that Secretary of State James Baker meet with President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad Jan. 3, intensifying a deadlock over proposed high-level talks between Iraq and the United States.

The official Iraqi news agency INA quoted an unspecified foreign ministry official saying, ''Iraq alone sets the proper appointments for its president to meet foreign officials.''

Saddam had wanted Baker to come to Baghdad Jan. 12. But Washington rejected that date as too close to the U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to withdraw its troops from Kuwait, which was invaded by Saddam's forces Aug. 2.

Spokesmen for President Bush, who was spending the weekend at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat, had no immediate comment on Iraq's latest rejection of Washington's proposed Jan. 3 date for a Baker-Saddam meeting.

But the Iraqi announcement appeared to jeopardize a planned meeting Monday between Bush and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz. Bush said Friday that the Monday session was ''on hold'' until the Baker meeting was worked out.

Iraqi Information Minister Latif Nassif Jassim, meanwhile, told the British Broadcasting Corp. in an interview that Iraq doubted Bush was serious about the high-level meetings and had proposed them as a way to appease Congress and the international community.

''President Bush only wants to show the Congress that he is doing his best for peace,'' Jassim said, also accusing Washington of trying to impose dates for the meetings.

Two Republican senators said in Washington Friday that Bush may be willing to forego the high-level Iraq-U.S. meetings if the two nations could not agree on the dates.

Middle East expert Herbert Bodman, a history professor at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, said Saturday he was not surprised Saddam had rejected the Jan. 3 date.

''After all, his main interest is holding on to Kuwait as long as he can, and any chance he sees to manipulate this situation, he'll grab,'' Bodman said.

Bodman said he doubted the two sides would agree on dates, noting Bush apparently proposed the talks ''for political reasons,'' and ''I don't think either side was sincere about this from the very beginning.''

Also Saturday, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak blasted some Arab states that have accused Egypt of profiting from its strong pro-U.S. stand in the crisis.

Mubarak was the first Arab leader to send troops to join the U.S.-led multinational force deployed to Saudi Arabia and has been rewarded by the United States and the kingdom through debt writeoffs and increased financial aid. Saudi and U.S. officials have said the increased aid was to help offset losses Egypt has incurred because of the crisis.

''Egypt was never a state that traded with stands or lived on the flesh of others, but will remain a protector of its principles and values that call for a just peace,'' Mubarak said in a speech before the country's newly-elected Parliament.

The Egyptian president also vowed to use his forces to defend other gulf Arab states from any Iraqi aggression and called on Saddam to make the ''courageous choice'' and pull his troops from the emirate before the Jan. 15 deadline.

The U.N. Security Council passed a resolution calling on Iraq to withdraw by that date or face possible military force by the international troops in the region.

The last group of former U.S. hostages evacuated from Iraq and Kuwait returned to U.S. soil late Friday.

Thirty-eight U.S. citizens and 10 Canadians received a hero's welcome on their arrival at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland, near Washington, aboard a flight from Frankfurt, Germany.

Among the last planeload of evacuees were the U.S. ambassador to Kuwait, Nathaniel Howell, and several other U.S. diplomats who kept the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait city open for four months in defiance of Iraqi orders to close the facility.

''Make no mistake, the only industry in Kuwait now is war,'' Howell said. He described Iraqi troops as digging entrenchments in Kuwait and giving no sign they are going to pull out.

BRUNSWICK, GA (DEC. 15) UPI - The suspect in the 1989 bombing deaths of a federal judge in Alabama and a Georgia civil rights lawyer could be sentenced to 69 years in prison on a conviction linked to a 1972 bomb possession case.

A federal jury found Walter Leroy Moody Jr. guilty Friday on 13 counts of bribery, obstruction of justice and witness tampering in an attempt to have his 1972 federal bomb possession conviction overturned.

He faces up to 69 years in prison and $1.3 million in fines. No sentencing date was set.

Moody plans an appeal that, according to his defense counsel, will be based on claims of illegal searches and seizures of his property by government investigators.

Moody is a suspect in the bombing deaths last December of Alabama federal Judge Robert Vance and Savannah, Ga., civil rights lawyer and Alderman Robert Robinson. They were killed by pipe bombs mailed to them, and Moody faces trial on a 70-count indictment in the case.

The suspect is also accused of sending bombs to the Jacksonville, Fla., office of the NAACP and the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals building in Atlanta. No one was hurt in those incidents.

In the bomb possession case, a jury of eight women and four men deliberated three hours before finding Moody guilty of paying two women to provide false testimony and false affidavits in 1988 and 1989 in an effort to have the 1972 conviction overturned and of trying to foil an investigation of the payoffs.

Moody, who fainted in federal prison when told that his wife was divorcing him and when indicted in the mail bombings, showed no emotion when the verdict was read Friday.

''He knew it was coming. He was not surprised,'' said Edward Tolley, Moody's court-appointed lawyer.

Tolley had argued in court that his client was insane, but Moody objected to that line of defense. So Tolley then told jurors that Moody was not insane, but had sufficient mental disorders to leave him unable to intentionally commit a crime.

''He has the IQ of a genius and all the insight of an imbecile,'' Tolley said of being forced to switch defenses in mid-trial. ''He made the decision and he's not back there bellyaching about it. I would rather have done it another way.''

At one point in the trial, Tolley referred to Moody as ''nuts, goofy, screwball, idiotic and simplistic.''

But federal prosecutor Lewis Freeh said three out of four psychiatrists who testified found no serious mental defect in Moody.

''What I'm saying is, he's a fake. He's a sham,'' Freeh said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 15) UPI - An FBI official in a ''highly sensitive position'' abuses drugs and steals secret documents. A federal prosecutor packs a pistol in Justice Department headquarters. A DEA employee is arrested for possession of cocaine.

That's just some of the dirty linen buried in the latest report from the Office of Professional Responsibility, the Justice Department's internal watchdog.

OPR's annual report is a tantalizing glimpse at the department's nasty little secrets, which it cites drily as ''representative examples of misconduct investigated by the office.''

The cases range from a federal drug agent suspected of murder (he was later cleared), to FBI agents submitting questionable meal receipts (they were suspended). The fact that the OPR report contains no names only raises the level of titillation.

It's compiled by Michael Shaheen, the only person ever to hold the position of counsel to the Office of Professional Responsibility. The office turns 15 on Tuesday.

In releasing his report for 1989, Shaheen dutifully noted that the office opened 427 cases involving misconduct of department employees, closed 316 cases and had 409 matters pending.

He said his office also monitored 1,041 misconduct cases being handled by the internal investigation units at the FBI and Drug Enforcement Administration.

''On the whole,'' Shaheen concluded, ''Department of Justice employees continued to perform their duties in accordance with the high professional standards expected of the nation's principal law enforcement agency.''

But enough about the do-gooders. The juicy stuff begins on page 7:

OPR investigators were tipped off that an assistant U.S. attorney brought a handgun into the main Justice Department building in Washington. The prosecutor ''admitted to possessing and displaying the handgun, but denied that he knew such conduct may have violated local criminal statutes.'' He received a two-week suspension.

Another assistant U.S. attorney, apparently in a fit of jealousy, decided to dig up some dirt on a man who dated his girlfriend. OPR investigators said the prosecutor had police run a computer check of the man's driving record and got a copy of a police report on the man's drunken driving arrest.

He also obtained the man's divorce petition and turned it over to the Immigration and Naturalization Service ''to further an INS inquiry into a possible 'sham' marriage by the individual.'' The prosecutor received an official reprimand.

And what report on misconduct would be complete without sex? The office investigated allegations that a ''high-ranking official'' had ''engaged in sexual intercourse with a subordinate who had a personnel action pending within the official's area of responsibility.''

The official initially denied the allegation, but failed two FBI- administered lie-detector tests. ''After registering deception on a second polygraph examination, the subject admitted that the allegation was true. The subject retired before formal disciplinary action was taken.''

Some investigations turn up a treasure-trove of violations. One FBI employee ''in a highly sensitive position'' was found to have: used illegal drugs on several occasions, driven a government vehicle while under the influence, shoplifted, kept a revolver under the seat of his car, and removed classified documents to his home and later destroyed them. ''The employee resigned after being notified of the FBI's intention to initiate removal proceedings.''

Occasionally the OPR gets bad information, like the tip from a local police department that a DEA agent was a prime suspect in a murder. The agent passed a lie-detector test, and ballistics experts determined his gun was not used in the killing. A suspect was later identified and arrested.

Other times, what appears to be bad information turns out to be prophetic. A relative of one DEA employee accused him of using cocaine and voluntarily submitted to a lie-detector test. After the relative flunked the test, it was decided that no action would be taken against the employee.

About two months later, however, the same employee was arrested by local police for possession of cocaine. The employee was ordered to take a drug test which came back positive. He resigned.

And then there are those who simply stumble over ethics, like the three undercover FBI agents who submitted phony meal receipts. The agents admitted to ''irregularities in the handling of undercover funds'' and were censured, placed on probation and suspended for seven days.

DALLAS (DEC. 15) UPI - A United Airlines jet made an unscheduled landing at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Saturday after the pilot noticed smoke in the cockpit, an airline spokeswoman said.

There were no injuries, and the plane landed safely.

United spokeswoman Laura Winiarski said Flight 751 left Houston at 6:40 a.m. with 85 passengers and a crew of five, and was to fly to Denver and Boise. But the pilot put the plane down in Dallas at 7:49 a. m. as a precautionary move because of the smoke, Winiarski said.

She said the twin-engine Boeing 737's passengers and crew disembarked in a normal manner and that no one was hurt. No emergency chutes were used.

Winiarski said the flight was later canceled, and the passengers were either placed on other United flights or booked on other airlines.

It was not immediately clear what created the smoke in the cockpit, but the incident was under investigation.

(DEC. 15) UPI - Iraq said Saturday it was canceling a meeting between Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz and President Bush Monday in Washington, intensifying the deadlock over efforts to arrange high-level talks between Iraq and the United States.

Information Minister Latif Nassif Jassim said that Iraq was canceling the Monday meeting and rejected attempts by Washington to set a date for a proposed meeting between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Secretary of State James Baker in Baghdad.

''Because of the current circumstances between Iraq and the United States, the scheduled visit by Tariq Aziz to Washington on Dec. 17 will be canceled,'' he said in an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp.

The official Iraqi news agency INA reported earlier Iraq had rejected a proposal by Washington that Baker and Saddam meet Jan. 3, quoting a foreign ministry official as saying ''Iraq alone sets the proper appointments for its president to meet foreign officials.''

Saddam had wanted Baker to come to Baghdad Jan. 12, but Washington rejected that date as too close to the U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to withdraw its troops from Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2.

Bush had said Friday his meeting with Aziz was ''on hold'' until a date for the Baker-Saddam meeting was worked out, and a senior Iraqi official reportedly said Friday that Aziz was delaying his trip until the issue was resolved.

A spokesman for President Bush, who was spending the weekend at Camp David, Md., said Iraq's formal announcement Saturday canceling Aziz's trip to Washington proved Baghdad is not serious about the proposed talks.

''We have communicated to the Iraqis that mutually satisfactory dates (for the high-level meetings) should be set,'' spokesman John Herrick said from the presidential retreat. ''Today's public announcement is just a reaffirmation of the Iraqi unwillingness to deal seriously with the issue.''

Jassim, for his part, said in the BBC interview that Iraq doubted Bush was serious about the meetings and only proposed them as a way to appease Congress and the international community.

''President Bush only wants to show the Congress that he is doing his best for peace,'' Jassim said, also accusing Washington of trying to impose dates for the meetings.

Two Republican senators said in Washington Friday that Bush might be willing to forego the talks if the two countries could not agree on the dates.

Middle East expert Herbert Bodman, a history professor at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, said Saturday he was not surprised Saddam had rejected the Jan. 3 date for meeting with Baker.

''After all, his main interest is holding on to Kuwait as long as he can, and any chance he sees to manipulate this situation, he'll grab,'' Bodman said.

Bodman said he doubted the two sides would agree on dates, noting Bush apparently proposed the talks ''for political reasons,'' and ''I don't think either side was sincere about this from the very beginning.''

Also Saturday, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak blasted some Arab states that have accused Egypt of profiting from its strong pro-U.S. stand in the crisis.

Mubarak was the first Arab leader to send troops to join the U.S.-led multinational force deployed to Saudi Arabia and has been rewarded by the United States and the kingdom through debt writeoffs and increased financial aid. Saudi and U.S. officials have said the increased aid was to help offset losses Egypt has incurred because of the crisis.

''Egypt was never a state that traded with stands or lived on the flesh of others, but will remain a protector of its principles and values that call for a just peace,'' Mubarak told the country's newly- elected Parliament.

The Egyptian president also vowed to use his forces to defend other gulf Arab states from any Iraqi aggression and called on Saddam to make the ''courageous choice'' and pull his troops from the emirate before the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline.

The last group of former U.S. hostages evacuated from Iraq and Kuwait returned to U.S. soil late Friday as 38 U.S. citizens and 10 Canadians arrived at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland, near Washington, on a flight from Frankfurt, Germany.

Among the last planeload of evacuees were the U.S. ambassador to Kuwait, Nathaniel Howell, and several other U.S. diplomats who kept the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait city open for four months in defiance of Iraqi orders to close.

Howell said he locked the gate and left the garrison flag flying over the compound and he vowed it will be re-opened.

Baker greeted the former hostages, some of whom were detained as ''human shields'' at key sites around Iraq to deter an attack by the U. S.-led multinational force, that includes more than 200,000 U.S. troops - with more Americans to be deployed after Jan. 1.

Algerian President Chadli Benjedid meanwhile arrived in Damascus, Syria Saturday during a peace tour of the region. Arab diplomatic sources said Benjedid had hoped on his tour to set up a meeting between Saddam and Saudi King Fahd, but Saudi Arabia did not allow Benjedid to visit.

Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat meanwhile arrived in Amman, Jordan Saturday for talks with King Hussein. Arab diplomatic sources said the two want to help keep the proposed U.S.- Iraqi talks from collapsing.

ATLANTA (DEC. 15) UPI - The Atlanta mansion of Saudi Arabian Prince Faisal is going on the auction block, following a ruling by federal bankruptcy Judge Hugh Robinson.

Robinson ruled Friday that Prince Faisal Mohamed Al-Saud Al Kabir ''abused the bankruptcy process'' by transferring his mansion, its furnishings and a gun collection to a holding corporation to protect it from bankruptcy.

No date for the mansion's auction has been set by the CJS Corp., headed by former Georgia Gov. Carl Sanders, which is owed $11 million by the prince. The mansion and its furniture were collateral for a $3 million loan to Faisal.

The corporation is also seeking to foreclose on 5,400 acres of farmland in Bartow and Floyd counties put up for an $8 million loan.

The prince reportedly is in Saudi Arabia seeking financing for his Georgia properties.

MUNICH, GERMANY (DEC. 15) UPI - Pete Sampras became the first finalist of the $6 million Grand Slam Saturday by defeating fellow-American Michael Chang in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

The victory assured Sampras, the U.S. Open champion, $1 million and he will have a chance to double the sum by winning the final Sunday in tennis' richest event. David Wheaton was scheduled to play Brad Gilbert in Saturday's second semifinal.

''I have played my best tennis in months,'' said Sampras, who added that a blister under his right foot did not bother him.

After losing to Sampras for the first time in his career, Chang went home with $450,000, more than his 1990 earnings entering the tournament.

Sampras needed 2 hours, 27 minutes to eliminate Chang, whose form paled to the one he showed earlier in the week while defeating world No. 1 Stefan Edberg of Sweden.

Sampras benefited from many unforced errors by Chang and coasted through the first set in 30 minutes. Sampras broke Chang at 2-2 in the second set en route to taking a 2-0 lead.

The third set was the most competitive. Sampras had four chances to break Chang's service at 1-1, but he missed them all. A similar situation arose in the next game, but Chang failed to capitalize. Sampras responded with aces to thwart each of Chang's four break chances.

Sampras broke Chang's next game to take a 3-2 lead and barrelled to another game with his powerful serve. Chang rallied to tie 4-4, but Sampras produced the third break in the set and then served out the match.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 15) UPI - Authorities on Saturday freed 27 political prisoners, bringing the number freed since Pretoria struck a deal with the African National Congress to accelerate racial reform in August to more than 90, a Justice Ministry official said.

The 27 were freed from the country's Alcatraz, Robben Island Prison off Cape Town, in terms of reformist agreements, Justice spokeswoman Maj. Elsa Jones said.

''It would be fair to say these are all political prisoners ... they were released in terms of special dispensations in accordance with the Pretoria Minute,'' Jones said, referring to the accord reached between the ANC and the government Aug. 6 at their second and latest round of preliminary talks on ending apartheid.

She gave no details about the freed prisoners, their political affiliations or their sentences, but said, ''More than 90 political prisoners have been released.''

The government agreed in principle at the August talks to release an estimated 1,500 people held for politically motivated offences by April 1991 and promised to step up other reforms. In return, the ANC suspended its 29-year guerrilla war against white minority rule.

The ANC has since criticized the slow pace of the prisoner releases, charging President Frederik de Klerk is reneging on the deal.

Government spokesmen have replied that de Klerk did not plan initially to release the prisoners in large batches, but would increase their numbers as the April deadline drew nearer.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, HAITI (DEC. 15) UPI - Former President Jimmy Carter Saturday congratulated interim President Ertha Pascal-Trouillet for bringing Haiti to the door of democratic elections that pit a populist priest against a former World Bank economist.

The streets of downtown Port-au-Prince were unusually quiet with little traffic and few pedestrians as Haitians prepared for Sunday's election, the third in four years as the poor Caribbean nation seeks democracy in the wake of the 29-year Duvalier dictatorship.

Two policemen patrolled the central plaza with hands resting on their guns. A ban on sale of alcohol took effect at 9 p.m. Saturday amid rumors of a possible curfew.

A ban on campaigning 24 hours before the polls open at 6 a.m. Sunday kept 11 presidential candidates out of public. Some 2.7 million people are eligible to vote Sunday for president, a two-chamber Congress and hundreds of local officials.

One of the leading presidential candidates is Jean-Bertrand Aristide, a fiery 37-year-old priest expelled from the Catholic Salesian order in 1988 for pursuing populist political activities. He has drawn huge support from rural voters.

Aristide's main competition is Marc Bazin, a former World Bank economist whose support comes mainly from Haiti's middle class and the far right.

On Feb. 7, the winner will succeed Pascal-Trouillot, a supreme court judge who has led the country since March.

Carter, who is among international observers present to monitor the election, said registration at 80-85 percent of eligible voters was higher than expected. Observers expected the turnout to be high.

But TonTon Macoutes' leader Roger Lafontaine, whose presidential bid was turned down by the country's Electoral Council, called early Saturday on his supporters to abstain from voting.

The Tonton Macoutes, a group of thugs loyal to former dictator Jean- Claude ''Baby Doc'' Duvalier, have been blamed for most of the atrocities in Haiti in the past few decades. Duvalier fled to France on a U.S. Air Force plane in February, 1986, ending nearly 30 years of dictatorship by the Duvalier family.

Pascal-Trouillot was a high-level official in Duvalier's government and is seen by many Haitians as a puppet of the former dictatorship.

Carter Saturday endorsed government preparations for this weekend's elections and said he was not worried about the possibility of violence.

''Our delegation has just congratulated President Ertha Pascal- Trouillot on her wonderful leadership in bringing this nation to the eve of what we fully expect to be a successful demonstration of freedom and democracy,'' Carter told reporters.

Carter met with Pascal-Trouillet Saturday, hours before what observers hoped would be Haiti's first democratic elections in decades and the third in four years - the last two marred by coups, repression and violence.

Carter said he did not expect violence as in 1987, when the Army opened fire on civilians at voting booths.

''I am not concerned about the possibility of violence,'' Carter said. ''I think that if there is violence it will be very minimal and localized.''

But former Texas congressman Jim Wright told United Press International that the chance of violence could not be ruled out.

''I don't think the United States can say with any certainty if the election will or won't be peaceful,'' Wright said. ''I think the Army and the government are doing their honest best to guarantee an election free of violence and free of intimidation.''

Aristide, whose supporters are calling him the ''people's candidate'' in this weekend's presidential election, addressed a crowd of 3,000 chanting and dancing voters Friday, predicting victory.

''I will be president at 10 a.m. Sunday, even before the vote,'' Aristide confidently told the crowd. Aristide presented a bouquet of flowers to his followers and said, ''These flowers are for all of Haiti. We all have to take the country for all.''

Aristide, thrown out of his parish for preaching liberation theology and leftist politics, has assumed a populist political program in the campaign. But details of his plan remain a virtual mystery. Aristide has said he wants change for all of Haiti, but he told reporters recently he would not purge the police force or the bureaucracy.

Thousands waited three hours for Aristide to appear in the main downtown park under a beating sun, chanting, ''Aristide president'' and ''Tonton Macoute, terrorist.''

The Tonton Macoutes were blamed for a grenade attack last week just after Aristide left a rural campaign stop. Seven people died and 53 were wounded.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, HAITI (DEC. 15) UPI - The following is a chronology of key events in Haiti since the end of the Duvalier dictatorship in 1986 and leading up to general elections Sunday:

-February, 1986: After weeks of violent protests, the so-called President-for-life Jean-Claude ''Baby Doc'' Duvalier flees to France on a U.S. Air Force plane, ending nearly 30 years of dictatorship of the Duvalier family. A five-man military-civilian junta, with an adviser, headed by Gen. Henri Namphy, announces it is in control.

-March, 1986: Namphy fires two junta members and the adviser, Gen. Prosper Avril, each considered to have been particularly close to the Duvalier regime.

-April, 1986: Soldiers at Fort Dimanche open fire on marchers commemorating an April 26, 1963 massacre under former President Francois Duvalier. Six people die, three are shot and others are electrocuted or crushed in the panic.

-June, 1986: After days of roadblocks and demonstrations, Namphy announces general elections will be held before Feb. 7, 1988.

-August, 1986: Then Secretary of State George Shultz visits, pledges continuing support for ''democratic efforts.''

-October 1986: Haitians vote in small numbers for 41 members of an assembly to create a new constitution.

-November, 1986: Namphy flies to Miami, Fla., on a trip that will also take him to Washington to seek more economic aid.

-November 1987: Haiti's military-controlled government suspends the first presidential Nov. 27 vote following a massacre in which at least 34 people are killed. After the incident, the United States cuts off $100 million-a-year in aid to the strife-torn Caribbean nation.

-January, 1988: Leslie Manigat, a political science professor, wins a widely boycotted national election; Manigat's leading rivals claim the elections are rigged by Namphy's provisional government to ensure a Manigat victory.

-February, 1988: Manigat assumes office as Haiti's first elected president in 30 years.

Area: 10,714 square miles
Capital: Port-au-Prince
President: Ertha Pascal-Trouillot (March 1990)

History - Columbus landed at Cape St. Nicolas in northwestern Haiti Dec. 6, 1492. It later became a base for British and French buccaneers. A French colony was established in 1677. Slaves defeated Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte's troops and Haiti gained independence in 1804, becoming the world's first black republic. A succession of dictators has run the nation with little interruption. To quell political violence, the United States occupied Haiti from 1915 to 1934. Nearly 30 years of dictatorship under President Francois Duvalier and then his son ended when Jean-Claude Duvalier fled Haiti Feb. 7, 1986.

The Tontons Macoutes - ''bogeyman'' in Haitian Creole - were founded by President Francois Duvalier after an attempted military coup in July 1958. Duvalier's son Jean-Claude curbed their powers after he came to power in 1971 and renamed them Volunteers for National Security in an effort to improve Haiti's image aboard. They remained an important counterbalance to the military however - with 15,000 members outnumbering the army 2 to 1 - and were deployed in force with Duvalier's declaration of a state of siege in January 1986. Reports cited numerous random murders of Haitians. Following the younger Duvalier's departure from Haiti Feb. 7, 1986, the new government dissolved the Tontons Macoutes, whose members had become targets of widespread reprisal killings.

Geography - Mountainous Haiti, the size of Maryland with 10,714 square miles, occupies the western third of the West Indies' Hispaniola Island, which it shares with the Dominican Republic. It is 600 miles southeast of Florida and 60 miles east of Cuba across the Windward Passage. Poverty and poor management have severely cut mountainous Haiti's once lush forests - 60 percent of the land in the 1920s, now just 5 percent.

Government - After the collapse of the Duvalier dictatorship in February 1986, army chief of staff Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy led a military interim government for two years until an elected civilian president took office Feb. 7, 1988. New President Leslie Manigat attempted to curb Namphy's powers, and the general ousted him June 19, 1988, declaring an all-military government with himself as president. Army Brig. Gen. Prosper Avril, an aide to Jean-Claude Duvalier, seized power from Namphy in September 1988. Supreme Court Judge Ertha Pascal-Trouillot has been interim president since March, 1990, presiding over a 19-member Council of State. Pascal-Trouillot, a staunch feminist, took office after dictator Avril was driven from power following a week of violent protests.

People - Most of Haiti's 6.3 million people - 95 percent black, 5 percent mulatto - live below the World Bank's absolute poverty level with a per capita income of $380 a year. Some 80 percent are Catholic, but voodoo is widely practiced. French, the official language, is understood by only 10 percent of the population. Fewer than one in five can write; 15 percent die before their first birthday. With 50 percent unemployment, thousands of Haitians have fled their homeland in recent years, many in makeshift boats bound for Miami.

Economy - The poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere and most densely populated, Haiti imports 45 percent of its food. It has no oil and few exploitable minerals. Tourism, which increased as Francois Duvalier's shadow diminished, dwindled to near nothing after reports identified Haitians as a high-risk group for the disease AIDS.

U.S. relations - More than 150 American companies have plants in Haiti, and Haitian companies assemble imported components for U.S. firms. A $3-a-day minimum wage for industrial work makes jobs in the growing assembly industry the best paying around. U.S. government pressure on Jean-Claude Duvalier to democratize the country and his own inability to manage the Caribbean nation were important factors that led to his departure to France in February 1986 on a U.S. Air Force plane. Since the collapse of the Duvalier dictatorship, the U.S. government has sometimes provided and sometimes threatened to slash economic aid to Haiti in the face of political instability and human rights violations. The U.S. Congress was sending about $50 million annually to Haiti before Duvalier left.

PUNTARENAS, COSTA RICA (DEC. 15) UPI - Central American presidents were gathering this weekend to discuss joining an economic trading bloc with Mexico and the United States and condemn regional violence that has drained their economies.

''There are great expectations in Central America about the results of this meeting,'' Costa Rican Foreign Minister Bernard Niehaus said. ''But there will be no miracles.''

The ninth regional summit starting Saturday afternoon was organized as a gathering of presidents Rafael Calderon of Costa Rica, Alfredo Cristiani of El Salvador, Vinicio Cerezo of Guatemala, Rafael Callejas of Honduras and Violeta Chamorro of Nicaragua.

Panamanian President Guillermo Endara was to attend as an observer.

Most the leaders were traveling to the Costa Rican capital of San Jose before boarding Soviet-made helicopters, on loan from Nicaragua, to the Pacific Coast port city of Puntarenas about 70 miles west of the capital.

Foreign and finance ministers from the countries met Thursday and Friday to set the summit agenda.

The presidents hoped to discuss the region's integration into an economic trading bloc with Mexico and the United States, and eventually Canada. Finance ministers say economic integration could open world markets to Central American products.

The advantages and disadvantages of President Bush's initiative for the Americas, calling for a free-trade zone in the Western Hemisphere, also was included on the agenda, officials said.

High on the list of topics was the decade-old civil war in El Salvador and demilitarization of a region that has been plagued with violence for decades. Rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, have intensified attacks against the Salvadoran military since Nov. 20 to force the government to restructure the country's armed forces.

Rebels say negotiations have failed to achieve the military reforms.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 15) UPI - A former close associate of indicted S&L operator Charles Keating Jr. told a Senate panel Saturday there was at least an ''appearance of impropriety'' in Keating's $1.3 million in contributions to the so-called Keating Five senators and their subsequent actions on his behalf.

But James Grogan, testifying under a grant of limited immunity during a rare weekend session of the ethics committee, repeatedly defended Keating's philosophy of funneling huge contributions to key public officials, saying no action was demanded nor sought in return for the contributions.

Grogan, former vice president of Keating's failed Lincoln Savings and Loan of Irvine, Calif., and corporate counsel for the thrift's parent company, American Continental Corp. of Phoenix, further explained the importance to Keating of Sen. Donald Riegle's role in arranging a key 1987 meeting between the senators and the chief savings and loan regulator. Details of Riegle's involvement in the Keating Five affair had been lacking before Grogan's testimony.

The ethics panel has held 18 days of public hearings into whether Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., John Glenn, D- Ohio, John McCain, R-Ariz., and Riegle, D-Mich., improperly pressured bank regulators to benefit Keating, who has been indicted on state securities and fraud charges in California and is the target of a continuing federal grand jury probe.

On Friday, Grogan testified he believed the large political contributions were designed with the purpose of ''buying access'' to public figures, although he distinguished that from ''buying influence.''

He emphasized in 4 1/2 hours of testimony Saturday that Keating did not expressly state he expected anything in return for the contributions and that the senators never indicated their actions on Keating's behalf - including some extensive contacts with bank regulators handling a probe of Lincoln - required cash.

Under questioning from Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., the panel's vice chairman, Grogan said: ''I never ... got even a hint that the money was being given in exchange for anything. That's why, regardless of the amount, it's not difficult for me to testify that I didn't smell (buying influence), I didn't sniff that, I didn't see that.''

But Rudman countered by asking that even with ''good intentions'' by Keating and the senators, could the combination of ''the sums of money'' and later actions ''could give rise to the appearance of impropriety'' to someone who is not a Washington insider?

''I certainly agree with that, yes,'' Grogan answered.

He also said ''anybody who's under oath and being realistic'' believes an individual is more likely to be heard by a politician as a contributor. Committee special counsel Robert Bennett pointed out that during a 1989 press conference, Keating, asked if he had bought the influence of politicians, said ''I certainly hope so.''

Grogan testified that Keating had many political contacts in Congress and the White House during the 1980s and even met personally with then- Vice President George Bush and cabinet officials under President Reagan.

Until Grogan's appearance, DeConcini and Cranston were the primary focus of allegations during the hearings.

Grogan said Keating and top officials of Lincoln and American Continental viewed Riegle's offer - and later actions - to set up an April 2, 1987, meeting between the senators and Edwin Gray, then chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, was ''a very significant point for us'' during a long and bitter battle with Gray and regulators examining Lincoln's practices.

''We were very frustrated,'' Grogan said. ''And it was that point, when Senator Riegle made that offer, that made a very deep impression on the management of our company because we were excited that finally a senator, who was active on the banking committee, had an idea that there may be a way to create a resolution.''

At the same time Riegle made the offer, Keating was busy arranging a fund-raiser for the senator that brought in $78,250. Grogan said Keating was ''offended'' when Riegle returned the contributions one year later when press accounts surfaced revealing the links to Keating.

Grogan admitted that while Riegle ''set up'' the meeting, he, Keating and other senators worked out the final details for the session. Riegle did not attend the meeting, but did attend one on April 9, 1987, with all five senators and four regulators. The influence-peddling allegations stem in a large part from actions by the senators during those meetings.

Revisiting testimony from Friday that Cranston made a fund-raising pitch the very first time the two met, in 1984 and a Democratic Party function, Grogan said the statements were not ''out of the ordinary or unusual.'' During the encounter, Cranston pointed out he had been supportive of the S&L industry and perhaps deserved the support of Lincoln, Grogan said.

Lincoln failed in 1989, costing taxpayers $2 billion to bail out.

Saturday's session was the panel's last of the year, with the next hearing set for Jan. 2.

BANGKOK, Thailand (DEC. 16) UPI - Resistance forces fired thousands of artillery shells on positions of the Vietnamese-backed government in Cambodia last week, but suffered more than 100 killed in government counter-attacks, official Phnom Penh radio reported Saturday.

''During the week of 2-8 December, the three reactionary enemy groups continued to shatter our people's tranquility by firing thousands of artillery shells on some border areas in Battambang, Banteay Meanchey, and Siem Reap-Oddar Meanchey Provinces,'' the radio said.

The provinces near the border with Thailand have been the scene of much of the fighting in Cambodia since Vietnam invaded in late 1978.

The radio said government forces launched 12 counteroffensives against the guerrilla groups, killing 102 resistance soldiers.

In a separate report, the Phnom Penh government news agency SPK also reported fighting in Kompong Thom province, about 100 miles north of Phnom Penh.

It said government troops ''wiped out 30 enemy troops, captured 10, and forced 14 others to surrender.''

The reports of fighting came as both the Phnom Penh government and its main backer, Vietnam, flatly rejected a detailed U.N. peace plan that had been seen as the best chance to find a peaceful settlement of the 12-year-old conflict.

Military officers in Thailand have said intelligence reports indicate that both sides are building up their forces for offensives in the dry season that has just begun.

The Phnom Penh government, supplied by Vietnam and the Soviet Union, faces a three-party resistance coalition backed by China, the United States and several non-communist countries in Southeast Asia.

NEW DELHI, India (DEC. 16) UPI - Police in southern India raided the homes of scores of Sri Lankan separatists Saturday, arresting 86 Tamil activists and confiscating weapons, materials used in making explosives and a radio transmitter, the authorities said.

The arrests came on the second day of a crackdown against supporters of the Tamil separatist movement in Sri Lanka, an Indian Ocean island just off the tip of India. Tamils have been fighting for several years to create a Hindu homeland in the north and east of the predominantly Buddhist island.

Authorities in India's southeastern Tamil Nadu state have rounded up at least 167 Tamil separatists since the raids began Friday. The southeastern Indian state has been a place of refuge for many of those who fled the fighting in Sri Lanka.

Authorities in Tamil Nadu state had been under pressure from the central government for several months to take action against militants of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam and other Sri Lankan groups who had set up shop in India.

Sri Lankan officials have accused India of providing training and safe haven to guerrillas fighting the Colombo government. They also claim that Tamil rebels have launched attacks against Sri Lanka from bases in south India.

In addition, some Indian politicians have charged that Sri Lankan separatists based in the state have begun providing weapons and training to rebel movements in other parts of India such as Kashmir, Assam and Punjab.

BANGKOK, Thailand (DEC. 15) UPI - Thai Princess Chulabhorn has resigned as a special ambassador of the World Health Organization because of a dispute over a law barring people infected with AIDS from entering Thailand, officials said Saturday.

''Her Royal Highness does not want to do anything to offend the law,'' said Chotima Pathmanand, director of the Chulabhorn Research Institute which sponsors research and information on the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

Chotima said the princess tendered her resignation to WHO last Monday after the WHO notified the institute that it was unable to support an international congress on AIDS starting Monday and sponsored by the institute.

WHO said it had to withdraw its support because Thailand has refused to allow people infected with the AIDS virus from entering the country under a 1985 law.

Princess Chulabhorn, the fourth child of King Bhumibol Adulyadej, was appointed WHO special envoy last year. A trained chemist, the princess has traveled widely to observe AIDS treatment and to spread information about the disease which is virtually always fatal.

The upcoming conference was planned to expand knowledge about the disease in Thailand.

''The CRI itself does not ban AIDS-infected people from attending the conference,'' Chotima said. ''Our activities are trying to help AIDS patients.''

He said the institute was non-political and had to obey Thai law.

''The Princess is not in a position to push for the change of the law or interfere with it,'' said a statement issued by the institute.

Thailand is a constitutional monarchy in which the royal family is considered above politics.

Chotima said the WHO has not yet replied to the princess's letter of resignation.

Teera Ramasoota, Director of the Department of Communicable Disease Control, said the law, imposed in 1985, bars people who have AIDS or have tested positive for the virus which causes it.

''At that time we had a very small group of AIDS-infected people,'' he said.''Now the situation has changed. We have AIDS patients everywhere.''

He said the department has urged the Interior Ministry to lift the regulations but the proposal was rejected.

Satit Sirisigh, secretary of the conference, said the lack of WHO support was unlikely to affect the conference, but predicted eight WHO specialists who planned to attend will be absent.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (DEC. 15) UPI - Frank Reich engineered the NFL's highest-scoring offense against the league's best defense after Jim Kelly got hurt Saturday to lead the Buffalo Bills to a 17-13 triumph over the New York Giants.

The AFC East-leading Bills, 12-2, won their third straight game. Despite the rain falling through three quarters and the loss of Kelly late in the second quarter, the Bills succeeded with their passing attack and trailed only once, after the first series.

The Giants, 11-3, lost for the third time in four weeks after starting 10-0. The NFC East titlists hung in with the run and top draft pick Rodney Hampton came up big for the second straight week. He carried 21 times for 105 yards and made five catches for 27 yards.

Reich was 8 of 15 for 97 yards after replacing Kelly, the NFL's top rated passer. Kelly suffered ligament damage to his left knee - possibly a tear of the medial collateral - when tackle Will Wolford was blocked into him, apparently by Giants linebacker Carl Banks. Wolford left with a sprained knee. Kelly will likely miss the final two games of the regular season.

Giants starting quarterback Phil Simms sprained his right ankle in the third quarter and did not return. Jeff Hostetler finished and was 9 of 16 for 97 yards. Simms was 6 of 10 for 59 yards and was sacked once.

Buffalo's main threat Thurman Thomas, who scored the go-ahead touchdown, ran for 60 yards on 21 carries and made four catches for 65 yards. Andre Reed added four receptions to his league-leading total (now 68) for 54 yards.

Leading by a point, the Bills went ahead 17-13 on the opening play of the fourth quarter on Scott Norwood's 29-yard field goal. Norwood extended his scoring streak to 77 straight games, capping an impressive drive for Reich.

On the opening play of the drive, Reich was sacked for nine yards by Leonard Marshall but came back to throw a 43-yard bomb to Don Beebe. After passes of 6 and 7 yards to Beebe, he was sacked by Lawrence Taylor for 4 yards and faced second-and-14 on the 23.

The seventh-year backup from Maryland, who was 3-0 last year substituting for Kelly, threw 6-yard completions to Thomas, which stood after review, and Keith McKeller to end the third quarter on the Giants' 17.

The Giants drew within 14-13 on the second of Matt Bahr's two consecutive field goals after Hostetler replaced Simms.

Simms slipped on the wet turf after throwing a 9-yard completion to Dave Meggett. After double penalties moved the ball 17 yards to the Bills' 12, the Giants kicked a field goal on fourth-and-two.

Bahr kicked a 23-yard field goal to draw the Giants within 14-10 at halftime.

The Bills ignored the rain and went to their passing game immediately, taking a 14-7 lead 51 seconds into the second quarter.

Thomas scored a 2-yard TD to cap a 78-yard drive, highlighted by a 36-yard Kelly-to-Reed pass. Thomas ran to the sideline, followed Jamie Mueller's blocking and squirted into the end zone between Taylor and Marshall.

Kelly was 6 of 9 in the first quarter for 107 yards and a TD. He threw a 6-yard pass to Reed to tie the score 8:30 into the game. Taking 88 seconds to drive 74 yards, the Bills showed they were undaunted by the Giants scoring on the first possession.

Kelly threw a 48-yard pass to Thomas, to the New York 26, on the drive. Reed then caught his seventh TD of the season to take over the AFC lead in that category.

The Giants also did what they do best, using their ground game to drive 71 yards in 11 plays while consuming 7:02. Ottis Anderson scored on fourth-and-one for his 80th career touchdown, three plays after Hampton's 41-yard run to the Buffalo 8.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (DEC. 15) UPI - Nicaraguan legislators cut proposed military spending by 25 percent Saturday after three weeks of intense debate with Sandinista leaders who demanded no reductions in the Sandinista-dominated military.

The National Assembly voted to slash $19.6 million from the $78.6 million in military spending sought by Sandinistas in the government's proposed budget.

A coalition of parties that helped elect President Violeta Chamorro this year have complained that the $78.6 million is too much for a peace-time budget.

''The coalition and Violeta Chamorro promised that we would spend more on teachers than soldiers,'' said a statement released by the coalition called the National Unity Organization after the vote.

Private business, labor unions, the clergy and many mayors have joined the coalition in opposing the proposed military budget.

''It was desirable to cut even more military spending, but without a doubt the vote signals an advance in favor of democracy,'' Vice President Virgilio Godoy said.

Total proposed government spending for next year is about $500 million.

Sandinista deputies in the National Assembly abstained from voting Saturday.

Former Sandinista vice president Sergio Ramirez, leader of the Sandinistas in the National Assembly, said the vote could lead to instability.

''Thousands of soldiers will return to civilian life without any guarantee of work,'' Ramirez said.

The government has been discharging military personnel and hopes to reduce the size of the armed forces to 28,000 by the end of the year. The Sandinista army was made up of 85,000 troops in February, when Chamorro defeated former President Daniel Ortega at the polls.

A group of discharged soldiers last week threatened to use ''anything within their reach'' to force legislators to approve the military spending sought by Sandinistas.

ROME (DEC. 15) UPI - The 12-nation European Community on Saturday abolished a 4-year-old EC ban on new investments in South Africa in order to recognize reforms by South African President Frederik de Klerk.

Other EC sanctions, which include an arms ban and a prohibition on imports of South African iron, steel and gold coins, remain intact pending further steps to abolish apartheid.

In South Africa, black anti-apartheid groups condemned the decision as ''disgusting'' and ''unfortunate,'' but the government, the liberal opposition and business leaders welcomed the move.

''There was widespread acknowledgement that a considerable amount has been done - the release of political prisoners, the unbanning of political parties, the discussions with the ANC (African National Congress), the abolition of the Separate Amenities Act - a whole series of things that are very positive moves forward in South Africa,'' said new British Prime Minister John Major.

The decision to immediately lift the investment ban was taken on the final day of a two-day summit of EC leaders.

''To help combat unemployment and improve the economic and social situation in South Africa, and to encourage the current movement toward the total abolition of apartheid, we have decided to abolish the ban on new investments,'' EC leaders said in a final summit communique.

Britain has long argued for an end to the EC investment ban imposed in 1986, maintaining it was most harmful to South African blacks. The British government had already lifted its own ban on new investment in South Africa.

Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, who holds the rotating EC presidency, said the Community wanted to send a signal of support to de Klerk.

''It is certain that some progress has been made,'' he said. ''We have to send out some kind of encouragement, but there must be a full return to normality. In particular, the laws on apartheid have to be abrogated.''

In Johannesburg, South Africa, the president of the militantly hard- line Azanian People's Organization, Itumeleng Mosala, called the EC step ''disgusting.'' He said it was ''to be expected, as white people support other white people.''

Shortly before the EC announced its decision, the African National Congress was meeting near Johannesburg for its first national conference in 30 years and passed a resolution calling for the world to maintain sanctions. The ANCmeeting was possible because de Klerk unbanned the ANC last February.

ANC information chief Pallo Jordan later called the EC decision ''unfortunate ... It shows the EC is not convinced by our arguments.''

But Foreign Minister Pik Botha said the lifting of the 4-year-old investment ban was proof de Klerk's reform initiatives had paid off.

''It is positive recognition for President F.W. de Klerk's courageous steps,'' Botha said. ''It is clear that the government's viewpoint that the process of change is irreversible is beginning to enjoy wider recognition.''

Leader of South Africa's liberal Democratic Party Zach de Beer said the EC was ''plainly right'' to reward Pretoria, and leading businessman Warren Clewlow called the decision ''very good news indeed.''

NEW YORK (DEC. 16) UPI - U.S. officials withheld from Pan Am information that terrorists were planning to plant a bomb on Flight 103, which exploded over Lockerbie, Scotland, two years ago, killing 270 people, the airline charged in court documents.

The airline filed a claim Friday in U.S. District Court, seeking permission to file a third party action in the case, the financial weekly Barron's reported Saturday.

Pan Am alleged the federal government obtained but withheld information that terrorists were planning to plant a bomb on a Pan Am flight originating in either Frankfurt or London sometime in late December, 1988.

The airline also said that in 1987 the Drug Enforcement Administration and other federal agencies - in an effort to identify drug dealers - began monitoring the Pan Am baggage loading facility at Frankfurt International Airport, the location where investigators believe the bomb was brought before it was loaded onto Flight 103, Barron's said.

The Frankfurt facility's operations, ''seriously endangered Pan Am passengers, crews and aircraft; nevertheless, the United States never informed Pan Am of its existence,'' Pan Am charged.

Friday's claim was filed one week before the second anniversary of the disaster. The two-year statute of limitations for filing legal claims also expires near the time of the anniversary, Barrons said.

The Boeing 747 jet exploded over Lockerbie on a scheduled flight from London to New York at 31,000 feet. The blast killed 259 passengers and crew aboard Flight 103 and 11 people on the ground in Lockerbie.

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (DEC. 16) UPI - Soviet pressure on Angola's Marxist government remains the key to the success of peace talks and cease-fire proposals, the Angolan rebel leader Jonas Savimbi said Saturday.

Speaking on his return from Washington after the highest level of talksbetween his Movement for the Total Independence of Angola, or UNITA, and the government, Savimbi said superpower pressure remains central to a peaceful solution to the 15-year civil war which has left 600,000 dead.

The five-hours of talks Thursday were attended by representatives of the Soviet Union, which is the government's main backer, and the United States, which is UNITA's arms supplier. Angola's former colonial master, Portugal, also participated.

While the talks led to hopes a cease-fire would be signed in the next three months, Savimbi told United Press International Saturday that only Soviet pressure would force the Angolan government to move more quickly towards accepting democratic elections.

''The Soviet foreign minister, Eduard Shevardnadze agreed with us that the (government's) demand for elections to be planned within the next three years was wrong, as a cease-fire might not last that long,'' he said.

There is only one official party in Angola, the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola-Workers - known as MPLA - of President Eduardo Dos Santos.

Savimbi said the only way to ensure a succesful transition to democracy was to create unity, through the creation of a national army, in a short period of time to prevent the unity from being fractured before the holding of elections:

''We want the creation of a unique national army over the nine-month period during which the elections will be planned,'' he said. ''This would prevent people from going back to their old sides.

''There's no three years for them. I don't think they will do it, and the Soviet Union will pressure them.''

He said the success of the Washington talks was the result of an agreement by the Soviet Union and the United States to end arms supplies to the two sides if a cease-fire was signed:

''For the first time in the peace process, we made substantial progress because of United States' and Soviet involvement in the discussions,'' Savimbi said. ''The Portugese, who have hosted the first five rounds of talks, have no leverage ...''

The government did not sign a cease-fire agreement at the Washington talks, its representative at the talks giving his excuse that he did not have the authority to sign. However, Savimbi said Saturday that the talks had brought them very close to a cease-fire, which he expects to be signed by March 1991. But he repeated his demand that UNITA would only accept a cease-fire when Angola's opposition political parties were allowed to operate freely:

''The cease-fire will only be signed when the (government) gives the precise date of elections,'' he said, adding: ''This is the last chance we have of holding free and fair elections ...''

But he was pessimistic about the outcome of the MPLA's party congress held earlier this month. Though he accepted it had laid the groundwork for a multi-party system, he said the internal divisions among party leaders were threatening to hinder Dos Santos's reform program.

FOXBORO, MA (DEC. 16) UPI - Earnest Byner ran for 149 yards and one touchdown and Washington scored twice before its offense went on the field Saturday in a 25-10 victory over the bumbling New England Patriots, clinching a wild-card playoff berth for the Redskins.

Washington, 9-5, scored on New England's first two possessions. Redskins linebacker Kurt Gouviea returned Tommy Hodson's fumble for a 39-yard score and Washington added a safety when the snap by Chris Gannon sailed over the head of punter Brian Hansen and out of the end zone.

New England, 1-13, has the NFL's worst record and extended its club- record losing streak to 12 games. The Patriots have averaged less than seven points over their last five games and have dropped 15 straight games to NFC East opponents dating back to 1978.

Byner, who gave Washington a 16-0 lead early in the second quarter with a 5-yard scoring run, carried the ball a career-high 39 times. His season total of 1,031 yards rushing is a career-high. Byner becomes the first Redskins runner in four years to reach the 1,000-yard plateau.

Hodson, New England's quarterback, played despite a fractured ring finger on his throwing hand, but he had difficulty holding onto the ball in the cold, rainy weather and fumbled it away three times.

In the second quarter, the Redskins extended their lead to 19-0 on the first of Chip Lohmiller's three field goals, a 19-yarder.

New England pulled within 19-10, on John Stephens's 4-yard run at 9:30 of the third and Jason Staurovsky's 42-yard field goal at 3:52 of the fourth.

But Washington added two late scores, on field goals of 38 and 26 yards by Lohmiller.

The win was the 100th regular-season victory for Washington coach Joe Gibbs, who has 50 losses and no ties.

Art Monk extended his pass-catching streak to 114 consecutive games, fifth-longest in NFL history, with a second-quarter reception.

The Redskins defense recorded five sacks and limited the Patriots to 63 yards rushing on 22 carries.

(DEC. 15) UPI - A deadlock over proposed high-level talks between Iraq and the United States is intensifying. Iraq today reiterated its rejection of a U-S proposal to hold talks on the Persian Gulf crisis on January 3rd in Baghdad, saying Iraq alone sets appointments for its president.

The Iraqi announcement appears to jeopardize a planned meeting Monday between President Bush and Iraq's foreign minister. Bush has said the session is ''on hold'' until a meeting is worked out between Secretary of State Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

In another development, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak today blasted Arab states that accuse Egypt of profiting from its strong pro-U-S stand in the Gulf crisis. Mubarak told Parliament- ''Egypt was never a state that traded with stands.''

Army and federal investigators are probing the cause of the crash of a military helicopter near Cleveland, Texas, last night. The Huey chopper went down in thick brush in heavy fog while flying to port for shipment to Saudi Arabia. All three National Guard members aboard were killed.

A United Airlines jet made an unscheduled landing at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport today after the pilot noticed smoke in the cockpit. A United spokeswoman says flight 751 with 90 people aboard was enroute to Denver and Boise from Houston. No one was hurt.

The 12-nation European Community closing its two-day meeting in Rome today launched two landmark constitutional conventions. The goals of the conventions call for a common currency, an E-C defense role and a ''single voice'' in foreign policy.

The E-C also lifted a four-year-old ban on new investments in South Africa to reward the ''significant'' reforms made by President Frederik de Klerk. But it kept intact other sanctions, including an arms ban, pending further steps to dismantle apartheid.

In South Africa, the E-C decision drew mixed reaction. The Pretoria government the liberal opposition and business welcomed the move. But black anti-apartheid groups condemned the decision as ''unfortunate'' and ''disgusting.''

ABOARD THE USS JOHN F. KENNEDY (DEC. 15) UPI - A U.S. Navy cruiser on patrol in the Red Sea intercepted two Cypriot ships loaded with cars believed to have been stolen from Kuwait by Iraqi invaders, military officials said Saturday.

Navy and Coast Guard officers boarded the Tilia and the Dongola after they had left the Jordanian port of Aqaba and ordered the two ships to return, according to an announcement made to sailors aboard the aircraft carrier U.S.S. John F. Kennedy.

Officials in the Navy's central command station in Bahrain would not immediately confirm details of the operation.

The on-board announcement said the two ships were registered in Cyprus and were loaded with cars that officers believed were taken from Kuwait after Iraq invaded its southern neighbor Aug. 2.

The United States and its allies have boarded more than 500 ships in the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf to make sure that the vessels are not violating an international embargo aimed at forcing Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait.

(DEC. 15) UPI - Iraq today rejected a U-S proposal that Secretary of State Baker meet with President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad January 3rd. The Iraqi news agency INA quoted a foreign ministry official as saying that Iraq alone sets appointments for its president. Spokesmen for President Bush, who is spending the weekend at the Camp David, Maryland, presidential retreat, had NO immediate comment on Iraq's latest rejection. But the move apparently jeopardizes a planned meeting Monday between Bush and the Iraqi foreign minister, which Bush said was ''on hold'' until the Baker meeting was worked out.

Middle East expert Herbert Bodman of the University of North Carolina says he's NOT surprised Saddam has rejected the January 3rd date. Bodman says Saddam's main interest is holding on to Kuwait as long as he can... and the Iraqi leader will grab any chance he sees to manipulate the situation. Bodman says he doubts the two sides will be able to agree on dates... noting Bush apparently proposed the talks ''for political reasons.''

The 12-nation European Community sent a signal of support today to South African President Frederik de Klerk for his racial reforms. The E- C abolished a four-year-old ban on new investments in South Africa. New British Prime Minister John Major says there was widespread acknowledgement among community members that South Africa had made ''very positive moves'' to abolish apartheid.

PUNTARENAS, Costa Rica (DEC. 15) UPI - Costa Rican President Rafael Calderon opened a Central American summit Saturday, praising President Bush's free-trade ambitions as a potential bedrock for increased regional trade and cooperation.

Joining Calderon for the ninth regional summit were presidents Alfredo Cristiani of El Salvador, Vinicio Cerezo of Guatemala, Rafael Callejas of Honduras and Violeta Chamorro of Nicaragua.

Panamanian President Guillermo Endara is attending the two-day meeting as an observer.

Most of the leaders traveled to the Costa Rican capital of San Jose before boarding Soviet-made helicopters, on loan from Nicaragua, for the trip to the Pacific Coast port city of Puntarenas about 70 miles west of the capital.

After Calderon's opening address, the six presidents met for the first round of talks, which were expected to focus on regional violence, the environment and Central American integration into an economic bloc with the United States and Mexico.

''There are great expectations in Central America about the results of this meeting,'' Costa Rican Foreign Minister Bernard Niehaus said at the outset of the summit. ''But there will be no miracles.''

In opening remarks, Calderon said Bush's initiative for the Americas, which calls for establishing a free-trade zone in the Western Hemisphere, ''sets a foundation for a new era of cooperation and free trade in the Americas.''

The summit agenda was set Thursday and Friday by foreign and finance ministers from the countries.

High on the list of topics was the decade-old civil war in El Salvador and demilitarization of a region that has been plagued with violence for decades.

''Peace isn't just the absence of war, guerrillas or military conflict, but the development of justice and liberty,'' Calderon said.

Rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, have intensified attacks against the Salvadoran military since Nov. 20 to force the government to restructure the country's armed forces.

Rebels say negotiations have failed to achieve the military reforms.

(DEC. 15) UPI - Iraq today threw another stone in efforts to arrange high-level talks between the United States and Iraq on the Persian Gulf crisis. Baghdad canceled a meeting between Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz and President Bush Monday in Washington. Iraq also rejected a U-S proposal for a January 3rd meeting between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Secretary of State Baker in Baghdad.

Reacting to the news, the White House said it proves Iraq is NOT serious about the proposed talks. Spokesman John Herrick said from Camp David, Maryland, where Bush is spending the weekend- ''Today's public announcement is just a reaffirmation of the Iraqi unwillingness to deal seriously with the issue.''

European Community leaders today called for the completion of stalled world trade talks. But the 12-nation E-C blamed the United States as largely responsible for disarray in the talks, which collapsed in a bitter dispute between Washington and the E-C over farm subsidies. An E- C official said today- ''The U-S has asked for two much too soon.''

NEW YORK (DEC. 15) UPI - The New York Mets re-acquired outfielder Hubie Brooks in a trade Saturday, sending veteran left-hander Bob Ojeda and pitching prospect Greg Hansell to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Brooks, 34, hit .266 for Los Angeles last year with 20 homers and 91 RBI. Hewas drafted by the Mets in 1978 and played with the team through 1984, when he was traded to the Montreal Expos in the blockbuster deal that brought Gary Carter to New York.

Brooks hit in a club record 24 straight games with New York in 84. He signed with the Dodgers as a free agent last December.

Ojeda, who turns 33 Monday, was 7-6 with 3.66 ERA with the Mets last season, splitting time between the starting rotation and the bullpen. He was born in Los Angeles.

''I wanted to get traded, and on the other hand, I didn't,'' said Ojeda. ''I just didn't want to go through another year like last year. If you have to go, what better place than to go back to my home. I'll treasure my five years with the Mets, they were the quickest five years of my life.''

Hansell went 9-14 with a 3.35 ERA in 27 games with New York's farm club in Winter Haven/St. Lucie. The Mets acquired him last year in the deal that brought Mike Marshall to New York, the club said.

New York now has Vince Coleman, Kevin McReynolds and Brooks in the outfield.

''Right now I don't want to get into our outfield alignment,'' said New York Manager Bud Harrelson. ''Let's just say I'm thrilled to have a class act like Hubie back with us. He'll add a lot to our team on and off the field.''

(DEC. 16) UPI - Iraq said Saturday it was calling off a meeting between Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz and President Bush tentatively set for Monday in Washington, intensifying the deadlock over efforts to arrange high-level U.S.-Iraqi peace talks.

Information Minister Latif Nassif Jassim said the Bush-Aziz meeting would not take place due to lingering disagreement over a date for a second proposed meeting between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Secretary of State James Baker in Baghdad.

''Because of the current circumstances between Iraq and the United States, the scheduled visit by Tariq Aziz to Washington on Dec. 17 will be canceled,'' he said in an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp.

The official Iraqi news agency INA reported earlier that Iraq had rejected a proposal by Washington that Baker and Saddam meet Jan. 3, quoting a foreign ministry official as saying ''Iraq alone sets the proper appointments for its president to meet foreign officials.''

Saddam had wanted Baker to come to Baghdad Jan. 12, but Washington rejected that date as too close to the U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to withdraw its troops from Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2.

Bush had said Friday his meeting with Aziz was ''on hold'' until a date for the Baker-Saddam meeting was worked out, and a senior Iraqi official reportedly said Friday that Aziz was delaying his trip until the issue was resolved.

A spokesman for President Bush, who was spending the weekend at Camp David, Md., said Iraq's announcement Saturday canceling Aziz's trip to Washington proved Baghdad was not serious about the talks.

Bush first proposed the diplomatic exchange Nov. 30, billing it as a last chance to avert war in the Persian Gulf.

''We have communicated to the Iraqis that mutually satisfactory dates (for the high-level meetings) should be set,'' spokesman John Herrick said from the presidential retreat. ''Today's public announcement is just a reaffirmation of the Iraqi unwillingness to deal seriously with the issue.''

Jassim, for his part, said in the BBC interview that Iraq doubted Bush was serious about the meetings and only proposed them as a way to appease Congress and the international community.

In an interview published Saturday in The Washington Post, CIA chief William Webster said Saddam was expected to try to stretch out the gulf crisis. He said U.S. intelligence experts have concluded Saddam will not withdraw his troops until convinced he ''is in peril of imminent military attack.''

Middle East expert Herbert Bodman, a history professor at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, said Saturday he was not surprised Saddam had rejected the Jan. 3 date for meeting with Baker.

''After all, his main interest is holding on to Kuwait as long as he can, and any chance he sees to manipulate this situation, he'll grab,'' Bodman said.

Bodman said he doubted the two sides would agree on dates, noting Bush apparently proposed the talks ''for political reasons,'' and ''I don't think either side was sincere about this from the very beginning.''

As prospects for the peace talks diminished, U.S. Navy forces in the gulf region continued to enforce a U.N. embargo imposed against Iraq.

A Navy cruiser on patrol in the Red Sea Saturday intercepted two Cypriot ships loaded with cars believed to have been stolen from Kuwait by Iraqi invaders, and the two vessels were ordered to return to their port of origin.

Democratic congressional leaders said Saturday American taxpayers were being asked to pay for more than 70 percent of Operation Desert Shield while other countries taking part in the U.S.-led multinational military force arrayed against Iraq had put up less than 30 percent.

''The world is used to the United States being the only one, the leader, the only one capable of putting this many people on the ground and therefore the only one capable of paying for it,'' House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri said. ''And of that, they have only come up with a fraction of what they have pledged. The world has changed.''

A contingent of seven U.S. senators touring the gulf said Saturday Saddam seems more interested in shaping international opinion than holding talks with U.S. leaders.

''The way (the talks) have been treated by Hussein, he seems more directed toward manipulating the event and attempting to drive a wedge between the allies,'' Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (DEC. 15) UPI - Former President Jimmy Carter Saturday congratulated interim President Ertha Pascal-Trouillot for bringing Haiti to the door of democratic elections that pit a populist priest against a former World Bank economist.

The streets of downtown Port-au-Prince were unusually quiet with little traffic and few pedestrians as Haitians prepared for Sunday's election, the third in four years as the impoverished Caribbean nation seeks democracy in the wake of the 29-year Duvalier dictatorship.

Two policemen patrolled the central plaza with hands resting on their guns. A ban on sale of alcohol took effect at 9 p.m. Saturday, an overnight curfew was imposed and the government announced cars would be prohibited from the streets of the capital on Sunday.

Gasoline stations also were ordered closed on election day, a move that some said was to prevent extremists from making homemade bombs and molotov cocktails.

A ban on campaigning 24 hours before the polls open at 6 a.m. Sunday kept 11 presidential candidates out of public. Some 2.7 million people are eligible to vote Sunday to elect a president, a two-chamber Congress and hundreds of local officials.

Among the leading presidential candidates is Jean-Bertrand Aristide, a fiery 37-year-old priest expelled from the Catholic Salesian order in 1988 for pursuing populist political activities. He has drawn huge support from rural voters.

Aristide's main competition is Marc Bazin, a former World Bank economist whose support comes mainly from Haiti's middle class and the far right.

On Feb. 7, the winner will succeed Pascal-Trouillot, a supreme court judge who has led the country since March.

Carter, who is among the international observers present to monitor the election, said a registration of 80 percent to 85 percent of eligible voters was higher than expected. Observers expected the turnout to be high.

But Tonton Macoutes' leader Roger Lafontaine, whose presidential bid was turned down by the country's Electoral Council, called early Saturday on his supporters to abstain from voting.

The Tonton Macoutes, a group of thugs loyal to former dictator Jean- Claude ''Baby Doc'' Duvalier, have been blamed for most of the atrocities in Haiti in the past few decades. Duvalier fled to France on a U.S. Air Force plane in February, 1986, ending nearly 30 years of dictatorship by the Duvalier family.

Pascal-Trouillot was a high-level official in Duvalier's government and is seen by many Haitians as a puppet of the former dictatorship.

Carter Saturday endorsed government preparations for this weekend's elections and said he was not worried about the possibility of violence.

''Our delegation has just congratulated President Ertha Pascal- Trouillot on her wonderful leadership in bringing this nation to the eve of what we fully expect to be a successful demonstration of freedom and democracy,'' Carter told reporters.

Carter met with Pascal-Trouillot Saturday, hours before what observers hoped would be Haiti's first democratic election in more than 30 years.

The last two attempts at free elections during the past four years were thwarted by violence, as in November 1987, when 34 people were shot and hacked to death by gunmen in attacks on polling stations.

''I am not concerned about the possibility of violence,'' Carter said. ''I think that if there is violence it will be very minimal and localized.''

But former Texas congressman Jim Wright said he was not so certain that calm would prevail.

''I don't think the United States can say with any certainty if the election will or won't be peaceful,'' Wright said. ''I think the army and the government are doing their honest best to guarantee an election free of violence and free of intimidation.''

Aristide, whose supporters are calling him the ''people's candidate'' in this weekend's presidential election, addressed a crowd of 3,000 chanting and dancing voters Friday, predicting victory.

''I will be president at 10 a.m. Sunday, even before the vote,'' Aristide confidently told the crowd. Aristide presented a bouquet of flowers to his followers and said, ''These flowers are for all of Haiti. We all have to take the country for all.''

(DEC. 15) UPI - Iraq today canceled a meeting between the Iraqi foreign minister and President Bush Monday in Washington. Iraq's information minister says the meeting was being called off because of- quote- ''current circumstances'' between Iraq and the United States. But James Grogan, a former close associate of Keating, repeatedly defended Keating's philosophy of funneling huge contributions to key public officials. Grogan says Keating neither demanded nor sought action in return for the contributions.

South African authorities freed another batch of political prisoners today. A Justice Ministry official says 27 were freed from the country's Alcatraz, Robben Island Prison off Cape Town. A princess of Thailand has resigned as a special ambassador of the World Health Organization. She resigned because a law bars people infected with AIDS from entering Thailand. The princess, a trained chemist, quit because WHO refused to support a conference on AIDS that begins Monday in Bangkok because of the law barring AIDS victims. Despite the five-year-old law, there are cases of AIDS in Thailand.

PORT-AU-PRINCE (DEC. 16) - Voting began under tight security Sunday in Haiti's first free presidential and parliamentary elections since the ouster of dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier in February 1986.

Turnout was relatively high and queues had formed before polling stations opened at 06:00 am. Many people said they feared violence and prefered to vote early.

The election is for a president, 27 senators, 83 national assembly deputies, 402 mayors and rural officials. Some 800 international observers, including former U.S. president Jimmy Carter are to supervise the elections.

The candidate expected to win the presidential poll is populist priest Father Aristide, 37 known as the "hero of the shanty-towns" and an exponent of "liberation theology". His main rival is centrist Marc Bazin, 58.

Polling centres have been set up in all kinds of buildings including schools, universities, post offices, night clubs and lottery centres. The vote closes at 06:00 pm.

About 6,000 soldiers have been deployed to deter violence amid fears of a repetition of the bloodshed which marred the last abortive elections in November 1987. On that occasion, Duvalier supporters attacked polling centres shooting and hacking 34 voters to death.

BEIRUT (DEC. 16) - Palestinian guerrillas clashed Sunday with an Israeli force in a frontier region in southern Lebanon, security sources said here. Unconfirmed reports from Israel said three guerrillas were killed in the shoot-out.

A squad of Palestinian fighters from the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine (Dflp) attacked an Israeli military patrol near Sarid in the western sector of the security zone, wounding two Israeli soldiers, the sources said.

A dflp spokeman told the German Press Agency dpa by telephone that ''our force intended to attack the (Israeli) settlement of Sarid''.

He added: ''The enemy sent reinforcements of troops and arms to battle ground and we don't have immediate information about the whereabouts of our fighters.''

Radio reports, monitored in Beirut, quoted unofficial Israeli reports as saying that there was a 25-minute firefight during which three guerrillas were killed while trying to sneak into Israel.

After Israel withdrew the bulk of its troops from Lebanon in 1985, it established the security zone to prevent cross-border attacks. The buffer zone is patrolled by Israeli troops and their surrogates, the South Lebanon Army.

TEHERAN (DEC. 16) - Iranian newspapers on Sunday blasted what they called Moscow's change of policy on the Gulf and accused Soviet officials of seeking to redraw the map of the region at the expense of Iraq.

The condemnation came a day after a last-minute announcement that a planned visit to Moscow by Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, due to start Saturday, was being postponed.

Iranian newspapers maintained that Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze had said Friday in Ankara that Iraq's territorial integrity was not absolutely guaranteed.

Jomhouri Islami daily, considered close to Moslem religious hardliners, strongly criticized what it called the change of Soviet policy and said it was a concession to the West.

"Moscow is seeking a solution to its own political and social problems and hopes to obtain in return long-term credits from NATO," it said, accusing what it called the "oppression front" of aiming to "swallow the wealth of the Moslem world".

"It's true the regime in Baghdad has committed a serious mistake by occupying Kuwait," it said. "But we can't punish this aggression by carving up Iraq, since we would be punishing the Iraqi people unfairly."

It said the statements attributed to Mr. Shevardnadze amounted to "a green light" for a an attack on the northern Iraqi oil fields of Kirkuk in the Kurdistan region.

"Any geographic change in the region will be to the detriment of the Moslem world," Jomhouri Islamic insisted. "We must prevent the division of Iraq, just like that of Kuwait."

Another newspaper Abrar, said Mr. Shevardnadze's statements in Turkey "contradicted earlier declarations by Soviet leaders" and were a reflection of the amount of pressure being exerted on Moscow by the West.

LONDON (DEC. 16) - At least 100 people were killed in two days of rioting in the Moroccan town of Fez, according to a Moroccan doctor quoted Sunday by the BBC.

The doctor, whose name was not given, said the real toll of the clashes Friday and Saturday "ought to be 100 dead and 200 injured" rather than the toll given by the authorities of five dead and 127 injured.

He said his tally was based on a count of bodies at mortuaries and hospitals in the northern Moroccan town.

DOHA (DEC. 16) - Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati left here Sunday afternoon after a brief stopover and talks with officials on the unfolding Gulf crisis, correspondents said.

He held talks with Qatar's ruler, Sheikh Khalifa bin Hamad al-Thani, and delivered a message from President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani on the situation in the Gulf following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait, the official Qatar News Agency said.

It said the message focused "on means of ensuring peace and security in the Gulf and of avoiding a repetition of the (Iraqi) aggression through mutual understanding between the region's countries."

Mr. Velayati arrived in the Qatari capital on a previously unannounced visit a week ahead of a Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) summit here on the Gulf crisis.

The summit of the GCC -- which groups Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates -- will open in Doha on Saturday.

In another development, Sheikh Khalifa met with Oman's minister of state for foreign affairs, Youssef ben Alawi, on action being taken by the GCC over the crisis, the news agency reported.

The two men also discussed means of expanding cooperation between the GCC's six members, the agency said.

ATHENS (DEC. 16) - Sixty-five convicts were still at large on Sunday following the biggest prison breakout in the history of the Greek republic, police said.

Eighty-one prisoners escaped overnight from Korydallos penitentiary in the port city of Piraeus, adjacent to Athens.

The breakout began when three guards, who were preparing to lock the prisoners in their cells for the night, were accosted by a group of convicts armed with a knife.

The prisoners overpowered the guards, locked them in a cell and fled through the prison's kitchen.

Eight convicts were captured by police near the prison, two of them after being injured by police gunfire, and eight others were arrested early Sunday.

Several prisoners escaped from Korydallos in October and November during prison protests to demand better living conditions.

The protests ended in mid-November after authorities announced prison reform. A draft law is due to be put forward this week.

Korydallos is the largest penitentiary in the country, with a capacity of 1,245 prisoners.

JOHANNESBURG (DEC. 16) - African National Congress (Anc) leaders were given authority here Sunday to continue negotiations with South Africa's white-minority government, but told to check back all major decisions with the organisation's rank and file.

Winding up a three-day consultative congress in the Nasrec exhibition centre here, the 1,600 delegates threatened to break off the negotiations if Pretoria did not release all political prisoners by April 30 and abolish emergency-powers laws.

Earlier the conference had demanded international sanctions against South Africa remain in place, although Anc president Oliver Tambo had earlier called for that policy to be reviewed.

Thabo Mbeki, foreign policy spokesman for the Anc, said the anti-apartheid organisation's position was ''unchanged''.

The European Community decided Saturday at a summit in Rome to immediately lift a ban on business investment in South Africa and to lift sporting and other economic sanctions as soon as apartheid laws were abolished and political prisoners freed.

White South African newspapers welcomed the decision Sunday. The biggest-circulation paper Sunday Times called the decision ''the biggest accolade yet'' for South African President Frederik de Klerk.

BEIRUT (DEC. 16) - Algerian President Chadli Bendjedid arrived here unexpectedly Sunday and met his Lebanese counterpart, Elias Hrawi.

Mr. Chadli, the first foreign head of state to visit Lebanon since 1983, arrived from Damascus, where he met President Hafez al-Assad to discuss the situation in the Gulf.

The Algerian leader was met at the Syrian-Lebanese border by Lebanese Prime Minister Selim al-Hoss and travelled overland under heavy security to Beirut. The Beirut-Damascus highway was closed to all other traffic.

Mr. Chadli joined King Fahd of Saudi Arabia and King Hassan II of Morocco last year in drafting an Arab League plan to end Lebanon's lingering internal strife.

The accord, approved by the Lebanese parliament in Taif, Saudi Arabia in October 1989, allowed for the election of President Hrawi in November of that year and granted greater political power to the country's Moslem community.

Before Lebanon, Mr. Chadli had visited Jordan, Iraq, Iran, Oman and Syria.

RIYADH (DEC. 16) - Philippine Finance Minister Jesus Estanislao met here Sunday with Saudi Crown Prince Abdallah bin Abdel Aziz to discuss the damage done to the Philippines economy by the Gulf crisis.

Official sources here said Mr. Estanislao, who arrived Saturday, also met with Saudi Finance Minister Mohammad Abal-Khail.

Mr. Estanislao said his country was in "urgent need" of an estimated one billion dollars to overcome losses sustained by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2, which deprived hundreds of thousands of Filipino workers of their jobs in the Gulf.

Surging oil prices and the loss of remittances from the Gulf in the aftermath of the crisis have left the Philippines with a balance of payments deficit of around 2.5 billion dollars, according to the minister.

NAIROBI (DEC. 16) - The Somali Government -- fighting three rebel armies -- called on the opposition Sunday to negotiate to avoid a "bloodbath," Radio Mogadishu said in a broadcast monitored here.

"The opposition should view peace negotiations as a way of averting a bloodbath in the country," the state-run Somali radio said, quoting the Information Ministry.

"The government is repeating its call to the opposition inside and outside the country, especially those involved in fighting, to take part in negotiations," it said.

Opposition movements refused to take part in round-table talks with the government that were scheduled for December 12 in Cairo after several of their leaders were arrested.

The Information Ministry denied what it called foreign press reports that rebel troops were 50 kilometers (30 miles) from the capital.

An Agence France-Presse reporter was, however, with rebel troops of the Congress of Unified Somalia in early December that distance from Magadishu and also reported that armed rebel troops were in the capital itself.

(More than 50 foreigners were evacuated from Mogadishu to Nairobi last week, diplomats in the Kenyan capital said.)

The ministry acknowledged that clashes were taking part in some parts of the country, and that "armed bandits" were operating -- a term it uses to describe members of the rebel movements controlling parts of northern, central and southern Somalia.

ABU DHABI (DEC. 16) - The United Arab Emirates is to send emergency food aid to the Soviet Union, the official WAM news agency reported here Sunday.

It said the decision by head of state Zayed bin Sultan al-Nahayan was aimed at "alleviating the suffering our friends the Soviet people are undergoing because of food shortages."

The agency did not say how much assistance would be sent.

Sheikh Zayed hailed "Moscow's honorable position on several issues," notably its rejection of the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait and its "total support" for an unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from the emirate and the restoration of legitimate Kuwaiti government.

BUCHAREST (DEC. 16) - Tens of thousands of Romanians demonstrated peacefully Sunday to mark the first anniversary of the violent revolution which toppled the communist regime of the late Nicolae Ceausescu.

Demonstrators in Bucharest and other cities protested against the policies of President Ion Iliescu and charged he was too slow in implementing political and economic reforms.

Opposition groups complain that former communists are members of Iliescu's ruling National Salvation Front.

The largest march was reported from Timisoara, about 400 kilometres east of the capital, where the revolution was ignited on December 16 last year.

Tens of thousands of marchers there shouted slogans such as ''down with Iliescu'' and ''down with communism''.

Several thousand people demonstrated in Bucharest and chanted slogans against rising prices and the slow pace of reforms.

They marched to the Soviet embassy and demanded ''reunification'' with former Romanian territories now part of the Soviet Union. Police were deployed to prevent riots.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 16) - Iraq Sunday called on Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak to reconsider his pro-U.S. policy on the Gulf crisis.

Taha Yassin Ramadan, Iraq's first deputy premier, accused Mubarak of toeing the U.S. policy line and repeating Washington's argument on the Gulf crisis since this crisis broke out on August 2, when Iraqi troops invaded neighbouring Kuwait.

Ramadan was replying to Mubarak's speech Saturday at the newly-elected People's Assembly (Parliament) in which he warned Iraq against ''untold horrors'' in the Gulf region if war was necessary to drive Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

''We tell the president of the Egyptian regime that it is the Arab will, rather than America's will, which will emerge victorious. The Arab nation has the power and solid will to confront the U.S.-Zionist design,'' Ramadan said in a statement to the Iraqi News Agency (Ina).

Ramadan, a member of the Iraqi Revolutionary Command Council, the country's highest policy-making authority, urged Mubarak to reconsider his stance on the Gulf crisis, saying that this stance was ''subservient'' to America.

He called on Mubarak to take a stand reflecting ''the genuine attitude of the Egyptian people who have always been at the vanguard of the struggle against colonialist and Zionist designs.''

Egypt has sent about 30,000 troops to Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates (Uae) to join the U.S.-led 300,000-strong multinational force deployed in the Gulf to deter a new Iraqi assault.

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (DEC. 16) - A group of newly arrived U.S. Marines expressed fears here of poison gas and said they did not fully understand their mission in Saudi Arabia -- but stressed they were ready to fight anyway.

Standing outside a port warehouse, which was serving as a makeshift dormitory, five Marines who arrived this past week from Camp Lejeune, Georgia said they worried most about "gas."

"It's scares me. You don't know what (Iraqi President Saddam) Hussein might do " said Lance Corporal Robert Reid from New York.

He said he was not sure how effective his gas mask -- carried in a canvas bag strapped to his waist -- would be.

Corporal Reid was among a group of Marines who arrived several days early to help unload thousands of tanks, armored vehicles and artillery from ships at a Saudi port.

As many as ten planeloads of fellow Marines were due to arrive here Monday, the first of some 200,000 reinforcements ordered to the Gulf last month by U.S. President George Bush.

The order to deploy additional ground troops was seen as giving an offensive capability to the multinational forces opposing Iraq's occupation of Kuwait.

Marines -- one of the U.S. military's four branches along with the army, navy and airforce -- would be expected to be in the thick of the heaviest fighting and take the heaviest losses.

Lance Corporal Adam Cleveland said he had learned from his training -- which included decontamination exercises -- that poison gas "is a horrible way to die."

"If you're hit with it, it's a slow death," he added. "Nobody wants to die, but it's better if you go quickly."

While members of the group warned that Saddam Hussein would be making a mistake if he unleashed a chemical attack, they were not quite sure how they would respond or how well they would be able to fight in their protective gear. Some seemed to imply that the United States could resort to nuclear weapons, but others said such a response would threaten the lives of allied troops, harm innocent civilians and anger the Arab world.

There was likewise some apparent uncertainty over their mission here.

"It's a politicians' war," noted Lance Corporal Chad Whitworth of Georgia, his gun strapped over his shoulder.

But Lance Corporal Michael Brook of Florida declared: "I don't believe we're fighting for oil. I think we're fighting because he (Saddam Hussein) invaded another country."

The group maintained they were less well-treated than the other branches of the U.S. military.

"The Marine Corps is considered the toughest, so they do without the most," Corporal Cleveland argued.

They also complained about having to work with female soldiers, saying their small numbers created rivalry and jealousy and that they did not pull as much weight as male troops.

They said there was a lack of privacy, as the women shared the same bathroom and shower facilities and slept under the same roof.

But one female Marine, Linda Junejack, insisted that most women did do their fair share of work and that relations between the sexes were good, despite some difficulties.

Most members of the advance team seemed to accept their lot.

"The best way to keep our morale up is to have people back home support us," one Marine pointed out. "We don't want another Vietnam, where we come back home and people hate us."

TIMISOARA, Romania (DEC. 16) - Timisoara, where the uprising that toppled Romanian dictator Nicolae Ceausescu began, marked the revolt's first anniversary Sunday with an anti-government demonstration that drew 10,000 people.

Meanwhile, some 30,000 university students seeking the resignation of President Ion Iliescu continued a week-long strike backed by workers at the city's largest factories.

About 10,000 people, mainly students and workers, crowded into Opera Square here and chanted slogans for several hours calling on the president to step down.

Hundreds of people gathered earlier outside the Protestant church of Laslo Tokes, the ethnic Hungarian priest at the centre of a revolt that began exactly a year ago and spread nationwide, toppling the Ceausescu regime on December 22.

Waving flags with the national emblem cut out -- souvenirs of December 1989 -- columns of demonstrators marched through Timisoara to sites where troops last year shot and killed 147 anti-Ceausescu demonstators, by official count.

They kneeled and observed a minute of silence as security forces looked on.

Demonstrators also carried a red flag emblazoned with the Albanian eagle that read: "Albanian students, we're with you" -- a reference to violent anti-communist demonstrations last week in Eastern Europe's last hardline Stalinist state.

"This is the year of lies, we've just lived through, nothing has changed since the revolution," a medical student, Gheorghe Radu, told a reporter. He said most students felt the same way at Timisoara University, where some 30,000 have been on strike for a week.

Workers backing their demand for the government to resign have also gone on strike in the city's largest factories.

Since the fall of Ceausescu, enthusiasm has given way to disappointment as an economic crisis bites, along with acute social problems.

PRETORIA (DEC. 16) - The United States is preparing investment and aid policy for South Africa, U.S. ambassador William Swing told 63 black businessmen here Sunday, state-run television reported.

Mr. Swing told the businessmen, just back from the United States, that the U.S. embassy here was putting together a post-sanctions approach to help South Africa's flagging economy.

But he warned that no significant investment would return unless there was an end to the country's worst ever political violence, which has claimed more than 1,000 black lives around Johannesburg since August alone.

He said several U.S. entrepreneurs were to visit South Africa next year, kicking off with a party from New York and New Jersey set to visit in April.

His remarks came the day after the 12-nation European Community voted in Rome to lift a four-year-old voluntary investment ban and promised to rescind bans on imports of iron, steel and gold coins if the South African parliament next year repealed two key apartheid laws as promised.

VIENNA (DEC. 16) - Austria's socialist chancellor Franz Vranitsky and conservative party chief Josef Riegler agreed here Sunday on a justice minister, the last obstacle to the two ruling parties forming a new coalition government.

The minister would be Nikolaus Michalek, currently president of the chamber of Austrian notaries.

The coalition, following on general elections in October, was threatened Friday when the conservatives rejected socialist candidate Otto Oberhammer as justice minister.

The conservatives said Mr. Oberhammer was close to businessman Udo Proksch, a former protege of socialist leaders, who is on trial for murder and insurance fraud. The "cargo Lucona" case in which Mr. Proksch is implicated is one of the biggest scandals in Austria since Second World War.

Mr. Oberhammer stepped down as a candidate for the ministry but demanded the parties issue a statement that he was not implicated in the Proksch affair.

The new government of Mr. Vranitsky, the outgoing chancellor of the previous administration, will be officially announced Monday.

Observers said the mini-crisis over the new coalition was a bad omen for the new government and its completing its four-year term.

In general elections in October, the socialists won 80 of 183 seats in parliament while the conservatives took 60 seats.

The two other parties are the liberals of Joerg Haider with 33 seats and the ecologists with 10 seats.

The new coalition will seek to reform the electoral system as well as the deficit-ridden state medical insurance and to privatize state firms, mainly in the banking industry.

In foreign affairs, the new government will aim to get Austria into the European Community (EC).

DUBLIN (DEC. 16) - Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey said Sunday that he hoped to hold a "substantive" meeting with Britain's new prime minister, John Major, early next year.

"I am certain he will show a very keen interest in Anglo-Irish affairs and Northern Ireland," Mr. Haughey said in an interview with an Irish radio station following his return from the European Community summit in Rome.

"I like all I see about him," Mr. Haughey said of Mr. Major, whom he met briefly in the Italian capital.

Mr. Haughey said that Mr. Major, who replaced Margaret Thatcher last month, "is very capable and has a very good grasp of political matters."

The Irish prime minister did not say when or where the two would hold talks but said he hoped for a "substantive New Year meeting."

BUDAPEST (DEC. 16) - Hungarian Prime Minister Jozsef Antall was reelected head of the troubled center-right Democratic Forum (MDF) here Sunday despite strong criticism of his conservative government at a party congress.

Mr. Antall, 58, sole candidate for the chairmanship, won 908 of the 948 votes cast.

Accepting a new term, Mr. Antall, who is undergoing chemotherapy treatment for cancer and was visibly weak, called on the party to unite. He warned that "1991 will be a difficult year."

One of his close advisers, former interior minister Balasz Horvath, was elected to the party presidium and given the task of reorganizing the MDF and bringing it more into line with the prime minister's policies.

The party swept Hungary's first free elections last spring but suffered a crushing defeat in local elections in October. Its standing has sunk in the public eye at a time when the country is going through serious economic difficulties.

Some MDF militants blamed the government for introducing economic reforms too slowly. Mr. Antall was also criticised for appointing Mihaly Kupa as finance minister. Mr. Kupa worked for the former communist government.

CAIRO (DEC. 16) - Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak received his Algerian counterpart Chadli Bendjedid here Sunday evening for talks concentrating on the Gulf crisis.

Benjedid, who was welcomed at the airport by Mubarak, flew in from Beirut for a one-day visit.

Egypt's Mena news agency reported that the talks covered latest developments in the Gulf region and prospects for a peaceful solution to the crisis.

Earlier Sunday in Damascus, Benjedid was apparently persuaded to give up his efforts to promote an Arab solution to the Gulf crisis. The Syrians told him it was better to wait and see if Iraq responded to pressure from the U.N. Security Council to withdraw from Kuwait.

Benjedid and Syrian President Hafez Assad felt Kuwait should be returned to the hands of its legal rulers if the Middle East was to be spared a devastating tragedy, said the official, who declined to be identified.

His several-hour visit to Lebanon was the first by an Arab head of state to that country since the start of the Lebanese civil war in 1975.

Benjedid, who travelled to Lebanon in a heavily-guarded motorcade from Syria, was met by Lebanon's Prime Minister Salim al-Hoss at the town of Chtaura, 35 kilometres along the Beirut-Damascus highway east of Beirut.

He held talks with Hoss, President Elias Hrawi and House Speaker Hussein Husseini on the situation in Lebanon and the Middle East.

Officials said his visit was aimed at expressing Arab support for the Lebanese government and its measures to establish peace.

Algeria is a member of a tripartite Arab Committee on Lebanon that helped work out a reconciliation accord endorsed by Lebanese lawmakers in October last year in Taif, Saudi Arabia.

Benjedid has visited Jordan, Iraq, Iran, Oman and Syria in an attempt to find a solution to the Gulf crisis, triggered by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

LONDON (DEC. 17) - British manufacturing output is expected to drop during the first four months of 1991 at a rate unequalled for 10 years, the Confederation of British Industry (CBI) said in a report published Monday.

Some 44 per cent of 1,361 company chairmen questioned by the employers' body between November 23 and December 12 said their production volume would dip more over the four-month period than they had expected at the start of November. Only 14 per cent forecast an increase.

Official figures published on Friday showed that manufacturing output dropped by 0.9 per cent in September.

David Wigglesworth, chairman of the CBI's economic situation committee, said: "Businesses are facing up to a tough New Year as they struggle to overcome the problems of recession.

"The disciplines imposed by UK membership of the Exchange Rate Mechanism are clearly beginning to bite and will result in significantly higher job losses unless companies manage to keep increases in unit costs down to two or three per cent."

KUALA LUMPUR (DEC. 17) - Malaysia will hold talks with its Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) partners on how to enhance the region's bargaining power in international trade, news reports said Monday.

The cabinet has asked International Trade and Industry Minister Rafidah Aziz to discuss trade cooperation with Brunei, Indonesia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand in order to reach a consensus, the reports said.

"We in this part of the world should cooperate to enhance our bargaining power so that we will not be ignored in international trade negotiations," Ms. Rafidah was quoted as saying.

Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad last week proposed an Asia-Pacific trading bloc to help countries in the region cope with an eventual failure in the Uruguay Round of multi-lateral trade negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The proposal received a cautious response from Chinese Premier Li Peng who was here on a visit last week, while Japanese officials in Tokyo said they viewed regional groupings as a move towards protectionism.

MOSCOW (DEC. 16) EFE - Afghan rebels have launched a massive offensive in southern Afghanistan, killing at least 16 civilians and wounding dozens others over the past 48 hours, the Soviet news agency TASS reported Sunday.

TASS said Moslem rebels fighting the communist government of President Najibullah had fired more than 240 missiles on the city of Kandahar, killing mostly women and children.

Rival Moslem guerrilla factions based in neighboring Pakistan have been fighting to oust the Soviet-backed government in Kabul since Soviet troops invaded the country in 1979.

But the U.S.-backed rebels have been unable to press home their advantage despite the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan last year.

Earlier this week, the Soviet Union and the United States announced an agreement to cut off weapons to the warring sides in a bid to end the 12-year-old civil war.

JOHANNESBURG (DEC. 16) EFE - The anti-apartheid African National Congress (ANC) said Sunday it might break off talks with the government on ending white-only rule unless key reforms were introduced before next April.

ANC delegates at a major conference conditioned the continuance of negotiations with the government of President F.W. de Klerk to the freeing of all political prisoners, the repeal of repressive security laws and an end to state-orchestrated factional violence in black townships.

The ANC conference also approved a resolution calling for mass protests to push the government into meeting its demands.

"Our patience is running out with this regime," read the resolution which was passed on the final day of the ANC's first official conference in South Africa in 30 years.

"We demand that the regime lift all obstacles so that real negotiations can be held without delay," the resolution continued.

The ANC has claimed that security forces have fanned clashes this year between the ANC and its main rival, the Zulu-based Inkatha movement, in townships mainly in the Johannesburg area in an effort to dictate the pace of reforms.

Some 1,000 people have died in the clashes.

The ANC opened talks on ending white-only rule after de Klerk legalized the anti-apartheid organization in February and freed a number of its leaders, including Vice President Nelson Mandela.

On Saturday, the ANC called on the international community to maintain sanctions against South Africa until the apartheid system was totally dismantled.

SHELTON, Conn. (DEC. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - The Forschner Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: FSNR), the exclusive United States distributor of the original Victorinox Swiss Army knife, has filed suit against a competitor for false and misleading advertising.

Forschner and its Swiss Army Brands, Ltd. subsidiary asked the U.S. District Court of Connecticut for an injunction against the advertising practices of Michael Carroll of Monroe, Conn., a direct marketer of knives manufactured by Wenger in Switzerland. The other defendants are distributing the knives promoted by Carroll in the contested advertising and promotion.

Victorinox, the manufacturer of the Swiss Army knife distributed by Forschner, started supplying knives to the Swiss Army in 1891 and is the only company that has been a continuous supplier to the Swiss Army since that date. Wenger became a second supplier in 1908. The 100th anniversary, which Forschner is planning to commemorate, is central to Forschner's legal action against the defendants.

The suit asserts that five specific advertising claims by the defendants are false:

1. The representation that the knife offered by the defendants is the official 100th anniversary Swiss Army Knife.

2. The representation that the offered knife is made by "the maker of the true Swiss Army knife."

3. The representation that "relatively few outside of the Swiss Armed forces can claim to have ever seen this remarkable knife."

4. The representation that Swiss Master Cutlers banded together in 1891 to provide the army with the pocket knife.

5. The representation that officials in Switzerland have authorized the defendants' special 100th anniversary issue.

In addition, the suit asserts that promotion of a Swiss Collector's Guild which would authenticate a knife's purchase is misleading because it implies Swiss government sanction of the guild when in fact the guild is part of the defendants' organization.

Forschner is asking the court for an injunction against the false and misleading advertising and for recovery of legal costs from the defendants. The action was filed under the Trademark Act of 1946.

NEW YORK (DEC. 16) UPI - An Islamic fundamentalist once linked to the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was discovered living in a mosque where the suspect in the murder of Rabbi Meir Kahane worshiped, a published report said Sunday.

The New York Times report said Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman entered the United illegally.

The presence of Abdel-Rahman was discovered during the investigation of the assassination in Manhattan last month of Rabbi Meir Kahane, a militant Zionist the Times reported.

The suspect charged in the Kahane shooting, El Sayyid Nosair, worshipped in the Brooklyn mosque where Abdel-Rahman was found, the Times said.

But investigators said they believe the Kahane suspect acted alone in killing the militant whose anti-Arab party was banned in Israel as racist, and that the sheik's presence in New York is likely unrelated to the Nov. 5 slaying.

Abdel-Rahman, 52, who is blind and in ill health, was believed to have entered the United States more than five months ago after he obtained a visa from a consul in the U.S. Embassy in Khartoum, Sudan, despite a State Department ban on such a visit, the Times said.

Abdel-Rahman was widely regarded in Egypt as a spiritual leader of several radical underground Islamic extremist groups, the newspaper said.

He was tried on charges of inciting Sadat's 1981 assassination but was released because of a lack of evidence, the Times said.

State Department experts suggested the sheik, after being frequently detained without trial despite never being convicted, may have fled Egypt out of fear of further arrests, the Times said.

''He's like an Ayatollah Khomeini,'' one expert told the Times. ''He's been known for rather fiery sermons in the past.''

The sheik reportedly has denounced Kahane's assassination, saying it would bring trouble to the Moslem community, the newspaper said.

#90350u0186 12/16/1990 ~United Press International
JERUSALEM (DEC. 16) UPI - Defense Minister Moshe Arens indicated Sunday that deportation orders for four Palestinians could be the start of harsher measures to quell increasing Arab violence within Israel's pre-1967 borders.

The four residents of the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip received deportation orders Saturday night, as the military arrested hundreds of Palestinians suspected of membership in an outlawed Islamic group. The military accused the four of incitement and other illegal activities.

In a leaflet distributed Sunday, the Moslem group, the Islamic Fundamentalist Movement, praised the fatal stabbings Friday of three Jews in the Israeli town of Jaffa near Tel Aviv as a ''heroic operation.''

Known by its Arabic acronym Hamas, the group also called for a two- day strike to protest the mass arrests of its followers in the Israeli- occupied territories.

Army Radio reported Hamas claimed responsibility for the slayings, but the leaflet did not specifically acknowledge the movement's direct involvement in the attack.

''We will continue the Jihad (Holy War) until all Palestine will be returned to Islam from the river to the sea,'' the Hamas leaflet said.

Since Friday night, Israeli security forces arrested approximately 900 Palestinians suspected of being Hamas activists in the Israeli- occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, Palestinian sources said.

The Oct. 8 slayings of at least 17 Palestinians by Israeli police on Islam's third holiest site in Jerusalem's Old City unleashed a wave of stabbings by Arabs against Jews.

''I think the deportations that were decided yesterday are not the last deportations,'' Defense Minister Moshe Arens said, implying more Palestinians could be deported as part of the crackdown on violence that has erupted within Israel's pre-1967 borders, which have been relatively quiet during the Palestinian uprising.

Since the start of the Palestinian uprising in December 1987, 58 Palestinians have been deported from the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, according to statistics released by the army spokesman. The last deportations took place more than a year ago.

On the possible negative political fallout after the U.S. condemnation of the deportations, Arens told Army Radio he greatly valued relations with the United States but hoped they would understand the Israeli position.

''Also in the United States they understand that if they were faced with similar phenomena in the cities of the United States, they would also use all possible measures,'' Arens said.

Palestinian leader Faisal Husseini condemned the deportation orders and said the Palestinian leadership would demand that the United Nations and the United States pressure Israel to cancel the orders.

In recent weeks, Israeli newspapers have reported the military was leaning to more widespread use of deportations, the most severe punishment available to Israeli authorities against Palestinians in the occupied territories.

''Expulsion is not a general policy, but a measure of last resort,'' the Foreign Ministry wrote in a January briefing paper that was reissued Sunday.

Several government ministers from Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's right-wing Likud Party have voiced their support for the death penalty, including Arens and Police Minister Roni Milo. Despite the calls, Shamir said international factors also should be taken into account when one talks about taking more serious measures in the occupied territories.

''One has to see the entire picture. The people of Israel face greater dangers from the outside than a war of knives,'' Shamir said during the weekly government meeting.

Israeli authorities, invoking emergency regulations originally established under the British Mandate in 1945 to combat the Jewish rebellion, have deported approximately 1,000 Palestinians from the territories since 1967.

The four who received deportation orders Saturday night were Fadal Za'abut, 34 Ahmed Al Almi, 34, Mustafa Lidoy, 26, and Mustafa Knuah, 45, residents of Gaza City and Jabalia refugee camp, the army spokesman said. They were accused of incitement, formulating Hamas leaflets and mobilizing activists in violent operations, the army spokesman said.

While Israel's Supreme Court has never thrown out a deportation order, the four Palestinians appealed their expulsions.

GDANSK, Poland (DEC. 16) UPI - President-elect Lech Walesa pledged Sunday to use his office to fulfill the demands of fellow shipyard workers killed by communist police 20 years ago.

Walesa laid a wreath at a monument to fallen shipyard workers in Gdansk whose protests over higher food prices led security forces to open fire on Dec. 16, 1970, on orders from communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. More than 50 were killed, according to the official count.

The deaths, which occurred as part of a wave or protests along the Baltic coast, radicalized the Polish population. They also boosted the rise of the independent Solidarity union - led by Gdansk shipyard electrician Walesa - a decade later.

''I gave speeches in this place many times - in good times and hard times,'' Walesa said at the monument of three giant crosses with intertwined anchors at their crest. ''I am with you as president-elect. I can execute the demands of those fallen in 1970.''

Walesa, who was elected Dec. 9 as the country's first directly elected president, said Poland faces difficult work in coming years to overcome the legacy of 40 years of communist rule.

''This is why I am calling on all my compatriots from this place: take things in your hands. Do not wait,'' he said. ''The president of Poland, who has been elected by your will, will do everything so that you have as few obstacles on the road to reform as possible.''

The monument was erected by shipyard workers in 1980 following the creation of Solidarity with the reluctant approval of the communist government.

Walesa then participated in a commemorative mass at the monument attended by thousands at which Gdansk Bishop Tadeusz Goclowski read out a message from the Polish-born Pope John Paul II.

''The blood of Polish workers which called for justice 20 years ago laid the foundations for a new Poland and a new order in the country,'' the pontiff's message said.

In a related development, a mission of Poland's government-in-exile, which has operated in London since the Nazi invasion in 1939, arrived in Warsaw Sunday to prepare for handing over the official insignia of Poland's pre-World War II independent government to Walesa.

The mission is led by the chairman of the Polish parliament in exile from Poland's Second (interwar) Republic, Zygmunt Szadkowski.

The government-in-exile is no longer recognized by any country, but continued to operate on grounds that the communist takeover of Poland during the war was illegal.

In what is seen as a slight to outgoing communist President Wojciech Jaruzelski, Walesa has said he will accept the official presidential insignia, which includes a presidential banner and a handwritten constitution, from the president of the government-in-exile, Ryszard Kaczorowski, at his inauguration.

Kaczorowski, now 71, has said he would hand over the insignia only to a president elected in free elections in Poland. He will be arriving from Londono for Walesa's inauguration expected later this week.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (DEC. 16) UPI - A senior U.S. official Sunday ended a four-day visit during which he sought to reassure Pakistani leaders of Washington's desire to maintain close ties with its South Asian ally despite fears Islamabad is developing nuclear weapons.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of Defense Henry Rowen held talks with senior Pakistani civilian and military officials, including Army Chief of Staff Gen. Aslam Beg and Foreign Minister Yaqub Khan during his trip, a U.S. Embassy statement said.

The official ''emphasized that the United States has not changed its longstanding policy of close cooperation with Pakistan on bilateral and regional issues,'' it said.

''A strong, vigorous and self-reliant Pakistan continues to be a force for stability in South and South West Asia.''

Relations between the two longtime allies have cooled since Washington on Oct. 1 suspended aid to Pakistan because President Bush was unable to certify to Congress that Islamabad was not developing nuclear weapons.

Pakistan is the third largest recipient of U.S. assistance after Israel and Egypt and had been expecting $538 million from the United States next year as part of a six-year $4.02 billion military and economic aid package.

The government of Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif, elected Oct. 24, has defiantly vowed to cut its close ties with Washington rather than allow international inspection of its nuclear facilities.

Pakistan is suspected of pushing ahead with a nuclear weapons program after the flare-up in January of a dispute with arch-rival India over the Kashmir region, which is claimed by both countries. India exploded a nuclear device in 1974.

The Embassy statement said ''the United States and Pakistan agree on the importance and desirability of regional approaches to reduce tensions in the area and as a reflection of new international realities. ''

Rowen's trip followed a four-day official visit to Pakistan earlier this month by U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Teresita Schaffer, and discussions Thursday on the nuclear issue between Foreign Minister Khan and U.S. Ambassador Robert Oakley.

Pakistan's strategic value to Washington has diminished sharply following last year's Soviet withdrawal from neighboring Afghanistan and the end of the Cold War. The United States supports the Pakistan-based Islamic guerrillas fighting the Afghan communist regime in Kabul since 1978.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 16) UPI - While studiously avoiding the word ''recession,'' Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady acknowledged Sunday what all the government's numbers have been showing - that the nation's economy is in a ''significant slowdown.''

But Brady said a recession is ''no big deal'' and this one will be short - over in less than a year.

He did, however, call on the Federal Reserve Board to lower interest rates to spur economic activity and bring the nation more quickly out of the downturn.

Brady made his comments on NBC's ''Meet the Press.''

''I've been a little slow to declare 'national recession day,''' Brady said. ''But its quite clear - there's no point in being unrealistic - that we're going to have a significant economic slowdown in the fourth quarter of this year.

''I expect that that will continue into the first quarter of next year. We don't know how much, but we expect that during 1991 it will turn around and we will be back on the growth path (of) jobs and investment during that year.''

He did say, however, ''there is ample room for a further reduction'' in interest rates and said he hoped the Federal Reserve Board - which is scheduled to meet Tuesday - would take note of both a recession and the budget agreement worked out between Congress and the White House in the fall as reasons for an interest rate reduction.

Brady also said the economy is beginning to feel the effects of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Private anlaysts have said the severity of the recession could depend on how quickly the gulf situation is resolved, but Brady said he ''has never heard the economy discussed as any kind of incentive'' to action among top administration officials.

Michael Boskin, chairman of Bush's Council of Economic Advisers, interviewed on ABC's ''Issues and Answers,'' also said it is likely the recession will be

''mild and brief.''

He said he expects the federal reserve to lower rates but shied away from urging such a course. ''I like to conduct my business with the Fed in private '' he said.

All analysts, however, seemed concerned that the current economic troubles could be aggravated by the fragile system of the nation's banking and financial institutions.

William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, has estimated that the FDIC - which insures bank customers against losses - will lose $4 billion this year.

On Monday, a report expected to be made public at a House banking committee will predict losses even more glum - more than $60 billion in the next five years.

But Seidman, also appearing on ''Meet the Press,'' brushed the report off, saying, ''I don't take seriously'' reports that project that far into the future.

He said the government is seeking ways to buttress the banking industry, where some 1,000 banks are on the list of troubled institutions the FDIC is worried about.

The costs of such aid, he said, will largely be borne by the industry only and even in a worst-case scenario of $60 billion in losses, ''only a small additional amount'' would be needed to be borrowed from the governmnet.

Asked what the Bush administration planned to do about getting the nation out of the recession, Brady offered few plans other the budget agreement and the hoped for reduction in interest rates by the Federal Reserve.

Then, he said, ''the natural strength'' of the economy would take up the slack and ''economic activity (would) return and we'll be back on our feet sometime in the next year.''

But he also indicated Bush will be given additional options in the new budget for fiscal year 1992 that will be presented early next year but he refused to discuss them ''before the president has had a chance to look at them.''

NEW YORK (DEC. 16) UPI - Prosecutors in the John Gotti case said they will go to court this week armed with tapes in their bid to keep the reputed mob kingpin in jail until his racketeering trial.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Gleason hinted on Friday that the tapes would contain at least some potentially provocative material.

An attorney in the office of Gotti defense lawyer Bruce Cutler said Sunday lawyers spent the weekend reviewing the contents of the tapes.

But the lawyer, who declined to identify herself, wouldn't comment on the material or say whether Cutler would ask a judge to keep the tapes sealed in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn.

Gleason and his associates hope the tapes will convince the court that Gotti and his co-defendants are a danger to the community, and should be locked up until their trial is held. Prosecutors said they will go to court Monday with the tapes.

Gotti and two alleged high-ranking members of the Gambino crime family have been kept at the Metropolitan Correctional Center since their arrests last Tuesday.

Only Thomas Gambino - son of Carlo Gambino, the late founder of the powerful crime family - has been allowed free on $500,000 personal recognizance bond.

All three face charges of racketeering murder, loan-sharking, gambling, tax evasion and obstruction of justice in a wide-ranging case compiled by law enforcement authorities in Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens.

Gotti himself is linked to four killings - including the 1985 ''hit'' of Paul Castellano, whose slaying in front of a Manhattan steakhouse cleared the way for his takeover of the crime family, the government charged.

Gotti has eluded three separate efforts by state and federal authorities over the past five years to jail him, legal successes that earned him the press moniker of the ''Teflon Don.''

But the federal case in Brooklyn is the first to link him to murders, and FBI officials last week boasted his arrest and that of three associates marked the first time the entire hierarchy of an organized crime family was ''taken down.''

The indictment filed in Brooklyn last Tuesday charges that Gotti ordered the slayings of Castellano, his top lieutenant, Thomas Bilotti and another Gambino capo, Robert ''Dee Bee'' DiBernardo.

Two other charges contained in the indictment and naming Gotti were for the slaying of mobster Liborio Milito, as well as conspiracy to kill Gaetano ''the Big Guy'' Vastola, currently on bail pending appeal of some racketeering and narcotics convictions in New Jersey.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (DEC. 16) UPI - Thousands of Haitians outraged over disorganization in Sunday's general election demonstrated in the streets of poor neighborhoods where voting stations were late in opening amid mysterious shortages of ballots and ballot boxes, reports said.

Some 2.7 million people were eligible to vote for president, a two- chamber National Assembly and hundreds of local officials amid heavy security against fears of violence at some 16,000 polling stations.

Sunday's election was the third attempted in four years as the poor Caribbean nation seeks democracy in the wake of the 29-year Duvalier dictatorship that ended in February 1986 - when Jean-Claude ''Baby Doc'' Duvalier fled to France.

In wealthy neighborhoods such as Petion Ville, where U.S.-backed Mark Barzin is favored among 11 presidential candidates, polls opened on time at 6 a.m. and all materials were available.

But in City Soleil, a slum on the western side of the capital seen as a stronghold for fiery presidential candidate and priest Jean-Bertrand Aristide, voting stations remained without ballots, boxes and ink six hours after polls were to open, radio reports said.

Radio and television reported that some 5,000 to 6,000 people had taken to City Soleil streets in protest as leading candidates called for calm in a televised appeal.

''City Soleil is getting really hot,'' said Pierre Cote, chief of the Organization of American States' observer team. Cote said he ordered all OAS observers to leave the area.

Haiti's last elections in November 1987 were canceled when thugs attacked voters, leaving at least 34 dead. Earlier this month, a grenade attack at a rally for Aristide left some seven people dead.

But radio reports said Sunday's demonstrations were peaceful and police calmed the situation in the poor district of the capital, where streets were painted with graffiti in the Creole language and star-like voodoo good-luck symbols.

The Electoral Council said mid-Sunday they would extend voting hours beyond the scheduled 6 p.m. close to allow everybody to vote.

Security forces were refusing to respect press credentials issued by the Electoral Council. A United Press International reporter and two Canadian radio reporters were held for more than an hour at the headquarters of the Port-au-Prince traffic police, a few blocks from the City Soleil district.

The journalists' driver was arrested and remained in custody.

Radio stations reported incidents of fraud in pro-Aristide areas and in the countryside, saying voters have been supplied with pencils instead of pens to mark their ballots with an ''X'' - before their thumbs are dipped in ink as proof of voting.

OAS observers said election boxes had disappeared or were not being used in the capital. One station in a pro-Aristide neighborhood opened at 11 a.m. and dozens of voters rushed the gates, screaming obscenities.

A voter at another voting station in the capital turned away from the booth, threw up his arms and said, ''This is fixed. This is not an election.''

U.S. Embassy observer Daphne Titus said, ''We had some ballots, but nowhere near enough. We don't have ink either.''

Cote said ''there was a shortage of vehicles to distribute materials'' in the capital, where some voting stations lacked ballot boxes for the congressional and local candidates, but did have boxes for the presidential vote.

Aristide voted at 11 a.m. and left the polling station holding up his ink-stained thumb to a cheering crowd.

Aristide, 37, a priest expelled from the Catholic Salesian order in 1988 for his populist political activities, has drawn huge support from rural voters. Contender Bazin is a former World Bank economist whose support comes mainly from Haiti's middle class and the far right.

On Feb. 7, the winner will succeed Interim President Ertha Pascal- Trouillot, a supreme court judge who has led the country since March.

Because of Haiti's high illiteracy rate, names on the Sunday's ballot were accompanied by a picture of the candidates and their party symbols. Aristide was using a rooster to symbolize his populist coalition.

Haiti, which shares the island of Hispaniola with the Dominican Republic, is one of the poorest countries in the Western Hemisphere.

MOSCOW (DEC. 16) UPI - The Congress of People's Deputies, Mikhail Gorbachev's handmaiden that gave birth to a new parliament and a new presidency, gathers Monday to revamp the government and dump Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov.

But deputies from five republics, including the three Baltic states, will either totally boycott or participate only in those parts of the 10-day conclave that do not involve Gorbachev's proposed Union Treaty to keep the Soviet Union together.

Because of the boycotts, slightly fewer than the 2,250 deputies elected in 1988 in Gorbachev's first reform to democratize the Soviet Union will attend the heated congress, the fourth in less than two years.

In the first Congress in May 1989, the deputies chose from their ranks a standing Parliament of 542 members, the second congress in December 1989 approved a multiparty system, and the third last March created the new executive presidency and elected Gorbachev to the post.

In the past, deputies representing every major territorial district in the vast nation assailed Gorbachev for dictatorial and sly methods, but then approved every reform he requested, often denouncing him as they voted yes.

The present conclave will be asked to create the new post of vice president and hold elections to the post. It will also elect at least 180 new members to the standing Parliament, or Supreme Soviet, under a rotation system where one-third of the body must be renewed every two years.

The most heated topic will be the debate on Gorbachev's new Union Treaty that is to remake the Soviet Union into a union of sovereign states and replace the 1922 pact that has made the 15 republics virtual vassals of Moscow.

''The debates on the treaty will be feverish, and reduced to a common denominator, you can say it is the 'Soviet Union - to be or not to be,''' the daily Pravda Communist Party newspaper said Sunday.

''Deputies from Georgia, Armenia and Lithuania intend to refrain from participation in the work of the Congress, while representatives of Estonian and Latvia will participate only in the initital stages when the general situation in the country will be discussed,'' Tass said.

At best the Congress can give Gorbachev only a moral vote of support on the union compact, because the ultimate decision rests with the parliaments of the 15 republics either to join a revamped Soviet Union or become totally independent and secede.

In what promises to be the most substantive shakeup, the Congress deputies will vote on Gorbachev's plan to replace the unwieldy Council of Ministers of some 65 members with a smaller cabinet responsible to him.

The government reform demanded by Gorbachev giving him direct control over all ministries will all but eliminate Ryzhkov's job as premier after five years in the post in which he was once considered Gorbachev's right-hand man and chief troubleshooter.

Ryzhkov, officially the head of the Council of Ministers, has steadfastly refused to resign, maintaining only the Congress can force his ouster because revamping the government is a constitutional question.

But Tass said last week ''Ryzhkov will resign,'' and speculated that two contenders to replace him will be Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Arkady Volsky. Volsky is a no-nonsense administrator who ran the disputed, mostly Armenian enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh inside the mainly Moslem republic of Azerbaijan for Gorbachev.

The first Congress in May 1989 riveted the attention of the country because of confrontations between then deputy Boris Yeltsin and conservative stalwart Yegor Ligachev. Yeltsin has since become president of the giant Russsian republic, while Ligachev has been stripped of all his Communist Party posts.

But people's interest in the political scene including the present Congress has flagged because of the daily hunt required for food and goods before they disappear.

''The mood of the people is generally apathetic,'' said poet and People's Deputy Evgeny Yevtushenko.

Pravda added, ''People are more interested in not who is in power, but how this power provides them with food and clothing.''

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 16) UPI - Families of 12 people who died during a ritualistic prayer gathering and doctors treating survivors are skepical that the deaths and injuries were accidental, it was reported Sunday.

''Put down that justice needs to be done here, that someone is to blame and that somehow those of us who did not die will find an answer,'' Fidel Mondragon, 61, told the Los Angeles Times.

Mondragon's son-in-law and two grandchildren were among the 12 people who were found dead in the four-room house in the poor Tijuana neighorhood known as Colonia Mariano Matamoros after a religious ceremony Wednesday night.

Tijuana coroner's officials declared Friday that preliminary autopsies showed that the 12 had died of carbon monoxide poisoning stemming from a malfunctioning butane latern.

Doctors treating six survivors of the incident also told the newspaper that they doubted the official cause of death. They said two survivors may have been bruised or beaten during the evening rite. Others, the doctors said, suffered unexplained burns.

''As a doctor, it's hard for me to accept carbon monoxide poisoning as the exclusive explanation,'' said Dr. Ariel Perez Munoz, director of Social Security Clinic 20, a public hospital.

He suggested that a combination of factors - including carbon monoxide poisoning, methathol possibly ingested during the ceremony and perhaps another poison - most likely caused the tragedy.

Blood samples have been turned over the San Diego Medical Examiner, but Perez Munoz said they may be inconclusive because the victims were found hours after they were overcome.

''I feel that we are never going to find an explanation of exactly what occurred,'' Perez Munoz said.

While the survivors could offer some answers, three - including the sect's 61-year-old self-styled leader, Federico Padres Mexia - are in irreversible comas. Another is an 8-month-old child and two others are semi-coherent.

One was able to speak Saturday, telling a reporter, ''I was beaten,'' before sitting up and pulling his shirt over his head. The other had a cut on his face and bruises on his shoulder, but could not remember how he got them, only recalling how several people got sick and started screaming before all lost consciousness.

That survivor, Alfredo Osuna Hernandez, 22, said no one sought help because Mexia had told them that leaving the large rope circle in which they were seated would be ''harmful.''

The Los Angeles Film Critics Association last night named the gangster film ''Goodfellas'' as the best picture of 1990. The awards are seen as a harbinger of the Academy Awards. The critics named ''Goodfellas'' director Martin Scorsese as the year's ''best,'' and honored Jeremy Irons as best actor and Anjelica Huston as best actress. The critics say Scorsese's honors edged by one vote Kevin Costner and ''Dances with Wolves.'' Costner directed and starred in the film.

(DEC. 16) UPI - President Bush and the White House declined comment today on whether the proposed top-level talks with Iraq were dead. The Iraqis have canceled the meeting proposed for tomorrow between Bush and Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz. The two nations have NOT agreed on a date for Secretary of State Baker to meet with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

U-S senators visiting the Mideast are in Cairo for a meeting with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak. And Algerian President Chadli Benjedid also arrived in Cairo on his mission to encourage Arab dialogue about the Persian Gulf crisis.

Reports in Port-au-Prince say thousands of Haitians outraged over disorganization in today's national election demonstrated in the streets of poor neighborhoods, amid shortages of ballots and ballot boxes. Heavy security was in place because of fears that violence might erupt at some 16-thousand polling stations.

The African National Congress ended a historic conference in Johannesburg by threatening to suspend its talks with the white-minority government. A resolution adopted at the A-N-C congress says the talks will be halted unless the government meets racial reform obligations by April 30th.

Treasury Secretary Brady studiously avoided using the word ''recession'' today in telling broadcast interviewers that the nation's economy is in what he termed ''a significant slowdown.'' And Brady said a recession would be- his words now- ''NO big deal'' because it will be short... less than a year.

(DEC. 17) UPI - Trans World Airlines Sunday renewed its bid to take over financially ailing Pan Am, while at the same time announcing the $515 million sale of six of its United States-London air routes and other assets to American Airlines.

TWA's latest takeover offer would provide $1.50 in cash, plus $1 either in preferred stock or a promissory note, for each share of Pan Am's common stock, said Don Morrison, a TWA spokesman.

In November, TWA offered $1 in cash and $2 in stock or notes for each share of Pan Am stock in a deal theoretically worth $450 million. Analysts were skeptical of the TWA proposal because of the low cash offering.

As TWA was pressing its offer last month, debt-plagued Pan Am was moving ahead with a deal to raise cash by selling most of its United States-London routes to United Airlines for $400 million.

Morrison asserted that TWA's latest offer for New York-based Pan Am was an improvement over last month's bid because ''with the sale of the routes, Pan Am now has fewer assets.''

In a letter sent Sunday to Pan Am Chairman Thomas Plaskett, TWA Chairman Carl Icahn wrote, ''Although you have executed definitive agreements with United, I continue to believe that in these extremely complicated and troubled times for the airline industry, a combination of TWA and Pan Am might offer both of us the opportunity to compete with the three major U.S. airlines.''

In the letter, Icahn stated the offer would remain firm until Dec. 21 and urged Plaskett to meet with him to discuss the renewed bid.

Morrison said the routes and facilities agreements would give Fort Worth-based American Airlines TWA's former routes between London's Heathrow Airport and Boston, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, and New York- Newark. It also gives American Airlines routes between Gatwick Airport and St. Louis and Baltimore-Washington,

The routes agreement, worth $445 million, is subject to Department of Transportation approval, he said.

Referring to his decision to sell the London routes, Icahn said, ''While I have been reluctant to part with TWA's London authorities, it should be noted that over the last two years earnings from these routes have seriously deteriorated and, with the new competition from United, these earnings will almost certainly continue to erode.''

In a separately drawn $70 million agreement, New York-based TWA agreed to sell to American gates and other facilities at Chicago's O'Hare Airport; gates at airports in Orlando, Fl. and Nashville, Tenn.; counter space at the Fort Lauderdale Airport, and unspecified facilities at Philadelphia's airport, Morrison said.

(DEC. 16) UPI - The official Iraq News Agency says the nation's deputy premier met with a group referred to as the ''American-Iraqi Cultural Society'' in Baghdad. The report quotes the Iraqi official as saying that Iraq alone has the right to set a date for Secretary of State Baker to meet President Saddam Hussein. Yet, he reportedly said Iraq still wants the talks.

Earlier, President Bush waved off reporter questions about the Persian Gulf developments.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell told reporters in Cairo that Saddam made what he termed a ''serious miscalculation'' in sticking with unacceptable dates for the high-level talks.

(DEC. 16) UPI - A delegation of U-S senators and Arab officials met in Egypt today in a bid to restore diplomatic channels as hopes dimmed for U-S-proposed high-level peace talks to end the Persian Gulf standoff. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine, who led the delegation, said in Cairo that he's disappointed Iraq has canceled the talks. He told reporters- quoting- ''We believe that this missed opportunity is a serious miscalculation by President Saddam Hussein in this crisis.''

Meanwhile, Iraq says it still wants dialogue with Washington, but insists it has the right to set meeting dates for the Iraqi-U-S talks. Baghdad yesterday canceled a tentative meeting in Washington tomorrow between its envoy and President Bush.

Ballot shortages and the late opening of some polling stations today marred Haiti's general elections. Some polling stations opened more than seven hours late. The problems triggered brief street demonstrations but security was heavy and there were NO reports of violence. The election was the third attempted in four years in the Caribbean nation's quest for democracy since the 29-year Duvalier dictatorship collapsed in February 1986.

A survey released today in New York says most Americans are in favor of raising taxes to help clean up the environment. LOS ANGELES (DEC. 16) UPI - Martin Scorsese and his film ''Goodfellas,'' a realistic tale chronicling three decades in the lives of three New York gangsters, were voted best director and best picture Saturday by the Los Angeles Film Critics Association.

Jeremy Irons was voted best actor for his portrayal of the twice- accused attempted murderer Claus von Bulow in ''Reversal of Fortune,'' while Anjelica Huston won best actress honors for her leading roles in the films ''The Grifters'' and ''The Witches.''

The 36-member organization of area print and broadcast movie critics met Saturday at a private home in Northridge to decide the year's top cinematic awards, said association secretary Jerry Roberts.

Scorsese's two honors edged out by one vote Kevin Costner as best director and ''Dances With Wolves'' as best picture. The 19th Century story of a white man's encounter with the Sioux nation was Costner's directorial debut.

The winners will receive their awards during a luncheon ceremony on Jan. 15 at the Bel Age Hotel in West Hollywood.

The association also named recipients for three special awards recognizing the work of film veterans and a newcomer.

Animator Chuck Jones, creator of the beloved cartoon characters Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck, among others, and Blake Edwards, director of the ''Pink Panther'' films, ''Breakfast at Tiffanys'' and ''10,'' will each receive this year's Career Achievement Award.

New Zealand director Jane Campion, whose film ''Sweetie'' has won critical acclaim, was honored with the association's New Generation Award, which typically goes to a newcomer on the cinematic scene ''whose work through the year shows exceptional merit,'' Roberts said.

Charles Burnett, director and writer of film ''To Sleep With Anger,'' was the winner of the group's special award honoring an outstanding figure in film. The award recognizes Burnett's body of work.

Winners in other categories included:

_Best supporting actor: Joe Pesci, ''Goodfellas.''

_Best supporting actress: Lorraine Bracco, ''Goodfellas.''

_Best screenplay: Nicholas Kazan, ''Reversal of Fortune.''

_Best cinematography: Michael Ballhaus, ''Goodfellas.''

_Best musical score: Ryuici Sakamoto, ''The Sheltering Sky.''

_Best foreign film: ''Life and Nothing But,'' France.

_Best animation: ''The Rescuers Down Under,'' Walt Disney Pictures.

_Best documentary: (tie) ''Paris is Burning'' and ''Pictures of the Old World.''

_Independent/Experimental Award: ''Tongues Untied,'' Marlon Riggs.

GOLDEN, CO (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - In a hard-hitting twist on its ''Beer is Back'' advertising campaign, Coors Extra Gold is capitalizing on a recent independent taste test which found that 58 percent of Budweiser drinkers, ages 21-49, preferred Coors Extra Gold.

The new campaign, developed by Foote, Cone and Belding, Chicago, builds in the introductory ''Beer is Back'' campaign, which focused on the darker color of Coors Extra Gold. The campaign, which is being tested in 16 markets across the country, includes television, radio, outdoor billboards, point-of-sale and in-market promotions.

In the three new television ads, side-by-side comparisons of Coors Extra Gold and Budweiser show the deeper, darker color of Coors Extra Gold and introduce the results of the new taste test.

Bright, contemporary graphics reinforce the questions asked during the ''man on the street interviews'' with actual beer drinkers (no actors were used). Questions posed in the interviews include, ''Did you know something does beat a Bud?,'' ''Which one do you think looks like a better beer?,'' and ''Which beer would you rather try?''

Next, the interviewer summarizes the results of the recent taste test and asks how it will affect their choice of beers. Answers range from ''Gonna switch'' to ''Go for the Gold.'' The commercials end with ''No doubt about it -- Beer is Back,'' and a bottle of Coors Extra Gold is prominently displayed.

Since launching the ''Beer is Back'' campaign in October, sales trends of Coors Extra Gold have improved in each of the 16 test markets. ''The beer market is very volatile and, based on positive test market sales trackings, we believe premium beer drinkers have already begun sampling Coors Extra Gold and switching brands,'' added Skovsted. ''We want to ensure Extra Gold remains competitive.''

In addition to many Budweiser drinkers who preferred the taste of Coors Extra Gold, a professional taste panel awarded the gold medal in the American Premium Lager category to Coors Extra Gold for the second consecutive year at the recent Great American Beer Festival. Also, in May 1990, an impartial taste panel in Minneapolis gave the brand top rating among domestic premium lagers.

As part of the new ad campaign, consumers may call the Coors Consumer Hotline, 1-800/642-6116, to receive a coupon good for a refund for 75 cents, $1.50 or $3 off a six, 12- or 24-pack of Coors Extra Gold, respectively.

SEATTLE (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Alaska Airlines, recently approved by the federal government to launch the first scheduled passenger jet service to the Soviet Union from the U.S. West Coast, Monday announced its plans for the new route.

Alaska will begin service on June 17 between Anchorage and two cities in the Soviet Far East -- Magadan and Khabarovsk. Three round trip flights per week will be offered through the summer.

Tour packages, which go on sale today, include round trip airfare from Anchorage, hotel accommodations, sightseeing, meals and assistance in securing necessary documentation.

There are three package options:

-- Five days/four nights. Two days in Magadan followed by three in Khabarovsk. Price from Anchorage: $1,145 per person.

-- Six days/five nights. Three days in Khabarovsk followed by three in Magadan. Price from Anchorage: $1,295 per person.

-- Eight days/seven nights. Includes Khabarovsk and a third city in the region, Irkutsk, which will be accessed via a two-day trip by sleeper car on the Trans-Siberian Railroad from Khabarovsk. Price from Anchorage: $1,795 per person.

Airfare by itself also is available. Round trip main cabin fares are $1,100, Anchorage-Magadan, and $1,500, Anchorage-Khabarovsk. One-way fares also are available. Advance purchase and deposit restrictions apply.

Magadan, a city of 150,000 on the Sea of Okhotsk, is about 2,000 miles southwest of Anchorage. Flight time between the two cities is just more than four hours. A closed city for decades, Magadan was the gateway to some of the most infamous of Stalin's labor camps. Today it is an administrative center and major port serving the northern region of the Soviet Far East.

Khabarovsk, a major commercial center and river port of about 700,000 people, is another 1,000 miles south of Magadan, near the Chinese border. The city is a popular destination for tourists from China, Japan, North Korea and other parts of the Orient.

Irkutsk, known as the Paris of Siberia because of its tree-lined streets, parks and architecture, is the capital of Eastern Siberia and serves as an industrial, cultural, trade and scientific center. The city is about 40 miles from Lake Baikal, one of the country's scenic and natural wonders.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint has increased long distance calling options for Japanese credit card customers traveling in the United States through agreements with three major Japanese credit card issuers: Daiei Finance Inc., LIFE Co. Ltd., and JACCS Inc.

Sprint also has reached an agreement with Diners Club for cards it issues in Japan.

With the new accords in effect, Sprint International, US Sprint's private networks and global telecommunications subsidiary, now makes long distance service available to almost 24 million holders of Japanese credit cards.

Sprint International is providing similar services through JCB International, Japan's largest credit card company, and in the near future, through Visa International, a division of Visa which serves some 140 million Visa credit cards issued through non-U.S. financial institutions.

Effective immediately, Diners Club Japan, LIFE, Daiei Finance and JACCS cardholders can dial a toll-free 800 number to reach Japanese-speaking US Sprint operators, place long distance calls within the U.S. or to any country in the world served by US Sprint, and bill the calls to their credit cards. Charges will appear on the cardholders' monthly credit card statements in their native currency.

''The Japanese business travel market is large and growing, and US Sprint intends to maintain its lead in serving this important customer base,'' said Andrew Burroughs, vice president of global marketing at Sprint International.

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company with $7.5 billion in revenues. US Sprint, with the United States' only all-digital, fiber-optic network, provides a comprehensive array of global voice, data and video communications products and services.

SAN JOSE, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Elite Microelectronics Inc. has announced a 25MHz speed option for its recently introduced 386 PC/AT chip set.

The Eagle was introduced Nov. 1 as a 33MHz chip set. Both versions are available now.

The 25MHz Eagle chip set is priced at $99 per unit in quantities 1000. One thousand unit quantities of the 33MHz version are priced at $168 per unit. Samples, evaluation boards and production quantities for both speed versions are currently shipping and immediately available.

The Eagle chip set consists of a 184-pin PQFP and 160-pin PQFP device. The two-piece chip set provides the core logic functions required by board and system manufacturers to build high speed, cache-based 386DX PC/ATs with a minimum chip count.

An entire system motherboard can be built with as few as 25 components including CPU, Eagle chip set, BIOS, keyboard controller, integrated peripheral controller and a few discrete TTL devices.

Eagle provides CPU bus control, DRAM control and data conversion between the various buses as well as an integrated cache controller. Eagle's flexible architecture allows it to be used in either cache or non-cache systems with the same design.

Traditionally, cache control has been external to the system core logic. The complexity of cache control logic and the lack of high speed RAM megacells for ASIC design have limited chip set vendors to partial integrations, at best, of the cache controller.

The Eagle is equipped with 60 software programmable configuration registers allowing direct, yet flexible control of cache operations, local and AT bus operation, DRAM access, memory mapping and shadowing. The computer OEM can use this feature to differentiate its product through innovative software and hardware design.

Competitive chip set offerings typically have only three to 15 configuration registers. Full cache/DRAM integration also increases system and component reliability while reducing system costs.

Elite Microeletronics Inc. designs, develops and markets VLSI chip sets for industry standard computer systems. Its products are sold to computer original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) for incorporation in personal computers, intelligent termials, workstations, instrumentation and other applications of standard computer architectures.

Elite has relocated to 4003 North First Street, San Jose CA 95134 from its 711 Charcot Ave., San Jose address. Phone 408/943-0500, fax 408/943-0561.

PORTLAND, OR (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Pope & Talbot Monday announced that 1990 fourth quarter operating earnings would be below last year's final quarter and lower than expected as recently as last month.

Operating earnings wil be around breakeven for this December quarter, compared with 84 cents per common share in 1989's fourth quarter and 30 cents per share in this year's September quarter.

The principal reason for these unfavorable comparisons is further weakening in lumber markets caused by the persistent recession in construction activity across the United States. Lower lumber prices and a strong Canadian dollar are hurting Canadian sawmill operations to a greater degree than previously, which is compounding the earnings problems caused by a continuing poor domestic market for solid wood products.

Another reason is further deterioration in the company's market pulp business, where profits are being hurt by lower pulp prices. Finally, losses continue in Pope & Talbot's disposable diaper business, where industry over capacity is causing unfavorable operating and product pricing conditions.

Peter T. Pope, chairman, president and chief executive officer, stated, ''We are disappointed to be concluding the year with results that are below recent expectations, but pleased that our financial condition remains unusually strong among companies in the forest products industry.'' He concluded, ''While we are cautious as the recession year of 1991 looms on the horizon, I am positive about Pope & Talbot's outlook once economic conditions improve.''

Pope & Talbot Inc. is a publicly held, Portland-based paper, pulp and wood products company traded on the NYSE. Pope & Talbot was founded in 1849 and has operations throughout the United States and in Canada.

CARLSBAD, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Cardiotronics announced Monday that Raymond L. Screbant and Richard E. Emmitt will join its board of directors in January 1991.

Screbant and Emmitt will join present board members, Theodore Holstein, M.D., chairman, and Bruno Bisceglia Jr. and Tim J. Way, founders of the company.

Both Screbant and Emmitt are major stockholders of Cardiotronics, the latter in his capacity as general of The Vertical Fund.

Screbant has over 20 years of experience in medical industry sales and marketing. He is the president and founder of S & S Medical, an independent sales organization which has represented such successful companies as Intermedics, St. Jude and SciMed. Screbant also served on the board of directors of Intermedics for almost 10 years until its acquisition in 1988.

Emmitt has over 20 years of medical industry experience as an investment analyst, investment banker and venture capitalist. He is a managing director of EF Venture Capital and general partner of the The Vertical Fund, a private investment partnership. Emmitt has been a member of the board of directors of SciMed Life Systems since 1984, and also is a board member of three private medical technology companies.

Cardiotronics also disclosed that its sales for the fourth quarter ending Dec. 31, 1990, are expected to increase by 50 percent or more compared with the third quarter. Management anticipates that its recent high rate of sales growth may be sustained into 1991 as the company benefits from both new products and its continuing cooperative marketing arrangement with Hewlett Packard.

Cardiotronics develops, manufactures and markets disposable electrodes and devices for the support and resuscitation of patients experiencing, or vulnerable to, a heart attack or life-threatening heart rhythm disorder.

Based in Carlsbad, Cardiotronics' common stock is traded over the counter by several market makers.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Consolidated Entertainment, the diversified, international entertainment company active in production, co-production and worldwide distribution, has appointed Kathleen L. Amundson to the newly created position of vice president of finance, effective immediately, it was announced Monday by Elizabeth Matthews, president and chief operating officer.

Amundson, reporting to Matthews, will be responsible for all facets of Consolidated's financial activities and will work out of the company's Los Angeles headquarters.

''Kathleen brings to Consolidated an expansive background in all aspects of finance,'' said Matthews. ''She will undoubtedly be a great asset to us, especially as our expansion continues to accelerate in the areas of production acquisition and distribution. We are delighted to have her as part of our management team.''

Before joining Consolidated, Amundson has held various senior level positions at top entertainment companies, including that of senior vice president of finance and accounting at New World Entertainment; director of finance at The Disney Channel; and, most recently, vice president of finance and chief financial officer at A.M.E.

Amundson began her career as an audit manager at Price Waterhouse, with an emphasis on the entertainment industry.

Founded in 1978, Consolidated Entertainment has achieved a unique position in the television film production and distribution industry, combining acquisition and distribution with development, production and co-production. In 1990, the company adds 51 1/2 hours of film to its production slate, a substantial part of it co-produced with European broadcasters, with every hour sold to U.S. broadcasters.

Consolidated Entertainment also has offices in London and Washington D.C.

POMONA, Calif. (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Taking full advantage of the need for mouse input devices to drive the latest graphical user interfaces, Z-Nix Company Inc. Monday announced the shipping of its Super Mouse II bundled with Microsoft Windows 3.0 software.

Z-Nix also announced initial sales figures for the product are near $2 million since its introduction in November at Comdex.

''Bundling Super Mouse II with Windows 3.0 offers users a superior input device along with today's most popular graphical user interface Windows 3.0,'' said Frank Yeh, vice president of sales and marketing for Z-Nix.

''The Super Mouse II provides users access to the multitasking abilities of Windows 3.0, increasing worker productivity. The strong intial sales show that PC users are seeking high-quality performance in a mouse as they make the move to the Windows environment.''

The Super Mouse II features a two-button configuration and mechanical tracking mechanism to achieve 400 DPI (dots per inch) and a maximum tracking speed of 650 millimeters per second.

Using the available ballistic driver, resolution can be increased to 6400 DPI. Super Mouse II comes with an intelligent driver so users can fine-tune cursor movement to specific user preference. One user may prefer to have the pointer race across the screen with minimum movement from the mouse while another may prefer a slower, more controlled movement.

Z-Nix recently announced that it had obtained a license from Microsoft to sell Windows 3.0. ''Our future marketing plans are to bundle our other input devices with software programs that maximize product performance,'' Yeh added.

Price Availability

The Super Mouse II bundled with Windows 3.0 is available for IBM PCs, compatibles and IBM PS/2s. The suggested retail price for the serial version is $233.95, and $248.95 for the bus and PS/2 version. They are immediately available from Z-Nix distributors in the United States.

Z-Nix Company Inc. is a supplier of advanced input devices with headquarters in Pomona. The Super Mouse II is part of Z-Nix's existing line of input devices that include the Cordless Super Mouse, the FasTrak trackball and the Z-Scan hand-held grey-scale scanner.

The company's major customers include Tandy Corp., CompuAdd, CMS Enhancements, HeadStart/Magnavox, Commodore Europe and NEC/Japan.

LONGMONT, CO (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Staodyn Inc. (NASDAQ:SDYN) announced Monday that it has filed its Premarket Approval Application (PMA) with the Department of Health and Human Services' Food and Drug Administration (FDA), covering the use of its Dermapulse(R) for wound healing.

Staodyn is seeking approval to market the device for promoting (speeding) the healing of decubitus ulcers of the skin (also known as pressure ulcers or bed sores.)

It is estimated that more than 1.5 million people in the United States develop decubitus ulcers each year, with the estimated cost of treating one decubitus ulcer ranging from $14,000 to $25,000 for a total annual treatment cost of $6 billion.

''The Dermapulse product could open up a multimillion-dollar revenue source for Staodyn,'' said W. Bayne Gibson, Staodyn's president. ''With FDA approval it has the potential to dwarf the company's existing revenues.'' Gibson stated that active discussions with several major medical companies for the licensing of the distribution rights are continuing.

Gary Gentzkow, M.D., vice president, medical director, said Monday's submission is the culmination of over five years of work, involving two well-controlled clinical trials which show dramatically improved healing, as measured by both the rate of wound closure and the change in the character of the wound.

The Dermapulse system, as adjunctive therapy, is expected to substantially reduce the time (and therefore the cost) to heal these difficult to treat wounds.

Staodyn is a leading manufacturer of medical electronic products, primarily TENS (Transcutaneous Electrical Nerve Stimulation) devices used for the relief of chronic and acute pain, and NMES (Neuromuscular Electrical Stimulation) devices used in physical and sports medicine for muscle re-education and rehabilitation.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - City National Bank has entered into a 10-year agreement to subcontract with Systematics Inc. the data processing services of City National Information Systems (CNIS), City National's data processing division.

CNIS provides data processing services to approximately 200 independent banks.

Under the terms of the agreement, effective Jan. 1, 1991, City National will retain ownership of the data processing business, retain all customer contracts, and continue to sell, market, and provide direct customer support to West Coast financial institutions. Systematics will provide application software systems and integration services.

''We chose Systematics because they have the software, financial strength, and technical expertise to complement City National's goal of expanding its role as the preeminent supplier of data processing services for financial institutions on the West Coast,'' said Bram Goldsmith, chairman and chief executive officer.

''Our CNIS division recently celebrated its 26th year of operation while Systematics just completed its 22nd year in business. City National and Systematics intend to preserve the CNIS tradition of delivering products and services with unrelenting reliability and quality.''

Newton Gore, executive vice president of CNIS, lauded the benefits that the Systematics software will offer to CNIS' customer banks. ''With Systematics' comprehensive banking software we will offer many new capabilities, such as profitability and account analysis and combined statements. City National Bank will implement Systematics' banking software in 1991.''

''This alliance creates a powerhouse of expertise and resources to provide the most competitive processing services to independent financial institutions throughout the West Coast,'' said John E. Steuri, Systematics' chairman and chief executive officer.

Systematics, with clients in 44 states and 16 countries, is the leading provider of data processing services and software for the financial industry. The company is a subsidiary of ALLTEL Corp., one of the nation's leading independent telecommunications companies.

City National Information Systems, a division of City National Bank, is the largest provider of bank data processing services in the West, providing service to nearly 200 customer banks. LAS CRUCES, NM (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - One of the most notable advances in X-ray technology in decades has just been announced by Energy Optics Inc., an electro-optic equipment concern headquartered in Las Cruces.

The advance is a self-developing X-ray recording medium which replaces standard X-ray film. It can be used with present medical, dental and industrial X-ray equipment, but requires no silver now used in film, no chemicals and no darkroom for developing.

Based on an issued patent, under which Energy Optics has obtained certain rights, the new medium has been developed by the company under a Federal Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) contract sponsored by the U.S. Army and aimed initially at dental applications.

The elimination of developing chemicals and darkrooms promises increased efficiency, Edward N. Laughlin, president of EOI, said. Environmental considerations also could speed acceptance of this new medium, he noted.

In both medical and industrial applications, the medium will permit viewing of X-ray images in the field, without delays caused by the necessity of returning regular film to a developing facility, Laughlin said, adding that such convenience also could yield lower overall cost, while providing X-ray images of equal quality.

EOI is in the final stage of development on the dental X-ray film under the Army contract and expects to be marketing the new self-developing medium, either directly or through a large marketing partner, according to Laughlin.

Energy Optics is a research, development and engineering concern specializing in the field of electro-optics. It has developed a variety of devices and systems, many of them under SBIR contract or for other companies, ranging from an infrared electronic remote meter reading/data collection system, to a pilot black-out warning device for the Air Force, to a docking system for satellite recovery by an unmanned space vehicle, to several medical diagnostic instuments.

It is a public company with shares traded on the National Association of Securities Dealers' Electronic Bulletin Board (symbol: EOPT).

TEMPE, AZ (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - MicroAge Inc. (NASDAQ:MICA), Monday announced that its subsidiary MicroAge Solutions Inc. has sold its company-owned centers in Indianapolis and Cincinnati to Indianapolis-based Graham Computer Centers.

MicroAge Solutions Inc. now operates eight company-owned centers nationwide.

Graham, with five other Midwest locations, has signed franchise agreements with MicroAge Computer Centers Inc. (MCCI), making all seven locations MicroAge franchises. MCCI is a wholly owned subsidiary of MicroAge Inc.

The move strengthens MicroAge's presence in the Midwest and gives Graham national service capabilities, competitive product pricing and a stronger presence in its current market area. Graham owns three stores in Indianapolis two in Cincinnati and one each in Dayton, Ohio and Louisville, Ky.

''Graham's excellent reputation in the Indianapolis and Cincinnati markets made the sale of the two company-owned centers a prudent business decision,'' said Warren Mills, vice president-sales for MicroAge Inc. ''By joining the MicroAge Network, Graham will have access to resources to expand its client base.''

Graham Computer Center was founded in 1923 as Graham Electronics. In 1984 Graham Computer Centers became a part of Bell Industries Inc., a distributor of electronic components based in Los Angeles.

MicroAge markets and distributes information technology products and services through an international network of franchised, affiliated reseller and company-owned locations.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Allied Cellular Systems Ltd. announced that it proposes, subject to acceptance by the Vancouver Stock Exchange, to loan $1,000,000.00 (U.S. funds) (the ''loan'') to MOCELL Inc., a closely-held Delaware corporation engaged in the acquisition of cellular interests in Missouri.

The proposed loan will be advanced through the company's wholly-owned subsidiary, Allied Cellular Systems Inc. (''Allied Inc.''). MOCELL Inc. is affiliated with Columbia Cellular Inc., a company holding the construction permit for the non-wireline telephone system in Columbia, Mo., to which Allied Inc. has previously loaned $2,000,000.00 (U.S. funds).

In addition, Allied Inc. loaned $1,500,000.00 (U.S. funds) to MOCELL Inc. earlier this year. As with the prior loan, MOCELL Inc. will utilize the proceeds of the loan to acquire interest in cellular telephone systems in Missouri.

The loan will be secured by MOCELL Inc.'s interest in non-wireline cellular telephone assets. The terms of the Loan will also give Allied Inc. the option to convert all or any of the loan amount into minority interests in cellular telephone assets acquired by MOCELL Inc. with the loan proceeds at a cost to Allied Inc. equal to MOCELL Inc.'s acquisition cost.

SEATTLE (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Horizon Air and Alaska Airlines frequent fliers will receive triple mileage credit on all flights now through March 15, 1991.

The bonus applies to the actual or the 500 mile minimum mileage credit, whichever is greater. Therefore, all trips on either carrier will be worth at least 1,500 miles each way, even though the actual mileage on most Horizon and several Alaska routes is far less than 500 miles. A round trip between the Tri-Cities and Seattle, for example, is worth 3,000 miles. A trip from Yakima to Los Angeles via Horizon and Alaska Airlines is worth more than 8,800 miles.

Triple miles will also be awarded on the popular Horizon Shuttle, Horizon's every half-hour flight service between Seattle and Portland, and hourly service between Seattle and Spokane.

The triple mileage plan is different from frequent flier promotions recently introduced by other carriers -- a minimum number of flights is not required in order to receive awards. Members of the Horizon/Alaska program can redeem for a round trip ticket on Horizon Air, including Sun Valley, when they have accumulated 10,000 miles and for a coach ticket on Alaska for travel in the United States at 15,000 miles.

PHOENIX (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Microtest Inc. Monday announced the introduction of the MT80 Portable Printer to its extensive line of diagnostic and connectivity products.

The printer, a compact 80-column thermal line printer, was designed to be used with both the Pair Scanner and Cable Scanner to print out network activity and diagnostic reports. The printer's certification reports are important in helping to certify that cable segnments in the network meet specifications.

The printer allows users to keep a permanent hard copy record of their cabling and documentation of a working network installation. In addition, it permits field service and repair technicians to print out test results while they are servicing the network.

Users can compare current tests with previous test results and quickly diagnose the problems, reducing downtime and intermittent problems. THe printer can be used to print network activity reports, helping with day-to-day management of traffic and flow of data on the LAN.

The printer is battery-powered, making it convenient and portable to use. It uses rechargeable NICAD batteries and it comes with a 120V AC adapter. It measures just 8.5'' x 5'' x 1.8'' and weighs less than two pounds.

''We think the MT80 is a perfect companion to our line of scanner products. Like our scanners, it offers convenience and portability, and perhaps most importantly, it's easy to use. One of the best reasons to have the printer is that it eliminates the need to tie up a busy network printer to print out your test results,'' said David Bolles, president and founder of Microtest.

Microtest Inc., founded in 1984, designs, manufactures and markets innovative solutions for users of computer networks and electrical communications systems. Microtest has pioneered several firsts in network diagnostics and connectivity products, which increase the reliability, productivity and convenience of local area networks.

REDMOND, WA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Microsoft Corp. Monday announced the immediate worldwide availability of multiprocessor enhancements to Microsoft LAN Manager.

The first implementation runs on a dual-processor COMPAQ SYSTEMPRO.

Compaq Computer Corp. was the first vendor in the personal computer industry to implement a multiprocessing hardware architecture within a PC system, and both companies have cooperated extensively to bring the benefits of multiprocessor LAN Manager to customers.

The new Microsoft LAN Manager Multiprocessor Server Pak is available through Microsoft's channel of authorized network specialists as an add-on to standard LAN Manager. The multiprocessor pack takes full advantage of a second microprocessor, either an Intel 80386 or 80486, by apportioning tasks between the two processors to deliver the highest possible network performance.

Microsoft's multiprocessor enhancements are designed to be implemented on a variety of PC-based hardware systems, and the software is being made available to other OEMs, with Microsoft introducing a program today for compliance testing of the completed adaptations.

Microsoft Corp. (NASDAQ:MSFT) develops, markets and supports a wide range of software for business and professional use, including operating systems, network products, languages and application programs, as well as books, CD-ROM products and hardware for the microcomputer marketplace.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Genentech Inc. Monday announced that it is making licenses available to biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies for a basic patent in the antibody field.

The patent, U.S. 4816567, and other pending patents cover recombinant chimeric immunoglobulins and the manufacturing processes to make them. Another pending patent available for license is directed to the coexpression of immunoglobulin chains including, but not restricted to, chimeric immunoglobulins. Chimeric immunoglobulins currently being produced typically contain a major antibody portion of human origin and the remainder from another species, such as mice. The major advantage of chimeric immunoglobulins is that they are less immunogenic and therefore reduce the risk of undesirable immune response in humans.

The patent arose from a collaboration with the City of Hope National Medical Center in the early 1980s. The City of Hope will receive a portion of the royalties. A goal of Genentech's licensing program is to make the chimeric technology widely available for commercial uses which will maximize its potential contribution to human health care.

More than 25 pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies currently are developing chimeric monoclonal antibody products and dozens of clinical trials are underway for therapeutics, vaccines and diagnostics. Potential uses include treatments for septic shock, autoimmune disorders and cancer, as well as imaging.

Genentech recently established is own monoclonal antibody research and development program. Potential products include antibodies to HER-2, which is undergoing preclinical studies to evaluate its potential to help manage breast and ovarian cancer. HER-2 clinical trials are expected to begin in 1991.

It is Genentech's plan to grant limited numbers of co-exclusive licenses for specific antibodies for selected fields of use at traditional and reasonable royalty rates. A limited number of exclusive arrangements will be considered. It is expected that these antigens and fields will close as licenses are granted. Additional information is available from Nicholas Simon, Genentech director of business development.

Genentech Inc. is a leading biotechnology company focusing on the development, manufacture and marketing of pharmaceuticals produced by recombinant DNA technology.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Spelling Entertainment Inc. (ASE:SP), a leading entertainment production and distribution company, Monday reported a 15 percent rise in revenues, increased operating income and lower net income for the first quarter of fiscal 1991, ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Revenues were $43,983,000, compared with $38,145,000 for the year-earlier period and reflect increased network activity. Operating income was $5,869,000 vs. the $5,813,000 recorded for the fiscal 1990 first quarter. Net income attributable to common shares was $1,302,000, or 4 cents per share, compared with $1,613,000, or 5 cents per share, for the comparable prior fiscal quarter.

Aaron Spelling, chairman and chief executive officer, stated: ''The success of 'Twin Peaks,' produced by David Lynch and Mark Frost, has prompted the ABC Network to order a full 22 programs for the current season. Our Worldvision subsidiary has acquired the worldwide distribution rights to this property.

''The new one-hour dramatic series entitled 'Beverly Hills 90210,' produced by Torand Productions, a wholly owned subsidiary of Spelling Entertainment Inc., is currently being aired by the Fox Broadcasting Co., which has ordered an additional five episodes for a total of 19 hours.

''Our Laurel Entertainment subsidiary produced 'Tales from the Dark Side: the Movie,' which was among the top 10 grossing movies for four consecutive weeks and has completed production of an additional 24 episodes of its current series, 'Monsters,' bringing the total to 72 episodes.''

Spelling Entertainment is primarily engaged in the development, production and distribution of television series, television series pilots, movies-for-television and television mini-series. It recently announced the formation of a new wholly owned subsidiary, Spelling Films International Inc., to acquire and distribute feature films both theatrically and in home video format in the international marketplace. The company also produces feature films financed and distributed primarily by major studios and licenses music and merchandising rights associated with its television properties.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Pacific Bell service representatives took the first orders Monday for a floppy disk bill that allows customers to sort and analyze telephone charges using a personal computer.

''The response to our demonstration diskettes the last few weeks have been very positive,'' said Carol Irvin, product manager. ''Customers are excited about the time-saving and money-saving possibilities of Custom Billing Disk.''

Custom Billing Disk is really two diskettes - a billing diskette, which gives raw data of billing detail and charges, and a billing analysis software diskette. Together, the program will produce reports that allow businesses to compare telecommunications expenses month after month, illustrate expenses with both bar graphs and pie charts, produce expense reports for departments and individuals, and create client invoices.

It can also search for unauthorized calls, such as those out of the area, or to a specific prefix such as 976.

One 5 1/4-inch high density diskette will hold approximately 1,200 pages of billing information.

There is a one-time charge of $100 for Custom Billing Disk, with a $15 charge per diskette each month. Most customer bills will fit on one diskette.

Reports can be created that show call length, dollar amounts, dates, time of day and numbers called by area code or by prefix. These criteria can also be combined to further customize the information available from the telephone bill.

Irvin says the data from the reports can be moved to off-the-shelf spreadsheet programs so the telecommunications information is easy to integrate with customers' existing accounting systems.

Long distance charges are also detailed on Custom Billing Disk if Pacific Bell provides billing for the customers' long distance carriers.

Pacific Bell Custom Billing Disk was developed with PereLine Data Systems Inc. San Jose, Calif., which is a leading-edge software company for bill information for the personal computer.

Pacific Bell is a subsidiary of Pacific Telesis Group, a diversified worldwide telecommunications corporation based in San Francisco.

BREA, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - PCC Group Inc. (NASDAQ:PCCG) Monday announced that its board of directors has authorized the purchase of up to 400,000 shares of its common stock.

Purchases by the company will depend on a number of factors, including market price of the company's common shares, the company's business and financial position and general economic and market conditions.

Jack Wen, president of PCC Group noted that, ''We believe that the current market price of the PCC Group's common stock represents an attractive long-term investment opportunity for the company.''

PCC Group is a manufacturer and distributor of micro computer systems, add-in modules, memories, peripheral equipment, accessory products and integrated circuits.

The company operates through eleven distribution facilities nationwide and manufactures and distributes over 35 different hardware products ranging in price from $10 to $10,000. For the nine months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported net sales of $61,009,000 with net income of $959,000, or 43 cents per share, on average shares outstanding of 2,254,962 common shares.

DALLAS (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Alfalfa Video Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Super Club Retail Entertainment, has signed a definitive agreement to purchase the 20-unit Movieland video chain operating in Arkansas and Oklahoma.

The stores -- all large, superstore formats -- rent and sell video cassettes and serve cities such as Tulsa and Stillwater, Okla., and Little Rock, Fort Smith and Fayetteville, Ark. Over time, the stores' names will be changed to Alfalfa.

In making the announcement, Darrell Baldwin, president and chief executive officer of Super Club, said: ''This acquisition will bring the Alfalfa chain to 59 units. Since Super Club acquired Alfalfa in the fall of 1989, the number of stores in the Alfalfa chain increased from 21 to 39 -- which was a growth rate of 85 percent.

''That, I believe is both a testament to Alfalfa's management team and an example of the power of cooperation among the Super Club group of companies. The addition of the Movieland units, I feel, will further enhance the company's momentum.

''Geographically, the movie is consistent with Super Club's pattern of market expansion -- and, as with our other video locations, detailed analyses will be done to determine the suitability of offering audio product to their customers.''

In addition to the Alfalfa chain, Super Club Retail Entertainment owns over 450 audio and video retail stores that operate under the names of Movietime, Movies at Home, Record Bar, Tracks, Turtles and Video Towne Entertainment.

BURLINGAME, CALIF (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Cellular One, (Bay Area Cellular Telephone Co.), Monday announced the debut of ''California Continuous Calling '' the first cellular service offering no call interruptions to users traveling between the Bay Area and Sacramento or Stockton.

''Over 60 percent of all calls placed by our customers traveling outside the Bay Area occur in the Sacramento and Stockton cellular systems,'' said Justin L. Jaschke, president and chief executive officer.

''Our new system advancement eliminates dropped calls between these three systems and moves us one step closer to a future where people take one phone with them wherever they go.''

Prior to ''California Continuous Calling,'' as customers traveled out of the Bay Area to Sacramento or Stockton, their calls would be dropped as they crossed from one cellular system to another. If customers were going to Sacramento, their calls would be dropped in Dixon on Highway 80. Also, their calls would drop at the Altamont Pass in Livermore on Highway 680 if they were enroute to Stockton.

The number of cellular users traveling outside their home service area, or ''roaming,'' has increased dramatically in the past four years. Cellular One estimates that over 175,000 calls per month are made on their system by Sacramento/Stockton customers, while over 120,000 calls per month are made on the Sacramento/Stockton cellular systems by Cellular One customers.

''People want the option to take their businesses with them wherever they go '' said Jaschke. ''Getting systems to work transparently on a regional or national level by improving roaming, is the first step in achieving a Personal Communications Network.''

Cellular One's unique roaming system, called Super Access, was the first step towards creating this ''seamless'' national cellular network. Activated in 1989, Super Access allows Cellular One customers to place and receive calls in participating cities in California and other states without any complicated dialing procedures.

Cellular One is the Bay Area's leading cellular phone company, servicing over half of the region's approximately 150,000 subscribers. It is the partnership of three major communications companies, including PacTel Cellular, Irvine, Calif.; McCaw Communications, Kirkland, Wash.; and Associated Communications Corp., Pittsburgh, Pa.

CAMARILLO, Calif. (DEC. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - California Amplifier Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:CAMP) Monday reported operating results for the third quarter of fiscal 1991.

Sales for the quarter ended Dec. 1 were $3.8 million, a 22 percent increase when compared with sales of $3.1 million for the like period in the prior year. The company reported a net loss for the quarter of $536,000, or 12 cents per share, which included a one-time charge of $700,000 relating to reserves established for the discontinued defense products business.

This compares with net earnings of $228,000, or 6 cents per share, for the third quarter of the prior fiscal year.

Barry Hall, chairman and chief executive officer, said: ''It should be noted that the significant portion of $700,000 charge will not result in a cash outlay by the company. In fact, since we made the decision to quit the defense product business, nearly $1 million in cash has been provided from sales of equipment and inventories along with royalty payments.

''This money has been reinvested in our commercial product business.''

Hall added: ''We will now concentrate 100 percent of our energies on our commercial products. New product introductions and more emphasis on export sales to foreign markets will help us maintain our sales growth during a downturn in the U.S. economy.''

California Amplifier Inc. designs, manufactures and markets components and integrated subsystems used in microwave telecommunications. Applications for these products include commercial satellite earth stations, home satellite dishes and wireless cable systems.

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (DEC. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Micro Devices Monday filed suit against Cascade Microdevices and a former AMD executive alleging misappropriation of trade secrets, breach of contract, interference with contract, and unfair competition, among other charges.

The suit, which seeks a preliminary and permanent injunction and unspecified monetary damages, was filed in California Superior Court in Santa Clara County.

AMD alleges that Cascade recently hired former AMD executive Ronald Treadway as its vice president of Product Development and that Treadway then proceeded to use AMD confidential and proprietary information to recruit other AMD employees to work for Cascade.

Five of the 16 professional design employees in AMD's Transparent Asynchronous Transceiver Interface (TAXI) chip program have accepted employment with Cascade since Treadway resigned his AMD position. Treadway managed AMD's TAXI program, and was one of three product line managers in AMD's Network Products Division. TAXI chips are key components in many computer network systems.

AMD's complaint alleges that Treadway was intimately familiar with confidential and proprietary information about AMD's patents, technology and product development plans and schedules as well as confidential information about other AMD employees, and that he used this information in a campaign to recruit key personnel from his former department. Unauthorized use of such information is a violation of state law as well as contractual agreements between AMD and its employees.

''While Advanced Micro Devices strongly supports the entrepreneurial spirit, we cannot tolerate blatant and outrageous interference with our business,'' said W.J. Sanders III, chairman and chief executive officer.

''The actions of the defendants in this case have gone far beyond the permissible limits of fair competition. AMD's TAXI program has already suffered significant damage as a result of Cascade's actions. Further, we are concerned that, without prompt injunctive relief, Cascade Microdevices will use AMD intellectual property, developed at significant cost, to compete unfairly, resulting in irreparable damage to AMD,'' Sanders concluded.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (DEC. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - John C. Warner, chief executive officer of Quiksilver Inc. (NASDAQ:QUIK), Monday announced record fiscal 1990 year end and fourth quarter operating results.

Net income for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990 increased 36 percent to $9,517,000, or $1.50 per share, as compared to net income of $7,002,000, or $1.11 per share, in fiscal 1989. Net sales for the year rose 29 percent to $91,195,000 compared to $70,742,000 last year.

Net income for the fourth quarter increased 18 percent to $1,890,000, or 30 cents per share as compared to $1,596,000, or 25 cents per share in the like quarter last year. Net sales for the quarter rose 17 percent to $18,593,000 compared to $15,914,000 in the like period a year ago.

In reviewing operations, Warner indicated that Quiksilver's record financial performance during the fourth quarter and fiscal 1990 was primarily a result of continued strong demand for the company's product line and its solid leadership position in the marketplace.

Quiksilver Inc. designs, arranges for the manufacture of, and distributes beachwear, skiwear and casual clothing primarily for young men and boys under the Quiksilver lable. The company's products are made primarily in the United States and sold in approximately 2,000 surf shops, specialty stores and selected department store locations.

FREMONT, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Vitalink Communications Corp., a leading LAN internetworking company, announced Monday that it has promoted three employees to vice president and has created and filled a new vice president position.

The new vice president appointments include vice president of Manufacturing and Service, vice president of Sales, vice president of Marketing, and the newly created position of vice president of Vitalink's Digital Program.

Commenting on this expansion of his executive staff and the promotions, Leslie G. Denend, Vitalink's chief executive officer and president said, ''These changes re-enforce the flatter management organization established in early November and will improve Vitalink's ability to deliver on its product development plans.

Tony Banta, previously the acting vice president of manufacturing and service, has been appointed Manufacturing and Service vice president. A six-year veteran of Vitalink, Banta was assistant vice president of manufacturing before being named acting vice president of manufacturing and service.

Art Klein has been named vice president of sales. Prior to his appointment, Klein, who has been with Vitalink since 1985, was acting vice president of sales.

Maureen Lawrence, previously the assistant vice president of product marketing has been promoted to vice president of marketing. Lawrence, who has been with Vitalink for approximately a year, brings over ten years of data communications marketing experience to this position.

Paul Schaller, a seven-year Vitalink veteran, has been appointed vice president of the Digital Program. Previously the vice president of Marketing, Schaller will now focus on managing and guiding Vitalink's strategic business relationship with Digital Equipment Corp.

With these new appointments, Vitalink's executive staff will include Vice President of Manufacturing and Service, Tony Banta; Vice President of Sales, Art Klein; Vice President of Marketing, Maureen Lawrence; Vice President of Strategic Relations, Terry Lawrence; Vice President of Finance and Administration, Wes Saia; and Vice President of Vitalink's Digital Program, Paul Schaller.

Denend will continue as acting vice president of engineering.

Founded in 1980, Vitalink Communications Corp. manufactures and markets a family of LAN interconnect processors including Ethernet and Token-Ring bridges and bridge/routers, and a comprehensive network management system. Over 16,000 units are installed worldwide, reflecting the company's position as a leading supplier of internetworking systems used to build large, multivendor computer networks.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MN (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Arctco Inc. (NASDAQ:ACAT) announced at its annual employee holiday gathering on Dec. 14 that it has changed its production employee bonus policy.

Christopher Twomey, president and chief executive officer, said: ''Due to the hard work and dedication of our employees, Arctco has continued to grow. I am pleased to report that we continue to expect our sales to surpass the record levels we achieved in fiscal 1990.

''However, at this time, given the uncertain economic and snow conditions as well as competitive pressures, we are unable to predict the company's year-end operating results, although we feel that total profits will be equal to or greater than last year.

''Therefore, bonuses paid to production employees will be equal to last year's and dependent upon fiscal year-end results, additional bonuses to production employees will be considered.''

The company's fiscal 1991 year ends on March 31, 1991.

EMERYVILLE, CALIF. (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Farallon Computing, Inc. and Apple Computer, Inc. Monday announced they have signed a long term licensing agreement that will enable Farallon to develop and market AppleTalk networking products for Microsofts MS-DOS and Windows 3.0 platforms.

Farallon, the maker of the popular PhoneNET networking system, plans to build on the licensed Apple technology to develop networking products that will be marketed and licensed under the Farallon PhoneNET System name.

The licensing agreement is another step that helps establish the AppleTalk networking protocols as a consistent multiplatform networking standard. In order to insure consistency for the AppleTalk standard on the MS-DOS and Windows platforms, Farallon will also sublicense its work to other MS-DOS and Windows vendors.

Farallon, a long-time AppleTalk advocate, enhanced the benefits of AppleTalk by offering users improved network management and scalability. The companys PhoneNET System enables users to easily expand LocalTalk networks from two nodes up to tens of thousands of nodes.

Together, Apple and Farallon have succeeded in providing flexible, modular Macintosh computer networks that grow with an organization, no matter how large it becomes. The new licensing agreement means AppleTalk customers will soon have access to an even wider variety of connectivity solutions and superior networking applications.

''AppleTalk is a sophisticated protocol suite that offers technological advantages to our customers,'' said Reese Jones, founder and president of Farallon.

Farallon Computing is the leading provider of unshielded twisted-pair networks in businesses, universities and government agencies around the world. Currently, there are more than 1.5 million PhoneNET System nodes -- twice as many installations as that for any other unshielded twisted-pair LAN. Farallon has received several U.S. patents covering its PhoneNET Connector and StarController technology. The privately held company produces personal communications products and technologies.

SEATTLE (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - AirSensors Inc. (NASDAQ:ARSN) announced Monday revenues for the second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, were $7,269,519 with a net loss of $480,565, or 3 cents per common share, as compared to revenues of $7,303,331 with a net loss of $776,901, or 4 cents per common share, for the second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1989.

The revenues for second quarter 1990 represent an increase of approximately 8 percent over the first quarter 1990. This is primarily a result of the Middle East crisis and the dramatically increased gasoline prices attendant thereto. The company's business has historically been driven by the economic savings obtained from the disparity between the prices of gasoline and propane.

Funds from the PGAC agreement were received during the quarter ($295,000) and conversion of the demonstration vehicles has commenced. President Martin stated, ''The timing of the agreement is most beneficial to the company, especially with the enactment of the Federal Clean Air Bill. With the enactment of the Federal Clean Air Bill and in the face of the Middle East crisis, the company's products and technology will make it a front runner in the alternative fuels conversion equipment market.''

AirSensors' subsidiary, IMPCO Technologies Inc., is a leading manufacturer of products for the alternative fuel equipment market. IMPCO has a dominant share of the domestic market and a significant share of the international market for propane and natural gas systems used in automotive, material handling, industrial and small engine industries. It also designs and develops engine management systems for internal combustion engines.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - ASK Computer Systems Inc. (OTC:ASKI) Monday announced the completion of the acquisition of Ingres Corp.

The acquisition was completed by the merger of Palette ACQ Corp., a subsidiary of ASK, into Ingres, with Ingres becoming a wholly owned subsidiary of ASK. The merger was effective on Dec. 14, 1990.

Under the terms of the merger agreement, all of the outstanding shares of Ingres not held by ASK or Palette have been converted into the right to receive $9.25 per share cash. Letters of transmittal for Ingres stockholders to exchange their Ingres stock certificates for the merger price are expected to be mailed next week.

The acquisition of Ingres was effected in a two-step transaction: a tender offer by Palette and ASK for all of the outstanding shares of Ingres and the merger announced Monday. Under the tender offer, which was completed on Oct. 19, 1990, approximately 94 percent of the outstanding shares of Ingres were tendered and purchased for $9.25 per share. The total price paid for Ingres shares was approximately $112 million.

The merger was financed, in part, by a $30 million term loan and a $36 million loan from the Chase Manhattan Bank N.A. under a $45 million revolving credit facility. These loans replaced a previous loan by Chase to finance, in part, the purchase of Ingres shares through the tender offer.

ASK Computer Systems Inc. is a leading provider of management information systems, relational databases and application development tools. With nearly $400 million in revenue, ASK is one of the 10 largest software suppliers worldwide. The new corporation is poised to become the leading provider of software for client-server computing.

CUPERTINO, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Tandem Computers Inc. (NYSE:TDM) Monday announced that it has signed two distributors, SID Informatica and ENSEC Security Systems and Engineering Inc., to sell its products to the Brazilian marketplace beginning in January 1991.

Each distributor has a strong presence in key market segments requiring online transaction processing (OLTP) capabilities. SID will market to the finance and retail industries. ENSEC will focus marketing efforts on government and manufacturing industries.

Tandem products offered by these distributors will include the NonStop Cyclone mainframe and NonStop CLX systems. Additionally, ENSEC will offer the Integrity S2, a fault-tolerant, UNIX System V computer to its targeted market segments.

SID and ENSEC will also be responsible for the installation, training, consulting and maintenance of software applications developed by members of the Tandem Alliance, a program to encourage the development of application software for Tandem computer systems.

''Brazil is a strategic new high-growth market for online transaction processing with a $7 billion information technology industry,'' said Michael C. Moore, vice president of the Tandem Intercontinental Division.

''SID and ENSEC will allow Tandem to deliver more effectively our unique OLTP technology to large Brazilian businesses and government organizations requiring fault tolerance, data integrity, continuous availability and database management.''

SID Informatica is the fifth largest computer company in Brazil with annual revenues of $130 million. Headquartered in Sao Paulo, SID employs over 2,000 people.

ENSEC is a high-growth company with annual revenues of $51 million. Also headquartered in Sao Paulo, this seven-year-old company employs 300 people.

Tandem Computers Inc. manufactures and markets fault tolerant computer systems online transaction processing systems, and enterprise networks.

MISSION VIEJO, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Strategic Acquisitions Inc. announced that it has settled two lawsuits that were pending with James Boris and Trio Metal Stampings Inc., a California corporation (''Trio-California'').

The lawsuits resulted from disputes regarding the merger of Boris' company, Trio-California, with Strategic's wholly owned subsidiary corporation, Trio Metal Stampings Inc., a Nevada corporation (''Trio-Nevada'').

The terms of the settlement provide for or will result in: (i) the dismissal of the actions pending in California and Nevada; (ii) the cancellation, rescission, and/or termination of the transaction in which Trio-California was acquired by Trio-Nevada; (iii) the mutual release of the parties from all claims or liabilities they may have against each other except for certain intercorporate operational claims or claims that relate to a Trio-California certificate of deposit, granted as collateral for a short-term loan made to ViaTool Corp. (''ViaTool'') prior to the merger of Strategic and ViaTool; (iv) the cancellation of the 4 million shares of Strategic common stock issued to Boris in the acquisition; (v) the agreement to submit various minor contractual disputes relating to Strategic's business with Trio-California to binding arbitration if not otherwise resolved within 30 days; (vi) Mr. Meeker's resignation from the board of directors of Trio-California; (vii) changing the name of Trio-Nevada to a name that is dissimilar from Trio Metal Stampings; (viii) the continuation until August 1991 of the bank arrangements under which Trio-California granted a $100,000 certificate of deposit for use as collateral for a short-term loan to Strategic as the successor to ViaTool; and (ix) the retention by Boris of 60,000 shares of Strategic's common stock and 900,000 Strategic warrants purchased by him in the open market early in 1990.

Strategic also announced it has entered into a letter of intent for the acquisition of UGARD Inc. (''UGARD''). The acquisition will involve the issuance of 1.1 million shares of Strategic common stock in exchange for all of the issued and outstanding shares of UGARD stock, and is expected to be closed in January 1991.

UGARD is a privately held company that holds patents and has patents pending on a line of digitally accessed security products. UGARD has an order for approximately $450,000 of its products that is expected to be produced and shipped during the first quarter of 1991.

Several of the components necessary to the UGARD products will be produced by Strategic. Management believes that the acquisition of UGARD complements the company's business, and that there is significant market potential for the UGARD products. Management intends to initiate efforts to further develop that market potential.

EAST ROCHESTER, NY (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - MOSCOM Corporation (NASDAQ NMS:MSCM) Monday announced that it has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire all of the assets of Auditech Communications, Inc. of Bothell, Washington.

In addition, MOSCOM will acquire other assets related to Auditech's business from Auditech's parent company, Promatek Industries, Ltd. of Montreal, Canada.

Auditech had sales in 1990 of approximately $1 million. The purchase price to MOSCOM will be an undisclosed amount. It is anticipated that closing will occur early in January, 1991.

Auditech has two product lines which will be acquired by MOSCOM. The principal product, the TDR call accounting system which is a stand-alone proprietary hardware system for businesses and hotels with up to 1,000 extensions is presently distributed by Pactel Business Systems, Northern Telecom, Inc., several United telephone companies, NEDCO, Graybar Electric, North Supply and Alltel Supply and other dealers in the U.S. and Canada. Since its introduction, over 2,000 TDR units have been sold by Auditech.

Auditech's second product line is an automated attendant voice mail system for small and medium-sized businesses. Introduced in August, 1990, Auditech's VM line has been well received by both users and distributors. North Supply, Graybar Electric and Alltel Supply carry the product today and several other large potential distributors currently have it under evaluation.

Commenting on the acquisition, Albert J. Montevecchio, MOSCOM's President said, ''We have long respected Auditech as an aggressive competitor with innovative, reliable products. Auditech's distribution strategy also fits perfectly with MOSCOM's own. This is a very attractive opportunity to expand our market with proven products.''

John Parkin, President of Auditech, added, ''We at Auditech are excited by the prospect of having the marketing, technical and financial strength of MOSCOM behind us. The combined companies will be stronger than either is alone.'' After the acquisition, Mr. Parkin will remain with MOSCOM in a sales management position.

MENLO PARK, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Liposome Technology Inc. (NASDAQ:LTIZ), a California-based pharmaceutical company, Monday announced the completion of a layoff of 18 fulltime employees.

The layoff was due to the need to concentrate the company's financial resources on the clinical development of LTI's leading products and on demonstrations of the clinical utility of its Stealth technology.

Located in Menlo Park, LTI currently is developing injectable doxorubicin for anticancer therapy, injectable amphotericin B colloidal dispersion for systemic antifungal therapy, and inhaled albuterol to treat asthma and bronchitis.

The company's second-generation product focus is on utilizing LTI's long-circulating Stealth liposomes to target injectable oncology drugs to tumors and to deliver therapeutic proteins and peptides.

EMERYVILLE, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Cetus Corp. (NASDAQ:CTUS) announced Monday that EuroCetus International, N.V., an affiliated company, had exercised a purchase option for all the limited partners' interests in Cetus Healthcare Limited Partnership II, a California limited partnership, formed in 1986 to develop and market in Europe certain products for the treatment of cancer and serious infectious disease.

The company said the option was exercised for $4,267,125 in cash and 1,051,750 shares of Cetus common stock. In addition to their share of this payment, former partners are entitled to receive a pro rata share of a fixed percentage of the net sales of certain products in Europe, less a credit for the initial payment, through Dec. 31, 2005.

Products of the CHLP II partnership included Proleukin interleukin-2, Proleukin-PEG, and Macrolin macrophage-colony stimulating factor.

Proleukin is currently approved for marketing in nine European countries -- Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands and Spain -- for the treatment of metastatic renal cell carcinoma.

EuroCetus submitted a second filing, for subcutaneous administration of Proleukin in combination with alpha interferon, with European Community (EC) regulatory authorities earlier this year, and the subsidiary also plans to submit another application for the treatment of melanoma.

Proleukin also is being studied for the treatment of other cancers, including ovarian, bladder and colorectal and certain lymphomas.

Proleukin-PEG is the subject of human clinical studies for the treatment of AIDS, hepatitis and severe combined immunodeficiency syndrome (SCIDS). Macrolin is in human clinical studies and may be useful for the treatment of infectious diseases in immunocompromised patients, in cancer and in wound healing.

At Sept. 30, 1990, Cetus had cash, cash equivalents and marketable securities of $141,490,000 and 31,484,936 shares outstanding.

Cetus Corp. applies the tools of biotechnology and the science of immunology to the development of novel pharmaceutical products. The company is also developing several commercial applications of its GeneAmp polymerase chain reaction (PCR) technology.

Business collaborations with other firms are an important part of the company's business strategy both in pharmaceuticals and in PCR. Founded in 1971, Cetus is based in Emeryville, and also operates EuroCetus in Amsterdam, Netherlands.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Homestake Mining Co. (NYSE:HM) announced that it will take a fourth quarter charge of approximately $34 million, or 35 cents per share, primarily due to a write-down of the company's investment in its Canadian subsidiary, North American Metals Corp. (NAM).

The charge will result in a loss from Homestake's continuing operations for the year. However, the loss will be more than offset by income of $49 million from discontinued operations which includes the gain from the sale of the company's base metals operations recorded earlier in 1990.

The write-down was made after a review of revenues and expenses projected over the known remaining reserve life of NAM's principal property, the Golden Bear mine, located in northwestern British Columbia.

The Golden Bear operation has experienced a series of cost overruns, start-up difficulties and technical production problems since commencing operations in January 1990. Recently the ore roaster had to be redesigned and rebuilt in order to correct design defects.

As a result of these factors, based on current proven and probable reserves, a substantial increase in gold prices above current levels would be required to permit recovery of the company's remaining investment.

In April 1988, Homestake acquired 73.3 percent of the common stock of NAM for $24 million. After the acquisition, Homestake has made additional advances to NAM totalling $38 million.

VAN NUYS, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Martin Lawrence Limited Editions Inc. (NYSE: MLLE) announced that on Friday, the federal district court located in Los Angeles removed the temporary restraining order it had issued on Dec. 7, which had prohibited the company from delivering the serigraph ''Snowy Night Swing'' by Hiromichi Yamagata to any of MLLE's customers who had purchased the work.

The court also denied plaintiff Hard Rock Cafe Licensing Corp.'s request for a preliminary injunction. ''Snowy Night Swing,'' which has an edition size of 555 pieces and sells at a retail price of approximately $3,800, is published by MLLE. MLLE first began selling the serigraph earlier this month. MLLE will immediately resume shipments of ''Snowy Night Swing'' to its customers.

Hard Rock Cafe Licensing Corp. (HRC) filed the action seeking the temporary restraining order on Dec. 6, asserting that the work of art violates HRC's trademark rights. The serigraph contains the image of an inverted teapot with the words ''Hard Rock Cafe'' displayed on it. HRC has filed a notice of appeal in this action.

MLLE intends to vigorously defend against the appeal if it is pursued by HRC.

Martin S. Blinder, MLLE's chairman of the board and chief executive officer, stated that: ''This decision represents a tremendous victory for the First Amendment rights of artists to publish and sell their works of art. We are very pleased that the public will be able to continue to own and enjoy Mr. Yamagata's ''Snowy Night Swing'' as well as other works of art that depict contemporary life and culture.''

MLLE does not know what effect, if any, the temporary restraining order, which was in force for one week, will have on its earnings for the fourth quarter of 1990. However, MLLE has incurred substantial legal fees in this unwarranted litigation and has suffered a tremendous drain on management resources since Dec. 5, when this case began.

MLLE is an integrated publisher, retailer and wholesaler of limited edition serigraphs, lithographs, sculptures and other works of fine art created by internationally renowned and emerging artists.

MLLE also purchases, for resale, original works of art, as well as limited edition works by recognized artists not published by the company.

NEW ORLEANS (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Freeport-McMoRan Inc. (NYSE:FTX) announced Monday that it intends by mid-1991 to sell at least $750 million of assets.

The proceeds will be used to reduce consolidated debt. These proceeds will be realized from the sale of at least $600 million of oil and gas properties and from the reduction in Freeport-McMoRan Copper Co. Inc.'s (NYSE:FCX) ownership in Freeport Indonesia Inc. (FI) from 91.1 percent to 80 percent. FTX has retained Lehman Brothers to conduct the oil and gas property sales.

During 1990, FCX acquired approximately 5.7 percent of the then outstanding common shares of FI increasing its ownership from 85.4 percent to 91.1 percent.

The reduction in FCX's ownership in FI to 80 percent will be a requirement of the new Contract of Work currently in the final stages of negotiation with the Government of Indonesia, which, upon execution, requires 10 percent of FI common stock to be sold to Indonesian investors and for the Government of Indonesia to increase its existing 8.9 percent ownership in FI to 10 percent.

The sale price of these FI shares is to be based on the market price of FCX at the time of sale which is expected to occur during the first quarter of 1991. The new Contract of Work will be for a 30 year term, with extensions permitted and will include the 6.1 million acres to which FI was granted the exclusive exploration rights last year.

FTX estimates that its outstanding long-term debt at Dec. 31,1990 will be approximately $1.6 billion before giving effect to the sale of these additional assets. As stated above, FTX will use the net proceeds from these asset sales to reduce its consolidated debt.

In addition, FTX has the right to call its 8-3/4 percent Convertible Subordinated Debentures due 2013 in June, 1991, of which approximately $215 million of these debentures are now outstanding.

Approximately $300 million of FTX's $1.6 billion consolidated debt estimated at Dec. 31, 1990, will be nonrecourse financing associated with the copper/gold Grasberg development in Indonesia.

FTX is a leader in the exploration, mining, development, production, processing and marketing of natural resources. The company's products include sulphur, phosphate rock, phosphate fertilizers, oil and natural gas, copper, gold and other natural resources.

WAYNE, PA (DEC. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - American Film Technologies Inc. (NASDAQ:AFTI) and Marvel Productions jointly announced a contract for the first animated television series to be produced without cels, ink or paper.

Marvel Productions awarded this contract to AFT for 13, 22-minute episodes of ''Attack of the Killer Tomatoes,'' a popular Saturday morning cartoon show. Marvel will provide the script, storyboard, layouts and audio track and AFT will perform all animation and coloring, special effects and quality control using its state-of-the-art ''paperless'' animation technology.

The value of this contract for the first 13 episodes is approximately $2 million. Production is scheduled to begin on Jan. 3, 1991. Marvel also has the option for AFT to provide animation services for an additional five years. If the options are exercised, the value of this contract would be $10 million.

In addition to producing paperless animation, American Film Technologies is the leader in the business of color-converting black-and-white motion pictures.

Marvel Productions is a leading producer of animation programming for the networks and syndicated television. ''Attack of the Killer Tomatoes'' is a highly-successful series which has experienced high ratings and was recently renewed for a second season by the Fox Children's Network.

In addition to Attack of the Killer Tomatoes, Marvel produces the award-winning ''Muppet Babies'' for CBS and ''Kid 'n' Play'' for NBC.

Marvel has also entered into an exclusive arrangement with the 20th Century Fox film company to produce anmiated theatrical shorts. Marvel President and CEO Joe Taritero said, ''The AFT system is ideal for the production of classical theatrical full animation.''

American Film Technologies' completely digital animation process has the look and feel of classic animation, explained George R. Jensen Jr., AFT chairman and CEO. Special effects, blurs and fades, which are cost prohibitive or technically impossible to produce using traditional animation can be easily achieved with AFT's technology.

AFT can produce television and feature film animation, which can be combined with live-action or traditional animation. AFT's technology has virtually limitless application for all television and motion picture special effects, Jensen said.

AFT's colorimaging technology offers 16.7 million colors. The color elements of an animated project can be automatically changed by AFT computers, a very difficult task with hand-colored animation because each cel would have to be repainted and reshot. In addition, highly advanced shadings, shadowings and other looks can be added, which are very expensive to produce with hand-drawn cels.

The ability of AFT's computers to catalogue the motions of a cartoon character enables the company to archive this digital information for additional series episodes, eliminating additional costs for redrawing and re-animating the character using traditional animation.

SANTA MONICA, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - National Medical Enterprises Inc. (NYSE/PSE/LoSE:NME) Monday reported the opening of three psychiatric hospitals located in Indiana, Kansas and California, constituting an investment of $32.2 million.

The company also announced the dedication of an alcohol and substance abuse treatment center in Seattle. Terms were not disclosed.

Norman A. Zober, president of NME's Specialty Hospital Group, noted that the company's Psychiatric Institutes of America (PIA) subsidiary also expanded six existing facilities, adding a total of 88 beds representing an investment of approximately $6.7 million.

The expansions included: 41 beds to Great Plains Hospital in Lawton, Okla.; nine beds to The Psychiatric Institute of Washington D.C.; three beds to Psychiatric Institute of Atlanta; nine beds to Springwood Psychiatric Institute in Leesburg, Va.; eight beds to Laurel Heights Hospital in Atlanta; and 18 beds to RiverHills Hospital in Prescott, Wis.

''PIA's construction of these facilities and its expansions represent our continuing commitment to provide strong programmatic psychiatric care for adults, adolescents and children,'' Zober said.

''In recent years, the demand for these services has increased, paralleling growth in the use of sophisticated technology for diagnosis and psychopharmacological advances leading to quantifiable results of treatment.''

PIA currently operates 72 freestanding psychiatric hospitals in 26 states with approximately 6,100 beds, while RCA operates 13 freestanding alcohol and substance abuse facilities in nine states with approximately 670 beds. Their parent company, NME, one of the nation's largest health care services companies, also operates acute and physical rehabilitative hospitals throughout the United States and internationally.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Medco Research Inc. (NASDAQ: MEDR, BSE: BRE.B) reported that its net losses for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended Aug. 31 were substantially lower than for the comparable periods of the previous fiscal year.

For the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1990, total revenues were $435,378 and the net loss was $80,641, as compared to total revenues of $47,958 and a net loss of $236,024 for the fourth quarter of the previous fiscal year.

Adenocard net sales in the United States by Medco's North American licensee, Fujisawa USA Inc. (Fujisawa), for the fourth quarter amounted to approximately $1,648,000 (an annualized rate of $6,592,000).

Audited results for fiscal year 1990 reflected total revenues of $898,171 and a net loss of $690,377, or 8 cents per share, as compared to total revenues of $210,338 and a net loss of $1,010,406, or 12 cents per share, for fiscal year 1989.

Adenocard net sales in the United States by Fujisawa for the nine-month period from December 1989 through August 1990 were $3,109,465.

During fiscal year 1990, Medco made the transition from a development stage company to a company generating royalty revenue when, in December 1989, Fujisawa commenced the marketing in the United States of Medco's new drug, Adenocard, for the treatment of paroxysmal supraventricular tachycardia.

Medco is involved in the research and development of new prescription drugs, primarily for the diagnosis and treatment of cardiovascular diseases. Medco's new drug, Adenocard, is currently under review by the FDA for use as an adjunct to thallium myocardial perfusion scintigraphy in patients unable to adequately exercise.

Medco is also clinically developing a number of other new compounds for diagnostic and therapeutic indications.

TULSA, OK (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - ORS Corp. (NASDAQ:ORSC) Monday announced the completion of an engineering design for the installation of its EM Process on a three-well pilot project for Lagoven S.A., the largest of the operating affiliates of PDVSA, the Venezuelan national oil company.

The three wells will be drilled in the Cerro Negro field located in the Orinico Belt region and is in association with Lagoven's effort to increase its production of Orimulsion. Orimulsion is a fuel oil substitute made from extra heavy oil called bitumen and is designed for use in fire electrical generating plants. Venezuela has at least 270 billion barrels of bitumen reserves in its Orinico belt.

ORS also announced the completion of an installation of its EM Process on a well for Norcen Energy Resources Ltd. of Calgary, and a contract for a well with Petro-Canada Resources, Canada's federally owned oil company. These two companies are now added to the company's client list, which includes Amoco, Texaco, Marathon, Shell and Petrobras, among others.

ORS also announced a successful conclusion of its test project with Royal Dutch Shell in Holland, and that an additional project will be started in the fall of 1991.

Contracts and installations of the EM Process are managed through ORS Corp.'s majority-owned operating affiliate, EOR International Inc., from its office in Calgary, where it markets services and systems for electromagnetic stimulation of oil and gas wells worldwide.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Heritage Entertainment Inc. (ASE:HHH) announced that the company has, subject to definitive documentation, reached an agreement in principal to the general terms of a proposed business combination with the Samuel Goldwyn Co. under terms similar to those previously announced.

The combination will be consummated pursuant to a reorganization of Heritage under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code.

The company's inability to repay its permanent lending facility before its expiration on the close of business on Dec. 14, necessitates a filing to reorganize under Chapter 11. The company, through its executive committee as debtor in possession, will forthwith propose the combination with Goldwyn as a Plan of Reorganization.

The company anticipates emerging from Chapter 11 as soon as the plan is approved. Complete details of the merger will be made public concurrently with the filing of the plan, which is expected to be submitted shortly.

It is currently anticipated that upon implementation of the plan, the current Heritage public shareholders would receive 8.5 million shares out of a total of 118 million shares to be outstanding in the merged company. Such amounts are subject to the Bankruptcy Court and creditor approval, as well as to adjustments under certain terms and conditions.

The company's subsidiary motion picture theater operations have not sought bankruptcy protection at this time and will continue to operate under existing management. Christmas bookings for the theaters include Godfather III, Edward Scissorhands, Dances with Wolves, Cyrano and others.

Upon acceptance of the plan and the implementation thereof, the company will be known as the Samuel Goldwyn Co.

NEW ORLEANS (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Tidewater Inc. (NYSE:TDW) announced Monday, that it's marine service division, Tidewater Marine Service Inc., has signed two multi-year contracts that will place 41 pieces of inland towing equipment in service in West Africa.

The first contract, signed with Noble Bawden Drilling (West Africa), Ltd., calls for Tidewater to provide 31 tugs and barges to service four marsh drilling rigs. The second contract, with Sedco Forex International Inc., provides 10 tugs and barges to service one marsh rig. All five rigs are contracted to Shell Oil of Nigeria under long-term arrangements.

According to Tidewater Chairman, President and Chief Executive John P. Laborde the two contracts involve a total of 15 tugs and 26 barges. ''The equipment will come from a group of recently acquired tugs and barges and from Tidewater's Gulf of Mexico based inland towing operations, Tidewater Marine Towing,'' said Laborde. ''But,''he added, ''Tidewater fully intends to remain active in inland towing operations on the Gulf Coast.''

The towing equipment is being transported to Nigeria in three separate loads aboard heavy lift ships. The first shipment departed the Gulf Coast on Dec. 9 1990, and the mobilization of all remaining equipment will be completed by mid February 1991.

Tidewater owns and operates one of the largest fleets of vessels serving the offshore international energy industry and owns and operates one of the largest fleets of natural gas and air compression fleets in the United States. The company also has modest interests in oil and gas, insurance and real estate.

HOUSTON (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - The Petrotechnical Open Software Corp. (POSC), a not-for-profit, membership corporation founded by five major oil companies, is in the start-up phase of operations in Houston.

POSC intends to build a worldwide partnership between the customers and the suppliers of technical software for the oil industry. POSC's mission is to develop and deliver a software integration platform that will be the common reference of the international exploration and production industry. The benefit for all members will be the opening and extension of the E&P software market and the ability to focus on business added value.

''The formation of POSC will provide a cooperative vehicle for applications suppliers and consumers to achieve the most effective and efficient platform to serve the industry,'' said Dan Turner, president and chief executive officer of POSC.

The corporation will focus on the specifications of an integrated logical data model, an application programming interface, a common look and feel user front-end, and a set of test suites to certify compliance branding of vendor software. POSC will work with the industry through an open, independent process to achieve this goal, and will promote relevant research and development.

''The purpose of POSC is to help make the industry more efficient by allowing companies to allocate their resources on their own, independent E&P efforts, rather than on integrating different software packages,'' said Turner.

The founding sponsors of POSC, BP Exploration, Chevron, Elf Aquitaine, Mobil Exploration and Producing and Texaco, have appointed representatives to the POSC board of directors and the board has elected the corporations officers.

Membership in POSC is open to all, including corporations, business entities, not-for-profit organizations, government agencies and academic institutions. Membership fees are tiered to allow small companies to pay less than large companies, with the intent of encouraging broad representation within POSC.

Two levels of membership exist, sponsors and members. Sponsors make a multi-year commitment to participation while members can join on a year-to-year, renewable membership. For information on membership in POSC contact Dan N. Turner, chief executive officer, 10777 Westheimer, Suite 275, Houston, Texas 77042.

LITTLETON, MA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Alliant Computer Systems Corp. (NASDAQ:ALNT) Monday announced Argonne National Laboratory, Chicago, has installed an FX/2800 RISC-based supercomputer to do research leading to more efficient fuel combustion in automobiles, heaters and other devices.

Argonne's Theoretical Chemistry Group will use the Alliant supercomputer in its chemical dynamics program to study gas phase reactions and solve other problems relating to fuel combustion.

''To obtain accurate and predictive theoretical descriptions of the reactions between molecules, we have to solve large sets of complicated equations,'' said Dr. Al Wagner, group leader of the chemical dynamics program. ''It is an extremely time consuming task. We used to do most of our work on Crays. The FX/2800 enables us to switch from expensive time-sharing on a Cray, of which we were given a small timeslice, to a supercomputer that is dedicated to our research. The Alliant supercomputer gives us a cost effective strategy to solve these types of equations very quickly through parallel processing techniques.''

In addition to combustion research, Argonne will also use the Alliant FX/2800 supercomputer to develop new theoretical chemistry codes for high performance computer architectures. According to Wagner, the Argonne staff will optimize program codes for parallel computer architectures in both shared memory and distributed memory configurations.

''With multiple i860-based RISC processors, the Alliant FX/2800 is a good example of a workhorse shared memory machine. But it also has the flexibility to work like a distributed memory machine. Since we expect the Intel i860 microprocessor will be used in many different architectures, we believe the FX/2800 is a good platform for developing codes that exploit parallel processing in a range of computers. The FX/2800 represents the kind of architecture that theoretical chemists at other institutions will turn to now and in the future to solve problems quickly,'' said Wagner.

Alliant Computer Systems Corp. manufactures standards- based parallel supercomputers with visualization tools that enable scientists and engineers to quickly interpret and solve complex problems.

CHESTNUT HILL, MA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - General Cinemaa Corp. (NYSE:GCN) Monday announced results for its fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990.

For the full year, consolidated revenues from continuing operations were $2,149.5 million, up from $1,913.8 million a year earlier. Net earnings in 1990 were $111.3 million, equal to $1.51 per share. In 1989, the company had earnings from continuing operations of $105.9 million, equal to $1.43 per share. Net earnings in 1989 totaled $971.8 million, equal to $13.16 per share and included a gain of $865.9 million or $11.73 per share from discontinued operations relating to the disposition of the company's soft drink bottling business in March 1989.

Operating earnings in fiscal 1990, after a $34.0 million restructuring charge, were $53.7 million, compared to $92.4 million the previous year. Investment income in 1990 was $123.5 million, virtually unchanged from $123.8 million in 1989. Interest expense in 1990 rose to $103.7 million from $88.8 million a year earlier due principally to significantly higher foreign currency hedging costs associated with the company's investment in Cadbury Schweppes, p.l.c. and higher interest expense at The Neiman Marcus Group, a 60 percent owned subsidiary whose results are consolidated with a lag of one quarter.

The sale of most of the company's investment in Cadbury Schweppes in the fourth quarter of 1990 generated a pre-tax gain of $129.3 million, which contributed $84 million, equal to $1.14 per share, to net earnings in the current year. In 1989, the company had pre-tax income from the sale of RJR Nabisco securities of $82.9 million, which contributed $50.8 million or 69 cents per share to net earnings.

Consolidated revenues for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 were $483.9 million, compared to $445.9 million a year earlier. Net earnings in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 benefitted from the gain on the sale of the company's Cadbury Schweppes investment and were $55.7 million, or 76 cents per share, compared to $7.9 million, or 10 cents per share in the fourth quarter last year.

General Cinema reported an operating loss of $41.1 million for the 1990 fourth quarter, compared to operating earnings of $4.2 million one year earlier. The loss was due to a disappointing performance by the company's theatre division, which had a loss from operations of $9.8 million in the quarter and also incurred a $34 million restucturing charge in the period.

The retail businesses contributed $2.7 million to operating earnings in the fourth quarter of 1990 compared to $4.7 million in the final quarter of 1989.

For the fiscal year, The Neiman Marcus Group contributed a 15.1 percent gain in revenues to $1,688.6 million and a 19.2 percent increase in operating earnings to $99.2 million. After deducting the minority interest, The Neiman Marcus Group's contribution to the company's net earnings in fiscal 1990 was $23.6 million, or 32 cents per share, up from $21.4 million, or 29 cents per share, in 1989. The Neiman Marcus Group's results are for its fiscal year ended Aug. 4, 1990.

General Cinema Corp. operates one of the largest theatre circuits in the United States and is a leading specialty retailer through The Neiman Marcus Group. The company holds approximately $1.63 billion in short-term investments.

HUNTSVILLE, AL (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Intergraph Corp. (NASDAQ:INGR) Monday announced that it has been selected by Ameritech (Chicago) to supply automated mapping and facilities management (AM/FM) systems and services for Ameritech's five Bell companies.

The systems will be part of a new automated engineering system that the telephone companies will use to provide responsive, cost-effective service to their 12 million residential and business customers in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Under the contract Ameritech will purchase hardware, software, maintenance, training and consultant services over a five-year period. Included are Intergraph's recently introduced Series 2000 workstations, based on the UNIX System V, Release 3.1 operating system from AT&T.

Aiding Customer Service

''It's important for us to provide the most cost-effective service possible,'' said Bob Humes, Ameritech Services' vice president of operations and process management. ''When implemented, the Ameritech Record and Engineering System will let us provide more responsive, higher-quality service by speeding design and construction for new telecommunications projects.''

Intergraph President Eliott James commented: ''Following a long, thorough evaluation, Ameritech chose Intergraph to provide major AM/FM tools. Other telephone companies understand the long-term implications of such a decision. We do, too -- and we'll work to see that Ameritech's trust was not misplaced.''

Automated Mapping

At the heart of the Ameritech Record and Engineering System (ARES), the Intergraph computer graphics systems will store accurate, uniform maps of each telephone company's service area. Replacing hand-drawn records, these color-coded maps will be viewed and revised on computer workstation screens.

Overlaid on these maps will be a display of each company's terminals, cables and other items in its ''outside plant.'' A descriptive database will store plant records (e.g., an item's identification number and installation date) and engineering information associated with each item (e.g., wire gauge and transmission characteristics).

By pointing to an item, a user can be shown a display of information associated with the item. Different departments may access the system's single database, reducing costly duplicate recordkeeping.

Illustrating the vastness of outside plant recordkeeping, Ameritech's Bell companies maintain records on the following items in their five-state service area:

-- 1,900,000 terminals

-- 187,000,000 miles of copper wire

-- 230,000 miles of optical fiber cable

-- 18,000 trench miles of conduit

Facilities Management

This complete model of the outside plant helps the telephone company manage its facilities. Automating day-to-day operations, the Intergraph system will be used to:

-- process an average of 400 engineering work orders each week

-- generate work prints (a map/diagram of a project)

-- revise the distribution facilities model, so decisions and operations are based on current information

-- generate maps, plats and drawings

-- generate accounting and management reports

-- alert engineers to proposed actions which violate predetermined operating rules

Among its planning resources, the system helps engineers:

-- analyze existing and proposed plant features

-- generate reports on property records and inventory

Ameritech Background Information

Ameritech is the Chicago-based parent company of Bell Cos. serving Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. It is also the parent company of several other information industry companies providing mobile communications, voice messaging, directories, audiotex services and lease financing. Its 1989 revenues were $10.2 billion.

Intergraph Background Information

Intergraph Corp.'s products include a broad range of complementary workstations and network servers, as well as complete application specific systems for computer-aided engineering, design, manufacturing and publishing, plus numerous earth science applications. A Fortune 500 company, Intergraph is the world's largest company dedicated to developing and manufacturing interactive computer graphics systems.

SAN ANTONIO (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - The board of directors of La Quinta Realty Corp., general partner of La Quinta Motor Inns L.P. (NYSE:LQP), reset the regular quarterly distribution to 20 cents per limited partnership unit (80 cents on an annual basis) effective with the cash distribution scheduled in March 1991.

The quarterly distribution had previously been set at 25 cents per limited partnership unit. Cash distributions of $1.25 per unit were paid to unitholders in calendar 1990. At current market prices, the new distribution level will represent a substantially tax deferred yield of approximately 14 percent per annum.

Sam Barshop, chairman of the board and president of La Quinta Realty Corp., stated, ''The change in the distribution amount is a result of a continued slowdown in demand due to uncertainties related to the economy. As previously reported, we have experienced some weakness in occupancy since October.

''Our current outlook is that these trends may continue through the first half of 1991. The board believes the new distribution level is maintainable through calendar 1991 and represents prudent efforts to assure the company will remain fiscally strong while maintaining its properties in a competitive condition.''

NEW ORLEANS (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - The Louisiana Land and Exploration Co. (NYSE:LLX) (LL&E) Monday announced that its board of directors had approved a 1991 capital and exploration budget totaling $291 million, up approximately 16 percent from its original 1990 budget.

The budget includes $24 million for geological and geophysical expenditures in 1991.

Budgeted 1991 exploration and development expenditures, including geological and geophysical expenses, total $251 million, with $141 million allocated to exploration and $110 million allocated to development. Approximately two-thirds of the 1991 exploration and development budget is designated for domestic operations, with the remainder earmarked for foreign operations.

Refining and processing expenditures for 1991 are estimated at $15 million, over half of which is associated with the construction of a sour gas treating facility at the Madden Field in Wyoming. Other expenditures, including capitalized interest, are expected to total $25 million.

H. Leighton Steward, LL&E's chief executive officer, in commenting on the company's 1991 spending program, said, ''The increase in our 1991 budget is opportunity driven and is based, in part, upon the success we have achieved over the last several years.

''Our planning is based upon the expectation that oil prices will retreat to more moderate levels once the current crisis in the Middle East is resolved.

''We have a number of exciting development projects ongoing in the Gulf of Mexico and the North Sea. In addition, we will continue our aggressive exploratory drilling program in the Gulf of Mexico, selected domestic onshore basins, and certain high- potential foreign areas.''

Steward also noted that deferrals of projects originally scheduled for 1990 were also partially responsible for the increase. ''At this point we expect that actual 1990 expenditures will be 15 to 20 percent less than our original 1990 budget. Most of this short-fall is the result in delays in projects where LL&E is not the operator.''

LL&E's original 1990 capital and exploration budget totaled $250 million. The company added that it expects to finance its 1991 spending program with internally-generated funds.

HARTFORD, CT (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - United Technologies Corp. has extended military leave and guaranteed full pay for its employees in the armed forces reserves who are called to or volunteer for active duty as a result of the military build-up in the Middle East.

The company will pay those employees the difference between their military pay and their compensation as UTC employees for up to one year. In August, before the first reservists were activated to participate in the Middle East action, UTC had extended coverage for 90 days.

Medical and dental benefits for dependents of reservists on active duty also will be continued for up to one year with no premiums charged to the employee or the employee's family.

Under the provisions of the special leave program, employees who enter active duty before June 30, 1991, are guaranteed full pay for one year from their call-up date.

''It has become apparent that our employees could be required to serve longer than the originally anticipated 90 days,'' said Franklyn A. Caine, UTC senior vice president, human resources and organization, ''and we are going to continue to do as much as we can to support them.'' The program will be re-evaluated again next year if events in the Middle East warrant.

''We hope this special program will help our employees and their families during this difficult time,'' Caine said.

UTC provides a broad range of high-technology products and support services to the aerospace, building systems and automotive industries.

OAK BROOK, IL (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Mike Quinlan, Chairman and CEO, McDonald's Corporation announced Monday the election of award-winning financial reporter, columnist and analyst Terry Savage to the company's Board of Directors.

''Terry's unusual blend of expertise in finance and consumer communications will be another plus for McDonald's, as a publicly-owned company that serves millions of customers each day,'' said Quinlan.

Commenting on her election, Savage observed, ''I'm excited about the company's prospects for the future, as it responds to consumer tastes and today's economic realities, and I look forward to being part of that process.''

Financial journalist Savage has been reporting on business topics on Chicago television since 1979. She appears daily on the evening news as financial analyst for WBBM-TV (CBS) in Chicago. Her ''Money Talks'' interview program airs weekdays as the Chicago lead-in to the ''CBS This Morning'' network news program and her nationally-syndicated column, ''Smart Money,'' runs weekly in the Chicago Sun-Times Business Section.

Savage's best-selling consumer finance book, ''Terry Savage Talks Money: The Common Sense Guide to Money Matters,'' was published in the Spring of 1990. She is a registered investment advisor for stocks and commodities, and was a founding member -- and the first woman member -- of the Chicago Board Options Exchange. Savage is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Michigan where she won a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship in American History and Economics.

Savage and husband Edward Harshfield, and her son, Rex Savage, are residents of Chicago.

McDonald's is the world's leading foodservice organization, with more than 11,400 restaurants in 53 countries. Seventy-five percent of McDonald's restaurant businesses are locally owned and operated by independent entrepreneurs.

NEW YORK (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - ELCOTEL INC. (NASDAQ/NMS:ECTL), manufacturer of public communications products, and Rates Technology Inc., holder of a patent covering pay telephones with self-contained rates and provider of rates data to manufacturers and operators of such pay telephones, Monday announced the settlement of a patent infringement suit which has been pending since 1986.

Ther terms of the settlement were not disclosed, and the parties have agreed that such terms shall remain confidential.

George C. Pierce, chief executive officer of Elcotel, commented, ''We are happy to end this burdensome litigation. This settlement is an important step in the turn-around program initiated by Elcotel. We believe both Elcotel and our customers will benefit by our working with Rates Technology instead of against them.''

Gerald J. Weinberger, president of Rates Technology, commented, ''We welcome Elcotel to our group of licensees which now includes most manufacturers of pay telephones with self-contained rates. Elcotel has always provided top quality products, and we look forward to working with the Elcotel management to the benefit of the entire public communications industry.''

HOUSTON (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Offshore Pipelines, Inc. (''OPI'') (NYSE: OFP) Monday announced unaudited results for the quarter ended October 31, 1990.

	Three Months Ended October 31,
	1990	1989
Contract revenues	$ 59,064,000	$ 26,349,000
Income (loss) from operations	1,666,000	(1,536,000)
Income (loss) before income taxes	(238,000)	(2,473,000)
Income tax provision (benefit)	(79,000)	(719,000)
Net income (loss)	$ (159,000)	$ (1,754,000)
Net income (loss) per share	$ (.02)	$ (.41)
Weighted average number of shares outstanding	7,905,206	4,105,206
Stockholders' equity	$ 62,835,000	$ 6,912,000

During the three months ended October 31, 1990, contract revenues increased 124.2% to $59.1 million from $26.3 million in the comparable 1989 period.

This increase was attributable principally to the continuing expansion of OPI's operations and its fleet of vessels. Approximately $25.4 million of the first quarter revenues were from two large marine pipeline construction contracts performed in the Gulf of Mexico.

The increase in revenues was partially offset by increased carrying costs, consisting of interest, depreciation and insurance, associated with a portion of its expanded marine fleet which was not yet under contract.

Selling, general and administrative expenses also increased due to costs associated with establishing international operations and expansion of OPI's operations in the Gulf of Mexico, as well as the addition of management and staff to support the increase in volume.

In addition, OPI announced today that it has purchased a leasehold interest in a 26-acre fabrication yard in Bahrain, as well as related equipment, for $2.8 million. OPI agreed to purchase the yard as part of its previously consummated purchase of marine construction and related assets from Brown & Root. The acquisition of the yard and equipment had been delayed pending receipt of routine governmental approvals in Bahrain.

OPI is an industry leader in laying marine pipelines and installing, salvaging and refurbishing offshore oil and gas platforms in the Gulf of Mexico and in international markets. The Company also fabricates offshore platforms and their component parts.

DENVER (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Canuck Resources Corp. announced Monday that it changed its name to Intertel Communications Inc. to better reflect its current operations.

Through its 94 percent owned subsidiary, Teleport Denver, Inc., Intertel's primary business is the installation and operation of self healing all-fiber-optic cables as an alternative to local telephone lines.

This ''Alternate Access'' service offers lower-cost, higher quality voice, video and data transmission from Denver's businesses to their long-distance telephone carriers. It provides the security of an alternate access to long distance service should telephone company lines be interrupted.

Due to its design the company's fiber optic ''ring'', can continue to function even if the line is cut. The company provides a number of other telecommunications services and operates certain oil and gas producing properties. Intertel is traded on the Vancouver Stock Exchange under the symbol IRT. Intertel is the only publicly traded alternate access supplier in Canada or the United States. It is traded over-the-counter in the U.S. and on the Vancouver Stock Exchange in Canada.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Drexler Technology Corp. (NASDAQ:DRXR) said Monday that the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs has placed a $120,000 order for optical memory cards and reader/writers that will be used to store medical records for veterans.

The VA will field test the medical card system starting in about 90 days at two Eastern hospitals. The program is being administered by the VA Information Systems Center in Troy, N.Y. If the initial installations are successful, additional VA locations would be added. Should the system be implemented fully, optical cards could in the future be used by the nation's millions of veterans throughout the VA's vast network of 172 hospitals and clinics.

Since September of 1989, the VA has been using Drexler's optical memory cards for experimentation and software development during the prototype phase of the program. The follow-on order received this month for the field trial of the system is an important milestone in Drexler's U.S. marketing efforts.

The use of this medical records card can improve health care delivery to veterans, while reducing duplication of services caused by inaccessibility of prior records and test results. With the optical card carried by the patient and updated during each medical visit, physicians will have instant access to medical history data which can provide life-saving information.

Known as the LaserCard optical memory card, Drexler's data storage device is the size of a credit card and can store 4.11 megabytes of image data or 2.86 megabytes of text (1,200 typewritten pages). Medical reports, X-ray images, ultrasound and CAT scans, and other test results can be stored on and retrieved from the card for quick reference.

The medical data is stored, retrieved, and updatedby computer-using LaserCards made by Drexler and reader/writer peripherals made by Drexler licensees. Access to the card's information can be protected through the use of security codes and software. Also, the patient's photograph, voice print, and signature can be stored on the LaserCard for identification or security.

Drexler Technology Corp. is headquartered in Mountain View, where it manufactures optical cards, develops related software, and markets LaserCard-based workstations.

ROCKY HILL, CT (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Ames Department Stores Inc. announced Monday that retired Navy Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of Naval Operations and member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff from 1970 to 1974, has been elected to the company's board of directors.

Zumwalt's appointment increases the size of the Ames board to 12 members.

Stephen L. Pistner, Ames chairman and chief executive officer, said, ''Admiral Zumwalt brings significant strengths to our board with his broad-based experience in government and business, and his proven success in the face of significant challenges.''

Zumwalt currently heads his own consulting firm, which specializes in the areas of management, energy, health care, overseas business operations, foreign and defense policy and strategic planning. He also publishes a weekly column that appears in various newspapers across the country.

He was governor of the American Stock Exchange from 1979 to 1985. He is a director of a number of corporations, including Airship Industries, American Medical Buildings, Fleet Aerospace and Navistar International.

At 44, Zumwalt became the youngest officer promoted to rear admiral, and at 49 became the youngest four-star admiral in Navy history. He was promoted over 35 senior admirals to become the youngest man to serve as Chief of Naval Operations.

Zumwalt, a cum laude graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, has been a visiting professor and guest lecturer at Stanford and other universities. He is the author of two books. ''On Watch,'' recounts his Navy career and warns of the Soviet naval threat, ''My Father, My Son,'' co-authored by his late son, is an account of their Vietnam experiences.

Ames filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in April to reorganize its business and finances. The company operates 461 discount department stores in 17 Northeastern states.

SAN FERNANDO, CA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - SFE Technologies (NASDAQ:SFEM) Monday reported that it had signed an Asset Acquisition Agreement with Dale Electronics Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Vishay Intertechnology Inc. (NYSE:VSH) covering the sale of substantially all of the operating assets of its West-Cap Arizona subsidiary.

William Kuehn, chairman, said, ''The agreement concludes a series of negotiations begun in mid-November of this year.'' Kuehn indicated that SFE and Dale have set Dec. 31, 1990, as the expected closing date.

Kuehn said, ''The agreement covers substantially all of the assets of West-Cap Arizona's inductor and wound film capacitor manufacturing businesses as well as 100 percent of the stock of West-Cap Arizona de Mexico, its Nogales, Sonora Mexico manufacturing facility.''

Kuehn stated that ''SFE's board of directors has unanimously approved the agreement subject to satisfaction of the normal conditions necessary to closing.''

Kuehn restated his earlier comment that ''this sale continues the company's efforts to restructure itself in a manner that preserves its options and maximizes its financial flexibility.''

Additionally, Kuehn said ''the sale of West-Cap does not effect the company's previously disclosed plans with regard to its San Fernando Electric division.''

He said that ''the company's board of directors reiterated its directive to the company's management and its investment bankers, Brockett Tamny & Co., to continue their efforts to locate a buyer for its San Fernando division.''

CLEVELAND (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Robert Wyman, president of Wyman Corp., announced Monday his company has purchased 40 Sisters Chicken & Biscuit Restaurants from the financially-troubled SIS Corp. for over $3 million in cash.

Thirteen of the restaurants are located in the Cleveland area, with 21 more in Columbus, and six in Toledo.

Wyman is a former Burger King franchisee and currently owns and operates Burger Bob's restaurant in Mayfield Heights. He plans to continue operating the fast-food chicken restaurants under the Sisters Chicken & Biscuit name.

Wyman noted, ''I don't plan to make any major personnel changes, because I feel the people who are in place now are well-qualified. I don't blame them for SIS Corp.'s financial problems. Basically, I feel SIS Corp. simply didn't provide the leadership the company needed to thrive.''

The company currently employs a staff of 12 in its Rocky River headquarters office. The 40 Sisters Chicken & Biscuit Restaurants in Cleveland, Columbus and Toledo employ approximately 1,100 crew members.

Although the company's staff will remain essentially the same, Wyman does plan to make a variety of changes in the chain's menu, pricing structure and packaging. He explained, ''I want to simplify the menu, and concentrate more on our core product, namely chicken. Less popular items, like ribs and fish, will be eliminated. A shorter menu will allow us to focus on providing our customers with the best possible product.''

He continued, ''I'm planning to have a new 'price-value menu' in place by Christmastime, so we can offer our customers high-quality food at very competitive prices. Our plans also call for changing the way we package our food as soon as possible.

The publicly-owned SIS Corp. filed for Chapter 11 protection in February 1989. Before filing for bankruptcy, SIS had been attempting to restructure its debt and equity since 1988, but those efforts were unsuccessful. Under Wyman's management, the company will be privately-owned.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Lotus Development Corp. Monday announced the immediate availability of its DataLens Driver for Paradox Tables.

The new driver allows 1-2-3 Release 3.1 and 1-2-3/G users to directly access information stored in Paradox databases, using familiar 1-2-3 commands.

The Paradox driver enables 1-2-3 users to perform a wide range of database management and reporting tasks, such as querying, inserting, deleting, or updating records in a Paradox table and creating new Paradox files.

''The Lotus DataLens Driver for Paradox Tables seamlessly integrates Paradox data with 1-2-3's powerful database and analytical capabilities,'' said Tad Staley, Lotus' product marketing manager for DataLens. ''Lotus users can now easily access and manipulate data in Paradox databases, as if the data resided directly in the spreadsheet.''

Through the advanced relational database capabilities offered in 1-2-3 Release 3.1 and 1-2-3/G, users can combine information from a Paradox database with information from other external data sources, such as dBase III or III Plus, Netware SQL, and SQL Server databases, in addition to 1-2-3 database files.

Lotus' DataLens technology provides 1-2-3 users with a consistent and transparent means to easily bring data into their spreadsheet for analysis, manipulation, and storage. Users benefit from the ability to access a wide variety of external data sources through a common interface, eliminating the need to learn multiple data access methods. In addition, DataLens drivers give users the ability to integrate data from a variety of computing platforms including DOS, OS/2, UNIX and VAX.

DataLens drivers for 1-2-3 Release 3.1 and 1-2-3/G are now available for Microsoft SQL Server, Novell Netware SQL, and Ashton-Tate's dBase III and III Plus. Drivers are under development for Extended Edition Database Manager from IBM, Sybase SQL Server on VAX and UNIX platforms, ORACLE from Oracle Corporation, Vanguard and R:Base from Microrim, Inc., and SQL Base from Gupta Technologies.

The Lotus DataLens Driver for Paradox Tables is designed for use with Paradox version 2.0 or higher and is available directly from Lotus for a suggested retail price of $75. 1-2-3 Release 3.1 users can purchase the Paradox driver for a special price of $20. For more information, or to order, customers may contact Lotus Customer Service at (800) 345-1043.

Lotus Development Corp. (NASDAQ:LOTS), founded in 1982, develops, markets and supports business software and CD-ROM databases that help users access, analyze, communicate and share information. The company's first product, Lotus 1-2-3, is the most popular personal computer software program in the world with more than 14 million users. Lotus markets its broad range of products in more than 65 countries and offers users comprehensive support options, including 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week support in the U.S. for PC versions of its 1-2-3 spreadsheet.

NEW YORK (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Enzo Biochem Inc. (AMEX:ENZ), a New York based biotechnology company, Monday reported revenues of $5,481,000 and a net loss of $952,000 for the fiscal first quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Operating revenues in fiscal 1991 first quarter -- resulting from diagnostic services, diagnostic products and research contracts -- were four percent ahead of operating revenues in the fiscal 1990 first quarter. This operational increase was slightly outweighed by reduced investment income so that total revenues were one percent down from the $5,535,000 revenues reported for the same period the year before.

The first quarter net loss of $952,000, or 8 cents per share, compares to a net loss of $770,000, or 7 cents per share, reported for the first quarter of fiscal 1990. The fiscal 1991 first quarter included costs relating to the consolidation and expansion of EnzoLabs Inc. into a new facility in Farmingdale, Long Island completed in September. This move, geared toward improving the efficiency of this business, is expected to enhance operating margins and lead to future cost reductions.

MEMPHIS, TN (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Insituform of North America, Inc. (''INA'') (NASDAQ:INSUA (Class A Common Stock)) Monday announced that its wholly-owned subsidiary, NU-PIPE, INC. (''NU-PIPE'') has entered into license agreements with its first four licensees: Insituform Mid-America, Inc., NuPipe Southeast, Inc. (a subsidiary of Enviroq Corporation), Naylor NuPipe, Inc. (a subsidiary of Insituform Gulf South, Inc.), and NuPipe Midwest (a division of Midwest Environment Services Corp., an affiliate of Insituform Midwest, Inc.)

Under the agreements, the licensee has the exclusive rights to exploit the NuPipeR Process for trenchless rehabilitation of sewers, tunnels and pipelines in an assigned territory, which for the first four licensees covers an aggregate of 23 states and portions of two additional states, as well as Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

The NuPipe Process requires little or no excavation for installation and produces a pipe with the physical properties of a manufactured pipe of the same thickness and diameter. In addition, the NuPipe Process does not materially reduce the diameter of the existing pipe, eliminates annular space between the new rounded pipe and the original pipe and eliminates the need for grouting.

The NuPipe Process involves manufacture of pipe in continuous lengths of standard pipe diameters, rather than custom manufacture for specific applications, and does not require inversion, making it suited for small diameter pipes.

Patented in the United States since September 1989, the NuPipe Process utilizes a flattened and folded pipe manufactured from thermoplastic material which is stored on a reel in the reduced shape and heated at the installation site to make the replacement pipe flexible so that it may be inserted into an existing manhole, pulled into place and then expanded to a round condition fitting tightly against the pipe being repaired.

In this position, the new rounded pipe is subjected to internal pressure and subsequently cooled into a pipe for permanent installation, with lateral connections then cut from within.

In consideration for the NuPipe license, the first four and future domestic NuPipe licensees pay an initial license fee of $60,000, and thereafter pay a royalty of 6.75 percent of the gross contract price of all contracts covering installations performed utilizing the NuPipe Process, including preparatory and finishing work, but not excluding a number of customary deductions permitted by INA to its InsituformR sub-licensees.

NEW YORK (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Western Publishing Group Inc. (OTC:WPGI) Monday reported sales and earnings for the Third Quarter and the nine months ended Nov. 3.

Revenues for the Third Quarter and the nine months of Fiscal 1991 were $155.7 million and $367.8 million, respectively, compared with $162.5 million and $373.3 million for the same periods in fiscal 1990.

Net income for the Third Quarter of Fiscal 1991 were $8.4 million, or 39 cents per share, compared with $12.7 million, or 59 cents per share.

Net income for the nine months of Fiscal 1991 were $11.5 million, or 52 cents per share, compared with $17.8 million, or 82 cents per share. The 52 cents per share for the nine months is after the one time charge of 3 cents per share for the costs incurred in acquiring Sight & Sound Inc. in July. All per share figures are based upon approximately 21 million shares outstanding.

The acquisition of Sight & Sound Inc. is being accounted for on a pooling of interests basis and Western Publishing Group's previously reported sales and net earnings have been adjusted accordingly. In the absence of the 3 cents per share one time charge for the costs incurred in the acquisition, earnings for the nine month period would have been 55 cents per share.

Through its Western Publishing Company subsidiary, Western Publishing Group Inc. is the nation's largest creator, publisher, printer and marketer of story books and other activity books and products for children. These products are sold principally under the GOLDEN and GOLDEN BOOK names. The company is a major producer and marketer of puzzles, games, children's video and special interest books for adults.

Western Publishing Co. also ranks among the largest commercial printers in the United States, offering a wide range of printing, graphic and creative services to customers in industry and government.

Western Publishing Group Inc. through the Beach Products and Advertising Specialty Divisions of its subsidiary, Penn Corp., is engaged in the manufactured and sale of disposable paper tableware and party goods, stationery and advertising specialties and promotional business products.

ATLANTA (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Contel of Virginia is among the first telephone operating companies in the United States to transport live, commercial traffic at 2.4 gigabits-per-second using the Northern Telecom (NYSE:NT) S/DMS TransportNode, it was announced Monday.

The four-terminal OC-48 system is in service between Contel central offices in Hoadly, Dale City and Occoquan in northern Virginia. It is being used to provide for growth in these high traffic corridors according to George Edwards director of Network Design for Contel of Virginia.

The S/DMS TransportNode is the industry's highest capacity fiber transport system. Introduced last year, the S/DMS TransportNode is the first in Northern Telecom's synchronous optical network (SONET) family of products.

''The selection of the S/DMS TransportNode by Contel of Virginia represents a sharing of our FiberWorld vision,'' says Bob Enos, vice president of Northern Telecom's Transport Division. ''By deploying our SONET systems in its network today, Contel guarantees added value now and well into the future.''

Other announced SONET-compatible products in the S/DMS product family include S/DMS AccessNode, a vehicle for cost-effective delivery of switched and special services to the customer's premises, and S/DMS SuperNode, a multifabric broadband switching system.

Several other telephone operating companies and interexchange carriers in both the United States and Canada have tested the S/DMS TransportNode and are expected to place systems in service in the near future.

Contel, a company with $3.1 billion in revenues and sales, provides a broad range of telecommunications products and services.

Northern Telecom is the leading global supplier of fully digital telecommunications switching systems, providing products and services to telephone operating companies, corporations, governments, universities and other institutions. Northern Telecom, with 1989 revenues of $6.1 billion, employs more than 49,000 people around the world.

HOUSTON (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Offshore Pipelines Inc. (''OPI'') (NYSE:OFP) Monday announced receiving a letter of intent from Leviathan Gas Pipeline Co. of Houston to build a $75 million deep-water oil gathering system for Leviathan.

The system will run across the edge of the Deepwater Flex Trend in the Outer Continental Shelf area offshore Louisiana in waters approximately 600 feet deep. The first gathering system designed to serve a major deep-water area of the Gulf of Mexico, Leviathan's system will provide a transportation outlet that is expected to help speed the development efforts of companies with major new finds in the area.

The system will consist of approximately 80 miles of pipeline from East Cameron, South Addition, Block 338 to Eugene Island, South Addition, Block 330. Leviathan said the system's two parallel lines of 12'' and 16'' diameter will give the company both operating flexibility and allow it to transport both sour and sweet oil without commingling. Assuming timely receipt of regulatory reviews and approvals, the gathering system will be placed in service by the end of 1991.

Leviathan is currently completing the necessary operational and financial arrangements for the project. It is anticipated that OPI will become a minority owner of the system described.

A contract between OPI and Leviathan is expected to be signed in early 1991.

OPI operates one of the largest marine construction fleets in the world, capable of handling a full range of large-capacity and deep-water construction projects worldwide. The company is an industry leader in laying marine pipelines; installing, salvaging and refurbishing offshore platforms; and fabricating offshore platforms and their component parts.

BETHESDA, MD (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Survival Technology Inc. (NASDAQ: SURV) Monday announced unaudited results of operations for its fiscal 1991 first quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990.

The company reported net income for the quarter of $252,000 (9 cents per share) on sales of $9.6 million versus a net loss of $1,492,900 (53 cents per share) on sales of $2.9 million in the comparable prior year period.

The company's fourth consecutive quarter of profitable operations can be attributed in part to a letter contract the company received in Sept. 1990 from the Department of Defense (DOD) for the production and delivery of its Mark I Antidote Kits coupled with continuing sales growth of its commercial products.

The letter contract from the DOD specifies minimum quantities which currently aggregate to a ceiling price of $16.3 million, of which $3.2 million in revenue was recognized based on deliveries of product in Oct. 1990. Under DOD regulations, letter contracts serve to expedite the commencement of deliveries until pricing and other final terms are negotiated.

The DOD may increase the quantities under this contract to satisfy additional Defense Department requirements. Deliveries under this contract will continue into the fourth quarter of the current fiscal year. The company also completed deliveries on the previously reported DOD contract for AtroPen auto-injectors awarded in August 1990 which contributed $1.4 million to current quarter revenue.

Commercial sales continued to strengthen during the quarter to meet the increasing demand for two products for which production commenced in fiscal 1990. Revenues from the sale of the company's patented CytoGuard vial adapter aggregated $683,000 for the quarter, which compares to $1.6 million of revenue generated for this product in all of fiscal year 1990.

Production for the filling and packaging of Syntex Laboratories Inc. (''Syntex'') newly-approved drug Toradol in the company's Cartrix syringe system resulted in revenues of $2.6 million during the first quarter of fiscal 1991. Revenue from the sale of this product for the entire prior year period aggregated $3.1 million. Toradol is a unique intramuscular injectable analgesic for the short-term management of pain as an alternative to narcotics.

Survival Technology Inc. provides innovative pharmaceutical delivery systems and cardiac monitoring services for the treatment of emergency medical problems. The company's products include automatic injectors for self-administration by the military, as well as injectors such as the Epipen auto-injector containing epinephrine for severe allergic reactions and the LidoPen auto-injector (lidocaine) for treatment of cardiac arrhythmias.

Survival provides complete sterile parenteral contract filling and packaging services for prefilled syringes, including pharmaceutical research and development. The company also operates a transtelephonic cardiac monitoring service for high-risk heart patients and markets the CardioBeeper ECG transmitters.

SILER CITY, NC (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Communication Cable Inc. (NASDAQ: CABL), a specialty electronic wire and cable manufacturer headquartered in Siler City, Monday reported sales and earnings for its fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Annual sales of $25,077,818 for fiscal 1990 were up 13 percent over fiscal 1989 sales of $22,167,384. The company reported net earnings of $1,880,337 for 1990, compared to net earnings of $1,103,068 in 1989, an increase of 70 percent. Earnings for 1989 included an extraordinary gain of $104,868, and earnings before extraordinary gain of $998,200. Earnings before extraordinary items increased 88 percent for 1990.

Earnings per share for fiscal 1990 were $1.03, compared to 80 cents before extraordinary gain and 89 cents of net earnings in 1989. Of particular note is the fact that there were 1,820,164 shares outstanding during 1990 compared to 1,243,498 during 1989, an increase of 46 percent.

For the fourth quarter of 1990, sales were $8,433,648 compared to $5,381,786 in 1989, in increase of 57 percent. Earnings for the quarter were $476,510 in 1990, compared to $268,441 before extraordinary gain and $373,309 of net earnings. Earnings per share were 26 cents for the quarter in 1990 compared to 21 cents in 1989 before extraordinary items and 29 cents of net earnings.

In spite of the economic downturn, Communication Cable Inc. realized growth in sales and earnings. The real revenue growth for the year was even stronger than the sales numbers indicate. Substantial sales were lost in 1990, from two accounts who suffered severe financial problems after going through LBO's. The majority of the lost sales was replaced with new accounts which would have significantly increased sales, if the problem accounts had remained healthy.

The fourth quarter consolidated sales and earnings included the first full quarter results of the Texarkana division which commenced operations in July 1990. This division has been operating profitably since the acquisition of certain assets of Texarkana Wire and Cable and is expected to make positive contributions in 1991.

The Saxton division has experienced a number of start-up delays, but is progressing well with equipment trial runs and testing programs for military approval of products. The Saxton division is expected to make steady monthly production gains throughout 1991.

The Chinese Shenzhen joint venture is progressing well. CCI engineering and production teams visited the Chinese factory and assisted in the equipment installation and start-up during August through October 1990. Raw material sourcing and Underwriter Laboratory approval applications are underway.

COLUMBUS, OH (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Meret Inc. (NASDAQ:MRET) reported Monday a net income of $10,341 for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 compared to a net loss of $44,788 incurred for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1989.

Total revenues for the first fiscal quarter of 1991 were $3,356,571 compared to $2,496,197 for the like quarter last year.

The revenue increase is principally due to higher revenues earned from the company's design production and implementation business. However, the impact of this revenue increase was diminished by higher selling, general and administrative expenses incurred through a new sales office in London, England opened in January 1990 and recently opened regional design offices in Atlanta (April 1990) and Boston (July 1990).

Separately, in June 1990, Meret announced its board of directors had approved a proposed reverse stock split for the purpose of reducing its shareholder base below 300, and thereby allowing Meret to terminate its registration with the Securities and Exchange Commission and eliminate the substantial costs incurred in complying with the reporting requirements of a public company.

Although preliminary proxy materials were filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in June 1990, regarding this transaction, the company has decided to delay its efforts to effect the transaction due to limited available cash resources.

Meret intends to continue to evaluate the feasibility of completing the transaction based on future operating results and available cash resources.

HAUPPAUGE, NY (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Jericap Inc. (traded over the counter) announced Monday the signing of a letter of intent whereby Jericap would acquire Graff Pay-Per-View Inc., a company engaged in the sale of movies on a pay-per-view basis to hotel guests and others.

Jericap was formed for the purpose of acquiring a business of a type and in an industry not previously known. The company has 4 million shares issued and outstanding and approximately $320,000 in cash and net worth, including the note referred to below. In addition, there are 25,600,000 warrants exercisable at 25 cents per share, all of which are publicly held.

As proposed, the acquisition of Graff would result in the issuance of up to 28,666,667 shares to the Graff shareholders and finders including shares to certain private placement investors who will invest approximately $600,000 into Graff prior to the closing.

Concurrently with the execution of the letter of intent, Jericap loaned $50,000 to an affiliate of Graff in exchange for a $50,000 note and 80,000 shares of Graff common stock. The company also announced that it expects to seek to effect a 1:40 reverse stock split following the closing of the contemplated transaction.

POMPANO BEACH, FL (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - The following is NDL Products Inc.'s letter to stockholders.

We have just completed our 1st quarter results and I am very pleased to inform you that our efforts towards making NDL Products Inc. a positive winner continues. We now have two back to back quarters of profitable growth confirming all of our endeavors - the 4th quarter of last year and the 1st quarter of this year. Results are as follows:

The company's sales decreased to approximately $2,214,000 for the fiscal quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 from approximately $2,413,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989. Despite this decrease, however, gross margins improved to 33.1 percent from 30.5 percent for the prior year. In addition to the substantial decrease in the cost of sales, selling and general and administrative expenses reflected a dramatic decrease to $586,900 for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 in comparison to $747,947 for the first quarter of fiscal 1990. As a result, the company showed an operating profit of $145,216 for the quarter in contrast to a $9,291 operating loss for the first quarter of fiscal 1990. Net income after deducting increased debt service expenses and income taxes was $42,459 in contrast to a $28,802 net loss for the first quarter of fiscal 1990. Net income per share was 2 cents for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 while in the first quarter of fiscal 1990 the company lost 1 cent per share.

The company has no experience in judging whether the current economic decline in the United States will have a material adverse impact upon revenues and profitability, since during the last recession the company's predecessor was substantially smaller. However, since much of the company's product line consists of inexpensive items necessary to treat injuries and protective gear one wears while playing a sport or exercising, the company is very hopeful that there will be no material adverse impact upon its business.

As a fellow stockholder in this company, I am here to tell you that we are dedicated in making NDL a profitable progressive company and seeing to it that it maintains its leadership role in the industry of which we are so much a part. I am very hopeful that we will be able to meet our goals for fiscal year 1991. Most of our growth factor has been budgeted in the 2nd six moths of this fiscal year which takes place from January through June 30. I am also pleased to announce the bank, as of this press release, has increased NDL's credit line by half a million dollars. This reflects a continued confidence by our bank in what we have accomplished to date in hard numbers, cost savings and what we have budgeted for the future through fiscal year 1991.

BOSTON (DEC. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Boston-based 3i Ventures announced Monday its participation in a $1 million round of financing for PSI Medical Products Inc. (MPI) of Andover, Mass., and Avon, Conn.

Other participants in the equity financing included Ventures West Management of Vancouver, Canada, and Connecticut Seed Ventures of Avon, Conn.

MPI was formed in 1989 as a spin-out company, through joint financing between Physical Sciences Inc. (PSI) and Connecticut Seed Ventures, to commercialize and manufacture medical products originating in PSI. Founded in 1973, PSI is a private R&D organization with operations in areas of national defense, space and energy/environment.

It is considered one of the nation's top firms in winning awards from the federally mandated Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program, including a number from the National Institutes of Health in areas of laser applications to medicine.

MPI's first product is the ElectroMechanical Impactor (EMI), low-cost, minimially invasive endourology device for fragmenting kidney stones. A joint development with the Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH), the catheter-delivered device also has potential applications to gallstone fragmentation and to certain vascular procedures. The current financing will be used for clinical trials and to initiate manufacturing operations.

In conjunction with a remote, intelligent controller that supplies power to the unit, the EMI operates by forming and converting a small, confined pulsed electrical discharge into a mechanical impulse that fragments adjacent stones. The small discharge is confined and shielded so that it can be used safely within the ureter. The EMI technology is considered to be most effective in treating kidney stones that pass out of the kidney into the urinary tract, a condition which often requires hospitalization for the patient.

Patent applications have been filed both in the United States and internationally and MPI recently received approval from the FDA for its Investigational Device Exemption application to embark on a multi-site clinical program in the United States. The pilot clinical program was initiated successfully at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston in late October.

One outcome from the initial trial was the successful treatment of a particular type of kidney stone that has proved resistant to treatment with laser lithotripsy devices. The company plans to apply for FDA approval subsequent to the clinical program and to begin production and distribution in late 1991.

3i Ventures invests in start-up and early stage companies and is one of two U.S. operating subsidiaries of 3i Group plc, one of the world's largest sources of investment capital. 3i's other U.S. operating subsidiary is 3i Capital which invests in companies seeking capital for growth, acquisition, share repurchase or leveraged buyout.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA. (DEC. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Intergraph Corp. (NASDAQ:INGR) Monday announced that it has been selected by Ameritech (Chicago) to supply automated mapping and facilities management (AM/FM) systems and services for Ameritech's five Bell companies.

The systems will be part of a new automated engineering system that the telephone companies will use to provide responsive, cost-effective service to their 12 million residential and business customers in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Under the contract Ameritech will purchase hardware, software, maintenance, training and consultant services over a five-year period. Included are Intergraph's recently introduced Series 2000 workstations, based on the UNIX System V, Release 3.1 operating system from AT&T.

Aiding Customer Service

''It's important for us to provide the most cost-effective service possible,'' said Bob Humes, Ameritech Services' vice president of operations and process management. ''When implemented, the Ameritech Record and Engineering System will let us provide more responsive, higher-quality service by speeding design and construction for new telecommunications projects.''

Intergraph President Eliott James commented: ''Following a long, thorough evaluation, Ameritech chose Intergraph to provide major AM/FM tools. Other telephone companies understand the long-term implications of such a decision. We do, too -- and we'll work to see that Ameritech's trust was not misplaced.''

Automated Mapping

At the heart of the Ameritech Record and Engineering System (ARES), the Intergraph computer graphics systems will store accurate, uniform maps of each telephone company's service area. Replacing hand-drawn records, these color-coded maps will be viewed and revised on computer workstation screens.

Overlaid on these maps will be a display of each company's terminals, cables and other items in its ''outside plant.'' A descriptive database will store plant records (e.g., an item's identification number and installation date) and engineering information associated with each item (e.g., wire gauge and transmission characteristics).

By pointing to an item, a user can be shown a display of information associated with the item. Different departments may access the system's single database, reducing costly duplicate recordkeeping.

Illustrating the vastness of outside plant recordkeeping, Ameritech's Bell companies maintain records on the following items in their five-state service area:

-- 1,900,000 terminals

-- 187,000,000 miles of copper wire

-- 230,000 miles of optical fiber cable

-- 18,000 trench miles of conduit

Facilities Management

This complete model of the outside plant helps the telephone company manage its facilities. Automating day-to-day operations, the Intergraph system will be used to:

-- process an average of 400 engineering work orders each week

-- generate work prints (a map/diagram of a project)

-- revise the distribution facilities model, so decisions and operations are based on current information

-- generate maps, plats and drawings

-- generate accounting and management reports

-- alert engineers to proposed actions which violate predetermined operating rules

Among its planning resources, the system helps engineers:

-- analyze existing and proposed plant features

-- generate reports on property records and inventory

Ameritech Background Information

Ameritech is the Chicago-based parent company of Bell Cos. serving Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. It is also the parent company of several other information industry companies providing mobile communications, voice messaging, directories, audiotex services and lease financing. Its 1989 revenues were $10.2 billion.

Intergraph Background Information

Intergraph Corp.'s products include a broad range of complementary workstations and network servers, as well as complete application specific systems for computer-aided engineering, design, manufacturing and publishing, plus numerous earth science applications. A Fortune 500 company, Intergraph is the world's largest company dedicated to developing and manufacturing interactive computer graphics systems.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 17) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows on July 30, 1990, All-Ways Recycling Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Cameron Capital Corp., acquired a substantial portion of the assets and liabilities of United Recycling Co., pursuant to an asset purchase agreement dated July 27, 1990.

Under terms of the agreement, All-Ways acquired an approximately 0.75 acre site containing a paper recycling center and related buildings and equipment. The United site is subject to both a mortgage and a contract of sale, Cameron reports.

United received at closing $100,000 in cash and a note for $96,325., and All-Ways assumed $224,305 of liabilities. United and its shareholders agreed not to compete with All-Ways for three years within All-Ways' service area.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 17) - The Iraqi government Monday repeated a vow not to give up its occupation of Kuwait even if it came to a military confrontation with the 300,000-strong multinational force deployed in the Gulf.

The Arab sheikhdom was described as a symbol of ''dignity and virtue'' in a statement issued after a joint meeting of Iraq's two highest policy-making bodies, the Revolutionary Command Council and the Regional Command of the Arab Baath Socialist Party, chaired by President Saddam Hussein.

Iraq also said it wanted wanted peace talks with the United States on the Gulf crisis but insisted on the right to fix a date for a proposed meeting between Saddam and U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

Saddam and his top aides reviewed ''the situation in the Arab Gulf region and the latest Arab and international developments'', Baghdad Radio reported.

The statement repeated Iraq's stance that a solution to the Gulf crisis, brought about by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2, should be linked to an overall settlement of all problems in the region, particularly the Palestine question.

This stance, the statement said, was based on Saddam's initiative last August 12 for resolving all problems in the region. The proposal has been rejected by the U.S. which insists on a complete and unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and the reinstatement of the legitimate Kuwaiti government.

''When we call for a linkage (between the Gulf crisis and the Palestine issue) our belief that Kuwait is part of Iraq is unshakeable and the 19th province (of Iraq) is a fact with which our people and our armed forces are dealing with as a great gain,'' said the statement broadcast by Baghdad Radio.

HANNOVER, Germany (DEC. 17) - German group Preussag had a consolidated net result for the first nine months of its financial year of 300 million Deutsche marks (about 200 million dollars), it announced here on Monday.

It did not offer any comparative data for other periods because of the substantial change in its consolidation basis that occurred with the absorption of Salzgitter last May.

Preussag sales for the first nine months amounted to 19.2 billion marks, and to seven billion for the third quarter alone.

The group employed 72,196 people at the end of September.

Preussag Group does business in non-ferrous metals, energy and oil services.

LAGOS (DEC. 17) - Palestine Liberation Organistion (PLO) leader Yasser Arafat who made a brief visit here Monday, warned U.S. President George Bush against turning the Gulf into another Vietnam, bringing "disaster and catastrophe".

Referring to a U.N. Security Council resolution authorising the use of force against Iraq unless it withdraws from Kuwait by January 15, the PLO leader said, "We not believe in ultimatums and deadlines".

He said the PLO supported Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's proposal to link a withdrawal from Kuwait with an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories.

Mr. Arafat was speaking after a three-hour meeting at the airport with Nigerian President Ibrahim Babangida.

ISLAMABAD (DEC. 17) - Indian Foreign Secretary Muchkund Dubey arrived late Monday for talks on Indo-Pakistan relations amid expressions of concern here over alleged violence against India's Moslem minority.

He is due to hold discussions with Pakistani Foreign Secretary Shaharyar Mohammed Khan on Tuesday and Wednesday and may also call on President Ghulam Ishaq Khan and Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif, officials said.

Pakistan is expected to raise the Kashmir dispute and ask that the two countries engage in serious efforts to find a solution to the 43-year-old problem, official sources said.

This will be the third round of talks between the foreign secretaries of the two countries since July.

The previous two sessions failed to make any headway towards improving relations, which came under severe strain after the outbreak of a militant Moslem separatist struggle this year in the Indian-controlled part of the divided state.

India accuses Pakistan of fuelling the campaign in its only Moslem-majority state, where more than 2,000 people have died since January.

Islamabad denies the charges and says it has been extending only moral, political and diplomatic support to the Kashmiris' struggle for their "right to self-determination."

Continuing communal riots in India dominate the official media and the press in Pakistan, with the government and politicians urging New Delhi to protect its Moslem minority against extremist Hindus.

The fundamentalist Jamaat-e-Islami party (JI), a key component of the ruling Islamic Democratic Alliance (IJI), Monday asked Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif to demand a special session of the 45-nation Organisation of the Islamic Conference.

LONDON (DEC. 17) - The Foreign Office on Monday advised British women and children living in Bahrain, Qatar and eastern Saudi Arabia to leave before January 15, the deadline the United Nations has given Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

A spokesman said that did not mean Britain feared ''a worsening of the situation'', however.

About 10,500 British women and children live in the areas named.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 17) - NATO warned here on Monday that Iraq should not be allowed to exploit Western contacts in order to extend the United Nations deadline for its withdrawal from Kuwait.

But the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation said in a statement that it supported efforts to persuade Iraq that it would be expelled by force if it failed to heed the January 15 deadline.

The statement was made during the first day of a two-day meeting of foreign ministers of the 16 member Atlantic Alliance.

During the meeting, U.S. Secretary of State James Baker said Iraq could be expected to make a "dramatic step" on or around January 15 -- perhaps a partial withdrawal from Kuwait.

This needed to be rejected, he said, and Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein needed to be convinced that he stood no chance of dividing the alliance against him.

Mr. Baker said any diplomatic contacts with Iraq needed to persuade the Iraqi leader that he could not ward off the deadline "by playing games on the meeting in Baghdad".

This was a reference to a planned meeting between the U.S. Secretary of State and Mr. Hussein.

The Iraqis have refused a U.S. offer that the meeting take place any time up to January 3. They have insisted on a date of January 12, just three days before the U.N. deadline expires.

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd also warned that Iraq should not be allowed to get away with a partial solution that did not include a full withdrawal and restoration of the Kuwaiti government.

He told journalists that Britain was against any "flurry of iniatives" on the Gulf crisis, or any change of tactics which would delude the Iraqi leadership into thinking there were any divisions in the alliance against it.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said Mr. Hussein needed to understand that "if he does not leave Kuwait, there will be war and if he does leave, there will not be war".

KATHMANDU (DEC. 17) - India and Nepal signed an agreement on Monday for reconstruction of a 100-year-old bridge which carries 75 percent of trade traffic between the two countries, official sources said.

The bridge, which links Raxual, India's northern railhead, and Nepal's southern industrial town of Birgunj forms an important political and economic link, but has fallen into disrepair.

Nepal has been asking India to repair the bridge for the last few years, but planned reconstruction was delayed between March 1989 and April 1990 because of a trade dispute between the two.

India has built another bridge over the Mohana river in the southwest of the country, which was officially opened in August.

Monday's agreement was signed by Nepal's Finance Secretary Mohan Raj Sharma and Indian Ambassador to Nepal S.K. Sinha, the sources said, adding the cost of the repairs is estimated at 1.68 million U.S. dollars, and they should be completed in one year.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 17) - Iraq's Defense Ministry on Monday called up all reservists born in 1957 and asked them to proceed to their respective barracks in three days time at the latest, Baghdad radio reported.

It said reservists currently travelling abroad should return to Iraq in 15 days' time.

Iraq has decided to deploy more than 250,000 additional troops to respond to the United States decision to add to the more than 200,000 troops already deployed in the Gulf.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 17) - Transport ministers of the European Community (EC) concluded three agreements here on Monday to promote a unified community transport market after the year 1993.

A spokesman for the EC Commission, the community's executive arm, said the ministers agreed that the length of trucks (lorries) including trailers could not exceed 18.35 meters (60 feet) for reasons of road safety.

To ensure good conditions for drivers, truck cabs have to measure at least 2.35 meters. The hitch between the cab and the trailer will be 0.35 meter, while the length of the load may not exceed 15.65 meters.

Trucks exceeding the new maximum length will be allowed to operate until 1998, all the same.

The ministers' second decision was adoption of a directive called for a series of measures to promote combined transport (road plus rail or road plus barge) after 1993.

It will then be possible for a trucker to pick up his load from a train or barge arriving in another EC country and finish the trip by road, whereas he is now forced to use transporters in the arrival country.

The ministers also decided to increase by 40 per cent in 1991 and 1992 (to 40,000 and 60,000, respectively) the quota of EC licenses allowing trucks to operate in various EC countries without having to apply for various national authorizations.

To allow for German reunification, the ministers added another 940 EC licenses half of them for Germany.

HAVANA (DEC. 17) - Bicycles are in and gas-guzzling Hungarian buses are out as Cuba makes its way through hard times marked by declining help from former allies, President Fidel Castro said in comments published Monday.

"The era of the bicycle is here to stay," he said.

In a speech Sunday to a manufacturers' convention, Mr. Castro said Cuba's "special period in peacetime" -- his orthodox communist government's term for the country's economic woes and plans to combat them -- means Cubans subjected to rationing of many goods will learn to make more out of less.

"I hope that when we emerge from the special period, these good habits will never be lost again," the communist party daily Granma quoted Mr. Castro as saying.

Formerly socialist nations in Eastern Europe that used to be a source of spare parts for Cuban industry will no longer be suppliers for this Caribbean island nation, Mr. Castro said.

"We may never get another part from them, or who knows at what price," he was quoted as saying. Cuba will buy from those "former people's democracies," he said, "if we do not have money to acquire equipment of higher quality."

Mr. Castro took aim at "antiquated" Hungarian buses plodding around Cuba, saying in Havana alone they gulped more fuel than all the harvesting machines used to reap Cuba's sugarcane crop.

On the bicycle craze he is predicting, Mr. Castro asked: "Why renounce the bicycle when it is a very healthy habit for the people?"

Next year Cuba will manufacture 100,000 bikes, and another 200,000 purchased overseas will be delivered soon, he said.

"In a special period, bicycles can be a great help," he said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 17) - Three Democratic senators have asked Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for information about the 1983 downing of a Korean airliner by a Soviet jet fighter, which claimed 269 lives.

The legislators -- Sam Nunn of Georgia, Carl Levin of Michigan and Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts -- wrote to the Soviet leader last month asking for information on whether the wreckage of the plane or the remains of the passengers and crew had been located.

The letter was sent November 14 but the senators have not received a reply, aides said Monday.

"This unanswered question is a constant, troubling burden for the families and relatives of the Americans who perished on the flight," the lawmakers wrote.

The 63 Americans who were on Korean Air Lines Flight 007 included Democratic Representative Larry McDonald of Georgia.

The Boeing 747 was downed September 1, 1983, by missiles fired from a Soviet jet fighter after the airliner strayed into the strategically sensitive airspace over the Soviet northeastern island of Sakhalin.

Soviet officials have given U.S. and Japanese officials some items recovered from the plane, but have never acknowledged if the main wreckage or the remains of the victims were found.

The Soviets have charged the plane was on a U.S. spy mission. Washington denies that.

Press reports in Seoul said Sunday the Soviets have for the first time apologized for the incident.

The apology came at a meeting between Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and his South Korean counterpart Choi Ho-Joong in Moscow on Saturday, the reports said.

Mr. Choi quoted Mr. Shevardnadze as saying, "I regret that the incident cost innocent lives, although the tragedy has an aspect involving our rights to self-defense," the reports said.

The Shevardnadze-Choi meeting came as President Roh Tae-Woo became the first South Korean head of state to visit Moscow, less than three months after the two countries established diplomatic ties in September.

MOSCOW (DEC. 17) - Soviet deputy premier Leonid Abalkin said on Monday that a new devaluation of the ruble against convertible currencies is "inevitable", Tass news agency reported.

But Mr. Abalkin, speaking at a news conference, refused to say that such a devaluation is imminent, the agency said. He commented that "That would make no contribution at all to improving the country's economic situation".

On November 1, the commercial ruble, used as a unit of account for foreign companies' operations in the Soviet Union, was devalued from 0.6 ruble to 1.6

rubles to the U.S. dollar.

But almost all Soviet firms recovered their loss by tripling their prices, or by continuing to apply the former rate while waiting to boost prices.

There is still an official rate of 0.6 rubles to the dollar, as well as a tourist rate, which entitles foreign tourists to receive three rubles for a dollar at Soviet banks.

Credit cards are debited at the commercial rate, and on the black market the dollar goes for around 20 rubles.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 17) - Three United Nations vehicles were set on fire in east Jerusalem on Monday near the organization's headquarters, police said.

They said the attack could be the work of Israeli extremists upset at a possible vote at the United Nations Security Council on a resolution of the Palestinian problem.

More than 200 Israeli-registered cars have been set ablaze by Palestinians in east Jerusalem and its surrounding areas since the start of the year, police said.

MANAMA (DEC. 17) - British Defense Secretary Tom King will arrive in Bahrain on Tuesday for talks on the Gulf crisis, officials said Monday.

The official Gulf News Agency (GNA) said the discussions would also focus on cooperation between Bahrain and Britain.

Britain has deployed some 16,000 troops in Saudi Arabia as part of a U.S.-led multinational force massed against Iraq since it invaded Kuwait on August 2.

Another 14,000 British forces will be dispatched to the Gulf by January 15, the United Nations-mandated deadline for an Iraqi troop withdrawal from Kuwait.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 17) - The European Community agreed Monday to lend 500 million dollars to Czechoslovakia.

Finance ministers of the 12 EC nations agreed in principal to the loan at one of their regular meetings.

The loan would be part of a billion dollar effort to help Czechoslovakia turn to a market economy being discussed by the so-called G24 group of 24 industrialised nations coordinating their aid to the new democracies of Eastern Europe.

The EC and the United States may ask Arab petroleum producing nations to participate in the international loan, EC officials said.

The G24 have already made similar loans to Poland and Hungary.

The EC member states also agreed that the European Investment Bank (EIB) could make loans available to Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria in addition to Poland and Hungary.

BEIJING (DEC. 17) - The Secretary General of the Communist Party of China Jiang Zemin met Monday with a delegation from the South West Africa People's Organisation (SWAPO), the New China News Agency (NCNA) said.

The delegation, the first sent by SWAPO to China since Namibian independence earlier this year, arrived December 14 and is headed by Moses Garoeb, a member of SWAPO's politburo. the official agency said.

Mr. Jiang told the delegates he hoped SWAPO would be able to "unite most of its people to build a prosperous Namibia," NCNA said.

Mr. Garoeb presented a letter from President Sam Nujoma, who is also the head of SWAPO, to Mr. Jiang, NCNA said without giving details.

The delegation is due to travel to Shanghai before returning home on December 22.

China's deputy premier, Wu Xueqian, travelled to Windhoek in March for independence celebrations, following which China established diplomatic relations with Namibia.

ABU DHABI (DEC. 17) - Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati met here late Monday with United Arab Emirates (Uae) President Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan al-Nahyan to discuss the Gulf crisis, reports said.

Velayati handed Zayed a letter from Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani dealing with the latest developments in the Gulf crisis, efforts exerted to end the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait and the return of the legitimate Kuwaiti government, the Uae news Agency Wam reported.

The letter also dealt with ways of ensuring security and stability in the region and Iran's stance on this matter as well as ways of boosting cooperation between the two countries, it said.

Velayati had arrived here earlier in the day from Bahrain on the last leg of a Gulf tour to discuss the crisis brought about by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

The tour had also taken him to Qatar and Oman where he conveyed oral messages from Rafsanjani to the leaders of the two states.

Saudi Arabia, a partner of the four states in the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (Gcc), was not included in Velayati's itinerary, apparently because of strained Saudi-Iranian ties, reports said. The sixth Gcc member is Iraqi-annexed Kuwait.

BUENOS AIRES (DEC. 17) - President Carlos Menem denied Monday that a regiment of tanks were mobilized after irregular troop movements were reported, and warned the media against alarming the public.

"Nothing happened, absolutely nothing," Mr. Menem said when asked about the reports of irregular troop movements that might have signaled a second military revolt within a month. "We're not playing in Argentina anymore."

Argentine forces moved quickly to crush a December 3 military revolt to avoid a long standoff such as had occurred last year when some troops rebelled. Many Argentines have urged tough penalties for the rebellious troops.

Radio Chajari in Entre Rios province north of the capital had reported what were termed suspicious troop movements and other media began repeating the radio report, raising fears of another military revolt.

The reports gathered momentum after the mayor of Chajari was quoted as saying that armored vehicles were moving through the region some 400 kilometers (240 miles) north of Buenos Aires "apparently without orders from superiors."

Motorists also reported seeing armored trucks around Chajari and Defense Minister Humberto Romero went to the presidential palace to meet with Mr. Menem.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 17) - The State Department Monday criticized Israel's use of snipers against stone-throwing Palestinians, and reiterated its opposition to expulsions of Palestinians.

"The use of live fire even by trained sharpshooters raises the likelihood of more deaths and injuries and is an inappropriate response to the threat caused by stone-throwers," the department said in a statement.

"We believe that the use of force should be proportionate to the action it is intended to prevent. We have raised our concerns with the government of Israel " the department said.

Secretary of State James Baker also brought the question up during a meeting here Thursday with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, as well Washington's opposition to Israel's expulsion of Palestinians.

John Kelly, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs, "reiterated our position" in talks with Israel's ambassador to Washington, Zalman Shoval, department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

"In Israel, our charge and our ambassador spoke with foreign ministry and defense officials Saturday evening and Sunday," he added.

The State Department said Saturday it deplored the Israeli government's decision to order the expulsion of four Palestinians. Washington has opposed all expulsions since the intifada began, arguing that it violates the Geneva conventions on the treatment of residents of the occupied territories.

SYDNEY (DEC. 18) - Australia's central bank said here Tuesday it would cut interest rates, easing official cash levels on the money market by one percentage point to about 12 per cent.

It is the sixth time this year the Reserve Bank has cut interest rates.

Analysts had been expecting the cut after Treasurer Paul Keating confirmed Australia was in recession two weeks ago.

The Reserve said the reduction in interest rates "should provide some relief to viable businesses and encourage investment opportunities, without risking the hard-won gains on inflation."

The cut in official cash rates, or interest charged on overnight inter-bank loans, to around 12 percent is expected to affect all other interest rates, including home loans, currently ranging between 13.5 percent and 15 percent.

Prime rates issued to major corporate customers of the banks now stand at about 16 percent.

The Reserve Bank said inflationary pressures were abating, with "practically all indicators pointing to smaller increases in prices and wages than we have seen for a long time."

The Australian dollar was steady after the announcement at about 76.30 U.S. cents, while money market yields had fallen slightly.

PARIS (DEC. 18) - A delegation from the Chinese Communist Party is attending the five-day French Communist Party congress, opening Tuesday, despite protests from the hardline French party's reformist wing.

The French party leadership issued a statement on November 30 strongly protesting the planned trials of participants in the 1989 Beijing pro-democracy demonstrations, but declined to withdraw its invitation to the Chinese communists.

Judging the statement insufficient, five pro-reform Communist deputies handed in a protest to the Chinese embassy here, "very firmly condemning the actions of the Chinese authorities".

The five called on Beijing to "immediately stop repression, and free all those detained for having exercised their basic rights".

A group of pro-reform communist militants meanwhile issued a statement saying that the leadership's protest to Beijing "could only be credible" if accompanied by the cancellation of the invitation to attend the 27th congress here.

"Our party must break with the Stalinist concept of the class struggle on the international scale, according to which we cannot associate with the assassins of Santiago (Chile) but we can with those of Brasov (Romania) and Beijing ... because they are communists," the group said.

In addition to the reformers' appeal, motions proposing the withdrawal of the invitation to the Chinese delegation were put forward at some local meetings of militants ahead of the congress, notably in the Paris region.

The French party leadership, according to Central Committee secretary Gaston Plissonnier, maintains that the relations among communist parties should be based on "total respect of independence, non-interference and the recognition of differences and divergences".

Advocates of reform in the French Communist Party make up a full third of the party's 26 parliamentary deputies and are well placed in local government, but are in a minority among the 1,500 congress delegates.

The congress is expected to endorse the French communist party's orthodox line which the leadership has refused to abandon despite the collapse of hardline communist regimes throughout eastern Europe.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 18) - The United States on Monday encouraged Western Europe to establish a common defense system to face up to dangers not covered by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Addressing NATO foreign ministers here, U.S. Secretary of State James Baker showed special interest in the role that could be played by the Western European Union (WEU) to defend the interests of Western Europe and NATO.

The WEU, founded in the 1950s, now groups Germany, Belgium, Spain, France, Britain, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Portugal and is the only solely European grouping competent to handle defense.

In close collaboration with the United States, it sponsored the intervention of European naval forces in the Gulf in 1987 and this year.

In his speech, extracts of which were released late Monday, Mr. Baker said the Iraqi invasion was "not likely to be the last challenge we face" in the Middle East.

He declared: "Iraq's aggression in the tinderbox of the Middle East certainly poses a danger to Western Europe that could be as important as any direct threat to NATO territory."

The North Atlantic treaty calls for collective defense only when one of its member countries, 14 in Europe plus the United States and Canada, is threatened. Thus NATO is not allowed to intervene in the Middle East unless it is defending Turkey.

"We would be especially interested in how a European defense identity might help meet those challenges (...) upon which NATO traditionally has not acted," Mr. Baker said.

He went on: "In this respect, we have noted with particular interest suggestions that the WEU -- an organization that has twice responded to threats in the Gulf region -- might form the basis of such an identity.

"A European pillar for the Alliance building on the experience of the WEU could help us rise above the old and sterile debate about 'out-of-area' roles."

WASHINGTON (DEC. 17) - President George Bush Monday said he remained open to talks with Iraq. But he stressed that Baghdad's inflexibility was heightening tension, and reiterated that Iraqi forces must quit Kuwait by midnight January 15.

He said all necessary means would be used to drive Iraq from Kuwait without negotiating the fate of "one inch" of Kuwaiti territory.

"I'm not in a threatening mode," Mr. Bush told a press conference. "I don't think any of us are. We're in a determined mode. A mode that he (Iraqi President Saddam Hussein) should get out (of Kuwait). And he's got to understand it. So we keep on repeating it: no negotiation for one inch of territory."

Mr. Bush met earlier Monday with representatives of the 28 countries allied against Iraq, and with Nathaniel Howell, U.S. ambassador to Kuwait.

The U.S. president warned that Iraq must withdraw from Kuwait by midnight January 15 and said he had already shown enough flexibility on arranging talks with Baghdad.

Mr. Bush added that "thus far, Iraq's behavior underscores what I think is it's lack of interest in a peaceful settlement of this crisis."

Mr. Bush said he hoped the planned dialogue still would take place and that the stalemate over dates for high-level meetings would not bring the two countries closer to war.

"I'm still hopeful there's a peaceful solution to this problem," Mr. Bush said.

"At midnight (January 15), if he (Mr. Hussein) is not totally out of Kuwait, the U.N. sanctions must be fulfilled," Mr. Bush told reporters.

Mr. Bush refused to say what he would do if Iraq did not pull out of Kuwait by the United Nations-approved deadline of January 15. The world body has sanctioned the use of force after that date if Iraqi invasion forces remain in the emirate.

TOKYO (DEC. 17) - British billionaire Richard Branson and Swedish balloonist Per Lindstrand said Monday that weather conditions forced them to put off until January a bid to cross the Pacific Ocean by hot-air balloon.

"To try and cross the world's largest ocean at this time would pose too high a risk factor," Mr. Branson said in Miyakonojo, a small town 900 kilometers (540 miles) southwest of Tokyo.

The two balloonists and the rest of their team arrived in Miyakonojo at the end of November, hoping for an early launch.

But unseasonable atmospheric conditions, including the first typhoon to hit Japan in 120 years, forced postponement of the launch.

Mr. Branson and Mr. Lindstrand, who made the first successful Atlantic crossing by hot-air balloon in 1987, will return to Miyakonojo in early January in hopes of more favorable weather conditions.

If the jet stream allows, they could cross the Pacific in about 60 hours at an altitude of 10,000 meters (about 33,000 feet).

OSHKOSH, Wisconsin (DEC. 17) - A judge Monday ordered a new trial for a man convicted of raping a woman doctors say has 46 personalities.

In overturning the conviction, the judge said the rape victim should have been interviewed by a defense psychologist.

The judge made the decision at the request of District Attorney Joseph Paulus, in agreement with the opinion of the state attorney general's office that the conviction should be overturned. Mr. Paulus was the object of considerable criticism for his earlier handling of the case.

The district attorney said he had not decided whether he would seek a second prosecution of Mark Peterson, aged 29, of Oshkosh. Mr. Paulus planned to question the woman's doctors to determine if she was capable of participating in a new trial.

George Curtis, the Oshkosh woman's attorney, said she was willing to testify at a second trial but that he would discourage her from doing so.

Mr. Peterson was convicted November 8 of second-degree sexual assault after a trial which called into question the issues of sexual consent and the mentally ill, and specifically cases involving the affliction known as multiple personality disorder.

The 27-year-old woman testified that she was unaware that she had sex until other personalities told her so.

Jurors agreed with Mr. Paulus's assessment that Mr. Peterson coerced one of the woman's personalities to have sex with him in his car. Wisconsin law prohibits sexual relations with a mentally ill person incapable of understanding his actions.

Mr. Peterson's new attorney, Mary Sue Robinson, presented nine separate grounds in her effort to secure a second trial for her client.

"I don't think there is anybody who participated in that trial who would like to have the appellate (court) read the record, much less the Supreme Court," she said.

The judge's ruling addressed only the contention that the defense psychiatrist ought to have been permitted to interview the victim.

NEW DELHI (DEC. 17) - Authorities have closed the Taj Mahal to tourists after widespread Hindu-Moslem riots forced an indefinite curfew in the town of Agra, a government official said Monday.

The 17th-century marble mausoleum, which attracts two million tourists a year, was shut Saturday after the communal clashes, said the official, Ajit Kumar Singh.

"I can't say when it will open," said Mr. Singh, assistant director in the tourism department of the northern Indian state of Uttar Pradesh, speaking by telephone from Agra, 200 kilometers (125 miles) south of here.

He said a curfew was in force in Agra's Tajganj district, where the Taj Mahal is located, and which is the worst-hit area in the town where Hindu-Moslem violence left 20 people dead since Friday.

"The area is not secure" despite the deployment of army troops and paramilitary forces, the official added.

Taj Mahal, admired for its perfect Moghul architecture, was built during India's early Islamic era by emperor Shah Jahan in the memory of his wife Mumtaz Mahal who died in 1630.

Mr. A.K. Singh said the government had also shut Agra Fort, built with red sandstone by Moghul emperor Akbar in the 16th century, and the nearby mausoleum of Akbar known as Sikandara.

"But tourists are still coming into Agra," he said. "They are putting up in hotels... There is absolutely no traffic in the Taj Mahal area."

LONDON (DEC. 17) - Albania is to try 157 people who took part in violent anti-government demonstrations last week, the Albanian chief investigator Chemal Ljama announced.

Mr. Ljama, quoted on Albanian radio monitored by the BBC, said they were accused of various offences. These included illegitimate gatherings, "plundering the wealth of the people", assassination attempts and causing injury.

Calm returned to the country Saturday after troops backed by tanks and armored vehicles regained control of the cities of Elbasan, Shkoder, Kavaje and Durres which had been rocked by three days of rioting.

Fifty people were arrested in Elbasan, 60 in Shkoder, and 42 in Durres.

Mr. Ljama, speaking in an interview Saturday that was broadcast in English late Sunday, said the accused could have a lawyer.

President Ramiz Alia has been pushing a program of reforms of the orthodox communist system inherited from his predecessor Enver Hoxha.

Albania, Europe's last hardline Communist state, authorized the creation of independent political parties last Tuesday.

A Democratic Party was created on the campus of Tirana University after the announcement and said it would contest elections next February.

It has repeatedly declared its support for Mr. Alia's reform program and called for an end to the rioting, which it said "endangered the democratization process".

The government said the rioting left 20 people injured.

Both the Albanian press and independent sources said rioters in the provincial cities had looted stores and struck at symbols of the communist regime, attacking local Communist Party headquarters, radio stations and town halls.

BEIJING (DEC. 17) - China reduced timber consumption by 15 per cent, or 53 million cubic metres (1.8 billion cubic feet), between 1985 and 1990, the China Daily said here Monday.

Citing the ministry of forestry, the official English-language newspaper said that after steadily increasing for years, timber consumption in this country facing widespread deforestation began to fall off sharply in 1988.

The ministry attributed the 15 per cent drop to the reduced use of wood for heating and to a falloff in house-building by farmers.

The government in March called on Chinese to take part in the 10th national reforestation campaign, which is seeking to plant 12 million trees this year.

Colombo (DEC. 17) - Nine Sri Lankan soldiers were killed when their vehicles were blown up by a mine planted by suspected Tamil rebels who then launched a gun and grenade attack on the troops, military officials said here Monday.

Eight soldiers were also wounded in the ambush Sunday night at Meeyankulam, north of the eastern town of Batticaloa.

The soldiers were in two army vehicles which were blasted by the mine laid by rebels of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (Ltte) who opened fire and threw grenades at the troops, the officials said.

The rebels, who are fighting in the northeast for an independent homeland for minority Tamils, seized weapons and signals equipment in the attack.

In another incident, three suspected rebels were shot dead by elite Special Task Force (Stf) commandos Monday during a search operation in the adjoining Ampara district.

Elsewhere, four suspected Tamil rebels were killed in two separate incidents in the northern Keerimalai and Palaly areas on Sunday, military officials said.

TOKYO (DEC. 17) - Japan's top economic policy planner, Hideyuki Aizawa, called Monday on monetary authorities to lower current interest rates to keep the economy on uptrend.

Speaking at a Budget Committee meeting of the House of Councillors, the upper house of parliament, Mr. Aizawa, director general of the Economic Planning Agency (EPA) said the EPA shared the view of the Bank of Japan that the fundamentals of the Japanese economy had not changed much, with stable consumer spending and corporate investment in plant and equipments.

He said however that higher oil prices, interest rates and jobless figures might affect the future of the economy.

Mr. Aizawa said that higher interest rates were ''a problem'', adding that ''adequate measures'' ought to be taken by monetary authorities.

MANILA (DEC. 17) - The United States and the Philippines need two more sessions next month to conclude a new treaty on U.S. military bases in this country, Philippine Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus said Monday.

"We are now nearing, hopefully, the end of the negotiations," he told a press forum here. "We are going to meet again in January, perhaps for two more rounds. At the end of the second round in January we hope that we will be concluding the talks."

Manila has set a January deadline for the two governments to agree on terms for Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base, the two largest American military facilities abroad, along with four support installations, on which the lease expires in nine months' time.

Mr. Manglapus said the new agreement must take the form of a treaty ratified by the legislatures of both countries and which would involve a "compensatory arrangement that would take into consideration the economic needs of the Philippines today".

Washington has pledged 481 million dollars a year in economic and military aid to Manila for the last two years of the current bases agreement. A U.S. spokesman said earlier this month that compensation levels would be commensurate with the level of access American troops would get after 1991.

Two U.S. senators who visited Manila early this month ruled out setting a fixed amount of compensation for the bases, but said they were agreeable to a non-cash package that would include a debt write-off similar to that recently granted by Washington to Egypt.

LUSAKA (DEC. 17) - South African Foreign Minister Roelof Pik Botha will visit Zambia Tuesday, to discuss with President Kenneth Kaunda the normalisation of relations between the two countries, The Times of Zambia reported Monday.

According to the newspaper, Mr. Botha is visiting Zambia at the express invitiation of Mr. Kaunda to discuss regional issues as well as normalisation of bilateral.

The newspaper quoted the Zambian leader as saying he predicted ''a great future for Africa'' when a democratic South Africa joined the continent's economic groupings.

Diplomatic and economic observers see Mr. Kaunda's invitation as confirmation that Zambia is getting closer to opening economic trade links with South Africa. A South African trade mission is expected to open in Lusaka some time this month.

The Times of Zambia also reported that President Kaunda will sign on Tuesday the constitution amendment bill legalising the formation of opposition parties and ending 17 years of one-party rule through the United National Independence Party (UNIP).

The paper quotes the president as saying multi-party advocates should not fear that next year's elections will be rigged. ''There is no way I will sit down and cheat...There is no way I can be president over a cheating arrangement,'' he said.

However, Mr. Kaunda said the state of emergency in force for 26 years in Zambia would not be lifted in the near future. ''As long as the multi- party advocates continue to behave the way they do at present I will not lift the state of emergency,'' the paper quoted him as saying.

Opposition politicians say the state of emergency will stifle their activities during the multi-party campaign period.

TAIPEI (DEC. 17) - Europe is expected to become Taiwan's largest trading partner by the turn of the century, when bilateral trade will account for 30 per cent of the island's total foreign trade, the Euro-Asia Trade Organization (Eato) predicted Monday.

Eato officials based on Taiwan said after West Europe is integrated into a single market in 1992, Europe will replace the United States as the most important export outlet for Taiwan-made products because of a total maarket of 320 million consumers.

According to Eato statistics, Taiwan's investment in Europe between 1959 and 1989 accounted for only 7 per cent of the island's total external investment during the period, but the figure has jumped to 17 per cent between January and October of this year.

The figures show that local manufacturers are more active in making investment in Europe, in light of the upcoming integration of West Europe into a single market, Eato officials said.

BANGKOK (DEC. 17) - A five-day International Congress on AIDS began as scheduled here Monday despite a last minute boycott by the World Health Organisation (WHO) and other United Nations organisations.

The WHO decided to boycott the conference, organized by Princess Chulaborn, the youngest daughter of King Bhumibol Adulyadej, in protest at Thailand's refusal to allow sufferers from acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) a visa to attend.

But despite the WHO decision hundreds of doctors, scientists and AIDS activists from around the world attended today's opening by the princess, chairman of the Chulaborn Research Institute (CRI).

Last week Princess Chulaborn resigned as a goodwill ambassador for the WHO after it announced its withdrawal from the conference.

According to sources, she said WHO had imposed undue pressure on her to lobby the government to have the ban on AIDS victims entering the country dropped.

A statement issued by the CRI on Friday said Princess Chulaborn was not in a position to lobby for an amendment to the law which prohibits granting of visas to AIDS sufferers.

''This is a private institute which has never meddled in politics and must abide by Thai laws,'' the statement said.

Even after the Princess's resignation, the Thai government continued to stand firm on the ban, rejecting a last minute call from the Public Health Ministry to grant AIDS victims entry visas.

The conference, which runs all week, will cover the scientific, social, legal and psychological effects of the incurable disease, which is transmitted by sexual contact or transfusions of contaminated blood and destroys the body's resistance to infection.

Taipei (DEC. 17) - More than 200 illegal immigrants from the Chinese mainland rioted in a detention centre in northeastern Taiwan to demand that they be immediately repatriated, an official of the Taiwan Garrison Command confirmed Monday.

The disturbance, which occurred Sunday in Lotung, Ilan County, was was quelled in a few hours, the official said. But informed sources said it lasted from breakfast time until the evening.

The official of the Garrison Command, which governs the centre, said the incident may have been caused by the slow progress of repatriation.

The centre, which can accommodate 216 people, is now crowded with more than 300. Most of those detained have been there three months, informed sources said.

Many mainland Chinese enter Taiwan illegally to work at jobs that pay more than on the mainland. Authorities here estimate more than 10,000 Chinese have sneaked into Taiwan since 1987, when the Nationalist government ended 38 years of martial law and eased restrictions on contacts between people on both sides across the Taiwan Strait.

KABALE, Uganda (DEC. 17) - Rebels in Rwanda are battling government forces in several areas near the border with Uganda and have captured the border post of Kagima, according to residents on the Ugandan side.

The northern Rwandan village of Kaniga, a few kilometres from the border, on Sunday came under heavy mortar fire which could be heard from the Ugandan village of Rwene said the correspondent. The firing seemed to be moving deeper into Rwanda.

Rebels of the Rwandan Patriotic Front (RPF), who invaded north-eastern Rwanda from Uganda in October, took Kagima on Thursday after a two-day battle that left an estimated 60 government troops dead, villagers on the Ugandan side of the border said.

Rebel forces were seen advancing towards Rukono, 15 kilometres (nine miles) inside Rwanda, suggesting that they could be trying to link up with other rebels hiding in the Akagera national park in north-east Rwanda, residents of the Ugandan border village of Kampinga said.

They said "a large number of rebels" were on the move, but could not give any figure.

Sporadic mortar fire apparently coming from the Bulindi tea factory could be heard from the main border post of Katuna on Sunday, the AFP correspondent said, though Rwandan troops seemed to be in control of the area.

Residents on the Ugandan side of the border said the RPF had apparently launched a fresh offensive on December 5, when they attacked government troops about four kilometres (two-and-a-half miles) from the Ugandan border district of Kamwezi.

Local people who watched the fighting from the Kamwezi hills said hundreds of rebels had battled the Rwandan army for about three hours.

One man said up to 20 government troops had been killed, and a local journalist who visited the battleground two days later said he counted 16 corpses near four burned-out army jeeps.

TOKYO (DEC. 17) - Japanese sales of motor vehicles are expected to climb 1.5 per cent from 7.8 million units this year to 7.92 million units in 1991, Toyota Motor Corp. chairman Shoichiro Toyoda said Monday.

"Personal consumption will remain brisk despite the fall in stock prices and slowdown in investment on plants and equipment," Mr. Toyoda told a news conference. "Car sales will therefore remain brisk."

Toyota's sales are expected to rise four per cent to 2.6 million units with exports advancing six per cent to 1.78 million units, led by sales to Asia, he said. The company's domestic production is forecast to rise four per cent to 4.36 million units with production abroad rising two per cent to 690,000 units.

KUALA LUMPUR (DEC. 17) - Malaysian Finance Minister Daim Zainuddin said Monday that the government has given approval to a private consortium to set up a financial futures market.

The finance ministry has issued a letter of approval to the promoters of the Kuala Lumpur Options and Financial Futures Exchange (KLOFFE), Bernama news agency quoted Mr. Daim as saying.

"These people did a study and made an application to the Capital Issues Committee which has also given its approval," the minister said.

The exchange, which was announced last week, took by surprise the Kuala Lumpur Commodity Exchange (KLCE) and the Kuala Lumpur Stock Exchange (KLSE), which had shown keen interest in introducing financial futures trading.

The KLCE said in a statement last week that it was still definitely pursuing financial futures trading.

Mr. Daim, speaking to reporters after briefing members of parliament on budget proposals for 1991, also said that the government would like to see more mergers among financial institutions.

In September, Bank of Commerce and United Asian Bank proposed a merger to form Malaysia's fifth largest locally-incorporated commercial bank.

"We want to see mergers, not only among banks but also among stockbroking firms as well as other financial institutions," Mr. Daim said.

The government is encouraging stockbroking companies to merge as a means to strengthen their capital base.

NICOSIA (DEC. 17) - Crude oil output by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) rose by nearly a million barrels a day in November to 23.63 million, the Middle East Economic Survey (MEES) reported here Monday.

The increase over October of 970,000 barrels a day was "largely attributable" to production hikes in Iran and Saudi Arabia, according to the Nicosia-based specialist newsletter.

In Iran output rose 460,000 barrels a day over October to reach 3.46 million barrels, while in Saudi Arabia production went up 530,000 barrels to day to 8.33 million and should hit 8.63 million barrels a day in December.

Exports from Iran averaged 2.66 million barrels a day in November, an increase of 640,000 over October, according to MEES.

OPEC ministers from the cartel's 13 member states agreed at the end of a meeting in Vienna last week to allow unlimited production during the Gulf crisis.

But with an end to the tension in the region, OPEC vowed to return to a production ceiling of 22.5 million barrels a day and a reference price of 21 dollars a barrel.

BEIJING (DEC. 17) - Japan and North Korea will open formal talks in Pyongyang late next month on establishing diplomatic relations, a Japanese diplomatic source said.

The decision came at the end of a third round of preparatory "talks about talks" in the Chinese capital aimed at setting a time, place and agenda for the negotiations.

A precise date for the Pyongyang meeting will be set through diplomatic consultations, but the source said both sides had agreed at the preparatory talks that the opening round should take place in late January.

They would be followed by a second round in Tokyo, with any subsequent rounds to be held in Beijing, the source added.

Theoretically, the talks are to be held at the deputy foreign minister level, but the Japanese source said Tokyo would appoint a special ambassador as the head of its delegation.

Monday's announcement was seen by North Korea watchers as a fresh sign that Pyongyang - one of the world's few remaining orthodox Marxist states - is seeking to end its diplomatic isolation.

But they cautioned that the upcoming negotiations could be tough. North Korea is known to have demanded reparations from Japan, which occupied the Korean Peninsula as a colonial power from 1910 until the end of World War Two in 1945.

The developments stem from an ice-breaking trip to Pyongyang in September by Japan's powerful former deputy prime minister Shin Kanemaru, when President Kim Il-Sung signalled a willingness to open ties with Tokyo.

It was followed by the three rounds of preparatory talks, which started in November and took place in Beijing, convenient for both Tokyo and Pyongyang.

They were the first-ever official contacts between Japan and North Korea.

The third round began on Saturday, continued Sunday, then went into an unexpected third day Monday.

During the weekend little progress was reported, but the Japanese source said both sides managed to hammer out a broad four-point agenda covering "fundamental" economic, international and miscellaneous issues "concerning the normalization of relations."

The last agenda item is to include discussion on the legal status of ethnic Koreans living in Japan, and of Japanese women who are married to North Korean nationals.

BEIJING (DEC. 17) - A Chinese automaker and the French firm Citroen will sign a contract in Paris on Wednesday for the joint construction of a new car in China, with an ultimate production target of 300,000 a year, China Daily said Monday.

The announcement of the deal, which has been under discussion for years, was greeted by industry sources with scepticism.

New passenger car registrations currently peak at around 150,000 a year in China, they said adding that the project contained a number of ambiguities.

Citroen's managing director Raymond Ravenel, during a visit here in October, was noncommittal on production targets, describing the figure of 300,000 as a "long-term" goal.

Chen Qingtai, director of Citroen's partner in the contract, the China Second Automobile Works (SAW), told China Daily that annual production capacity would be 150,000 cars when production began and said the figure of 300,000 would depend on market conditions and availability of funds.

The newspaper quoted experts as estimating the demand for new cars would reach 1.2 million annually around the year 2000.

The deal creating the Aeolus-Citroen joint venture, based at Wuhan in east central China, to be signed between SAW and Citroen's parent company Peugeot SA, will represent an investment of 800 million dollars, partly financed from French public funds, according to the Chinese firm.

Mr. Ravenel, however, said the investment would total 400 million dollars.

The deal was held up by sanctions, including the embargo on government loans, imposed on China by the European Community following the crushing of pro-democracy unrest in Beijing in June 1989.

According to China Daily the first car produced by the new joint venture in 1994 -- a new 1,500 cc model -- will be assembled from imported components.

Mr. Chen said that some cars produced during the first phase of production would be for export, notably to developing countries, whereas Mr. Ravenel had indicated in October that almost all would be sold on the domestic market.

According to experts the deal was even more of a gamble following the joint-venture agreement of German automaker Volkswagen signed in November to produce Golf cars in the northeastern industrial city of Changchun, with an eventual capacity target of 150,000 units.

LAGOS (DEC. 17) - Nigeria will launch a rehabilitation and reconstruction fund for Liberia early next year to help repair the damage left by almost a year of civil war, press reports Monday quoted President Ibrahim Babangida as saying.

The Nigerian public would be expected to contribute to the fund to help rebuild the West African nation, he said at the weekend in Abuja, the nation's future capital, at the yearly patron's night of the Nigerian Institute of International Affairs.

He said the scheme may also be launched in all the other West African nations: "I would like like to see, this fund extended to embrace all member-states of the Economic Community of West African States (Ecowas) and interested community and non-governmental organisations."

Nigeria believed in the OAU principle of non-intervention in the affairs of other states, but he said this should not be used as "an excuse to shed our responsibilities at the expense of humanity".

Since Africa was no longer of crucial strategic interest to the great world powers, it was wrong to leave the management of crises in the continent to external actors, he said.

TOKYO (DEC. 17) - Three Daimler-Benz group firms and Mitsubishi Motors Corp. (Mmc) announced Monday an agreement to set up a new joint venture firm to strengthen Mercedes car sales in Japan.

The partners include Daimler-Benz, Mercedes-Benz, and Mercedes-Benz Japan (Mbj). But Yanase and Co., a leading imported car seller which had been foreseen as a partner in the joint venture, dropped out of the project.

Mbj president Michael N. Bassermann told a news conference after negotiations that the partners believed it would be ''better and more realistic'' for just the two groups - Daimler-Benz and Mitsubishi -forming the joint venture.

Mercedes-Benz expects sales of about 40,000 passenger cars in Japan for 1990, to gain top position among foreign carmakers.

With an increase of more than 25 per cent over last year, Japan has grown to be one of the biggest markets for Mercedes passenger cars, according to the Mbj company.

Meanwhile, Toyota Motor Corp. president Soichiro Toyoda said at a news conference that domestic sales of four-wheeled vehicles by Japanese carmakers will reach an estimated 7.92 million units in 1991, up from 7.8 million seen for this year.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 17) - Iraq on Monday warned it was now fully prepared to do battle with the United States and said its apparent military capacity was but "the tip of the iceberg."

"Iraqis have a great desire to undertake the decisive battle," said Al-Thawra, the publication of the ruling Baath party.

But it stressed that "Iraqis were also advocates of peace, although not one that means acceptance of U.S. hegemony."

"All measures have been taken on the front to inflict disorder in the ranks of the aggressor," according to Al-Thawra.

Another paper, the defense ministry journal Al-Qadissiyah, asserted that Iraq's military capacities are only "the visible tip fo the iceberg," behind which stands "a formidable and destructive power."

Iraq and the United States are engaged in a bitter diplomatic and military standoff in the Gulf, as a January 15 United Nations deadline for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait approaches.

After that date the U.S.-led multinational force in the region would have U.N. Security Council authorization to launch a military attack to dislodge Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

Fears of war appeared to ease late last month when U.S. President George Bush proposed a direct dialogue with Iraq. But the two sides have since then failed to agree on dates for meetings in Washington and Baghdad.

Iraqi authorities in the meantime have intensified civil defense procedures.

Brussels (DEC. 17) - Foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (Nato) gathered here Monday for a two-day autumn meeting at which the Gulf crisis and a new security structure for Europe will be high on the agenda.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker is expected to remind Washington's allies of an earlier U.S. request to make available additional ships and aircraft to transport troops to the Gulf.

On his flight to Brussels, Baker told journalists he was still hopeful that talks could be arranged between the United States and Iraq on the Gulf crisis.

Iraq called off a visit to Washington by Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz which had been scheduled for Monday.

Nato members hope to work out a new security strategy to reflect the enormous political changes which have taken place in Europe.

Members of the European Community agreed at their summit in Rome to pursue a joint security policy at which Nato is expected to continue to play a crucial role.

TAIPEI (DEC 17) - China's first securities exchange, the Shanghai Stock Exchange (Sse), will be officially inaugurated December 19, a local stock exchange official said here Monday.

Lee Hsiang-jui, head of the Shanghai branch of the China Bank of Communications, will assume the chairmanship of the Sse, said the official, who declined to be identified.

A large seminar on stock exchange operation will be held simultaneously with the opening of the market. Related experts and scholars from Taiwan, Hong Kong and China will be invited to attend the event, he said.

Direct transactions between Taiwan and China are banned under local Taipei policy. Violators can be prosecuted for ''profiting the Chinese communists'' under the local law.

But the Nationalist government has recently relaxed restrictions on local contacts with Beijing, as private exchange activities have increased in the past several years.

ALGIERS (DEC. 17) - Around 4,000 Algerian barristers have gone on strike to protest a government plan to introduce new rules for their profession which they say will "restrict" the rights of the defence.

The National Union of Algerian Barristers (UNAA) said the unlimited strike was a "warning" to legislators seeking to do away with lawyer-client confidentiality and the barrister's right to immunity from prosecution in the exercise of his profession.

Miloud Brahimi, honorary president of the Algerian League of Human Rights said the proposed new code of practice now before parliament would "leave clients at the mercy of the authorities" and would be a "serious threat to individual freedom".

The strike which began last Wednesday has paralysed courts in Algiers and the rest of the country.

RUESSELSHEIM (DEC. 17) - The Adam Opel car company said Monday its daily output here has reached 1,400 cars, coming very close to the plant's maximum capacity of 1,470 cars.

Plant director Klaus Rieger, noting that production at the start of 1990 was 1,150 cars daily, said Opel expected to produce 292,170 cars for the year, up six per cent from last year.

The increase was noteworthy because employees performed only half as many overtime work shifts as in 1989, Rieger said.

The production rise also outpaced the increase the work force, which in November reached 31,600, about five per cent more than at the start of the year.

HONG KONG (DEC. 17) - The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corp., a pillar of this international financial hub, dropped a bombshell here Monday by saying it would form a new holding company incorporated in Britain.

The shifting of the bank's legal domicile, widely leaked here in the past week has been interpreted as a no-confidence vote on the future of the British colony which is scheduled to revert to Chinese rule in 1997.

The Hongkong Bank also announced Monday it has dropped its merger plans with Britain's Midland Bank amid "the uncertain state of financial markets" worldwide.

In a separate announcement, the Hongkong Bank said it proposed to its shareholders a new group holding company, called HSBC Holdings Plc, which is to be a "UK-incorporated company managed and controlled in Hong Kong."

In a bid to allay market fears, the bank's chairman William Purves was quoted as saying: "We are emphatically not turning our back on Hong Kong. We shall remain headquartered in the territory."

"The assets, liabilities and operations of the group will remain unchanged," the statement added.

It said the banks' listings on the local and London stock exchanges would be replaced by the new holding firm.

Speculation has been rife over the Hongkong Bank move, which saw local stocks' Hang Seng Index fall by 2.4 per cent Monday.

The bank said its restructuring was prompted by persistent questions from its overseas business associates over the bank's future plans, which it said were "misplaced" but "understandable ... in the light of the unprecedented future constitutional status of Hong Kong."

Financial analysts said the bank reorganising scheme could prove the biggest financial blow Hong Kong has suffered since 1984, when the colony's oldest British trading concern, Jardine Matheson Holdings Ltd., shifted its legal base to Bermuda.

COLOMBO (DEC. 17) - Chinese Premier Li Peng arrived here Monday on a three-day state visit to Sri Lanka during which he will hold talks with President Ranasinghe Premadasa, officials here said.

Mr. Li landed at Katunayake international airport to a 21-gun salute and was greeted by Prime Minister Dingiri Banda Wijetunga.

The visiting leader is on the final leg of a four-nation Asian tour which has taken him to Kuala Lumpur, Manila and Vientiane.

China has been a major supplier of arms to Sri Lankan security forces in their ongoing drive against Tamil separatist guerrillas in the island's northeast.

However, junior Defence Minister Ranjan Wijeratne last week said there would be no agreements between the two countries on arms supplies during Mr. Li's visit.

The English-language Sunday Island newspaper said a Chinese delegation had arrived in Sri Lanka ahead of Mr. Li's visit to sign a contract with the navy for the supply of urgently needed landing craft.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 17) - Washington says the Soviet Union deliberately underestimated the number of its conventional arms to be destroyed under a disarmament treaty, and has made an official complaint to Moscow, the Washington Post said Monday.

The agreement on Conventional Forces in Europe (CFE) was signed by Moscow and Washington in Vienna last month but must still be ratified by the U.S. Congress.

U.S. and allied government officials cited in the article said Moscow largevered by the treaty after it was signed.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker and chief U.S. negotiator at the CFE talks James Woolsey, informed Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze of the U.S. complaint last week in Houston, the paper said.

It noted that a provision in the CFE treaty says "any necessary correction" can be made in the 90 days following its signature, which means until February 17.

DHAKA (DEC. 17) - The Bangladeshi ambassador to Japan, Hedayetul Huq, has been recalled and the ambassador to France, Tozammel Huq, has resigned, a foreign office source said here Monday.

"A message was sent to Mr. Hedayetul Huq today (Monday), and Mr. Tozammel Huq's resignation has been accepted," the source said.

The ambassador to France, an appointee of ousted president Hussain Mohammad Ershad, had been sent on a two-year term in 1987 which was renewed last year for a similar period, he added.

It was not immediately known who would replace the two diplomats, but the moves came as the interim government here reviewed "controversial" envoys, a euphemism for those considered close to Mr. Ershad.

Foreign Office officials had demanded that acting President Shahabuddin Ahmed's government streamline the service and recall all officials appointed "irregularly".

The first ambassador to be recalled after Mr. Ershad's fall was his brother-in-law A.H.G. Mohiuddin, Bangladesh's permanent representative to the United Nations, and sources said several junior diplomats had also been ordered home.

WINDHOEK (DEC. 17) - Namibian Prime Minister Hage Geingob has gone to Brussels where he will sign the Lome Four Convention agreement on Tuesday, state-run radio said Monday.

Mr. Geingob said the significance of Namibia's membership of the convention, which governs trade and aid relations between the 12-member European Community (EC) and 66 African, Caribbean and Pacific nations, lay not only in access to European markets, but also in the direct link it provided with the EC.

He expressed his satisfaction with the 10,500-ton beef quota allocated to Namibia in terms of the convention and said farmers should strive to meet it in the first year.

Mr. Geingob, who left for the Belgian capital at the weekend said he would also use the European visit to inform leaders of Namibia's investment code and private sector investment conference to be held in Windhoek from February 3 to 6 next year.

The Prime Minister also intends to visit London to inspect possible premises for a future embassy in the British capital.

KUALA LUMPUR (DEC. 17) - Two petrochemical plants, in which Malaysia's national oil company Petronas has majority stakes, secured loans Monday totalling 321.5 million dollars from a consortium of 30 local and international banks.

The loans are in two tranches, comprising 221 million U.S. dollars and 78 million Malaysian dollars (28.9 million U.S.) for MTBE Malaysia Sdn. Bhd. and 60.5 million U.S. dollars and 30 million Malaysian dollars (11.1 million U.S.) for Polypropylene Malaysia Sdn. Bhd.

Petronas president, Azizan Zainal Abidin, said at the signing ceremony that it was the first time the oil company had raised funds for its projects without putting up a guarantor.

"The projects are so good that people are prepared to accept them without guarantee," he said.

Petronas has a 60 per cent stake in MTBE Malaysia which will produce 300,000 tonnes of methyl tertiary butyl ether, a substitute for lead used in petrol, and 80,000 tonnes of propylene a year when it comes on stream in August 1992.

Finland's Neste Oy has a 30 per cent stake in the plant sited in the eastern state of Pahang, while Japan's Idemitsu Petrochemicals Co. Ltd. holds the remaining share. The plant uses natural gas from offshore fields as raw material.

Polypropylene Malaysia, in which Petronas has a 55 per cent share, will produce polypropylene using the propylene produced by MTBE as feedstock.

The other partners are Neste Oy which has 35 per cent of the equity and Idemitsu which holds a 10 per cent stake.

Polypropylene is used in the production of films, plastics, ropes, chairs, woven bags and other industrial products.

The 10-year-loans which have a grace period of four years each are managed by Bank Bumiputra Malaysia Bhd., Malayan Banking Bhd., Industrial Bank of Japan, Barclays Bank plc, Kansallis-Osake-Pankki and the Sumitomo Bank Ltd.

MANILA (DEC. 17) - Thirty people were killed in clashes between soldiers and communist guerrillas in various parts of the Philippines ov the military said here Monday.

Five communist New People's Army (NPA) rebels were killed in a clash with soldiers in Rosario in the southern province of Agusan del Sur on Saturday, the military said.

In Camarines Norte province, south of here, two NPA rebels were killed and three other persons wounded in a gunfight with government troops in Goa town on Saturday.

Eleven NPA rebels, four militiamen and two civilians were killed after guerrillas masquerading as paramilitary constables raided a municipal hall in Sogod town in the central province of Cebu.

Six other NPA guerillas were killed in a clash with soldiers at Vintar in the northern province of Ilocos Norte, the military said.

The NPA is the armed wing of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines which has been waging a war against the government for 21 years. It has an estimated 10,000-15,000 fighters nationwide.

KUALA LUMPUR (DEC. 17) - Crude palm oil futures enjoyed new record turnover of 3,455 lots of one tonne each on the Kuala Lumpur Commodity E (KLCE) Monday as prices surged on the back of a sharp fall in stocks.

The KLCE said the previous record volume achieved since its revamp in 1985 was 3,174 lots in November last year.

The exchange said prices rose to 881 Malaysian dollars (326 U.S.) a tonne for the current month contract, the highest since June 1989, following reports of a bigger-than-expected drop in palm oil stocks in November.

The Palm Oil Registration and Licensing Authority (PORLA) said Saturday that total palm oil stocks fell 13.36 per cent to 790,463 tonnes in November.

NEW DELHI (DEC. 17) - A fuel tanker crashed and exploded in a northern Indian town Monday, killing eight people and dozens of cattle, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

Sixty people were injured and houses were ravaged, the agency said.

Most of those killed or burned were sleeping in their homes in the town of Gangaur Kheri in Punjab state when the large tanker-truck rolled down a highway and crashed.

Metal or concrete roofs of 60 houses were blown off by the impact of the explosion.

"The explosion was so great that one-fourth of the houses in the (town's) Mandi area collapsed," the news agency said.

Most of the injured were rushed to a hospital in critical condition.

Some 40 bulls, 50 buffaloes, 58 calves and five cows perished in the inferno that lasted through Monday despite attempts by nine fire-fighters to extinguish the flames.

Police said the tanker, belonging to the state-owned Hindustan Petroleum Corp. had been travelling from a refinery in the northern town of Mathura to Jalandhar in Punjab.

RABAT (DEC 17) - Morocco's opposition parties on the left and the right joined forces Monday to urge a probe into wage riots which left a disputed number of dead and wounded in Fez, the former royal capital.

Parliament was to debate the violence later Monday after a statement from Prime Minister Azzedine Laraki. The parties and Morocco's two human rights bodies said there had to be an independent inquiry into the causes of the violence.

On the government side, the independents' bloc condemned "the violence and anarchy" which hit Fez and to a lesser extent Rabat and elsewhere on Friday and Saturday, but added that there should be dialogue "between the authorities and its social partners". Another pro-government grouping said strike action was a legitimate right, but this time there had been "the serious consequences of looting and destruction".

The two central labour unions which called the strike to press for a threefold rise in the monthly minimum wage to compensate for dearer food warned earlier that they would organise another general strike if their claims received no satisfaction.

The General Workers Union and the Democratic Labour Confederation complained that the government was stalling at a time when unemployment and inflation were hitting the most impoverished classes hardest. The violence had erupted in the poorest districts of Fez and Tangiers, they noted.

The unions and opposition parties also accused Mr. Laraki's government of "provocation and manipulation".

Fez was reported calm, but here in the capital youths and security forces clashed overnight again in the working-class district of Yacoub el Mansour.

The unions disputed the official figure of five dead and 127 injured in Fez, where journalists trying to check the toll were barred from hospitals. The chief doctor, Hassan Houari, said the dead were four civilians and a member of the security forces. But union leaders Noubir Amaoui and Abderrazak Afilal insisted there were "dozens of dead and hundreds of wounded" because the army had used machine-guns.

TEL AVIV (DEC. 17) - Two guerillas affiliated to the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine were killed Monday in a clash with Israeli troops and their proxy South Lebanon Army, an Israeli military spokesman said.

The clash occurred in the eastern sector of Israel's self-proclaimed security zone running inside the Lebanese border. The spokesman said the guerillas had been wounded in a clash Sunday with troops in which a third comrade had died and two Israelis were injured.

After the two guerillas escaped, Israeli soldiers and units of the Sla carried out widespread searches in the area, eventually killing them in a short firefight, the spokesman said. There were no reported casualties to Israeli or Sla personnel.

GENEVA (DEC. 17) - The Uruguay Round of multilateral trade talks will resume here January 15, trade sources said Monday.

They said the director-general of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), Arthur Dunkel, had called an informal meeting on that date of the Trade Negotiations Committee. No negotiations are planned in the meantime.

The four-year Uruguay Round, aimed at liberalization of world trade, was supposed to end with a ministerial GATT conference in Brussels in early December, but the meeting failed due to unresolved conflicts, particularly over farm trade.

Mr. Dunkel is to travel soon to several capitals, including Washington, primarily to discuss the conflict over agriculture, but the GATT secretariat has been very discreet about the officials he will see during his trip.

A source in the European Community's GATT delegation commented that in view of the situation resulting from the Brussels parley's failure, negotiations here in the meantime might erode prior agreements on non-agricultural trade.

TOKYO (DEC. 17) - The Japanese government will release 2.5 million Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp. (NTT) shares to the public over five years starting in fiscal 1991, Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto said Monday.

Out of a total of 15.6 million NTT shares held by the government, 5.4 million have already been released since the Japanese telecommunications giant was put under private management in 1985.

Regulations allow the government to release up to 10.4 million of the total NTT shares to the public. Thus the government can release five million more.

Half the five million will be released over the next five years, with 500,000 shares sold each year, and the remaining 2.5 million will be "frozen" for an unspecified period, Mr. Hashimoto said.

Current regulations bar foreigners from holding NTT shares but the government will study measures to relax the rules, he said.

NTT stocks plunged to the 700,000 yen (5,300 dollars) level on the Tokyo Stock Exchange last September from a peak of 3.18 million yen (24,000 dollars) in 1987.

They were quoted at 1.04 million yen (7,800 dollars) at the close of trading on the Tokyo market Monday.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 17) - Palestinian militants have chosen U.S. targets around the world that are to be attacked in case of aggression against Iraq, Abul Abbas, head of the Palestine Liberation Front (PLF), has warned.

Facilities belonging to other Western nations have also been selected, Abul Abbas told the daily newspaper Al-Jumhuriya.

"Among our targets are U.S. installations and interests all over the world," he said.

"The PLF will fight alongside Iraq in the event of war with the United States, the source of international terrorism."

The group last May claimed responsibility for an aborted landing on an Israeli beach, after which the United States suspended a dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization for failing to expel Abul Abbas from its executive committee.

In 1985 the PLF seized the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro in the Mediterranean, killing an elderly U.S. passenger and throwing his body overboard.

CAIRO (DEC. 17) - Algerian President Chadli Benjedid, who on Monday completed talks on the Gulf crisis in seven Mideast countries, said he would continue his mediation efforts, the Egyptian news agency Mena reported.

Before leaving the Egyptian capital for home, Benjedid said he might soon meet with Saudi King Fahd. Although no date for talks has been set, Benjedid said a meeting had been arranged in principle.

According to Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak, Benjedid will also travel to Tunisia and Libya. He has already visited Jordan, Iraq, Iran, Oman, Syria and Lebanon in addition to Egypt.

Benjedid said he hoped an Arab dialogue could serve as the basis for a solution to the crisis, ignited by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

At the same time, he spoke out in favour of an international Mideast peace conference.

He said there had to be a ''political link'' but no ''organic link'' between the Gulf crisis and the Palestinian problem because the former was an inter-Arab matter and the latter an Israeli-Arab problem.

The Algerian leader reiterated his country demands that international borders be respected and said his mediation efforts were not on behalf of one side or another.

Mubarak said efforts at a peaceful solution would continue until the last minute. He repeated that an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and the return of the exiled Kuwaiti government were prerequisites for such a solution.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 17) - The executive of the European Community (EC) is proposing that favourable arrangements for the importation of U.S. corn and sorghum be extended for a year, community sources said Monday.

The proposal by the EC Commission, sent to the 12 EC governments, was seen as a "gesture of goodwill" aimed at easing transatlantic trade tension.

It will be studied by EC foreign ministers at a meeting here Tuesday, the sources said.

The move was interpreted as being intended to ease the way for solution of several trade disputes and so avoid a new trade war between the EC and the United States.

It came 10 days after tariff-cutting negotiations within the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) were suspended because of disagreement over subsidies to agriculture.

France has already said that it opposes any extension of the corn agreement beyond the first six months of next year.

Under an agreement signed in 1987, which expires at the end of December, the United States is authorised to export annually two million tonnes of corn and 300,000 tonnes of sorghum at reduced rates of duty.

The arrangement was made in compensation for market share lost when Spain and Portugal joined the community.

At the end of November the United States threatened to impose 200 per cent customs duties worth 420 million dollars on imports of EC agricultural products and drinks to compensate for estimated losses if the agreement were not renewed.

The commission has attached conditions to its proposal. The United States would have to suspend the retaliatory measures it has prepared, and the corn dispute "will have to be settled finally" in 1991, community sources said.

In addition, even if no legal link were established with other bilateral trade disputes, the EC gesture should help to solve them, the sources said. The conflicts, particularly those concerning meat and wine, were still "on the table" and experts continued to work on them, they said.

BRAZAVlLLE (DEC. 17) - Central Africa's six-nation customs and economic union UDEAC faces collapse because of severe financial problems, Congolese President Denis Sassou-Nguesso warned when he opened what he called "a last chance" summmit Monday.

He urged measures to save the regional grouping and shore up its credibility, suggesting internal changes to adjust UDEAC's operations to its financial possibilities.

The meeting has a budget of 1.8 billion CFA francs (about seven million dollars) for next year before it, but UDEAC has accumulated five billion CFA francs (19 million dollars) in arrears over the past three years because member statesare behind with their dues.

An audit has proposed slashing staff from 387 to 160, and informed sources said a value-added tax and a community integration tax were under consideration.

Union secretary general Ambroise Foalem of Cameroon said the meeting should decide whether to replace the principle of equal participation by basing contributions on each country's gross national product.
